

THE ORIGINAL ORDINANCES OF MORE THAN ONE HUNDRED EARLY ENGLISH GILDS TOGETHER WITH

pe olde Vsages of pe Cite of Wynchestre

The Ordinances of Worcester

The Office of the Mayor of Bristol

AND

The Costomary of the Manor of Tettenhall-Regis from manuscripts of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Centuries

> EDITED, WITH NOTES, BY TOULMIN SMITH

WITH AN INTRODUCTION AND GLOSSARY, ETC., BY LUCY TOULMIN SMITH

AND A PRELIMINARY ESSAY ON THE HISTORY AND DEVELOPMENT OF GILDS BY LUJO BRENTANO

Published for THE EARLY ENGLISH TEXT SOCIETY by the OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS LONDON NEW YORK TORONTO

CONTENTS.

FIRST PUBLISHED 1870

INTRODU	CTION		•	•	•	•	•	•	•	xi
PRELIMIN	VARY ESS	ач, " (On the	e Hist	ory ai	nd D	eveloj	pment	of
Gilds a	and the C)rigin (of Tra	de-Un	ions,"	by]	Dr. Bi	RENTA	NO	xlix
Р	reface					•			•	liii
I	The Or	igin of	Gilds	•	•		•	•	•	lxv
2	. Religiou	us or S	Social	Gilds		•	•	•	•	lxxxi
3.	Town G	dilds or	r Gild	-Merc	hants		•	•	•	\mathbf{x} ciii
4	Craft-G	ilds	•	•	•	•	•		•	cxiv
5	Trade-U	Jnicus			•	•	•	•	•	clxv

PAGE

PART I.*

Gild Ordinances from Returns made, in English, in January,

			1389		•		•			•	1
Londo	DN	Gar	lekhi	th	•				•	•	3
	,,	St.	Kath	erine,	Ald	ersgat	te			•	6
	"	Sts.	Fabi	an an	d Se	ebasti	an, A	ldersg	ate		9
Norw	юн	St.	Mary			•		•		•	14
	,,	St.	Botul	թհ	•	•	•		•	•	15
	"	St.	Georg	ge		•	•	•	•		17
	,,	St.	Kath	erine		•	•	•	•		19
	,,	St.	Chris	tophe	r	•	•	•	•	•	22
	,,	Hol	y Tri	nity		•	•	•	•	•	25
	,,	The	Barl	oers		•	•	•	•		27
	,,	The	Pelty	yers	•	•			•	•	28

* The name of the town is put first throughout this table of the contents of Parts I. and II., and is followed by the name (if any) of the saint or craft after which the gild was called. vi

								PAGE
No вwi сн		•	•	•	•	•	•	33
"	The Carpenter	s	•	•	•	•	•	37
	The Poor Men		•	•	•	•	•	40
,,	The Saddlers a	and Sj	purrie	rs	•	•		42
Lynn	. St. Anthony	•	•	•		•	•	45
"	St. Thomas	•	•	•	•	•	•	47
,,	St. Leonard	•	•	•	•	•	•	49
	The Young Sel	holar s		•	•	•	•	51
,,	The Shipmen			•	•	•	•	54
"	Nativity of St.	John	Bapt	tist		•	•	58
	St. Thomas of	Cante	rbury	7		•	•	60
"	St. Peter	•	•	•		•	•	62
,,	Purification	•	•	•	•	•	•	64
"	St. Mary	•	•		•	•	•	65
	St. Katherine	•	•	•	•	•	•	67
"	St. James	•	•	•	•	•	•	69
Bishop's Lynn	Nativity of St.	John	Bapt	ist	•	•	•	71
"	St. George the	Mart	yr	•	•	•		74
	St. John Bapti		•	•	•	•	•	78
"	St. Thomas of	Cante	rbury		•	•	•	80
"	Holy Cross	•	•	•	•	•	•	83
"	Conception	•	•	•	•	•	•	86
"	Purification	•	•	•	•	•	•	89
"	St. Lawrence	•	•	•	•	• _	•	91
,,	St. Edmund	•	•	•	•	•	•	94
West Lynn	St. Nicholas	•	•	•	•	•	•	97
"	St. John Bapti	st	•	۰.	•	•	•	100
NORTH LYNN	St. James	•	•	•	•	•	•	103
"	St. Edmund	•	•	•	•	•	•	106
	Candlemas	•	•	•	•	•	•	109
WYGNALE	Holy Trinity	•	•	•	•	•	•	110
,,	Assumption	•	•	•	•		•	111
"	Cranbone	•	•	•	•	•	•	114
,,	Holy Trinity	•	•	•	•	•	•	116
"	St. Peter	•	•	•	•	•	•	117
EAST WYNCH .	St. John Baptis	st	•	•	•	•	•	119
OXBURGH	St. Peter	•	•	•	•	•	•	121
37	St. John Baptis	st .	•	•	•	•	•	122

CONTENTS.

PART II.

PAGE

	LAGE
Illustrations of Gild Ordinanes, some in English, some translated *	125
Writ for Returns to be made by the Social Gilds (tr.)	127
Writ for Returns to be made by the Craft Gilds (tr.).	130 Proclamation of both Writs by the Sheriff of Worcestershire (tr.)	131
Note on Writs remaining, and on Parchment Paper	132
Writ for levying the wages of Members of Parliament (tr.) .	134
YORK (Gild of) the Lord's Prayer (tr.)	137
" Corpus Christi (tr.)	141
Agreement with Gild of Corpus Christi
(Eng.)	143
" St. John the Baptist (tr.)	146
BEVERLEY St. Elene (tr.) .	148
" St. Mary (tr.)	149
Great Gild of the Hanshouse (tr)	150
, Corpus Christi $(tr. j$	154
KINGSTON-UPON-HULL Virgin Mary (tr.)	155
Compuse Christi (tr.)	160
St. John Bentist (tr.)	161
LANCASTER Holy Trinity and St. Leonard (tr.)	163
CHESTERFIELD Blessed Mary (tr.)	165
The Smiths (tr)	168
LINCOLN St. Benedict (tr.)	172
The Resurrection (tr)	175
St. Michael on the Hill (tr)	178
The Fullers (tr.)	179
The Tailors (tr.)	182
The Tylera (tr)	182
	185
	187
STAMFORD St. Katherine (Eng.)	192
Bull-running in Stamford	134

* Those marked "(tr.)" are translated; those marked "(Eng.)" are from English originals.

viii

			PAG	E
	. The Palmers (tr.)	•	. 19	3
	Report made in 1546 (Eng.) .	•	. 19	6
WORCESTER .	. St. Nicholas	•	. 20	0
	Report made in 1546 (Eng.) .	•	. 20	2
	Report made in 1548 (Eng.) .	•	. 20	3
		['rinit	y
	Gyld" (Eng.)	•	. 20	6
,,	The Joiners and Carpenters (Eng.)	•	. 20	8
STRATFORD-UP	on-Avon. Holy Cross	•	. 21	1
	The original Latin, and translation		. 21	2
	Report made in 1546 (Eng.).	•	. 22	1
	The College of Stratford-upon-Avon	(Eng.) 22	2
	Report made in 1547 (Eng.) .	•	. 22	3
	The Legend of the finding of the	e Hol	у
	Rood (tr.)	•	. 22	24
COVENTRY	The Gild Merchant (tr.)	•	. 22	26
"	Corpus Christi (tr.)	•	. 23	32
"	Holy Trinity (tr.)	•	23	34
	Deed of Trust, touching the Gild	of th	e
	Holy Trinity (Eng.)	•	. 23	36
BIRMINGHAM .	. Holy Cross	•	. 23	39
	Writ of Inquiry, ad Quod Damnun	n (tr.)). 24	10
	Letters Patent on Foundation (tr.)	• -	. 24	4
	Report made in 1546 (Eng.) .	•	. 24	17
	Report made in 1547 (Eng.) .	•	. 24	8
	Lenche's Trust	•	. 25	51
	Declaration as to Endowment (Eng	g.)	. 25	i 2
	William Lenche's Will (Eng.)		. 25	53
	The Ordinances of the Gild (Eng.)	•	. 25	55
59	St. John the Baptist of Deritend	•	. 25	68
	Report made in 1546 (Eng.).	•	. 25	59
	Report made in 1547 (Eng.) .	•	. 26	50
CAMBRIDGE .	. Holy Trinity (tr.)	•	. 26	52
	St Mary the Virgin (tr.) .	•	. 26	69
	Annunciation (tr.)	•	. 27	'0
>>	Blessed Mary (tr.)	•	. 27	1
	St. Clement, collated with two others	(Eng.) 27	2
	Note on Oxford Gilds	•	. 27	2

			PAGE
BRISTOL The Fullers (tr.)	•	•	283
" The Kalenders (Eng.)	•	•	287
" The Ringers (Eng.)	•	•	288
READING The Gild of	•	•	297
" Letter from King Henry VI. (Eng.)	•	•	298
EXETER The Merchant Tailors	•	•	299
Charter of Edward IV. (tr.) .	•	•	30 0
Quarrels with the Corporation (En	ig.)	•	302
The King's Award (Eng.) .	•	•	304
Petition to Parliament (Eng.)	•	•	3 09
Ordinances of the Gild (Eng.)	•	•	312
Oath of the Craftsmen (Eng.)	•		316
Instructions to be read (Eng.)	•	•	318
Oath of the Master (Eng.) .	•		318
Oath of the Free Brothers (Eng.)	•	•	318
Oath of New-comers (Eng.) .	•		3 19
Oath of the Bedell (Eng.) .	•		319
Goods given to the Gild (Eug.)	•	•	320
Extracts from Gild Records (Eng.)	•	321
Further Ordinances (Eng.) .	•		324
Agreement with the Gild (Eng.)			325
Goods in the Gild-hall (Eng.)			327
Further Ordinances (Eng.) .	•		327
" The Cordwainers (Eng.)	•	•	331
" The Bakers (Eng.)	•	•	334
BERWICK-UPON-TWEED The Gild of (tr.).	•	•	3 38

PART III.

Relations of Gilds to Municipal Bodies	•	•	348
P E OLDE VSAGES OF WYNCHESTRE (Eng.) .	•	•	349
Note thereon	•	•	363
THE ORDINANCES OF WORCESTER (Eng.) .	•	•	370
The Kalendar of the Ordinances	•	•	370
The Ordinances	•	•	376
Note thereon	•	•	409

ix

	PAGE
THE OFFICE OF THE MAYOR OF BRISTOL (Eng.) .	. 413
Note thereon	. 428
COSTOMARY OF THE MANOR OF TETTENHALL REGIS (Eng.)) 432
Note thereon	438
APPENDIX I. Gild of St. George, Norwich	. 443
APPENDIX II. Grammatical Notes by Rich. Morris, Esq.	. 460
GLOSSARIAL INDEX	. 463
INDEX	. 479

INTRODUCTION.

IT is with mingled feelings that I now send this volume forth. A sorrow, in which its readers will share, that the hand which had laboured so long and so patiently was stayed ere its task was ended, that the work which should be the book he "desired to be remembered by" was yet unfinished when its author was suddenly called away, is but partly consoled by the thought that so much of that work as he had done is not lost, and that it has been at length completed, as far as might be, although by feebler hands. That it should be so completed, in a manner as much as possible worthy of the attention and care bestowed upon it by my father, has been my constant aim and endeavour; and I have had a melancholy satisfaction in filling in the rest of the outline design of this, the last labour of love undertaken by him, out of his devotion to Freedom and to the welfare of his fellow Englishmen.

A few words of explanation are due to many who have been long looking for the issue of this volume. For some months before my father's death, in April of the present year, his illness had delayed the progress of the work. Having long acted as his amanuensis, it seemed most natural afterwards that I should ^{superintend} the remainder in going through the press, rather than another, who might be an entire stranger to the papers and notes; and even with this advantage, I had much to overcome in mastering all the details of the book. Inexperience, and the results of a painful bereavement have, I fear, caused further delay; in short, a daughter's affection and reverence for her father's name are the strongest reasons I can offer for undertaking this myself, instead of yielding it up to other and more efficient hands.

x

It is right that I should state the position of the work at the time I took it up, in order to point out the authenticity of each portion. The whole of Parts I. and II. were finished by my father, with the exception of a few trifling press corrections and short notes in the last ten pages. The whole of the four Records contained in Part III. were in type, but of these, the Winchester "Usages" alone was nearly ready: all required careful collation and notes, most of them wanted the marginal abstract. The Appendix I. was not in type. Except in the case of the Ordinances of the Norwich Gild contained in the Appendix, which Mr. Parker of Oxford has been kind enough twice to collate for me, I have myself supplied all that was thus wanting, taking the utmost care to make the transcripts correct and trustworthy¹. In the Glossary, which I have also compiled, I have had the advantage of the friendly advice of Mr. Richard Morris, who has moreover, at the request of Mr. Furnivall, been good enough to prepare the Grammatical Notes on the forms of early English here printed.

In the following short Introduction I attempt to sketch out, though I fear but imperfectly, some of the ideas that my father entertained upon the wide subject that is opened up by the present volume, and to give a slight abstract of its chief features. In doing this, I have yielded to the desire of old and valued friends, who have urged that the point of view from which English Gilds and their history was regarded by one who was so thoroughly conversant with the life and spirit of English institutions, would be of the greatest interest, and that as he has unhappily left the intended Introduction unwritten, it would be well to throw his notes and materials into some shape¹. Besides notes made expressly for this purpose, I have availed myself of those made for two Lectures on the Records of England, delivered at Birmingham, in April, 1865, in which my father gave some account of the Records of the Gilds, and the pictures of their laws and customs therein discovered.

Several years ago, while following up some searches at the Public Record Office for the purposes of another work, my father's inquiries led to the bringing out of some hitherto almost unused bundles of documents², which at once attracted his attention as connected with the subject of Gilds. On fully looking these over, he found that they were of the highest interest, giving an amount of information, and throwing a light upon the history of the Gilds of England not anywhere else known. He made a calendar, and careful notes of each one of the whole series, thus occupying the leisure hours of many months; and during the course of this study he became convinced that,-besides the value of the view of "manners, morals, and language of the time," which he considered one of the most complete in itself anywhere to be found,---these old Records possessed a value for the men and women of England of the present day, which ought to be made known. In the midst of the perplexing problems presented by modern Trades-unionism, and the dangers to enterprise and manly liberty threatened by its restrictive rules, my father, who knew that Englishmen can "never appeal to their fathers in vain, when they earnestly invoke the spirit of solid freedom 3," saw how the ancient principle of association, more than a thousand years old, had been in use as a living practice among the common folk, that it had been "a part of the essential life of England, and always worked well till forcibly meddled with;" and he believed that if the spirit in which those

¹ Notes added by me are distinguished by the initials L.T.S.

¹ In several places throughout the book, reference is made to what "will be" said or found in the "Introduction." On some of these points I have touched where it seemed fitting; others, feeling it impossible, I have not attempted to deal with.

² For a more particular description of these documents, see after, p. xlii.

³ T. S., Lecture 1., on Records ; MS.

early fathers met together, prayed together, aided one another, their "faith in law-abidingness" and liberty, and their charity, could be shown to their brethren and sistren of these later days, it would not only bring closer to the present the hearts and hands of the past, with profit to themselves, but also the work would "by examples, give invaluable practical hints to sincere men" and workers now.

This volume is therefore the result of that conviction and desire. It does not seek to give a complete history of Gilds abroad and at home¹; nor does it profess to give lists of all the Gilds known in past times in England (interesting and useful though these might be), it does not even give the whole of the documents found in the bundles at the Record Office; its aim has been to put forth a true view of the early English Gilds, what they were, and what they did, by letting their own Records speak for them. And to help in this, the several other Records contained in Part III. were added, as besides being instructive in themselves—illustrating the outward relations of the Gilds with other Institutions of the land, and the development in other shapes of the same principles of free action upon the vitality of which the Gild depends².

The early English Gild was an institution of local self-help which, before Poor-laws were invented, took the place, in old times, of the modern friendly or benefit society; but with a higher aim, while it joined all classes together in a care for the needy and for objects of common welfare, it did not neglect the forms and the practice of Religion, Justice, and Morality.

"Gilds' were associations of those living in the same neighbourhood, and remembering that they have, as neighbours, common obligations. They were quite other things than modern nartnerships, or trading 'Companies;' for their main characteristic was, to set up something higher than personal gain and mere materialism, as the main object of men living in towns; and to make the teaching of love to one's neighbour be not coldly accepted as a hollow dogma of morality, but known and felt as a habit of life 1." They were the out-come, in another form, of the same spirit of independence and mutual help which also made our Old English fathers join together in the "Frith-borh" or Peace-pledge, the institution which lies at the very root and foundation of modern civil society². The difference between the Gild and the Peace-pledge was akin to that which lies between the old words "wed" and "borh"; as "wed" is that security which is given by a man personally, for himself as an individual, and "borh" the pledge given by a man for others, so a Gild was the association of men together for common objects of private and individual benefit, in which each man gave his "wed" to abide by their internal bye-laws, while a Frith-borh was the banding of men together, within the limits of a boundary, in which each joined in the "borh" or pledge for the keeping of the peace, and performance of public duties, by all the others.

INTRODUCTION.

"English Gilds, as a system of wide-spread practical institutions, are older than any Kings of England. They are told of in the books that contain the oldest relics of English Laws. The old laws of King Alfred, of King Ina, of King Athelstan, of King Henry I., reproduce still older laws in which the universal existence of Gilds is treated as a matter of well-known fact, and in which it is taken to be a matter of course that every one belonged to some Gild³. As population increased, Gilds multiplied; and thus, while the beginnings of the older Gilds are lost in the far dimness of time, and remain quite unknown, the beginnings

¹ The Essay on the History and Development of Gilds, by Dr. Brentano, of Aschaffenburg, Bavaria, who is about to write a large work on the subject, and who has thus embodied some of the early chapters for this book, is here inserted by the desire of Mr. Furnivall. The value of independent historical research and opinion is evident; I must add, however, that this gentleman had no communication whatever with my father, to whom he was quite unknown, ard who therefore will not be held responsible for views differing much on some points from his own.

² See after, p. 348.

¹ Traditions of the Old Crown House, by Toulmin Smith, p. 28. Birmingham, 1863.

² See, as to the "Frith-borh," after, p. xxi.

³ See, in the same sense, Kemble, Saxons in England, i. 239.

of the later ones took place in methods and with accompanying forms that have been recorded ¹."

The evidences of this general system of Gilds in the Old English [Anglo-Saxon] times are to be found not only in the laws but in the actual records of a few of the Gilds still remaining to us. This branch of the subject requires more study and more space than can now be given to it, but it may be well to point out some of the principal passages where the characteristics of those Gilds are indicated. These show that the principle of association for mutual help in the affairs of life—commonly but mistakenly supposed to be modern—is found, in name and in fact, in the English laws of nearly 1200 years ago; and that it existed in activity then, and continued a very living spirit in the land, through the changes of age and circumstance, long before the times of which we have the fuller records in the present volume.

Among the laws of Ina (Δ .D. 688-725) are two touching the liability of the brethren of a Gild in the case of slaying a thief². Alfred (Δ .D. 871-901) still further recognizes the brotherly Gild spirit in his laws, as to manslaughter by a kinless man, and again, where a man who has no relatives is slain³; in the first instance the man has rendered himself liable for a sum of money, and the Gild helps him to bear the burthen, in the second the Gild has a claim upon part of that which is paid by the slayer. The famous

¹ Old Crown House, p. 28. With regard to the opinion entertained by some writers upon Gilds, that their origin was derived from the sacrificial feasts of the ancient Teutonic nations (e.g. Dr. Wilda, Gildenwesen in Mittelalter, cap. 1, § 1; Lappenberg, History of England under the Anglo-Saxon Kings (Thorpe's translation), vol. ii. p. 350; Thorpe, Diplomatarium Anglicum, Preface, p. xvi.), my father remarked " that none of our Gilds ever were founded on such a basis." And when a reference to early Roman history was suggested (according to a favourite idea of tracing many English in-titutions to an origin in the Roman law), he replied, "There is not the shadow of an analogy (misleading as even 'analogies ' are) between the old Sabine curies and our English Gilds. We trace ours back to the old Saxon times—and they borrow their name from these, but even from them they differ very widely, and belong to two classes, markedly distinct."—(Private Letter, Nov. 4, 1867.)

² Thorpe's Anglo-Saxon Laws, Ina. 16, 21,

"Judicia Civitatis Lundonia" of Athelstan's time (A.D. 924-940) contains ordinances for the keeping up of social duties in the Gilds. or Gild-ships as they are there called, of London, which seem also to be referred to in the preamble to that body of laws ¹. One of these nearly foreshadows one of the most usual ordinances of the Gilds of 450 years later ;--- "And we have also ordained respecting every man who has given his 'wed' in our Gild-ships, if he should die, that each Gild-brother shall give a fine loaf for his soul, and sing a fifty [of psalms], or get it sung within 30 days." (See after, "messe pens for be soule," trental, 30 masses sung for the soul, pp. 8, 38, 48, 181, &c.) The "Gild-ship" is also referred to in Edgar's Canons (A.D. 959-975)². The laws of Henry I. repeat those of King Alfred before named, while in another place they refer to the Gild under its social aspect of good fellowship³, enjoining what is afterwards found constantly insisted on-peace and good behaviour at the meetings.

The relics of ancient Gilds by name that are found reaching down to us out of those far-off times are of great interest, and show us that they did not merely exist in the laws, a dead letter. Stow, in his Survey of London⁴, tells how the Cnihten-Gild, or Young Men's Gild⁵, of London, was as old as the time of Edgar, and that charters of confirmation were given to it successively by Edward the Confessor, William II., and Henry I.⁶; indeed, in a charter of the latter touching their property, reference is made back to what the men of the said Gild possessed in the time of King Edward,

^{*} Ibid. Alfred, 27, 28.

¹ Thorpe's Anglo-Saxon Laws, Athelstan V, 2, 3; 8, clauses v, vi.

² Ibid., vol. ii. p. 247. ³ Ibid., Henry I., lxxv. § 10; lxxxi. § 1.

^{*} Strype's ed., bk. ii. p. 3.

⁵ See Madox, Firma Burgi, pp. 23, 24; also Heibert's Livery Companies, i. 5-7; Merewether's Municipal Corporations, i. 307; Rymer's Fædera (1816), i. p. 11.

[•] Stow says of the charter of Edward the Confessor that it "was fair written in the Saxon letter and tongue," and refers to "the book of the late House of the Holy Trinity." But this Charter, the terms of which would probably be instructive, does not seem to be in Kemble's Codex Diplomaticus Ævi Saxonici, nor is it included among some documents as to Gilds printed in Thorpe's Diplomatarium Anglicum (1865).

sixty years before. Even older than this, a grant of land made in the time of Ethelbert (A.D. 860) affords us a glimpse of another Young Men's Gild¹. Of a more certain nature, there are still remaining the agreement and bye-laws or ordinances made among themselves by the brethren of a Thegns' Gild at Cambridge, a Gild at Abbotsbury, and a Gild at Exeter². There is also a record of a Gild at Woodbury³. In comparing these (some of which bear a close resemblance) with the ordinances of the comparatively more modern Gilds of the Middle Ages, and noting their likenesses and their unlikenesses, they throw much light upon one another. The agreement of the Gild of Exeter is as follows:—

"This assembly was collected in Exeter, for the love of God, and for our soul's need, both in regard to our health of life here, and to the after days, which we desire for ourselves by God's doom. Now we have agreed that our meeting shall be thrice in the twelve months; once at St. Michael's Mass, the second time at St. Marv's Mass, after midwinter, and the third time on Allhallows Mass-day after Easter. And let each gild-brother have two sesters of malt, and each young man one sester, and a sceat of honey. And let the mass-priest at each of our meetings sing two masses, one for living friends, the other for the departed ; and each brother of common condition two psalters of psalms, one for the living and one for the dead. And at the death of a brother each man six masses, or six psalters of psalms; and at a death, each man five pence. And at a houseburning, each man one penny. And if any one neglect the day, for the first time three masses, for the second five, and at the third time let him have no favour, unless his neglect arose from sickness or his lord's need. And if any one neglect his contribution at the proper day, let him pay twofold. And if any one of this brotherhood misgreet another, let him make boot [amends] with thirty pence. Now we pray for the love of God that every man hold this meeting rightly, as we rightly have agreed upon it. God help us thereunto."

Domesday Book incidentally makes mention of two Gilds in Canterbury, one of the burgesses and one of the clergy¹; also of a Gild-hall in Dover, which implies the previous existence of a Gild in that town².

The word "gild" (with its varieties gield, geld, guld) is of Saxon origin, and meant, as is stated on p. 122, "a rateable payment"." Dr Bosworth says "a payment of money, compensation, tribute :' he also gives the verb "gyldan, gildan, geldan," to pay, give, render⁴. Spelman, in his Glossary, gives a long list of the taxes or navments that were required under the old laws, such as dane-geld. ceap-gild, wergild, &c., and quotes Domesday Book for a frequent use of the noun and the verb to signify a regular charge payable on certain holdings⁵. How and when the word became applied to the brotherhoods or societies is not found in so many words; but that the brotherhoods, by their inherent power of making what internal rules they pleased, should be accustomed to gather a regular rate, or "gilde," from each one of their number for their common expenses, till every man was known as a "gegylda," as having paid to this or that Gild, seems a natural and certain explanation. The early use of the word "gild-ship" implies this the more strongly. Meanwhile, "gilde" did not lose its old sense, and we find the two meanings-"geld," a payment (with a secondary use, money), and "gild," a brotherhood-running side by side, down to much later times, the relics of the former of the two still existing in our modern "vield."

Whatever was the particular form and object of the ancient Gilds —and my father seems to have considered that therein some of them differed widely from those of later times—the principles which gave them life were the same, namely, those of mutual self-

¹ Cod. Dipl. No. 293. Kemble (Saxons in England, ii. 335) says this was in Canterbury, but there is nothing in the document itself to show it.

² Cod. Dipl. No 942; Thorpe, Dipl. Angl. 605, 610, 613; translations are also given in Turner's History of the Anglo-Saxons, vol. iii. pp. 98, 99, and Kemble, Saxons in England, vol. i. pp. 511-5 3. The exact date of these does not seem to be known, but the originals are all in Anglo-Saxon. ³ Thorpe, Dipl. Angl. 608.

¹ Domesday Book, fols. 2 a, 3 a.

² Ibid., fol. 1 a. The word has a like form, "Gihalla," to that found in Bristol; see after, pp. 284, 286.

³ The explanation intended by my father I cannot find : I have supplied its place as best I could. ⁴ Anglo Saxon Dictionary.

⁵ See, in accordance with this, Merewether's Hist. of Municipal Corporations, i. p. 353.

INTRODUCTION.

help and a manly independence which could think of the rights of others. Mr. Kemble seems to point to that difference when he says, of the Saxon brotherhoods, "these gylds, whether in their original nature religious, political, or merely social unions, rested upon another and solemn principle: they were sworn brotherhoods between man and man, established and fortified upon 'ao and wed,' oath and pledge; and in them we consequently recognize the germ of those sworn communes, communæ or communiæ, which in the times of the densest seignorial darkness offered a noble resistance to episcopal and baronial tyranny, and formed the nursing cradles of popular liberty¹." Now, my father has elsewhere fully explained the important meaning, in English history, of the "commune" or "communitas," that it "is the corporate title and description of a place. A city or borough is, in its corporate capacity, a 'communitas,' so is a county²." Comparing with this the example (p. 201) where the word "comune" is the description of a gild as a corporate body, it would appear that when Glanville wrote (temp. Henry II.) of a "commune, in other words a gild," he must have intended a town whose corporation had set up a Gild,-probably a Gild-Merchant, as was the practice in a great number of towns at that period. The passage runs thus: "Item si quis nativus quiete per unum annum et unum diem in aliquâ villâ privilegiatâ manserit, ita quod in eorum communiam, scilicet gyldam, tanquam civis receptus fuerit, eo ipso a villenagio liberabitur³;"

INTRODUCTION.

and this view of Glanville's meaning is further borne out by the use of the terms "villa privilegiata," which imply that it was so usual for such a town to have and be joined with a Gild, that he used the words as synonymous.

In further elucidation of this matter and of the growth of free local institutions in England, of which the true Gild or Brotherhood is one type, and the Borough another¹, I here insert an unpublished paper, written by my father in 1864, on the " Origin of Corporations.

" Corporations, using the word in the sense in which it is applied to towns, &c., in England, had their beginning in the old 'Frithborh,' or 'Peace-pledge 2.' The gist of this is, that all the inhabitants of a place ('communitas') are bound to each one, and each to all, and the whole to the State, for the maintenance of the public neace. The 'View of Frank-pledge,' which (though only nominal in many places, yet still quite real in others) is now kept up in Courts Leet, is one relic of this 'Frith-borh.' The liability of hundreds, parishes, &c., to certain obligations, is another practical relic of it. Every man, in every 'Communitas,' used to be obliged to be actually enrolled in the 'Frith-borh' on reaching a certain age, and thenceforth had to be present (or to account for his absence) at every one of the regular meetings of the ' Communitas.' This practice was kept up till comparatively modern times. The 'Articles of the View of Frank-pledge' were part of the Common Law, but were also enacted in Acts of Parliament, and were added to from time to time, as fresh circumstances arose.

"The bodies thus acting were all true 'Corporations,' though, as different places increased and grew unequally, different shapes were taken, some larger and some smaller, and some almost dwindled

¹ Saxons in England, ii. 310.

² Men and Names of Old Birmingham (1864), p. 76, note; also, Parliamentary Remembrancer, vol. ii. p. 3.

³ De Legibus, lib. v. c. 5. Illustrative of what is here said is the following extract from the "Custumal of Preston," the second article of which practically embodies Glanville's maxim :—

[&]quot;I. So that they shall have a Gild-mercatory, with Hanse, and other customs and liberties belonging to such Gild; and so that no one who is not of that Gild shall make any merchandize in the said town, unless with the will of the burgesses.

[&]quot;2. If any nativus [born bondman] dwell anywhere in the same town, and holds any land, and be in the forenamed Gild and Hanse, and pay lot and scot with the same burgesses for one year and one day, then he shall not be reclaimed by his lord, but shall remain free in the same town."—Dobson and Harland's History of Preston Guild, and edition, p. 73.

¹ "Shires we have, and Hundreds, and Cities, and Boroughs, and Parishes, and Corporations of other kinds. All these have their relation to the true Gild."—T. S., in Old Crown House, p. 28.

² Among the writers upon this, Lambard gives an interesting account in his Duties of Constables, Borsholders, &c. (1610), pp. 6-10.

away to nothing. Representative Councils, &c., are a mere incident and not an essential to Corporations. The whole body is the Corporation. The head of these Corporations used to be the 'Provost' (a name formerly universal in England), the 'Constable,' the 'Bailiff,' or the 'Reeve.' Up to the 'Corporations Reform Act' of William IV., the names of the heads of Corporations varied very much. That of 'Mayor' is really modern. It is but twenty-five years since the corporate (representative) body in Birmingham was the Bailiffs and Court Leet.

"The 'Communitas' has, at Common Law, and without any Statute, full power to regulate its own affairs, and to make 'Byelaws' for its own governance, by the assent of its own members. This power is inherent, and necessary to enable it to fulfil its obligations to the State.

"Charters of Incorporation do not and cannot create Corporations. They have always depended, and still depend, for even their validity upon the pre-existence of the 'Communitas,' as above stated, and upon the assent and acceptance of the 'Charter' by the 'Communitas.' In this respect the Corporations Reform Act made no difference. This matter became tested in the case of the Manchester Charter which was issued under that Act, and that Charter was held by the Courts of Law to be only sustainable upon proof of assent and acceptance.

"' Charters' therefore do not 'incorporate.' They merely record. They may (within the limits allowed by Common or Statute Law) declare the form or shape of certain municipal titles, offices, or functions within the Corporation; but they do not touch the inherent characteristics of it, or its responsibilities, or the essential element of assent and acceptance.

"As cities and built towns have a more compact municipal life and action than other places, the notion of Corporations (in the political sense) is apt to be exclusively attached to them. But this is quite incorrect. Every place where a Court Leet has been held, is or has been really a Corporation. 'Hundreds' are Corporations (though now almost atrophied in most places); and the 'Hundreds' used, as such, to have corporate seals. Counties also are Corporations. So also are Parishes, and the true 'Wards' of London. Each of all these has an independent life, and the power of selfaction, by its own consent, in matters that touch the common wellbeing; while, on the other hand, each is held bound to the State in certain definite and important Responsibilities. And these, conjointly, are the characteristics of a 'Corporation' in the political as distinguished from the commercial use of that title. And these characteristics are the direct offspring, with simply more or less of development, from the old 'Frith-borh' or 'Peace-pledge.'"

The Ordinances and Bye-laws of Municipal Bodies, contained in Part III. of this volume, receive their best explanation by the study of this paper.

Some links that carry us on from the Gilds of the old English times to those of the fourteenth century are to be found in the Great Gild of St. John of Beverley (p. 150^{-1}), the earliest charter of which was given in the time of Henry I., and in the Gild of Stratford-upon-Avon (p. 213), whose beginning was "from time whereunto the memory of man runneth not," as well as in several others whose foundations were so old that the same declaration was made as to them². The beginnings or the early history of some may be traced in the charters of many Corporations, to whom the possession or the setting up of a Gild was often thus confirmed or put on record. Thus in the reign of Henry I. (1100-1135), Leicester possessed a Gild Merchant³; the citizens of York had a Gild Merchant and Hanses, as is declared in their charter from John⁴;

¹ Pages inserted thus between brackets refer to the body of the work. Further references will be found in the Index.

² In several Returns not given in this volume. Miscell. Rolls, Tower Records, Bundle CCCVIII. No. 42; CCCIX. Nos. 71, 81, 86.

³ Thompson's History of Leicester, p. 29.

⁴ Brady on Boroughs, Appendix, p. 47; also see after, p. 151. A Hanse seems to have been a company or society, formed exclusively for purposes of trading in the country and abroad. See Spelman's Glossary, v. Ause; Jacob's Law Dictionary, v. Hanse; also after, p. 357. and Preston traces her Gild Merchant with a hanse to the vears (1175-1185) of Henry II.'s reign 1. The Gild Merchant of Winchester (p. 357) was in existence in the reign of Richard I. (1180). In the reign of John (1100-1216) Great Yarmouth had a Gild Merchant; the burgesses of Dunwich also had a "hanse and a Gild Merchant, as they have been accustomed to have :" the men of Andover had one like that of the burgesses of Winchester, and the burgesses of Helleston had also their Gild Merchant². Under Henry III. (1227) the citizens of Worcester had their Gild Merchant with a hanse (p. 411), and an inspeximus of the same king's reign (1267) tells us that the burgesses of Wallingford had had a Gild Merchant with all its usages and laws since the time of Edward the Confessor³. These are but a few out of the instances that might be gathered together, showing how wide-spread and lasting was the system of these brotherhoods.

In the year 1388 two Parliaments were held. Of the second of these, held at Cambridge 4, and which fell in the 12th year of Richard II. (p. 136), it happens that the Roll or official record is now lost, but it is known from other remains that it sat thirty-nine days, and that even in that short time it passed " sixteen 200d acts 5." touching among other things the condition of labourers, and regulating beggars and common nuisances. In this Parliament it was ordered that two Writs should be sent to every Sheriff in England, both commanding him to make public proclamation throughout the shire, the first calling upon "the Masters and Wardens of all Gilds and Brotherhoods," to send up to the King's Council in Chancery Returns of all details as to the foundation, statutes, and property of their Gilds (p. 127); the second calling on the "Masters and Wardens and Overlookers of all the Mysteries and Crafts," to send up, in the same way, copies of their charters

or letters patent, where they had any (p. 130). These Writs were cent out on the 1st of November, 1388, the Returns were ordered to be sent in before the 2nd of February next ensuing. Those Returns thus made during the winter months, just 480 years ago, and forty years after the "great pestilence." by which some of them mark their dates1, remain to us now, "life-pictures" of what was nassing then (p. 184). Many of them must be lost, as we know that there were Gilds in other places of which there is no Return left (pp. 272, 357). But even thus reduced in number, there are still extant these official Returns of more than five hundred of the brotherhoods which once were scattered all over the land, enough to teach us the characteristics, purposes, and value of these institutions 2.

These Records themselves deserve a few words before passing on to their contents. The Englishman's independence, and the diversity of character following thereupon, are features stamped upon them. Written by men of the people, and not by legal officials, the handwritings are as various as would be expected to be found among the same number of different writers in every age,-some difficult to read, many clear and good. The language used is not always the same, the greater part are in Latin; but a number are in the old French of the time, and still more preferred their mother

¹ Bundle CCCVIII. No. 120; CCCX. Nos. 36, 236.

² See before, p. xiv. The materials that exist for the further study of the history of Gilds in England are rich and various. Not only among the Public Records, such as the Charter Rolls, the Patent Rolls (which contain much information), the Rolls of Parliament, and others, should the inquirer seek ; but the local and municipal archives in numberless places would, there is little doubt, yield much valuable knowledge to an intelligent and careful search. A great deal also may be learned indirectly, while at the same time the original authorities and sources are indicated by which their statements can be tested, from those interesting books, many of them monuments of labour and research, the Topographical Histories. The old Chartularies of Abbeys, (p. 297), and the muniments of colleges (for example Winchester College; see Archvological Journal, vol. ix. p. 69), may also give their contributions. But in point of comprehensiveness, instruction, and variety, none of these will exceed the group of Records now, for the most part, first made known.

¹ Dobson and Harland's History of Preston Guild, 2nd edition, p. 72.

² Brady on Boroughs, where the originals are given at length. Appendix, pp. 45, 12, 14, 17, 21, 22.

³ Ibid., pp. 16, 17.

^{* &}quot;Cantebrigge ;" this is sometimes wrongly translated "Canterbury."

⁵ Prynne's Parliamentary Writs, vol. iv. pp. 404, 405.

xxvi

tongue. The substance of the matters given, and the fulness with which the ordinances are set out, vary in a remarkable degree, in some cases only the barest facts being sent in on a small strip of parchment, while in others the fulness of detail covers several large skins.

It will be perhaps useful here to call attention to some of the principal features, gleaned from these Returns, of the old life of the Gilds who made them, the dates of whose foundations range, for the most part, from early in the thirteenth and throughout the four-teenth centuries. A few, however, date from older times, as in the case of Beverley and others¹.

The fundamental idea of the Gild, as seen above, was, that it was an association for mutual help, made by the people themselves when and as they found the need for it. Long ago my father wrote that "it is an essential characteristic of the system of local self-government, that its constant tendency is, to bring men together continually, with feelings of brotherhood; that it affords every opportunity for the manly asking and manly rendering of sympathy when individual misfortune entitles to it 2;" and these words now tell the source whence the old Gild spirit drew its breath. Though one Gild may have set itself one special object, and another a different one, yet, running throughout the whole, there are to be found the same general characteristics of brotherly aid and social charity; and the accompanying arrangements necessary to carry these out were things common to all, and therefore well understood as matters of course. If, therefore, we do not find recorded of every one that it kept a feast, or held a "morn-speech," or had a Gild-house, &c., it must be taken to be because each of these was so usual a part of a Gild existence that it was not necessary to mention the fact.

Gilds may be divided into two broad classes (pp. 127, 130), the Social Gilds and the Gilds of Crafts, which, as has been seen, were recognized by the authority of Parliament, who issued a separate Writ for the Returns from each. The Social Gilds were founded upon the wide basis of brotherly aid and moral comeliness, without distinction (unless expressly specified) of calling or class, and comprehended a great variety of objects; the Craft-Gilds, while sharing the same principles, were formed for the benefit of the members as craftsmen, and for the regulation of their craft. The Joiners and Carpenters of Worcester (p. 208), the Fullers and the Ringers of Bristol (pp. 283, 288), and the Tailors, the Cordwainers, and the Bakers of Exeter (pp. 312, 331, 334) are examples of these. There were also Gilds that were neither wholly Social nor of a Craft (p. 179), and to these it seems that Gilds-Merchant belonged, as, though we find them answering to the Writ for Crafts (in the case of Beverley, p. 150), yet their Ordinances, as in the instance of Coventry (pp. 228-232), of Berwick (p. 338), and of Southampton¹, often partook of the character of those of the Social Gild. Sometimes it was begun by the "communitas" of a town, as in the case of the Gild of the Holy Cross of Birmingham (pp. 239, 241), but generally the first founding of a Gild was by some "body of the folks" themselves, who might sometimes be traders, sometimes not. For instance, there are the "Shephirdes Gild" of Holbech, the "Young Scholars" of Lynn (p. 51), the "Shipmanes Gild" of the same place (p. 54), the "Peltyers" and others of Norwich (p. 28), the "Poor Men" of Norwich (p. 40), the "Tailors" of Lincoln (p. 182), the "Gild of the Palmers" of Ludlow² (p. 193). And it follows from this principle of free association that, as no wrong was done to any one and no public responsibilities of individuals interfered with (but rather the contrary), it is found that the "King's license was not necessary (as is wrongly alleged)³" to the foundation of a Gild.

¹ See before, p. xxiii.

² Local Self-Government and Centralization (1851), p. 538.

¹ See the early part of the 'Ancient Ordinances of the Gild-Merchant of the Town of Southampton,' printed by Mr. Smirke in the Archeological Journal, vol. xvi. PP. 283, 343. For a copy of this very interesting paper I am indebted to the courtesy of Mr. Albert Way.

² I find from one note of my father's that there was a Gild at Burgh, Lincolnshire, founded by some Pilgrims in fulfilment of a vow made by them while tempesttossed at sea. Bundle CCCX, 245. ³ MS. note by T. S.

Dugdale observes that "they were in use long before any formal licenses were granted unto them¹." This may be proved by the examples of Stratford-on-Avon (pp. 211, 218), and St. George of Norwich (pp. 17, 4+3), each of which was in existence for many years before special circumstances rendered the obtaining of official confirmation necessary. The terms of the Writs for the Returns show that this was well understood². It seems probable that the mistake has arisen through two things: first, the custom of inserting their Gild into the Charter when the men of any town got their rights confirmed, as was seen among the Gilds-Merchant; and second, the need that there was for Gilds, like other corporate bodies, when they wished to acquire lands or tenements, to take out a License in Mortmain under the Statute of Mortmain. Several instances of these licenses taken out by Gilds occur in the following pages ³.

My father was anxious to correct another very general misapprehension, as to how far the religious element entered as an essential part into the foundation and functions of Gilds⁴. "These were not," he has said, "in any sense superstitious foundations; that is, they were not founded, like Monasteries and Priories, for men devoted to what were deemed religious exercises. Priests might belong to them, and often did so, in their private capacities. But the Gilds were lay bodies, and existed for lay purposes, and the better to enable those who belonged to them rightly and understandingly to fulfil their neighbourly duties as free men in a free State. . . . It is quite true that, as the Lord Mayor, and Lincoln's Inn, and many other as well known personages and public bodies, have to this day a chaplain, so these old Gilds often took measures and made payments, to enable the rites of religion to be brought more certainly within the reach of all who belonged to them. This was one of the most natural and becoming of the consequences following from their existence and character. It did not make them into superstitious bodies¹." Though it was in this way very general to provide more or less for religious purposes, these are to be regarded as incidental only ; and this is curiously exemplified by the case of three Gilds in Cambridge, one of which excludes priests altogether (Gild of the Annunciation, p. 271), another, if they come into the Gild, does not allow them any part in its management (pp. 264, 265), while the third has a chaplain, but if their funds get too low both to maintain a chaplain and the poor brethren, the chaplain is to be stopped (p. 271). These cases are however exceptional; and the evidences of a simple piety and of a faith that entered into the every-day life are some of the most pleasing traits of the old Gild-Ordinances. It was not every Gild who could afford to support a chaplain, though some did so²; but there were few who did not make some provision for services in their church, and for decent burial and burialservices for their members,-their care in this last respect going so far as to fetch the body from a distance if it so befell,-and appoint how the details, various of course in different cases, of the customary religious rites for the dead should be carried out. The usual course was for many, or all, of the brethren to attend these services (at Norwich more prayer was expected of the "lettered" brethren than of the unlettered, at the dirge, p. 20); that wax lights should be provided at the cost of the Gild, and that each brother and sister should make an offering for alms and another for masses for the soul of the departed. Sometimes the lights burning round the body of the dead were many in number, in one instance very elaborate funeral rites, with a hearse, are enjoined (pp. 169, 176, 215), in others, night-watches were kept under curious conditions (pp. 194, 217). On these occasions, too, the poor were often fed or clothed "for the soul's sake of the dead" (pp. 31, 173, 180, &c.).

¹ 'Old Crown House,' p. 31.

³ See pp. 74, 144, 146, 165, 183, &c.

¹ Warwickshire (ed. 1730) i. 188.

² See notes to pp. 128, 130; also p. 251.

³ Pages 195, 226, 232, 243, 244, &c. A clear and simple explanation of what a license in mortmain and a writ ad quod damnum mean was given in 'Men and Names of Old Birmingham,' pp. 20-26.

⁴ See for example Madox, Firma Burgi, 23-26; Herbert's Livery Companies, i. p. I.

It was usual for all the brethren and sistren to go to church on the day of their general meetings, to hear mass and to make offerings. Many of the Gilds, too, made a point of maintaining wax lights in the churches before the altar of the Saint whose name they had taken¹.

It is worth noticing who were the persons who composed the Gilds. Scarcely five out of the five hundred were not formed equally of men and of women, which, in these times of the discovery of the neglect of ages heaped upon woman, is a noteworthy fact. Even where the affairs were managed by a company of priests, women were admitted as lay members²; and they had many of the same duties and claims upon the Gild as the men. The sort of people who joined together may be somewhat judged of by the names given before³; and Chaucer incidentally helps us to understand them by his description of the brethren who joined the Pilgrimage to Canterbury, and who, being all clothed in one livery, must have belonged to the same Gild :—

"An Haberdasher and a Carpenter, A Webbe, a Deyer, and a Tapiser, Were all y-clothed in o livere Of a solempne and grete fraternite. Ful freshe and new hir gere ypicked was, Hir knives were ychaped not with bras, But all with silver wrought ful clene and wel, Hir girdeles and hir pouches every del. Wel semed eche of hem a fayre burgeis, To sitten in a gild halle, on the deis. Everich, for the wisdom that he can, Was shapelich for to ben an alderman. For catel hadden they ynough and rent And eke hir wives wolde it well assent ""

That they were popular, and that a well managed Gild frequently grew in numbers and importance, so that persons of all ranks, even the highest in the kingdom, were glad to join it, is found in several instances, and is indirectly proved by the founders of the Gild of St. Michael-on-the-Hill, Lincoln, who were "of the rank of common and middling folks," not wishing to admit any of the rank of Mayor or Bayliff (p. 178). Of the two lists of names in this volume (pp. 112, 453), while both show the number of sisters, the last is especially interesting because it points out the rank or calling of so many of the members, and that all classes were alike admitted. The number of members enrolled by St. George's Gild of Norwich was very great, as the numerous books and records still existing in that city bear witness, but they can hardly have exceeded the number of 14,850 attained by Corpus Christi, York (p. 142). The Gild of the Trinity, Coventry, admitted many famous men, even, according to Dugdale, enrolling Kings Henry IV. and Henry VI. among its members¹, while in later times the Gild of St. Barbara of St. Katharine's Church, near the Tower of London, could point out Henry VIII. and Cardinal Wolsey as brethren?.

Each member on admittance took an oath of obedience, and was received lovingly by the brethren, with a kiss of peace (pp. 6, 9, 189). Two examples of the oath are here given, one belonging to a purely social Gild of Stamford (pp. 189, 191 note), the other to the Craft-Gild of the Tailors of Exeter (p. 318). The oath taken by the brethren of the Gild of St. George at Norwich resembles that of Stamford; it is given by Blomefield in his History of Norfolk³. A Gild did not invariably require an oath, as in that of Corpus Christi, York (p. 141); this was, however, an unusual case.

The payments that were made were numerous, and we find them, among the different Gilds, of an infinite variety. Thus there was the payment on admittance, sometimes a fixed amount, sometimes "as the masters and he may accord" (p. 7), and in

¹ Warwickshire, i. 192. ² Strype's Stow, book ii. p. 6. ³ Vol. ii. p. 734.

¹ As to Saints' Names, see the notes on pp. 201, 221.

² Gild of Corpus Christi, York, p. 141. Women joined in the foundation of Gilds, and wives as well as single women belonged to them. See pp. 155, 159, 160, 455. ³ Page xxvii.

⁴ Prologue to Canterbury Tales. Chaucer was Clerk of the Works in 1389 and died in 1400. As to a Gild sending pilgrims to Canterbury, see after p. xxxvi.

different forms ; sometimes in money, as in the Gild of St. Benedict, Lincoln, six shillings and eightpence (p. 174), and in St. George's Gild, Norwich, six shillings and eightpence for a man, three shillings and fourpence for a woman (p. 450); sometimes in kind, as in the case of Stretham, Ely, where every incomer was to pay two pounds of wax and one bushel of barley¹. Besides this entrance fee, there were the house fees, or "rights of the house," which were payments to the officers, such as "to the Alderman 1d., to the Dean 1*d*., and to the wax $\frac{1}{2}d$." (pp. 54, 108, &c.); there were payments "to the light," for the feast, on the death of a brother or sister, on occasions when help was needed for a poor brother or one in distress, and others, all which were part of the usual regulations. As various, too, were the arrangements of times of payment, in one Gild so much a year would be agreed upon (p. 4), in another so much a quarter (pp. 7, 10), as the contribution from each to the common fund, and in that of Corpus Christi, Hull, five farthings was to be paid weekly by every member (p. 160). Nor were the people careless, though unsparing, of their monies; we find frequent mention of "the common box" (p. 10), "common pyx^{2} ," or chest (p. 139), and the stewards, aldermen, or other officers, were required annually to render true accounts of the "catel" and funds of the Gild. In some Gilds it was an understood thing, if not an ordinance, that a brother or sister dying should leave it a legacy, for example, the Peltyers of Norwich had no lands, but were partly supported by legacies (pp. 29, 165, 170, 317, 319).

Every Gild had its appointed day or days of meeting, once a year (pp. 19, 23), twice (pp, 113, 117), three times (p. 58), or four times (pp. 65, 91), as the case might be, when all the brethren and sistren, summoned by the Dean or other officer³, met together to transact their common affairs. At these meetings, called mornspeeches (in the various forms of the word), or "dayes of spekyngges tokedere for here comune profyte" (p. 67), much business was done, such as the choice of officers, admittance of new brethren, making up accounts, reading over the ordinances, &c., one day, where

xxxiii

INTRODUCTION.

several were held in the year, being fixed as the "general day 1." The word morning-speech (morgen-spæc) is as old as Anglo-Saxon times, "morgen" signified both "morning" and "morrow²," and the origin of the term would seem to be that the meeting was held either in the morning of the same day or on the morning (the morrow) of the day after that on which the Gild held its feast and accompanying ceremonies, and that it afterwards became applied to other similar meetings of the Gild-brethren. The practice in several places, though all were not alike, bears out this explanation (p. 7; compare pp. 10 and 11; 30, 40, 80, 97, 176, &c.) One day at least in the year, usually the day of the saint to which the Gild, if it had a saint's name, was dedicated, was more specially devoted than the others to festivities; by some it was called the "Gild-day" or "general" day (pp. 21, 30, 217, &c.), it was then that the brethren and sistren being all assembled, at whatever hour was fixed (prime or otherwise)3, worshipped together, gave their alms, and feasted together, for "the nourishing of brotherly love." On this day it was that the brethren and sistren, clad in their hoods or their livery, assembled at the church, bearing the lights which formed a universal part of the religious rites, there to make the prayers enjoined by their rules (pp. 23, 111, 114), and to consecrate by the acts of faith that brotherly love and peace which they were sworn to cherish; they made their offerings and went their way, perhaps to a morn-speech for settling some business, or if this were not the custom, they met in good fellowship at the Gild-house⁴, round the social board. At some of these

¹ Bundle CCCIX. No. 49. ² Bundle CCCVIII. Nos. 58, 126.

³ The "common bellman" went through the city in Norwich and Spalding. See after, p. 31; and Bundle CCCIX. No. 197.

¹ See, for example, the cases of the Gild of St. Thomas of Canterbury, Lynn. pp. 80, 81, and of the Gild Merchant of Coventry, p. 229. See also p. 128, note.

² See Mr. Way's note (3) to p. 344 of his edition of the Promptorium.

³ See pp. 18, 31, 60, 79. The brethren and sistren of the Gild of Holy Trinity, Lynn, were to meet at the place of feasting before going to church, "at what hour shall be declared to them by the sound of the trumpet." Bundle CCCX. No. 38.

⁴ Occasionally the feast was held at the houses of the brethren by turns, "in uno certo loco ad aliquem domum fratrum vel sororum." Caistor. Bundle CCCX. No. 193.

feasts prayers were again offered up (p. 76, 217), and the peaceable and good behaviour of all was constantly and strictly enjoined. Some Gilds would allow a guest to be brought (pp. 185 note, 219). In one case the brethren improved the time by having their ordinances read over to them while at dinner (p. 176).

The Gild brethren were fond on their feast-days of rejoicing in various processions, in which numerous lights, music, and sometimes flowers and garlands of leaves were used (pp. 30, 38, 117, &c.), and symbolic shows had a part (pp. 30, 149, 232). The Gild of the Lord's Prayer at York was expressly set up for the purpose of providing that "a play setting forth the goodness of the Lord's Prayer" should be kept up and played periodically in the streets of York¹. The day of the procession or "riding" of the famous show of St. George's Gild in Norwich (pp. 444 note, 446) must have been a grand one for the sight-seers of the city; while the streets of Leicester², York (pp. 142, 143), Coventry, Preston, Worcester (p. 407), and many more, must have witnessed a goodly sight when the shows belonging to individual Gilds, or when the pageants of Gilds and crafts combined, were displayed in gorgeous array along them. In the present day, when the race of life is to the swift, and there is scarcely time left for anything else, these popular pageants are despised, and a barren imagination can see in the last relic of them, the Lord Mayor's Show, nothing but "a bore." But it was not so in former times, and the real value of the large share that the old Gilds had in making England "Merry" is well pointed out in the following lines :---" Each Gild's first steps were bent towards their church, where solemn high mass was chanted; thence went all the brotherhood to their hall for the festive dinner. The processions on the occasion and other amusements so dear to Englishmen, when their country was merry England, were meant INTRODUCTION.

XXXV

to be edifying and instructive; and helped religion to make her children both good and happy, through even their recreations. This present age, with its stepmother's chill heart, dull eye, and hard iron-like feelings, that sees naught but idleness in a few hour's harmless pause from toil, and knows nothing but unthriftiness in money spent in pious ceremonial, and thinks that the God who sprinkled the blue heaven with silvery stars, and strewed the green earth with sweet-breathing flowers of a thousand hues, and taught the birds to make every grove ring with their blithe songs, and told the little brook to run forth with a gladsome ripple, all in worship of Himself, can be best and most honoured by the highest and noblest of His wonderful works,-the soul of man,-the more gloomy, the more mopish, the source it is; such an age will not understand the good which, in a moral and social point of view, was bestowed upon this country by the religious pageants, and pious plays and interludes of a by-gone epoch. Through such means, however, not only were the working-classes furnished with a needful relaxation, but their very merry-making instructed while they diverted them¹."

The form that the property of a Gild took depended on as different circumstances as the amounts were various. Some were endowed with land at their foundation, or had gifts of land or tenements made to them, as the Gilds of Coventry, Holy Cross of Birmingham (pp. 231, 240), and of St. John the Baptist, Deritend². Of many it seems to have merely consisted of the contributions in money or in kind, expended and accounted for by responsible officers; others acquired considerable property in church ornaments, furniture for the Gild-house, goods used in the plays and shows, &c., as may be seen from many curious inventories still existing (pp. 233, 320, 327). Some Gilds invested in cows or oxen, and let them out at so much a year. We are told that the

¹ See p. 137. It will be seen that the founders did not confine themselves to this object only, and their ordinances present "an excellent example of the general purposes of Gilds." MS. note, T. S.

² Thompson's History of Leicester, pp. 149-151.

¹ Canon Rock's Church of our Fathers, vol. ii. p. 418. The same volume also contains much curious and valuable information as to old English Gilds, pp. 395-453

² Old Crown House, p. 34.

Wardens of the Gild of our Lady, Byom (Derbyshire), "ont achatez boefs et les ont seueralment lowez as diuerse persones pur ijs. par an.;" and they make return of their property, besides land, in 20 beeves¹.

The practical mutual charity of the Gild-spirit is truly seen in the way in which they disposed of their monies. Care for the fitting burial of dead brethren and sistren, at the cost of the Gild, was constantly taken; help to the poor, the sick, the infirm, and aged, to those who had suffered by losses or robbery, and to those overtaken by misfortune, if this were not through their own folly or misconduct, is not less prominent a feature in the Ordinances. The weekly payments to the poor are frequently specified, as well as gifts of clothing or food ². Sometimes, too, they were to be visited, at other times entertained, at the houses of their richer brethren. In some cases, loans of money from the Gild-stock were made upon surety being given (pp. 8, 11); in others free loans or gifts were made to enable the young of either sex to get work or to trade (pp. 9, 156, 229); while in Ludlow, "any good girl of the Gild" had an unconditional dowry given her, if her father were too poor to provide it (pp. 194, 340). Brethren cast into prison were to be visited and helped to get free (pp. 50, 169, 193). Those who were going on a pilgrimage, whether to the Holy Land, St. James of Compostella, or to Rome, were helped and honoured (pp. 157, 172, 177); one Gild even yearly sending a pilgrim to Canterbury³. The Gild-Merchant of Coventry kept a "lodging house with thirteen beds, to lodge poor folks coming through the land on pilgrimage or any other work of charity," with a governor of the house and a woman to wash the pilgrims' feet (p. 231).

Of the good works done by the Gilds other than among their own personal members, many instances may be found. It was not unfrequent for a number of poor to be fed on the feast-day at the Gild-hall; thus in two of the Lincoln gilds it was ordered that as many poor as there were brothers and sisters were to be fed with bread, ale, and fish; and in the Gild of Gertonburdych, Norfolk, provision was made for the distribution of a certain amount of corn and barley yearly¹. A Gild in York found beds and attendance for poor strangers (p. 143); the Gild of the Holy Cross in Birmingham had almshouses for poor people of the town (p. 240 note); and help to the poor of the town was one of the "workis of charity" for which the Gild in the same place called " Lenche's Trust" was founded (p. 256). Turning from the poor to works of public usefulness, we find that these same two Gilds charged themselves with the repairs of certain highways (pp. 249, 256); the Gild of Hatfield Brodoke, Essex, also contributed to the repair of roads²; while the Gild of St. Nicholas, Worcester, repaired the walls and bridge of that city (p. 205). Many Gilds made important contributions to the repair of churches, of which that of Pampesworth, Cambridgeshire, is a curious example : some bushels of barley were given "to put out to increase, for the use and repair of the church in the said town, which is in poor condition and partly decayed; and as of necessity in a short time the top [tort] of this, called the 'Roof,' must be made anew, and it cannot be done without the aid of the Gild, they pray for God that their goods be not disturbed" The Gild of Swafham Bulbek (Cambridgeshire) undertook the "repair of the church, and renovation of vestments, books, and other ornaments in the said church 3." The Gild of St. Andrew, Cavenham (Suffolk), would bear the charge of repair and sustentation of the church, when necessary, "ex consensu fratrum et sororum." Many others might be named. And among the good works which the elastic constitution of the Gilds rendered it natural and fitting for them to take up, was the main-

³ Bundle CCCIX. Nos. 68, 79; CCCVIII. 31.

¹ Bundle CCCVIII. No. 56. A Gild in the parish of Bakewell, Derbyshire, possessed twelve beeves (ib. No. 64). and another in Cambridgeshire had also twelve cows, in all cases to be let out. CCCIX. No. 71. See also after, p. 192.

² See especially pp. 148, 169, 231. ³ Bundle CCCX. No. 49.

¹ Bundle CCCVIII. No. 75; CCCX. Nos. 157, 134.

² Bundle CCCVIII. No. 59.

tenance of a free school and schoolmaster, as was done by the Gild of St. Nicholas in Worcester (pp. 203-205), the Gild of Palmers in Ludlow (p. 198), and the famous Gild of Kalenders in Bristol (p. 288).

The government of the Gild, its Officers, and its Ordinances or Bye-laws, were based on the same principles as those of the other free institutions of England. The Gild had usually its head officer or Alderman (Graceman); its Stewards (Wardens), into whose hands the property or funds were entrusted for administration; its Dean or Beadle; and its Clerk (pp. 46, 176). These were all chosen annually, frequently by a secondary election (pp. 71, 97, 266), and had to render an annual account; every one who refused to serve had to pay a fine; the Dean and the Clerk were paid yearly salaries, and all the officers had special allowances on feast days (pp. 66, 88). Other officers were chosen when the need for them arose (pp. 156, 160, 217). At Lancaster a committee of twelve was appointed to manage the affairs of the Gild, together with collectors (p. 164). The custom of making their own Ordinances-like the "Usages" of a Corporation, the "Customary" of a Manor (for example, Tettenhall and Bushey, pp. 432, 441), or the "Bye-laws" of a Parish¹-is but another illustration of the old common law of England, by which, while abiding by the law of the land, men shaped for themselves the rules that should guide them in their own community (see p. 348). The Ordinances were frequently read over, so that none might plead ignorance (pp. 159, 162, 178, 315); and if alteration was made it was done with the assent of all the brethren and sistren (pp. 8, 11). This assent was also necessary to business transactions (pp. 246, 271). The Gilds had in their corporate capacity a common seal, of which two examples are figured².

The Livery Companies of London are often spoken of, as though the "livery" were something peculiar to them. This is, however, only the relic of a past custom by which every Gild, as is seen in INTRODUCTION.

these Returns, had its livery of one suit, whether hoods or gowns or both, for sistren and for brethren, ordinances being often made as to the length of time and the occasions when they were expected to be worn (pp. 43, 56, 446, &c.). The giving of these liveries by Gilds and other bodies was attempted to be stopped by Parliament about a year after the Returns were made, but apparently with little effect¹. That the livery became an outward sign of the social importance of the Gilds and brotherhoods was recognized in Parliament a few years later, when the use of certain liveries of cloth were forbidden,—" Gilds and fraternities, and crafts in the cities and boroughs within the kingdom, which are founded and ordained to good intent and purpose, alone being excepted ²."

Two very striking characteristics, the second one universally expressed among all the bye-laws of all the Gilds, must not pass unnoticed. The first is the respect for law and its established forms; the second, the constant sense of moral worth, and the endeavour to attain it. "No ordinances shall be made against the common law" (pp. 23, 30, 39); "rebels against the laws shall be put out of the Gild" (pp. 50, 52); "the liberties of the town shall be upheld" (pp. 167, 337): such was the sort of language used by those who governed themselves. And when we consider the fact of this multitude of independent bodies of plain men and women, scattered all over the land, each bound by ordinances for the attainment of better demeanour and morality among themselves, who shall say what England does not owe at the present day to their efforts, and what might not be still further done by reviving their example now? Every one who wished to be admitted into a Gild was required to be of good reputation and bearing; if a brother became a brawler or a thief, or committed other offences, he was punished

² Rolls of Parliament, 13 Hen. IV., Petition 38. See also ib., 7 and 8 Edw. IV., Petition 41; and the Act 8 Edw. IV. c. 2. Much curious information on the subject of official liveries is to be found in Observations on Four Illuminations, of the time of Henry VI., by the late Mr. G. R. Corner (1865), pp. 8-16. See after, pp. 422, 423.

¹ See Toulmin Smith's The Parish, pp. 47-51.

¹ Pp. 207, 250. See also pp. 146, 168, 327.

¹ Rolls of Parliament, 13 Rich. II., Petition 29.

or turned out of the Gild. Among the Ordinances of the Gild of St. Anne, in the church of St. Lawrence, Jewry, London, were the following :--- " If any of the company be of wicked fame of his body, and take other wives than his own, or if he be single man, and be hold a common lechour or contekour, or rebel of his tongue, he shall be warned of the Warden three times; and if he will not himself amend, he shall pay to the Wardens all his arrearages that he oweth to the company, and he shall be put off for evermore. And if ony man be of good state, and use hym to ly long in bed; and at rising of his bed ne will not work, but [?ne] wyn his sustenance and keep his house, and go to the tavern, to the wyne, to the ale, to wrastling, to schetyng, and in this manner falleth poor, and left his cattel in his defaut for succour; and trust to be holpen by the fraternity: that man shal never have good, ne help of companie, neither in his lyfe, ne at his dethe; but he shal be put off for evermore of the companie¹." One brother was not allowed to belie or wrong another; if he did he was fined by the Gild (pp. 55, 81, 95). Unruly speech or behaviour at the morn-speeches or towards the Alderman was forbidden, and peaceable, civil conduct at the feasts was strictly enjoined. In the way of arbitration, it was made a part of the duty of either the brethren and sistren themselves, or of their officers, that if any dispute should arise between one brother and another, they should do all they could to "bring them at one," to settle the quarrel; and not until this was tried might the disputants go to law. Fines were imposed upon any of the brethren who should take action against another without first submitting the quarrel to this "Council of conciliation;" and the officers of the Gild were also bound under penalties to use their best skill to make the peace (pp. 21, 96, 183, $450, 451)^2$.

The foregoing sketch, though it does not pretend to dwell on all points, and necessarily leaves untouched many details of interest, such as those relating to dress, food, prices, &c., may serve to indicate the picture of our old Gilds that lies among the Returns of 1389. One thing comes out clearly; that though a Gild might be founded to carry out some special object, as often was the case,—as for the support of a church, the maintenance of an altar, or a play, the ringing of bells (pp 288, 294), the keeping up of Records (p. 287), or of minstrelsy (p. 294), or for the encouragement of crafts and trade,—the same general features and the same ideas were common to all, but that these became modified or added to, according to the special need of the Gild.

A part of the subject, of an historical value, which cannot be further gone into here, and one for the study of which this volume furnishes much material, is the relation and connection of Gilds with the Corporate bodies of towns ¹. The authorities and opinions on this point are numerous and conflicting; my father intended that the glance at the part taken ² by Gilds in the cities whose Records are given in Part III., the contrast even between their bye-laws and those of the municipal bodies, together with the fuller accounts of others, such as the Gild of Holy Cross, Birmingham, the Gilds of Exeter, of Berwick, and of Coventry, should be made to elucidate this matter. To this also London, with her numerous Social Gilds and Craft-Gilds, would have brought her testimony and swelled the illustration ³. But this, ³ Among the Returns, there are several from London Social Gilds, three important examples of which are now printed. Stow, in his Survey of London, gives the Ordinances of some others of later date, as well as of some of those of which the Returns remain (Bk. ii. p 75; Bk. iii. pp. 34, 48, 62, 118, 148). Of three of the ancient Craft-Gilds of London, the Esterlings, the Sadlers, and the Weavers, curious particulars may be found in Herbert's Livery Companies, vol. i. pp. 10-17; Madox, Firma Burgi, p. 26; and the Liber Custumarum of London (edition pub. by Master of the Rolls), Part i. p. 416. The work by Herbert, which treats of the Craft-Gilds of London and their later exclusive development, is well known.

¹ Several notes bearing on this subject are on pp. 126, 239, 250, &c. See also, as showing the connection between the Gild and the town, the Ordinances of Southhampton before referred to (p. xxvii. note). ² See pp. 357, 411, 430.

¹ Quoted in Strype's Stow, bk. iii. p. 48.

² See the pages under "Arbitration" in the Index. Compare also the method of settling disputes in Bristol and Bromfield, pp. 426, 442.

with the farther tracing of the history of English Gilds, and particularly the story of their destruction, and the "confiscation" of their property under the Act of Edward VI.¹ (1 Edw. VI. c. 14), by which many were so entirely ruined and swept away, that even their very names and existence have been forgotten², must be left for a future day.

All that may be now done is to point out to the inquirer that under the Act for dissolution of Colleges (37 Hen. VIII. c. 4) the possessions of certain fraternities, brotherhoods, and gilds, that had been dissolved with the colleges and chantries, were vested in the Crown; and that the King was empowered to send out Commissioners to seize the possessions of others, under the plea that they should be "used and exercised to more godly and virtuous purposes," the Commissioners being directed to return Certificates "in writing of their doings in the same" into the Court of Chancery (§ 6)³. The Act of 1 Edw. VI. c. 14 went further than this : after completing the demolition of colleges, free chapels, and chantries, it proceeded not only separately by name to vest in the King all sums of money devoted "by any manner of corporations, gilds, fraternities, companies or fellowships, or mysteries or crafts," to the support of a priest, obits, or lights, [which might be taken under colour of religion,] but to hand over to the Crown "all fraternities, brotherhoods, and gilds, being within the realm of England and Wales and other the King's dominions, and all manors, lands, tenements, and other hereditaments belonging to them or any of them, other than such corporations, gilds, fraternities, companies, and fellowships of mysteries or crafts, and the manors, lands, tenements, and other hereditaments pertaining to the said corporations, gilds, fraternities, companies, and fellowships of mysteries or crafts, above mentioned" (§§ 6, 7). Power was given to send out Commissioners to survey all "lay corporations, gilds, fraternities, companies, and fellowships of mysteries or crafts incorporate," and to assign and appoint, in specified ways, the disposition of their lands and property. These Commissioners also were bound "to make Certificate under their seals, or the seals of two of them, at the least, into the Court of Augmentations and Revenues of the King's Crown, or into any other Court as is aforesaid, within one year next after the Commission to them directed, of all manors, lands, tenements, rents, tythes, portions," &c. so assigned by them (§ 12)¹. And all the lands, &c. seized under this Act were to be "in the order, survey, and governance of the King's Court of the Augmentations and Revenues of his Crown" (§ 19). My father says of these two acts in another place,-"The Act of 37 Hen. VIII. c. 4, passed in 1545, put this wanton and wicked pillage of public property as necessary 'for the maintenance of these present wars ;' but it also cleverly put into one group 'colleges, free-chappelles, chauntries, hospitalles, fraternities, brotherhedds, [and] guyldes.' The Act of I Edw. VI. c. 14, was still more ingenious; for it held up the dogma of purgatory to abhorrence, and began to hint at Grammar Schools. The object of both Acts was the same. All the possessions of all Gilds, except what could creep out as being trading Gilds (which saved the London Gilds), became vested, by these two Acts, in the Crown; and the unprincipled courtiers who had devised and helped the scheme, gorged themselves out of this wholesale plunder of what was, in every sense, public property 2."

⁵ It was under these two sections that the "Certificates of Colleges," sometimes employed in this volume (see Index), were put on record. See § 12, on next page.

The original MSS., from which the documents in Part I. and many of those in Part II. of this volume are printed, are in the

¹ See pp. 196, 203, 249-251, 259. My father's indignation was roused by his researches into the story of their fate. In a MS. Note he remarks that, for the "abolition of Monasteries [there was] some colour, and after professed inquiries as to manners: moreover allowances [were] made to all ranks. But in case of Gilds (much wider) no pretence of inquiry, or of mischief. And no allowance whatever. A case of pure, wholesale robbery and plunder, done by an unscrupulous faction to satisfy their personal greed, under cover of law. No more gross case of wanton plunder to be found in History of all Europe. No page so black in English History."

² See pp. 200-203.

¹ See previous note.

^a Old Crown House, p. 36. See further, ib., pp. 37-39.

Public Record Office, where they are known as "Miscellaneous Rolls, Tower Records¹;" they consist of three bundles, containing in all 549 skins or membranes. Of these membranes, the greater part are vellum and parchment. My father, however, made the interesting discovery that some of them are Paper of a very peculiar kind, hitherto unknown². The documents have a great variety of shapes and sizes, from the strip three or four inches wide and twelve or fourteen inches long, and the nearly square piece eight or nine inches wide, to the lengthy writing, which fills a large sheet, or two, three, or four skins tacked together, edge to edge. A few are written and stitched up in the form of small books (pp. 40, 44, 262).

¹ They are described as "Certificates of Gilds" in the Third Report of the Deputy Keeper of Public Records (1842).

² To the description of this Paper given by my father, on pp. 44, 132, I add the following extracts from a letter published by him in the Birmingham Daily Post of March 2, 1865. "The introduction of specimens of linen paper into England, is known to have happened in 1342, possibly earlier. Some letters from abroad during that early time are written on linen paper; and there is a Register-book which belonged to the Black Prince, which is of linen paper. [See "be papir," mentioned on p. 5.] But the few instances thus known, are considered to have been the importation from abroad of a special rarity, which only came, and that not often, into the hands of the wealthy. The manufacture of paper in England has been supposed to go no farther back than Elizabeth's time; but earlier entries have proved that there was at least one paper-mill in England as early as Henry VII. Neither the official use nor the manufacture of paper, so early as 1388, has hitherto been suspected. I have now proved the former to be a certain fact, and the latter becomes a probable one ... [After describing the Writs to the Sheriffs (pp. 127, 130), and the instructions therein]-I find several of these instructions still existing, written upon paper; and I find that, in several cases, where the answer of the Sheriff was on a separate sheet. the latter is also paper, though of a different quality, sometimes, from that on which the instructions received by him were written. None of the ways in which the existence of paper can be accounted for, as before said, in previously known instances of the use of linen paper, can explain the use of paper in this case. It becomes proved that linen paper was used in public offices in London, and also used by some of the country gentlemen, who then were Sheriffs of distant shires, at the end of the fourteenth century. It is difficult to believe that it can have been thus used unless it were made in England . . . Paper of later times loses its sizing after some century or two, and becomes soft and rotten. But this paper, after nearly 500 years of very bad treatment, which has caused the decay of many parts, even of the vellum documents among which it is found, remains as firm, tough, and sound, as the best specimens of vellum that remain uninjured among it. No such paper is now made."

These Records were said, in 1842, to "require repair," and indeed, such has been their unheeded and forgotten condition, that, when my father first had them out, many of them had to be flattened, stamped, and prepared for his use. Dirty, eaten away by rats and decay, many of them partially illegible (though many still remained in good condition), these Records presented the appearance of having, till quite recently, lain unheeded and unread for centuries past; and, except in one instance¹, my father was not aware that any have ever before been printed, though, to one or two authors their existence may have been known. In Memoirs illustrative of the History and Antiquities of Norfolk, published in 1854, allusion is made to the "Returns made into Chancery, in the twelfth year of Richard II.'s reign, of the original objects, endowments, and extent of Gilds generally" (p. 142). But when Herbert wrote his History of the Livery Companies of London, (1837), the existence of these Records was quite unknown, for, after citing the Writ to the Sheriffs of London, given on p. 127, from a copy which must have been preserved among the City Records, he says,-"the Tower Records [of which these Returns form a part], as well as those of the City, have been diligently searched for the Returns made in consequence of this proclamation, but none are to be found, except those which relate to the Ecclesiastical Gilds²." In Strype's edition of Stow (1720), though reference is made to the inquiry as to Gilds in the time of Richard II., and an instance is narrated in which (apparently) the Wardens of a Gild came before the Chancery personally, to deliver their Return³, this knowledge was probably gained, like Herbert's, from Records remaining in the City, no reference being made to those of the Tower.

⁸ Vol. i. p. 36.

3 Bk. iii. pp. 48, 145.

¹ In a paper communicated to the Norfolk and Norwich Archæological Society by Messrs. J. L'Estrange and Walter Rye (who obligingly called my father's attention to it), eight of the Returns from Norwich Gilds were printed, of which all but two very short ones are included in this volume. Mr. Rye was good enough to send me a copy of this paper, but I believe the Returns in this volume were all copied and in type before my father heard of it.

The language and the writing of these Records have been noticed before (p. xxv.; of the writing, a remarkable specimen is described in a note to p. 175).

Of the Returns thus existing in the Public Record Office, this volume contains the whole of those that are written in English, to the number of forty-nine. Translations and abstracts are given of some of those that are in Latin and French, and references are made to many more. The number of documents is, however, so great that my father found it impossible to use even all the extracts he had intended for this work, and many of interest remain unnoticed. The Public Record Office has also afforded other contributions to the history of the Gilds (p. 126), among which are the "Certificates of Colleges" (pp. 197, 247, &c.), and other records.

Other sources whence original MSS. have been derived, as the Libraries of Oxford and Cambridge, the British Museum, Municipal Archives, and private stores, are each acknowledged, and pointed out in the places where they occur, together with descriptions of the originals, in the notes appended to each¹. Wherever my father could, he collated the print himself with the utmost care, in each case twice comparing it with the original. All those in Part I. and many of those in Part II., thus passed under his eye. To those gentlemen who collated others for him, his obligations are recorded.

In conclusion, there remains the pleasant duty of acknowledging,

I may say that I shall feel much obliged by any communications from those, in towns and other places, who have access to original MSS., especially in English, which will help to give further information on the character and purposes of the Gilds in England.

for my father, the friendly suggestions and valuable loans that were made to him, both by many to whom he was an entire stranger as well as by personal friends, for which he had the liveliest feeling. For myself, I must be permitted to express my grateful sense of the kindness and courtesy which I have met with from my father's correspondents and friends (particularly those whose MSS. and books were left in the care of one unknown to them), and other gentlemen, well known for their literary and antiquarian learning, with whom I have had communication. Without their assistance, freely given, what has been to me, though a labour of love, yet a somewhat difficult task, could not have been accomplished, and to all of them I beg to offer my best thanks. Conscious of the imperfections and omissions that must necessarily occur in my part of the work, I yet may join in my father's often expressed desire, that it should be "useful to the people," and to that hope I dedicate the book, with the knowledge that some at least will believe, "She hath done what she could."

INTRODUCTION.

LUCY TOULMIN SMITH.

HIGHGATE, LONDON, December, 1869.

[Note.—The original Gild Returns in the Public Record Office having been entirely re arranged, the three "Bundles" referred to in this volume no longer exist, and new references are required. But as the insertion of these on the plates for the body of this reprint would cause the Society too much expense, a list of the references will be printed on a leaf, together with two or three other notes of correction too long for insertion, which will be found placed at the beginning of the volume. The only changes made in this reprint are two additions on p. 348 and one on p. 431.

August, 1892.]

L. T. S.

¹ The Roll of Winchester "Usages" demands a few words here. The note upon it was written, and the whole had gone through the press, without either my father or myself being aware that, several years ago, Mr. Smirke had printed in the Archæological Journal (vol. ix. p 69) a document, in old French, found by the Rev. Mr Gunner among the muniments of Winchester College, which is in fact another version of these "Usages." The age of this French MS. does not seem to be known with certainty, but it seems to be of nearly the same date as the English one. Both must have been taken from the same original, one perhaps a little later than the other, as there are several variations between them ; and the comparison of the two is of much interest, each helping to clear up the obscure passages of the other.

ON THE

HISTORY AND DEVELOPMENT OF GILDS,

AND THE

ORIGIN OF TRADE-UNIONS.

I .	THE ORIGIN OF	GILDS	$	•	•	•	page lxv
2.	RELIGIOUS (OR	SOCIAI	r) eit	DS	•	•	lxxxi
3.	TOWN-GILDS OR	GILD-	MERCI	HANTS	•	•	xeiii
4.	CRAFT-GILDS	•	•	•	•	•	exiv
5.	TRADE-UNIONS	•	•	•	•	•	elxv

BY

LUJO BRENTANO,

OF ASCHAFFENBURG, BAVARIA,

Doctor Juris utriusque et Philosophiæ.

.

TO

JOHN MALCOLM LUDLOW, Esq.,

OF LINCOLN'S INN, BARRISTER-AT-LAW,

ONE OF THE

[750 Separate Copies of this Essay have been printed.]

TRUEST FRIENDS TO WORKING-MEN IN ENGLAND,

THIS ESSAY

1S DEDICATED BY ITS WRITER.

PREFACE.

In order to study the English labour-question, I joined, in the summer of 1868, my master, Dr. Engel, Director of the Royal Statistical Bureau at Berlin, on his journey to the English manufacturing districts. But after a few weeks' inquiry, I was convinced that a thorough knowledge of the position of the English working-classes would require a sojourn of months in their country. I therefore resolved to remain longer in England Working-men's Associations of every kind, and the History of Labour in England, became the chief objects of my study. At last, in May 1860, I left England, with my portfolio full of the materials I had collected. But I had scarcely returned home. when I was asked by Mr. Furnivall to write a General Introduction to Mr. Toulmin Smith's work on English Gilds, which he had left unfinished at his death. As I unfortunately had not had the honour of knowing Mr. Smith personally, and therefore knew nothing of his ideas as to Gilds, I at first hesitated to accede to Mr. Furnivall's request. My scruples increased when I considered that I was to undertake a work which ought to have been done by a man of great learning and repute. And, indeed, now that my work is finished, I am so fully alive to its many deficiencies, that I greatly fear my undertaking this work will be thought by many, too daring. But I hope the fairness of the reader will not let him measure my essay by his conception of what such an outline as the present ought to be. I can only say that for many years past I have been deeply interested in this subject, that what I offer here to the reader is the result of much hard work and of many laborious personal researches in Libraries and Record-Offices, and that I have put forth my results in the best way I could, seeing the short time allowed me to write this essay in.

The reason why I finally resolved to comply with Mr. Furnivall's request, notwithstanding my hesitation, was, that I owe great thanks to my English friends who had drawn his attention to me. I had learnt so much from them during my stay in England, that when an occasion presented itself to repay them in some way by a work which might be of use to them, I felt obliged to disregard any personal considerations. On acceding to Mr. Furnivall's desire, I observed however, that I must write my essay quite independently, without consideration as to what Mr. Toulmin Smith would have said in his Introduction. He would probably have dwelt more fully on English Gilds only, and would have brought forward more direct information as to them than I should be able to do. I, on the contrary, was requested by Mr. Furnivall to treat on Continental Gilds as well as English. And I complied with his request with the more pleasure, as I believed that illustrations from the Continent might often help students to understand the development of English Gilds, where clear and direct accounts of them are wanting. Often, indeed, the Gilds on the Continent differed in development and circumstances from those in England, as I have repeatedly pointed out in this essay. But I strongly believe that the continual intercourse between the towns of the several trading countries of the Middle Ages, kept up especially by the Hanse Towns, may not have been without influence in producing a general similarity of development of burgensic life in them all.

What I offer to the reader in the following pages is by no means a history of Gilds, complete and exhaustive. My desire has been simply to give a clear idea as to what the various kinds of Gilds were, and to sketch in free outlines how each kind of Gilds originated, grew powerful, and degenerated; on which the Gilds of another class of citizens took their place. I have always taken special care to point out the analogies between the old Gilds and those existing in our days among working-men, the Trade-Unions; and I shall indeed consider it the greatest reward for all my labour spent on this work, if it contributes to set the Trade-Unions in a truer light.

Throughout the whole essay I have most conscientiously referred to the sources of my statements, and to the various authors to whom I am indebted. I am very sorry that, when writing the essay, I was not acquainted with the works of Mr. Toulmin Smith quoted by Miss Smith in her excellent Introduction.

Before concluding, I wish to express my sincere thanks to all those who have helped me in my work, especially to Mr. Furnivall. He has with great zeal and kindness revised the translation of my essay and the proofs; and has besides added, from early English literature, a few notes in illustration of my text. He also procured from Professor Stubbs the communication as to bondmen in towns, in the Additional Note 3; and has drawn my attention to a few points which wanted further explanation for the English reader. I have made some additional notes on these points, which follow the Preface, namely, as to the origin of Gilds, as to my appellation Religious Gilds, and as to the companies of bond-handicraftsmen. I wish to thank, besides, especially Mr. J. W. van Rees Hoets, M.A., of Trinity Hall, Cambridge, and the other friends of Mr. Furnivall and myself who have helped in the translation of parts of this essay. It was hard work that they performed, and they did it well.

L. BRENTANO.

ASCHAFFENBURG. Jan. 21st, 1870.

NOTES.

I. Note to p. lxxiv, as to the Origin of Gilds.

Now, I wish to declare here most emphatically that I consider England the birthplace of Gilds. But, at the same time, I wish to deny quite as emphatically, that what I have said on p. lxix as to the family, implies a stage of civilization before the immigration of the Anglo-Saxons¹. I refer here once more, as I did in the note on p. lxix, for my statements as to the importance of the family among the German tribes, to the work of the greatest living master in German history. to the Deutsche Verfassungsgeschichte by Waitz. The reader will find there, that even after the German tribes had settled in fixed abodes, the family was of importance even within the community, which was founded then on the mere local relation of neighbourhood; and that this importance still continued when the division into hundreds not only existed, but was even prevalent. When the community based on local relations, and no more on kinship, came into existence, all the political interests fell at once into its sphere. But all that regards the relations of private law-the legal protection of life, limbs, and property-was still for a long time provided for by the family. The Frith-Gilds, however, were only to take the place of the family as to these relations of private law, and not as to its long extinct political importance. The Frith-Gilds, therefore, did not come into existence contemporaneously with the origin of the community based on local relations, and with the formation of the State, but only later, when the family began to lose its importance in matters of private law also. But the family had undoubtedly still this latter importance when the Anglo-Saxons came to England; this pat he Anglys schuld be her kyng;

¹ "But be Saxons acorded for no bynge

pey hadde wel leuere, pe Saxons seyd, pat be lond were in partis levd, pat pe fond were in partis level pan be Anglys of be out ildes

Schulde be chef of alle per gyldes."

1338 A.D. Robert Manning of Brunne's Stori of Englande, ii 511, l. 14741-6. ed.

F. J. F. 1870. (He is speaking of the settling of the Angles in East-Anglis.)

is proved by the very laws of Ina and Alfred which I speak of on p. lxxiv. According to them, the paternal and maternal relatives of an offender are responsible in the first degree for his crime.

2. Note to pp. lxxxvi, lxxxvii, on the name " Religious Gilds."

As I see from a note added by Mr. Furnivall on p. lxxxvii, I was wrong in my supposition (see p. lxxxvi) as to the reason which induced Mr. Toulmin Smith to change the hitherto usual name "Religious" into "Social" Gilds. But Mr. Furnivall is equally mistaken as to my reasons for maintaining the old appellation. As he thought, however, that these reasons were to be sought for in connexion with the fact of my being a Roman-Catholic, and as he has even asked me to state this fact to my readers, in order to caution them against my prejudices, I wish only, while doing this, to add a few words more on the real reasons for my calling these Gilds "Religious."

Now, to call the said Gilds "Religious" because of their ornament of a saint's name would seem to me quite as "monstrous" as to Mr. T. Smith or to Mr. Furnivall. If this had been my reason, I should certainly call by the same name all or most of the other Gilds in the Middle Ages, besides those in question, as well as the Trade-Union of the Knights of St. Crispin in Massachusetts, referred to the other day by the Spectator. This would simply be to ridicule the word "religion." I took this word in a much larger sense-in the sense it had when the old Gilds existed. I fully agree with Mr. T. Smith, that the objects of the said Gilds were social ones. But the exercise of these very social duties, to which the Gild brethren were bound by the Gild statutes-mutual assistance, the aid of the poor, of the helpless, the sick, of strangers, pilgrims, and prisoners, the burial of the dead, and even the keeping of schools and schoolmasters-was considered, in the time when these Gilds existed, as an "exercise of religion," obsequium religionis, as Hincmar calls it (see pp. lxxxii, lxxxiii). These deeds were considered but the practice of the religious maxim, "Love thy neighbour as thyself;" and most of them were taught to the people of the Middle Ages in a classification invented by the scholastics¹, as the opera corporalia misericordiae. Now, it can be easily understood that the people who considered the objects of these Gilds as "religious," gave the same name to the Gilds themselves which pursued these objects. In maintaining this name, I simply followed the example set by the Protestants as well as Roman-Catholics of all countries who have hitherto written on the subject. My reason was partially that I thought a historical treatise ought to give its subject its historical name; but especially, as I pointed out on p. lxxxvi, that I feared that to call these Gilds "Social" Gilds, might mislead men to the opinion that the other kinds of Gilds were based on other than the same social principles on which these Gilds rest. How the bad morals of the Roman clergy in the fourteenth century in England can prevent any one from calling the Gilds

¹ They founded it on Matt. xxv. See S. Thomæ Summa Theol. ii. 2. qu. 32. art. 2. existing among the laity from the days of Hincmar to the Reformation "Religious," I am at a loss to understand. If the clergy were so little religious, I would rather refuse the name of "Religious" to the Social Gilds existing among them, to the Gilds of the Kalenders. Yet Mr. Furnivall thinks that these last-named Gilds must be called so. But I am told also by another friend, that the sense of the word "Religious" is to-day different in English from the sense in which I used it, and that it would mislead the reader as to the character of the said Gilds. I therefore fully agree to the addition made by Mr. Furnivall to the title of my Part II., for certainly the main objects of these Gilds we should to-day call "Social."

3. Note to p. cxiv, on Bondmen in Towns and their Companies.

Mr. Furnivall thought that the existence of bondmen in towns and of the companies into which they had been ranged by their masters, was a fact yet so little known to the English public, that a more detailed note on them would not be out of place. I therefore give a short statement as to the inhabitants of Worms, according to Arnold¹.

At Worms there existed at the beginning of the eleventh century the Community of the Manor of the Bishop (die hofrechtliche Gemeinde des Bischofs) on the one hand, and on the other the Community of the Old Freemen. To the former (the so-called familia S. Petri) belonged the ministeriales, fiscalini, and dagewardi (villeins). The villeins were obliged to render common services to the bishop, either as coloni (villeins on the country manor), or as operarii (handicraftsmen). Their bondage was exceedingly mild. The amount of their wergild is not stated; but there is no doubt that it was paid entirely to the Church. The marriage between the dagewardi and the fiscalini was a morganatic one; the children of it became dagewardi. The larger part of the later handicraftsmen sprang from this class of villeins. They were ranged, according to the kind of their services, into unions (societates), which had an episcopal ministerialis as president (minister). These unions, later on, developed themselves into Craft-Gilds. The villeins who did not work as handicraftsmen served as coloni on the estates, where they were under the superintendence and jurisdiction of a minister loci, like the handicraftsmen under that of their president. Next to the villeins came the fiscalini, so called because originally servants to the fiscus, and belonging to the royal palace. They rendered no common services, but services at court and in war. They too were ranged into societates. But their unions soon became extinct. First in the familia were the ministeriales. In opposition to these were the old freemen, who always preserved their privileges of rank before the bond-handicraftsmen, and who, later on, developed into patricians.

¹ Arnold's Verfassungsgeschichte der deutschen Freistädte, vol. i. pp. 66-69. Compare also the more popular treatise of Barthold, Geschichte der deutschen Städte und des deutschen Bürgerthums, vol. i. pp. 77, 78, 148, 149, 280, and others.

NOTES.

As there may be but few Englishmen who know that in England also villeins existed in towns, I insert here a note of one of the best Middle-Age men in England, the Rev. Professor William Stubbs, of Oxford, who kindly sent to Mr. Furnivall this note in answer to his question on the point :—" In all towns not chartered there would be a class of villani exactly the same as in the country manors. The force of the bondage would of course vary, generally, very much from anything of the kind on the Continent. But as originally all towns were in demesne of some lord, bishop, or king, all the inhabitants would be less than free : and even where some had obtained the dignity of burgage=socage tenure, still, until the town was freed by a charter, there would be a large residuum of villani, whatever the hardship of English villenage may have been."

4. Note to p. lxxxiv, note 1.

Mr. Ludlow answers this note as follows :---" I beg leave to say, that I am perfectly in earnest in saying that tramp-money in all probability is the modern representative of the relief to pilgrim-artificers; not that all pilgrim-artificers were workmen on the tramp, because I believe, with you, that these were a rare phenomenon in the fourteenth century-though I believe some were-but because I believe that this kind of pilgrimage tended necessarily to supersede the other, and therefore would naturally inherit its advantages. Your reference to the 12th R. II. c. 3 is correct; but if you want a counter authority, see the 25th Edward III. St. i. c. 7, which shows that 'artificers' also were expected to 'flee' from one county to the other in consequence of the law itself. Now a pilgrimage to a shrine would evidently be the safest colour for such a migration ; under all circumstances it would afford the best safeguard against local exactions and maltreatment. See also as to the abuse of pilgrimage the 12th R. II. c. 7."

This explanation is very ingenious. Yet it does not convince me. The artificers whom the 25th Edw. III. expects to flee from one county to another, seem to me not to have been town-artificers. They were, in my opinion, artificers working on the country manors of lords. Each country manor had in the Middle Ages its own artificers, who supplied the common wants of their lords, whilst the latter resorted only for their more refined wants to the craftsmen of the towns. This explanation of the Act in question seems to me the more probable when we consider that all Statutes of Labourers in the Middle Ages were framed especially with regard to the powers and wants of the landed proprietors, the feudal lords. In towns, labour was generally regulated by town-ordinances. Besides, we must remember that the exercise of a craft in towns depended on having served an apprenticeship in such towns, and on citizenship (see p. cxxix). A fleeing craftsman would not therefore have been admitted into towns to carry on his craft. Such fleeing to towns therefore would have been useless.

CONTENTS.

I. THE ORIGIN OF GILDS

THE three oldest Gild-Statutes, pp. lxv, lxvi. The essence of the Gilds as manifested by them, p. lxvii. Investigation as to where this essence is first found, ib. The name of GILDs first applied to the feasts of the German tribes in Scandinavia on political, religious, and family occasions, ib. Meaning of the word GILD¹, p. lxviii. Importance of the family among the German tribes, p. lxix. The essence of the Gilds taken from the family, p. lxx. This essence already to be found in the heathen sacrificial assemblies, pp. lxx, lxxi. Also in the sworn confederacies of the Scandinavian warriors, p. lxxi. Wilda's and Hartwig's opinions as to the origin of Gilds, p. lxxiii. Influence of Christianity on Gilds, p. lxxiii.

¹ Mr. Hensleigh Wedgwood's derivation of the word is as follows :--- "GUILD. Danish gilde, feast, banquet, guild or corporation; Platt-Deutsch gilde, a company, corporation, society of burghers meeting on stated occasions for the purpose of feasting and merrymaking. The primary meaning is a feast, then the company assembled; and the same transference of signification will be observed in the word company itself, which, signifying in the first instance 'a number of persons eating together,' has come to be applied to an association for any purpose, and, in the case of the City Companies, to the very associations which were formerly denominated Guilds.

"It is a mistake to connect the word with the German gcld, payment. The real derivation is to be found in Welsh gwyl, Breton goel, gouid, a feast or holiday, gouélia, to keep holiday; Gae'ic (with the usual change from the Welsh gw to f initial), feill, a feast, holiday, fair or market; Manx fealley, festival, sacred, hallowed. The Irish feil, or feighil, is explained the vigil of a feast, sometimes the feast itself, leading to the supposition that the word is a mere corruption of the Latin vigilize. But the Welsh and Breton forms could hardly have been derived from that origin, and we find a satisfactory explanation in a native root, Welsh gwylio, to watch, be vigilant, to look for; gwyled, to behold, to see; gwylad, keeping a festival, the notion of keeping or observing being commonly expressed by the figure of looking. Breton gwel, look, sight, action of seeing. In a similar manner, from wake, to be vigilant, to watch, we have the wakes, the festival of the patron saint; Welsh gwyl-mabsant, German kirckweihe (weihen, to consecrate), where the ideas of waking or keeping, and consecration or holiness, are connected together in the same way as in Manx fealley.

"The Dutch form gulde, a feast (populare convivium), also a guild or corporation, closely resembles the Gothic dulths, Bavarian duld, a feast: Osterduld, Easter. In modern times duld is applied to a fair or market, commonly kept on the saint's day of the place. Dulden, like Breton goelia, to solemnize. Tuldan, celebrare ; tultih, solenniz.—Kero in Schmeller." English Etymology, i. 191-2.—(F. J. F.)

.

CONTENTS.

When the family becomes insufficient to afford legal protection, artificial aliances (the FRITH-GILDS) arise to take its place, p. lxxiv. First in England¹, ib. They are legally recognized in the laws of Ina and Alfred, and already far developed in the time of Athelstan, pp. lxxiv, lxxv. They are prohibited on the Continent, p. lxxvi. The reasons of these prohibitions, pp. lxxvii-lxxix. All kinds of Gilds arise in times of transition, p. lxxvii. Gilds among serfs on the Continent, pp. lxxvi, lxxviii, lxxix. The first combinations of labourers against their masters, p. lxxix.

Chief result of the inquiry into the origin of the Gilds : the Family the archetype of Gilds, p. lxxx. The first Gilds were the Religious ones; the next, those for the maintenance of Justice, ib.

II. RELIGIOUS (OR SOCIAL) GILDS.

Origin of the Religious Gilds, p. lxxxi. The Capitulary of Hinemar of 858 as to Religious Gilds among laymen, pp. lxxxi, lxxxii. Such Gilds numerous in all countries during the Middle Ages, p. lxxxii. Objects of these Gilds, pp. lxxxiii-lxxxvi. My reason for calling them RELIGIOUS, p. lxxxvi (and Notes, pp. lviii, lix). Members, livery, feastings, organization, p lxxxvii.

Capitularies of the year 858 as to priest-meetings on the kalends of each month, p. lxxxviii. The name GILDS OF THE KALENDERS explained, ib. Objects and organization of these Gilds, pp. lxxxix, xc. Influence of the Reformation on Religious Gilds, p. xc. The Gilds of the Kalenders in Denmark after the Reformation, pp. xc, xci. Modern descendants of the Religious Gilds, pp. xci, xcii.

III. THE TOWN-GILDS OR GILD-MERCHANTS.

The Frith-Gilds are formed especially in towns, p. xciii. Such Town-Gilds exist in England, p. xciii; France, p. xciv; and other Continental countries, p. xcv. A Gild-brother's murder is revenged by the Gild on a king, p. xcvi. The Town-Gilds become aristocratic; new Gilds arise; the "sworn" Gild becomes the "highest" Gild, pp. xcvi, xcvii. The "highest" Gilds in Germany, pp. xcvii, xcviii; in England: Canterbury, p. xcviii, London, pp. xcviii, xcix. Union of the "highest" with the later Gilds at London, p. xcix, and Berwick, pp. xcix, c. Similar processes on the Continent, p. c. The Skanör Gild-Union, ib. The German Town-Confederations were Gilds, with corporations as members, p. ci.

The Statutes of the Frith-Gilds which stood at the head of towns, pp. ci-civ.

¹ See Note, p. lvii.

The members of these Town-Gilds were merchants. Town-Gild= Gild-Merchant, pp. civ, cv. Mercantile regulations of these Gilds, p. cvi. Craftsmen originally members of the Town-Gilds. They are excluded when the burghers grow wealthy, p. cvii.

The development of the Frith-Gilds, p. cviii. Their degeneration, and oppression of the Craftsmen, pp. cviii-cx. Their contests with the rising Craftsmen, p. cx. The Craftsmen's victory, p. cxi. The transit of power from the Old Burghers to the Craft-Gilds in England, pp. cxi-cxiii. Degeneration of the Town-Gilds in Denmark, p. cxiii ; in Germany, ib.

IV. THE CRAFT-GILDS.

Controversy as to the origin of Craft-Gilds, p. cxiv. Their origin, pp. cxiv-cxvi. The first Craft-Gilds those of the Weavers, pp. cxvi, cxvii; perhaps in Flanders, p. cxvii. Transformation of the companies of the bond-handicraftsmen into Craft-Gilds, pp. cxvii, cxviii. The confirmation of the Craft-Gilds becomes of importance to them, p. cxviii. Opposition of the Old Burghers against the Craft-Gilds, p. cxix. Examples—the London Weavers and others, pp. cxix-cxx. Who elected the Masters of the Craft-Gilds, p. cxxi. Triumph of the Craftsmen over the Old Burghers, p. cxxii. The industrial policy of the Craft-Gilds, pp. cxxiii, cxxiv.

The constitution of the Craft-Gilds. Its elements, pp. cxxiv, cxxv. Their government, pp. cxxv, cxxvi. Rattening, p. cxxvii. Every craftsmen was to belong to the Gild, p. cxxviii. Their income, ib. Their rules, pp. cxxviii-cxxxiv. I. Those for securing good quality of work, pp. cxxix, cxxx. 2. Those as to the temporal and eternal welfare of the members, pp. cxxx-cxxxiv. Unions among crafts of kindred nature, pp. cxxxiv, cxxxv.

The position of the journeymen before the degeneration of the Craft-Gilds, pp. cxxxv, cxxxvi. The beginning of the degeneration of the Craft-Gilds. The capitalist spirit begins to prevail in them, pp. cxxxvii-exl. Position of the journeymen in the fourteenth century, pp. cxl, cxli. The plague of 1348, p. cxlii. Its results in towns. Differences among masters and men, p. cxliii. The building-trades in the Middle Ages, p. cxliv. Journeymen fraternities, p. cxliv. They are prohibited in London, p. cxlvi. The government of the English journeymen at that time, pp. cxlvii, cxlviii.

Progress of the degeneration of the Craft-Gilds. They become more and more societies for the investment of capital in England, pp. exlviii-el; Germany and France, pp. el, cli. Influence of this change of character on their organization, pp. cli, clii; on the position of the journeymen, p. cliii. The organization of the journeymen in Germany and France, and their fraternities in the sixteenth and thence to the end of the eighteenth century, pp. cliii-clvii. Strikes recognized by the Craft-Gilds, p. clvi. The position of the English journeymen during that time, pp. clvii-clxi The death of the Craft-Gilds, pp. clxii-clxiv.

V. THE ORIGIN OF TRADE-UNIONS.

Trade-Unions the successors of the old Gilds, pp. clxv, clxvi. Their origin has never yet been historically investigated, p. clxv. Industrial organization according to the 5th Eliz. c. 4, p. clxvii.

Inquiry into the state of trades when this organization was dissolved.

I. Trades under the 5th Eliz. c. 4. The Woollen-manufactures, pp. clxviii-clxxviii. Early combinations in this trade on refusal of the justices of the peace to assess wages, pp. clxviii, clxix. Description of the Woollen-manufactures in the eighteenth century, pp. clxix-clxxi. Beginning of the changes in this state, pp. clxxi, clxxii. 1796, "Institution" of Halifax for opposing them, p. clxxii. Effects of these changes on the position of the journeymen, p. clxxiii. Trade-Society in 1802, p. clxxiv. "Institution" in 1803, p. clxxv. Dissolved in 1805, p. clxxvii. Repeal of the 5th Eliz. c. 4 for the Woollen-manufactures, ib. Combinations and Trade-Unions of the Liverpool Shipwrights, of the Hatters, and the Tailors in the eighteenth century, p. clxxviii,

II. Incorporated Trades. — Framework-knitters: Their charter, p. clxxix. Combinations in 1710, p. clxxx. Illusory attempts of the corporation to enforce its charter, pp. clxxx, clxxxi. Trade-Union among the journeymen, p. clxxxi. The journeymen petition Parliament. Their miserable condition. Their Bills refused, pp. clxxxiiclxxxiv. The consequences, p. clxxxiv. Position of the journeymen after 1780, pp. clxxxiv, clxxxv.

The Cutlers in Sheffield. Combinations and Trade-Society at Sheffield, p. clxxxv.

III. Trades not regulated by the 5th Eliz. c. 4, nor by charter.— The Calico-printers and their Trade-Union, pp. clxxxv-clxxxviii. The Cotton-trade, p. clxxxviii.

Trade-Union in the Silk-trade, pp. clxxxix-cxci.

Repeal of the 5th Eliz. c. 4, pp. cxci-cxciii. The consequences, pp. cxciii-cxcv. Results of this investigation, pp. cxcv-cxcvii. The origin of Trade-Unions analogous to that of the Frith-Gilds and Craft-Gilds, p. cxcv. Further analogies between Trade-Unions and Gilds, pp. cxcviii. The Moral, p. cxcviii.

I. THE ORIGIN OF GILDS.

THE oldest reliable and detailed accounts which we have of Gilds come from England; they consist of three Gild-statutes¹. According to the latest investigation² into the origin of Gilds. the drawing-up of all these statutes took place in the beginning of the eleventh century. In the case of one of these Gilds, there is no doubt whatever as to the accuracy of this date. This Gild was founded and richly endowed by Orcy, a friend of Canute the Great, at Abbotsbury, in honour of God and St. Peter. Its object, according to the statutes, appears to have been the support and nursing of infirm Gild-brothers, the burial of the dead. and the performance of religious services, and the saying of prayers, for their souls. The association met every year, on the feast of St. Peter, for united worship in honour of their patron saint. Besides this, there was a common meal; and in order that the poor might also have their share in the joys of the festival, they received alms on the day of the feast; for which purpose the Gild-brothers were obliged to furnish, on the eve of the day, contributions of bread "well boulted and thoroughly baked." Guests were only admitted to the common meal by permission of the Master and Steward. Insults offered in a malignant spirit by one brother to another, were punished on the part of the Gild, and had also to be atoned for to the insulted. He who had undertaken an office, but had not properly discharged its duties, was severely punished.

The Exeter Gild, whose statutes have likewise been preserved, was of altogether the same character ³. Here, however, association for the purpose of worship and prayer stands out more prominently as the object of the brotherhood than in the former case. Three times a year the Gild-brothers assembled to worship together for the well-being of their living and dead fellowmembers. Here, also, every such service was followed by a meal in common. When any brother died, every member was obliged to perform special devotions for the departed soul. The mutual care of the Gild-brothers was, moreover, shown by money-contributions in case of death, and in the support of those who went on a journey, as well as of those who had suffered loss by fire. Punishments were decreed for insults offered by the Gildbrothers to each other, as well as for not fulfilling the duties imposed on them by the Gild.

¹ See these in Kemble's The Saxons in England, vol. i., Appendix D; and ^{compare} with them the translation in Eden's State of the Poor, vol. i. p. 591, &c.

² Hartwig, Untersuchungen über die ersten Anfange des Gildewesens, in the Forschungen zur deutschen Geschichte, edited by Waitz, Göttingen. 1860, vol. i. p. 136.

³ See also the Introduction to Mr. Smith's Gilds by Miss L.T. Smith, p. xviii.

The statutes of the Gild at Cambridge show that its main object was altogether different from that of the two already mentioned. At the very outset, in the oath which every member had to take on the relics of the patron Saint of the Gild, they swore faithful brotherhood towards each other, not only in religious, but also in secular matters; and though the statutes secured for the Gild-brothers the same support in case of sickness and death as those of Exeter and Abbotsbury-and, like those, contained regulations with reference to alms, divine worship and feasts-vet all these objects were but insignificant in comparison with the measures for the protection of the members of the Gild against criminals, and even against the evil consequences of their own wrongdoing. The following may be considered a first principle: "If one misdo, let all bear it; let all share the same lot :" and for carrying this out, a complete organization existed. If one of the Gild-brothers required the help of his fellowmembers, the inferior officer of the Gild living nearest to him had to hasten to his aid; should the officer neglect this, he became liable to punishment, and in like manner the head of the society, should he be remiss in affording help. If a Gild-brother was robbed, the whole Gild had to assist him in obtaining compensation from the lawbreaker. So also every Gild-brother was obliged to help, if a member himself had to make atonement for killing a man. If, however, he had no justifiable motive for committing the act, if he had not been provoked to it in a quarrel, if he was not under an obligation to execute vengeance, but had slain the man merely from malice, he himself had to bear the consequences of the deed. If one Gildbrother killed another, he had first to reconcile himself with the kinsmen of the murdered man, and had moreover to pay eight pounds to all those belonging to his larger family, namely, the Gild: failing which, he was shut out of the society, and the members of the Gild were forbidden to hold friendly intercourse of any kind with him. In like manner, an insult offered by one Gild-brother to another was severely punished. The solidarity of the society was even shown in the case of violence and damage to property, which one member might have suffered from the servant of another; the master of the servant was answerable for him, and was sued by the society for compensation. It was, moreover, a leading principle of the society, to which every member had to bind himself by oath, always to support him who had right on his side.

lxvii

The essence of the manifold regulations of the statutes of these three Gilds appears to be the brotherly banding together into close unions between man and man, sometimes even established on and fortified by oath, for the purpose of mutual help and support. This essential characteristic is found in all the Gilds of every age, from those first known to us in detail, to their descendants of the present day, the Trade-Unions. According to the variety of wants and interests at various times, the aims, arrangements, and rules of these unions also varied. As a rule, the Gild-brothers periodically assembled together for common feasts.

The inquiry as to where these features of the Gilds are first met with in earlier times will, perhaps, also yield an answer to the inquiry into the origin of Gilds themselves. The Northern historians, in answer to the question, whence the Gilds sprane. refer above all to the feasts of the German tribes from Scandinavia, which were first called Gilds. Among the German tribes, every occurrence among the more nearly related members of the family required the active participation in it of them all. At births, marriages, and deaths, all the members of the family assembled. Banquets were prepared in celebration of the event, and these had sometimes even a legal signification, as in the case of funeral banquets, namely, that of entering on an inheritance; and, when they concerned kings, that of a coronation. Wilda narrates in detail the circumstances of a banquet of this kind, at which the son and heir, in the midst of his own and his father's companions, toasted his father's memory, and vowed to imitate his worthy deeds; the companions took similar vows upon themselves. Further, great social banquets took place on occasion of the sacrificial assemblies at the great anniversary festivals, which coincided with the national assemblies and legal assizes, and on occasion of important political events; and at the same time the common concerns of the community were deliberated on at these banquets. Moreover, they also furnished an opportunity for the conclusion of those alliances for purposes of plunder or war, of which we have accounts, especially in the case of Sweden and Norway, as well as of those close unions of friends, in which, according to the Scandinavian Sagas, two warriors of antiquity were wont to confederate for life or death, for common enterprises and dangers, and for indiscriminate revenge when one of them should perish by a violent death ¹. Every freeman was obliged to attend these feasts, and bring with him whatever food and drink he might require. Hence these feasts were also called Gilds: for "Gild" meant originally the sacrificial meal made up of the common contributions; then a sacrificial banquet in general; and lastly, a society. When in later times Christianity spread itself in the North, the sacrificial banquets, with all their customs and ceremonies, remained in existence, and Christ, the Virgin Mary, and other saints, stept into the place of Odin and the rest of the gods 2 .

Neither Wilda, the principal writer on Gilds. nor Hartwig, who has made the latest researches into their origin, is able to discover anything of the essential nature of Gilds, either in what has just been related about the old family and its banquets. or in the sacrificial assemblies; and it is only as to the one point of the custom of holding banquets on the occasion of anniversary festivals, that Wilda is inclined to derive the Gilds from them. But of the essence of the Gild, "the brotherly banding together in close union, which expressed itself in manifold ways in the mutual rendering of help and support," he finds no trace. "The banquets," he urges as his principal objection, "were either casual meetings to which every one, as he thought proper, invited his friends, or which several people prepared in common, and which did not produce any more intimate relationship than that already existing from the actual bond of the family, or state, or neighbourhood; or they were meetings in which every one of the nation was able, or was obliged, to take part. There appears in them nothing of any closer voluntary confederacy of the members within, or by the side of, the union caused by the State or religion '." Hartwig considers these objections of Wilda's conclusive, and believes that from the continued existence of pagan ceremonies even amongst the religious Gilds, and from the custom of holding feasts, nothing whatever can be deduced which is essential to the Gilds⁴.

Now these feasts cannot certainly be compared with the

pp. 148, 149. ³ Wilda, p. 28. 4 Hartwig, p. 153.

already perfectly-developed Gilds of Abbotsbury, Exeter, and Cambridge; but if we connect with them what historians relate about the family in those days, we may still recognize in them the germ from which in later times, at a certain stage of civilization, the Gild necessarily had to develope itself. The family was, according to these historians¹, a community of all-comprehending importance, and its care provided completely for nearly all the wants of the individual. This it was able to do in consequence of the then simplicity of life. The minor found in it his protection; the insulted, the natural friends who sympathized most keenly with him in every injury inflicted, and who helped him to procure satisfaction. He who would engage in those pursuits which alone in that age were worthy of a free man, and which at the same time promised riches and fame-in chase, feuds, and war-found in the family his natural allies. Naturally, he who fell into poverty, or sickness, or any other kind of distress, obtained from the family the necessary help; and it provided of course for the burial of the dead whose heir it was. These are indeed the first, and are even now-a-days the practical results of the family union. For the murdered, there arose from the midst of his family an avenger; to the robbed it gave the necessary help to prosecute and punish the thief, and to obtain restitution of the plunder. Further consequences of the nature of the family compact were, that the members were obliged to maintain peace amongst themselves; that they were not entitled to appear against each other in a court of justice; and, on the other hand, that they were called upon to punish members, especially women, who had violated the right of the family 2. Before the community too it became answerable for its members. The payment of the forfeited wergild was, in all cases of offence-which according to ancient usage and custom claimed revenge-the concern of the whole family. The family appeared as such an intimate union of its members, that this responsibility of the whole body for the individual member commended itself to the sense of justice of the people as a matter of course. But as it answered for the compensation, and took part in the payment thereof, and assisted the guilty in order that he might not forfeit life and limbs to his antagonist, so it supplied the accused also with compurgators from among its members to ward off an unjust condemnation. In former times this family bond comprehended all relatives without limitation of degree;

¹ Münter's Kirchengeschichte, vol. i. p. 181, &c., quoted in Wilda's Gildewesen im Mittelalter, p. 29.

² Compare Wilda, Das Gildewesen im Mittelalter, Halle, 1831, p. 5, &c. ; Waitz, Deutsche Verfassungs Geschichte, vol. i. pp. 49-75, 2nd ed., Kiel, 1865; Hartwig, ¹ To avoid further quotations I refer to Waitz, vol. i. pp. 49-75. With reference to the Anglo-Saxons in particular, see also Lappenberg's Geschichte von England, vol. i. 1834, p. 587.

² By unchastity, as wives or girls.

but in later days it became restricted to the nearer kinsfolk. Of course these members of the family met at oft-recurring banquets, at which, as was customary among the Germans, their interests were talked over and deliberated on, just as has been shown in the above-mentioned accounts of the Scandinavian writers (p. lxviii), who agree in this with Taeitus (Germ. cap. 22).

If we compare this description of the family, and the accounts of the above-mentioned banquets, with the statutes of the Gilds at Abbotsbury. Exeter, and Cambridge, the family appears as the original and pattern type, after which all the later Gilds were formed; and this will be proved still more clearly in the course of this treatise ¹. The family meets us here as the closest possible union, consisting of real brothers, and so thoroughly animated with the spirit of brotherhood and of mutual assistance and support, that it brings all conceivable relations within its reach, and provides completely for nearly all those wants, the satisfying of which fell, in later times, partly to the State, and partly to the artificial societies which were formed for this very purpose. The essential nature of the Gild, as characterized by Wilda himself, is to be found in the family, and developed there even to the highest degree. We do not yet see, it is true, special associations by the side of this most intimate natural union, but neither is there room for the former, by reason of the activity of the latter. It is indeed astonishing that Wilda, who himself afterwards designates the Gilds as "imitators of the family²," should here altogether forget whence they were derived.

With the exception of political interests, for which the State provided, there remains only one relation for which we find no particular provision in the family, namely, Religion. Care for the interests of religion was the business of the whole nation. At the time from which our accounts come down to us, the German tribes had already taken possession of fixed habitations; the relations of neighbourhood and of living-together asserted themselves in public life, and it was natural that the interests which first after politics united neighbours for common action, were the religious ones. Families, though acting generally as independent individual bodies, and competing most keenly with each other in the pursuit of their material interests, yet united as soon as that interest was concerned, which—even in the times of the most barbarian arbitrariness and the most unbridled clublaw, the times of the most unchecked pursuit of individual interest—was always considered as the great, the common, the social interest, the reconciliation of man with God. As if single individuals felt themselves too weak to solve this great problem, they have always, at all times, and in all religions, united for the worship of God,—frequently the whole nation, and later, in special sacrificial societies, as we see in the religious associations of the Romans¹, and still more perfectly in the religious Gilds and fraternities of the Middle Ages.

¹ Compare especially Part III. of this Essay, pp. cii, ciii.

The circumstance, that we meet here, all neighbours united in one common society, and not yet that separation into closer and more restricted associations which is found in the later Gilds, can give rise to no difficulty. This is a phenomenon which appears always, as soon as a great interest unites men into a community. and which repeats itself in the rise of every separate kind of Gild down to that of our modern Trade-Unions. At first, as long as all belonging to one portion of mankind have an equally lively sense of want, as long as zeal is universal, and energy is equally effective in all, and as long as this zeal is still growing, one bond comprehends them all ; but gradually, with the increase of number, and with the relaxation of the general interest, or with the appearance of various shades in that interest, they unite into closer societies, or close their circles; by the side of which then arise others of a similar nature². When, for instance-to make use of an example which Hartwig himself brings forward in a later passage of his inquiry-the Christian communions were formed, all the members contributed, according to their ability, to one common fund for the purpose of good works. With the extension of Christianity this general display of love abated; the contributions ceased, or were changed into regular and involuntary taxes; and the zealous separated into particular brotherhoods, &c. Further, the Gilds, from which in later times the town constitutions sprang, comprehended originally, as Wilda himself tells us, all full citizens, whose relations to each other were none but those given by local limits and the bonds of neighbourhood. To the first Gilds of the Kalenders, all the priests of a deanery belonged, and the first Trade-Unions took their origin in a manner thoroughly similar.

The essence of the Gild existed also in those associations for acquiring riches and fame, the sworn confederacies for plunder and heroic deeds referred to above, and mentioned by the Northern historians; and therefore, although from the natural scantiness of the sources, historical references to the direct derivation of the Gilds from them may be wanting, it does not appear that the attempt to bring them into connection with the Gilds ought to be rejected without further counterproofs¹.

² Wilda, pp. 56 58, 130, 132, 134, 147, 153, 169, &c.

¹ Cf. Heineccius, De collegiis et corporibus opificum, in Heineccii opera omnia, tom. ii. p. 390, Genevæ, 1766; also Cicero De Senectute, cap. 13. Gaius, in l. 4 D. de coll. et corp. 47, 22, quotes a passage from Solon's legislation taken over into the twelve tables concerning sacrorum sacramentales.

² Compare Part III. pp. xevi xevii.

As to the positive opinion of the opponents of our view of the origin of Gilds :- Wilda allows that the later Gilds are derived from the old pagan ones, as regards the custom of assembling together at a common meal on various solemn occasions (a custom, however, which is certainly met with, not only among the Germans, but also in the Greek Eparoi and the Roman Collegia²). The peculiar characteristic of the Gilds, says Wilda, first entered into them through the Christian principle of love for one's neighbour; and the Gilds themselves had their origin in the monasteries aggregated together on that principle to share in the benefits of their prayers and good works. These aggregations were joined afterwards by laymen³. Against this view, Hartwig shows the untenableness of the derivation of the Gilds from those monastic aggregations +, and then points to the Gild-like unions of the cultivated and classical nations of antiquity, especially to the Roman burial-societies, which Christianity, as it spread, found already existing on an extensive scale. He then mentions the common contributions of the first Christians for good works, as well as the later discontinuance of these voluntary acts of charity of the laity, when the Church acquired great independent wealth. But, in spite of the immense property of the Frankish Church, Hartwig yet infers, from the existence of a great proletariat in the Frankish realm at the end of the Roman dominion, that associations of clergy and laity for mutual support must have been formed in that empire. Though more exact information concerning these is wanting, vet the existence of associations amongst the clergy of the sixth century for anything but pious purposes, -as for instance for opposing superiors,—appears to Hartwig sufficient reason for inferring the existence of similar ones for charitable purposes. The laity would join themselves at a later period to those societies, whose offshoots he sees in the Gilds of the Kalenders 5.

4 Hartwig, p. 152. ⁵ Hartwig, pp. 156-160. See, on the Gilds of the Kalenders, p. lxxxviii below.

It seems, however, difficult to agree with this learned and ingeniously asserted opinion. The development shows too many gaps, and the connection of the isolated facts with each other is too weak for us to erect with its scaffold the great and magnificent edifice of the Gilds.

The assumption that the Gild first obtained its essential character, and its true purport, from the Christian communions only, seems to me also very difficult to reconcile with the facts so prominently brought forward by Wilda and Hartwig, that the customs and ceremonies of the Gilds of that age were to such an extent those of the old pagan sacrificial banquets, that, for centuries, prohibitions and menaces of punishment were expressly needed in order to destroy this pagan character. If I may be allowed to form a conjecture in this case, I would rather say that the religious brotherhoods of the Middle Ages, and as they still exist in Catholic countries, have their origin in a connection with monasticism, and in an imitation of it on the part of men who, though wishing to accumulate the greatest possible amount of merits for the next world, yet would not renounce the present; and that this origin is to be sought in Southern lands, in which Christianity and monasticism were first propagated¹. When, therefore, these Southerns brought Christianity into the North, they found existing there these pagan sacrificial unions, with their attendant banquets; and an amalgamation of the Christian religious unions was effected with the sacrificial societies of the pagans, and their customs and rites, like the blending of the Christian festivals and ceremonies with those of the old pagans, which Wilda narrates in so excellent a way. But though this continued existence of the old customs was at first allowed in the interest of the more rapid propagation of Christian doctrine, yet in later times, when the dominion of the doctrine appeared to have been secured, a war was commenced against them by the spiritual authorities as well as the secular ones, who were animated with similar ideas. Undoubtedly, however, the spirit of association received then a mighty impulse, and the Gilds spread themselves rapidly under the influence of Christian doctrine; but, at any rate, as it without stating any grounds, Hartwig, p. 154. ² Hartwig, p. 156. Varro speaks of the licentious banquets of the Roman collegia : "Immutabiles collegiorum cœnas intendere annonam." Cf. Heineccius, pp 366, 399. As to the epavoi, see Becker's Charikles, vol. ii. p. 239, 2nd edition, 1854. ³ Wilda, p. 31 ff.

¹ Against this view, on wholly insufficient grounds, see Wilda, p. 29; and

¹ It follows from ll. 42 and 43 Cod. Theod. de Parabolanis, lib. 16, tit. 2 (with which must be compared the commentary of Gothofredus on these passages, as well as Baronius, Annales Ecclesiastici, tom. v. p. 691, Romæ, 1595, and Stolberg's Geschichte der Religion Jesu Christi, vol. xv. p. 44, Hamburg, 1818), that already in the third century there existed at Alexandria a Christian brotherhood for nuising the sick. But about the year 416 it had so altered its character, and had so degenerated, as a religious institution, that Theodosius published a decree to prevent it from becoming too powerful, and from meddling with secular affairs.

seems to me, the essence of the Gild, the confederation in societies for mutual help, where the power of the individual appeared too weak to obtain the object desired, is already to be recognized in those old heathen sacrificial assemblies¹.

Though in more ancient times the family connection was strong, and of importance in various wavs, as in the maintenance of justice, in the formation of the nation, and in its first settlement, nevertheless, after this settlement had taken place, the relations which it called forth obtained the preponderance. The natural bond of the family became more and more relaxed with the increase of the number of relatives, and with the rise of special interests among the individual members; and would also lose its importance as regards the maintenance of justice. Moreover, the constantly increasing number of kinless people, and of strangers, would further the formation of new institutions; for the State alone was not at that time able to satisfy its members' claims for legal protection.

This change had, above all, to take place in the Anglo-Saxon States² through the intermixture of the people with Britons and Danes. Here, artificial alliances would take the place of the natural ones, and of the frankpledge³ founded thereon. Already, in passages of Ina's statutes which refer expressly to the legal protection of the stranger, mention is made of "gegildan" and "gesit;" and strangers are the very people who, we are told, lived, later on, in societies or Gilds, to which probably a great antiquity must be ascribed 4. A law of King Alfred declared, that when any one who had no paternal relatives, killed another, one-third of the fine should be paid by the maternal relatives, another third by the "gegildan," while for the remaining third the man himself was responsible. But if he was also without maternal relatives, the "gegildan" had to pay the half, and for the other half "let him flee." In a corresponding case, when such a man had been killed, the "gegildan" received half of his fine, the king the other half⁵. If now we consider that, amongst the members of the later Gilds, exactly similar obligations are met with 6, the opinion will appear justified 7, that here also, under the term "gegildan," Gild-members are understood.

³ The mutual security which persons of the same tithing gave for each other's good conduct.

- ^{*} Waitz, vol. i. p. 437. [§] Compare the Statutes of the Cambridge Gild on p. lxvi of this Essay. 5 Ibid. p. 433.
- ⁷ Hartwig, it is true, asserts (p. 1,6) that it is now universally acknowledged

An already far-advanced development of the Gilds is shown by the Judicia Civitatis Lundonia, the Statutes of the London Gilds, which were reduced to writing in the time of King Athelstan. From them, the Gilds in and about London appear to have united into one Gild, and to have framed common regulations for the better maintenance of peace, for the suppression of violence,-especially of theft, and the aggressions of the powerful families,-as well as for carrying out rigidly the ordinances enacted by the king for that purpose. Particularly comprehensive were the arrangements for prosecution against theft; one might call these Gilds "assurance companies against theft." Not only were the members obliged to pursue and track out the thief, even in other districts, but the injured person also received compensation for his loss from the common fund. The agreements which had been come to, and the obligation resulting therefrom, bound not only the members of the Gilds. but also all non-members living in the district in which the Gilds existed : and the non-members were for this purpose united into tithings under the lead of the Gild-brothers. Every month the members of the Gild assembled at a banquet, at which the common interests, the observance of the ordinances enacted, and similar matters, were inquired into and discussed. The remains of the viands were distributed amongst the poor. On the death of a member, every associate of the Gild had to offer a loaf of fine bread for the benefit of the soul of the departed, and had to sing fifty psalms, or to get them sung, within the space of a month. All who took part in this league were to be as the members of one Gild, in one friendship, and in one enmity : and every insult was to be avenged as a common one¹. The English Knighten Gild was perhaps one of these united Gilds 2. At Canterbury, a Gild following the same ends stood at that time at the head of the city, whilst two others existed by the side of it. There are also accounts of a Gild-hall at Dover, from which a Frith Gild may be inferred; and charters of a somewhat later time frequently mention many other Gilds besides these, as having been long in existence ³.

The organization of the Gilds was thus in the eighth, ninth, and tenth centuries, not only completed, and probably already (especially since Kemble), that the just mentioned "gegildan" are not to be taken for Gild members. Nevertheless Waitz, in the latest edition of his Constitutional History (1865), vol. i. p. 438, clings to the contrary opinion, and very justly, as appears to me. See in Waitz the various opinions and writings on this point. ¹ Cf. Wilda, p. 245, &c.; Lappenberg, p. 386; Waitz, vol. i. p. 434; Hartwig, ¹ Both Waitz (vol. i. p. 85) and Lappenberg (vol. i. p. 609) appear to believe in this derivation of the Gilds.

² See Additional Notes, No. I.

P. 140. ² See below, Part III. of this Essay, p. xcix.

³ Lappenberg, vol. i. p. 610.

widely extended amongst the Anglo-Saxons, but even recognized, and their ordinances imitated, or at least sanctioned, in legislation; and the Gilds enjoyed already such authority in England, that their agreements bound even non-members; and town constitutions were already developing themselves from them. At the same time we see them forbidden and persecuted everywhere on the Continent by ecclesiastical as well as by secular authorities. A series of Capitularies of the Emperor Charlemagne and his successors¹ interfered with all kinds of combinations and unions, and especially with those which were confirmed by mutual oaths. Not only those which proposed directly unlawful objects were threatened with scourging, nose-slitting, banishment, and such-like punishments of their members, but even those whose object was protection against robbery and other deeds of violence². Unions were only to be tolerated for mutual assistance in fires, shipwrecks and similar cases, and even then without the members confirming their obligations by an oath ³. Under Louis le Debonaire, Gilds even amongst serfs are met with in Flanders, Menpiscus, and the other maritime districts, and their lords were called upon to suppress them, under the threat of being punished themselves 4. The clergy too had their Gild meetings, as appears from the Capitularies of Archbishop Hinemar of Rheims. The wanton practices and heathen customs which prevailed at their banquets, as well as the exaction of the contributions and fines which, as in the London and Cambridge Statutes, were imposed for violation of the ordinances, gave Hincmar occasion for vehement complaints against these Gilds⁵. We see from these accusations that the despotic mediaval magnates of the Continent used the same weapons for attacking associations for the maintenance of freedom, as their modern antagonists in free England, the enemies of 'Trade-Unions.

³ Capit 779, cap. 16, in Pertz, l. c., p. 37.

* "De conjurationibus servorum que funt in Flandris et Menpisco et in cæteris maritimis locis, volumus ut per missos nestros indicetur dominis servorum illorum, ut constringant eos, ne ultra tales conjurationes facere præsumant. Et ut sciant ipsi eorundem servorum domini, quod cujuscunque servi hujuscemodi conjurationem facere præsumpserint postquam eis hæc nostra jussio fuerit indicata, bannum nostrum, id est sexaginta solidos, ipse dominus persolvere debeat."—Capit. Th. od. 821, cap. 7, in Pertz, l. c., p. 230. Compare with this, Capit. Vern. 884, cap. 14, in Pertz, l. c., p. 5=3. lxxvii

There is no doubt that these "Gildoniæ" of the Frankish Empire are the same as the Gilds of the Anglo-Saxons, such as those of London and Cambridge¹. The more developed constitution of these appears merely as a consequence of the later times from which the documents on them have been preserved for us, as well as of the freedom from those restrictions which necessarily hindered their prosperity on the Continent. As the unions themselves owed their origin to social and political changes, in like manner the reasons of these prohibitions lay probably in political and social considerations. All the various kinds of Gilds-as will further appear in the course of this inquiry-always arose in times of transition; and especially when we consider the origin of Trade-Unions we shall show how, in every single trade, the Gilds came into existence at the time when each trade was changing from small to great industry. When these Gilds arose, both England and the Frankish Empire were likewise in such a stage of transition. The frankpledges of those belonging to one family became less efficient. Lappenberg relates, that in England² the landed proprietor, the feudal lord, took all his serfs under the same protection as in earlier times was afforded by their kinsmen. This relation could not however satisfy the want of the great numbers of those who had maintained their freedom, and did not belong to any connection of this kind. Amongst these freemen, therefore, we forthwith meet the same contrast which now-a-days separates Economists and Socialists. The freemen of rank and large possessions, who felt themselves powerful enough for their own protection, found, as the strong are ever wont to do, their interest more in a system of mutual feuds, that is, of free competition amongst themselves, than in associations and mutual pledges. But the less powerful, the small freemen, sought, as the weak always do, protection for themselves in confederating into close unions, and formed the Gilds for that purpose.

The mighty efforts of the Emperor Charlemagne to form one central State, transformed all existing relations. His legislation caused especially a considerable diminution of the old freemen. With the pressure which the violent dukes and counts exercised on the people, the number of the latter shrank more and more, exactly as the number of small master-craftsmen and tradesmen dwindled away in consequence of the centralization of trade into the great workshops in the eighteenth and nineteenth p. 553, cap. 14. ² Capit Theod. 805, cap. 10; Const. Olonn. 823, cap. 4; Capit. Wormat. 829, cap. 10, in Pertz, l. c., pp. 133, 232, 352.

¹ The passages referring to this matter are to be found in Pertz, Monumenta Germaniæ Historica, Legum, tomus i. p. 37, cap. 16; p. 59, cap. 29; p. 68, cap. 10; p. 74, cap. 31; p. 133, cap. 10; p. 230, cap. 7; p. 232, cap. 4; p. 352, cap. 10; p. 553, cap. 14.

⁵ Cf. Wilda, pp. 22, 35, 41; Hartwig, pp. 138-141, 150.

¹ Cf. Hartwig, pp. 138-142, who also, together with Marquardsen, maintains against Kemble the real identity of the London brotherhoods with the remaining Anglo-Saxon Gilds.

² Lappenberg, vol. i. p. 587, &c.

centuries in England. Just as here the artisans could only avoid being pressed down to a slavelike condition by leaguing together into unions, so in like manner the old freemen of Charles's time were only able to maintain their liberties wherever the fact of their dwelling together in larger numbers rendered a confederacy into Gilds possible, or wherever they were secured against the persecution of their oppressors by the peculiar natural conditions of their abode. Although, later on, Charles himself endeavoured in vain to counteract the diminution of the old freemen—so far as it was possible without injuring his system—yet the action of an organization like the Gilds would have made breaches in it; moreover, these stirs of self-help might have become dangerous to the system of personal government of the arbitrarily ruling Cæsar.

But the universal insecurity after the death of Charles, and especially the devastating incursions of the Normans, were the causes that brought about the association of the people into Gilds, even more than the fear of losing their inherited freedom. But here too it was the same dread that caused self-help to be forbidden; and this was certainly also the cause of the prohibition of the associations amongst seris against thieves and robbers. The crime of the serfs in their unions consisted in their endeavouring to provide redress for their grievances without making use of the intervention of their masters¹, whose powers over them such interventions always increased. Even when the poor people who were without protection against the inroads of the Normans, leagued themselves into sworn brotherhoods, and in this manner offered firm resistance to the robbers, they were cut down by the Frankish nobles, as a reward for their bravery².

The assumption, that these serfs had also confederated together against their lords for the improvement of their very miserable condition, does not appear to be necessarily excluded by the threat in the Capitulary of Louis, that the lords themselves should be punished if they did not suppress the unions³. At least, the Mayor and Aldermen of London, in the year 1415, made, in like manner, the Wardens of the Tailors' Gild responsible for the existence of associations of journeymen tailors, which however were directed against the masters themselves¹. As these journeymen stood under the rule of the Wardens of the Tailors' Gild, so stood the serfs to their lords in a relation of protection like the earlier one of the family-members to their family; the lords were responsible for the offences of their slaves in general, and especially for those committed by "collecta," as that same Capitulary of Louis le Debonaire attests². The interest in the maintenance of the existing order of things made it as much a special duty of the lords in the Carlovingian times, as of the masters in the fifteenth century, to take care that such order should not be disturbed by any kind of revolutionary movements of the governed class. The suppression of those stirrings of self-dependence appeared a matter of public importance. Heineccius 3 already, apropos of the interdiction of the Roman collegia by Tarquinius Superbus, refers to the opinion of Aristotle (Polit. lib. v. cap. ii.) : "The means already indicated to maintain the mastery as long as possible, consist in this especially, to suffer neither common banquets nor political unions, nor education in common, nor anything else of the same kind; but to guard against everything which can excite in the people these two qualities-self-consciousness and mutual confidence." If these associations of serfs were also directed against their lords, we have indeed in that Capitulary the first record of a combination of labourers against their masters.

The forbiddance of Gilds in the Frankish Empire could also be justified from religious motives, in consequence of the gluttony and pagan customs always associated with them. But from England we hear nothing whatever of any evil influence of the Gilds. It appears that Englishmen at all times knew better than Continentals how to maintain their right of free and independent action; and their Government seems to have known even at that time how to make use, in an excellent manner and in the interest of public order, of organizations freely created by the people. In Germany a better estimation of the Gilds seems to have commenced under Henry I., who in order to raise the towns, ordered the Gilds to hold their councils, their meetings, and their banquets in them. The same thing was decreed for Norway nearly a century and a half later by Olaf Kirre, the

¹ The Capit. Vern. 884, cap. 14 (Pertz, l. c., p. 553) says: "Volumus, ut presbyteri et ministri comitis villanis præcipiant, ne collectam faciant quam vulgo Geldam vocunt contra illos qui aliquid rapuerint. Sed causam suam ad illum presbyterum referant qui episcopi missus est, et ad illos qui in Ilis locis ministri comitis super hoc existunt, ut omnia prudenter et rationabiliter corrigantur."

² Hartwig, p. 145. Compare him for the rest of these historical statements in general, p. 161, &c.

³ Waitz (vol. iv. p. 364) and Haitwig (p. 145) draw this inference.

¹ Cf. Riley, Memorials of London and London Life in the Thirteenth, Fourteenth, and Fifteenth Centuries, p. 609. London, 1868 ² Capit. Theod. 821, cap. 1 (Pertz, l. c., p. 230): "Si servi per contumaciam founder of Bergen, and the enlarger of several towns. He also caused houses to be built for this purpose, as for instance at Trondjem.

² Capit. Theod. 821, cap. I (Pertz, l. c., p. 230): "Si servi per contumaciam collecta multitudine alicui vim intulerint, id est aut homicidium aut incendium aut qualiumcunque rerum direptiones fecerint, domini quorum negligentia hoc evenit, pro eo, quod eos constringere noluerunt, ut talia facere non auderent, bannum nostrum, id est sexaginta solidos, solvere cogantur."

⁸ Heineccius, Í. c., p. 379.

There remains, in conclusion, to state briefly the chief result of this inquiry. The family appears as the first Gild, or at least as an archetype of the Gilds. Originally, its providing care satisfies all existing wants; and for other societies there is therefore no room. As soon however as wants arise which the family can no longer satisfy-whether on account of their peculiar nature or in consequence of their increase, or because its own activity grows feeble-closer artificial alliances immediately spring forth to provide for them, in so far as the State does not do it. Infinitely varied as are the wants which call them forth, so are naturally the objects of these alliances. Yet the basis on which they all rest is the same : all are unions between man and man, not mere associations of capital like our modern societies and companies. The cement which holds their members together is the feeling of solidarity, the esteem for each other as men, the honour and virtue of the associates and the faith in them -not an arithmetical rule of probabilities, indifferent to all good and bad personal qualities. The support which the community affords a member is adjusted according to his wants-not according to his money-stake, or to a jealous debtor and creditor account; and in like manner the contributions of the members vary according to the wants of the society, and it therefore never incurs the danger of bankruptcy, for it possesses an inexhaustible reserve fund in the infinitely elastic productive powers of its members. In short, whatever and however diverse may be their aims, the Gilds take over from the family the spirit which held it together and guided it : they are its faithful image, though only for special and definite objects.

The first societies formed on these principles were the sacrificial unions, from which, later on, the Religious Gilds were developed for association in prayer and good works. Then, as soon as the family could no longer satisfy the need for legal protection, unions of artificial-family members were formed for this purpose, as the State was not able to afford the needful help in this respect. These Gilds however had their origin in direct imitation of the family. Most certainly, none were developed from an earlier religious union : as little as were the Roman collegia opificum from the Roman sacrificial societies, or the Craft-Gilds from the Gild-Merchants, or any Trade-Unions from a Craft-Gild.

II. THE RELIGIOUS (OR SOCIAL) GILDS.

AFTER the German tribes had settled in fixed abodes, the families dwelling in a certain district united themselves into common sacrificial assemblies. As a rule, common meals were connected with them, to which every one taking part had to bring what he wanted of food and drink. From this these unions were called Gilds. When Christianity, together with its religious fraternities, came to the North, the latter amalgamated with the heathen sacrificial societies which they found there, and from this union arose the Religious Gilds of the Middle Ages.

This is the opinion on the origin of the Religious Gilds already expounded in the foregoing part of this Essay. In the above cited statutes of the Gilds at Abbotsbury and Exeter, of the eleventh century (p. lxv), we see the organization of these Gilds already completely developed. But much earlier, though less detailed, information is afforded by the Capitularies of Archbishop Hincmar of Rheims, of the year 858.

We find, already distinct, in these Capitularies, the two kinds which must be distinguished among the Religious Gilds. The one exists among laymen; and it alone is called "Geldonia." It alone, too, bears already the complete character of the Religious Gilds as it existed during the whole of the Middle Ages. The other kind of Gild exists among the clergy.

In the Capitulary¹ relating to the Gilds among laymen, Hincmar gives instructions to his clergy as to their allowed sphere of action, and as to the solemnities to be held at their meetings. He first tells them quite in general, that only that should be done which was required by dignity, utility, and reason; but he immediately defines this somewhat more precisely: "They shall unite for every exercise of religion: that is to say,"-and now follows, as a more detailed statement of the duties involved therein, the enumeration of all the objects which are again met with in the later Gild-statutes,-"" they shall unite for offerings (especially of candles), for mutual assistance, for funeral services for the dead, for alms, and other deeds of piety." On the other hand, Hincmar forbids, what other Capitularies term "diabolicum" (which must be translated here by "heathenisms "), namely, feastings and drinking-bouts, because they led to drunkenness, gave occasion for unjust exactions, for sordid merriments, and inane railleries, and ended often even with quarrels, hatred, and manslaughter. If it was the priest of the Gild or any other clergyman who acted against this prohibition, he was to be degraded, but if it was a layman or a woman, he or she was to be excluded until satisfaction was given. If it became necessary to call a meeting of the brothers, as, for instance, for the arrangement of differences which might have arisen among them, they were to assemble after divine service; and after the necessary admonitions, every one who liked was to obtain from the priest a piece of consecrated bread and a goblet of wine; and then he was to go home with the blessing of God.

¹ Labbei Concilia, ed. Coleti, t. x. cap. 16. p. 4: "De confratriis, earumque conventibus, quomodo celebrari debeant.—Ut de collectis, quas geldonias vel confratrias vulgo vocant, sicut jam verbis monuinus, et nunc scriptis expresse præcipimus, tantum fiat, quantum ad auctoritatem, et utilitatem, atque rationem pertinet: ultra autem nemo, neque sacerdos, neque fidelis quisquam, in parochia nostra progredi audeat. Id est in omni obsequio religionis conjungantur: videlicet in oblatione, in luminaribus, in oblationibus mutuis, in exequiis defunctorum, in eleemosynis, et ceteris pietatis officis: it aut qui candelam offerre voluerint, sive specialiter, sive generaliter, aut ante missam, aut inter missam, antequam evangelium legatur, ad altare deferant. Oblationem autem, unam tantunmodo oblatam, et offertorium, pro se suisque omnibus conjunctis et familiaribus offerat. Si

These fraternities were spread in the Middle Ages, in great numbers, over all countries under the sway of the Roman-Catholic religion, and they exist even now in such countries. As the Gild Statutes contained in this collection—and they are but waifs and strays of large flocks—show, these brotherhoods existed in considerable numbers in every town; thus there were twelve in Norwich, as many in Lynn, in Bishop's Lynn nine, while abroad, Gallienus counts even eighty in Cologne, Melle about seventy at Lübeck, and Staphorst more than a hundred at Hamburg¹. But their objects and organizations were so identical everywhere, and remained so essentially unchanged during successive centuries, that a comparison of them in various countries and at various times could only lead to repetitions. I will therefore simply state their objects and their organization. What is described here, prevailed in all countries alike².

With regard to the objects of these Gilds, Hincmar defines them completely, when he says, "in omni obsequio religionis conjungantur," they shall unite in every exercise of religion. By this were meant, before all things, the associations for the veneration of certain religious mysteries, and in honour of saints ³. Accordingly, these Gilds were everywhere 4 under the patronage of the Holy Trinity, or of certain Saints, or of the Holy Cross, or of the Holy Sacrament, or of some other religious mystery. In honour of these patrons they stuck candles on their altars and before their images; in some statutes this appears even as the only object of the Gild⁵. Wilda⁶ narrates also how the setting up of such a candle became the origin of an entire Gild. Once, towards the end of the fourteenth century, says he, several merchants and shopmen of Flensburg were sitting drinking together, and having paid their score, six shillings (standard of Lübeck) remained over. What should be done with these, was now the question. At length they resolved to order a candle to be made, which was to burn before the image of the Virgin Mary on the altar of our Lady. This fraternity, so insignificantly begun, increased rapidly plus de vino voluerit in butticula vel canna, aut plures oblatas, aut ante missam, aut post missam, presbytero vel ministo illius tribuat, unde populus in eleemosyna et benedictione illus eulogias accipiat, vel presbyter supplementum aliquod habeat. Pastos autem et comessationes, quas divina auctoritas vetat, ubi et gravedines, et indebitæ exactiones, et turpes ac inanes lætitiæ et rixæ, sæpe etiam, siout experti sumus, usque ad homicidia, et odia, et dissensiones accidere solent, adeo penitus interdicimus, ut qui de cetero hoc agere præsumpserit, si presbyter fuerit, vel quilibet clericus, gradu privetur, si laicus, vel femina, usque ad satisfactionem separetur. Conventus autem talium confratrum, si necesse fuerit ut simul conveniant, ut si forte aliquis contra parem suun duscordiam habuerit, quem reconciliari necesse sit, et sine conventu presbyteri et ceterorum esse non possit, post peracta illa que Dei sunt, et Christianæ religioni conveniant, et post debitas admonitiones, qui voluerint eulogias a presbytero accipiant: et panem tantum frangentes, singuli singulos biberes accipiant, et nihil amplius contingere præsumant, et sic unusquisque ad sua cum benedictione domini redeat."

¹ See Hartwig, pp. 142, 153.

¹ See Wilda, p. 346.

² Compare, for what is said in the following, the Gild Statutes contained in Mr. Smith's collection, the Introduction by Miss Smith, pp. xxviii-xlii, Wilda, pp. 344-375, and Ouin-Lacroix, Histoire des anciennes Corporations d'Arts et Métiers et des Confréries religieuses de la capitale de la Normandie, Rouen, 1850, pp. 41-542.

pp. 411-542. ⁸ The modern representative of this is the march of the members of the English village Benefit-Societies to morning service at their church before the midday dinner, the cricket match and games of the afternoon, and the evening dance — F. J. F.

⁴ The reason why there is no patron saint mentioned in the case of the Gild of the Smiths of Chesterfield (see Mr. Smith's collection, p. 168), seems to me to be that this Gild does not, in the account given of it, appear any more as an independent Gild, but simply as a subdivision of the Gild of the Holy Cross of the Merchants of Chesterfield. Before it joined the latter, it had been likewise under the patronage of the Holy Cross, as 's proved by the members "worshipping before the greater cross in the nave of the church of All Saints," and by the "lights to be burnt before the cross on the days named." But after it had become a mere subdivision of a Gild under the same patronage, a special mention of the patron was no more required, and, for the sake of discriminating it from the rest, it was simply called the Gild of the Smiths.

^{*} See, for instance, p. 14 of Mr. Smith's collection. [•] Wilda, p. 347.

Ĵ 2

in members and in income; the Gild-brothers therefore resolved to adopt a regular constitution, to elect aldermen, to begin a Gild-book, &c. Besides for the setting-up of candles. the members united also for special devotions to their patrons; and amongst these Gilds must be named, above all, the fraternities of the Rosary, as those widest spread since the days of St. Dominic. Further, the Gilds got masses said in honour of their patrons, and went in solemn procession to their churches on the days of their feasts. Conventions like that between the fraternity of London Sadlers, and the neighbouring Canons of St. Martin-le-Grand. by which the Sadlers were admitted into brotherhood and partnership of masses, orisons, and other good deeds, with the canons, were common with these religious Gilds. They further obliged their members to engage in devotions and divine services for the souls of their departed brethren, and often, also, to aid pilgrims and pilgrimages 1, especially to some most revered places, as, for instance, to the Holy Land, to the tombs of the apostles Peter and Paul, or of St. James (of Compostella), to Loretto and other places.

But, as Hincmar pointed out, the "obsequium religionis" included not only devotions and orisons, but also every exercise of Christian charity, and therefore, above all things, mutual assistance of the Gild-brothers in every exigency, especially in old age, in sickness, in cases of impoverishment,---if not brought on by their own folly,-and of wrongful imprisonment, in losses by fire, water, or shipwreck, aid by loans, provision of work, and, lastly, the burial of the dead. It included, further, the assistance of the poor and sick, and the visitation and comfort of prisoners not belonging to the Gild. And, as in the Middle Ages instruction and education were entirely supplied by the Church, and were considered a religious duty, we find among the objects of religious Gilds also the aid of poor scholars, the maintenance of schools, and the payment of schoolmasters.

No Gild pursued all these objects together; in each separate Gild one object or the other predominated, and, besides it, the Gild pursued several others. But often, too, we find Gilds for the fulfilment of quite a concrete and merely local task, as, for instance. the Gild of Corpus Christi at York. I am obliged on this account to make some observations against Mr. Toulmin Smith, though I do it with extreme unwillingness; for nobody can acknowledge Mr. Smith's great merits in making this collection with greater thanks than myself, and I am most keenly alive to the fact that it becomes me, least of all, to enter into controversy against a man of such learning, especially in this place. But Mr. Smith has so strangely misconceived the character of this Gild¹, that I think it absolutely necessary to correct him.

The case with this York Gild is simply this. In all Roman-Catholic countries the consecrated host is carried every year on the day of Corpus Christi, by the priest of highest rank in the place, in solemn procession, in the towns through the streets. and in the country over the fields. This is one of the greatest feasts of the Roman-Catholic Church. To heighten its solemnity, all the pomp which the Church can command is brought together. With this intention the clergy of York founded a special Gild, of which the sole object was to provide the ceremonies and pomp of this festival. As the solemnities of one of the greatest ecclesiastical feasts were in question, it can easily be understood that those who were at the head of the Gild were priests. Moreover, the reason why the many crafts of York joined so generally in this procession, was neither "the love of show and pageant which it gratified," nor was it "the departure from the narrow spirit of the original ordinances," but simply that the taking part in this procession was considered as a profession of faith in transubstantiation. I have myself seen at Munich, the King, the Ministers, the whole body of clergy, the University, all the Trades with their banners and emblems, all the Religious Fraternities, the Schools, and even the Army, taking part in a like procession; and that at Vienna is renowned for still greater pomp.

As there were Gilds for conducting this procession, so there were also Gilds for the representation of religious plays, which were common in the Middle Ages in all countries, and which are still performed in some places, for instance, every tenth year at Oberammergau in Southern Bavaria. Such were the Gild of the Lord's Prayer at York, and the Gilds of St. Elene, of St. Mary, and of Corpus Christi, at Beverley². The performance of secular plays was also the object of some Gilds, for instance, of the Gild at Stamford 3, and of the Confrérie des Conards at Rouen 4.

¹ Mr. Ludlow's suggestion (Fortnightly Review, vol. vi., N. S., p. 399), that the assistance of pilgrims "is probably the original of what is now termed 'donation' to 'travelleis,' or 'tramps,' or sometimes simply 'tramp-money'-i.e. relief to members going in search of work," can hardly be serious. Craftsmen travelling in search of work were at least not usual in England in the fourteenth century, and perhaps even never as long as the old system of industry prevailed ; whilst a glance at some ordinances relating to the relief of pilgrims, even among the statutes of Craft-Gilds (such as, for instance, on pp. 180, 182 and others of Mr. Smith's collection) might convince Mr. Ludlow of the real nature of these pilgrims. (The 12 Richard II. cap. 3, requiring a Letter-Patent from wandering labourers, evidently refers to agricultural labourers only.) See Additional Notes, No 4.

² See pp. 140-143 of Mr. Smith's collection. ² See also Blomefield's account of the Gild of the Holy Cross at Abingdon, in his History of Norfolk, iii. p. 494.

⁸ See p. 102 of Mr. Smith's collection.

⁴ Ouin-Lacroix, p. 493.

Moreover, all objects of common interest for which now-a-days special societies and associations provide, --- for instance, the various insurance companies,-in the Middle Ages caused all who were interested in them to unite themselves to religious Gilds; the motive and the principles only were other than those of to-day, namely, Christian charity, instead of profit. Thus there were not only Gilds like the "Fraternitas ad Ædificandum Capellam St. Gertrudris "," but also those for the repair of bridges and highways². The National Life-Boat Institution of to-day would undoubtedly have been a Religious Gild in the Middle Ages; to be convinced of it one need only look at the statutes of the Gild of the Holy Trinity, Wygnale, Norfolk³. Even at the present time I know of societies similar to these Gilds among the Catholics The Roman-Catholic Bishops of Germany founded, a few years ago, the association of St Catherine all over Germany, with a great number of local branches, for the foundation of a Roman-Catholic University. Every member is bound to a minimum contribution and to certain devotions. The Bishop of Hippo and Tagaste founded, especially in France, but with branches extending to other countries, an association under the same obligations for the erection of orphan-houses in Africa; and similar to these there exists still now an infinite number of associations in the Roman-Catholic Church. Like these last-n med examples of to-day, the mediæval Gilds always connected special devotions and good deeds with the pursuit of their principal object.

When the Frith-Gilds originated, after the family had ceased to afford its members necessary protection, they also, as well as the Craft-Gilds in later times, connected with the pursuit of their political and industrial objects certain devotions and good deeds; and it has therefore been justly observed, "that it was not till the times subsequent to the Reformation that these fraternities could be regarded as strictly secular." These religious provisions in all kinds of Gilds were probably the reason why Mr. Toulmin Smith has given the name of Social Gilds to those which provide for other common interests besides the political and industrial ones, instead of terming them "Religious Gilds." as was usual till now. His name for them is undoubtedly a just one, but it comprehends the political and industrial Gilds as much as the one used hitherto; for the bases on which these Gilds rested were the same social principles as those by which the rest were guided. It distinguishes the two kinds even less; for though there were religious provisions in the political and industrial Gilds, yet these were always only of less importance, whilst the other Gilds pursued regularly as principal objects things, the provision for which was considered in the Middle Ages as an essential religious duty and task of the Church¹. Though I acknowledge the justness of Mr. Smith's appellation, I prefer the one which Madox uses, and which is also in use in all other countries.

¹ Wilda, p. 349. ² See p. 249 of Mr. Smith's collection. ³ See p. 110, ibid.

People of all ranks took part in these Religious Gilds. Now and then, however, people out of a certain class were not to be admitted². The same person might take part in several religious Gilds. The members had often a special livery, as is still now the case with some fraternities at Rome. These liveries were worn on their ecclesiastical festivals, and probably also at the great feastings and drinking-bouts which were always connected with them. Notwithstanding all the prohibitions against the latter, since the days of Hincmar, they seem to have so pushed themselves into the foreground, that sometimes special references were needed in the Gild statutes, that "not eating and drinking, but mutual assistance and justice were the principal objects of the Gild 3."

The expenses to be defrayed for attaining the objects of the Gild were provided for by the entrance-fees, the contributions, the gifts and the legacies of members. The contributions were sometimes fixed, but sometimes, especially in earlier times, they varied according to the wants of the Gild. The account of the Gild of the Smiths at Chesterfield is the only one in which there are no contributions mentioned 4 ; it had its own property, from which all its expenses were to be defrayed; it had, however, to pay with bankruptcy for this deviation from Gild principles. The organization of the Religious (or Social) Gilds was the same as that of all Gilds up to the time of our modern Trade-Unions: a meeting, and officers elected in it, with fines for not accepting office when chosen to it. Often the members had, on their entrance, to declare by oath that they would fulfil their obligations. Persons of ill repute were not to be admitted; and members were to be excluded for misconduct. Moreover, the same rules are to be found with regard to proper behaviour and decent dress at the Gild-meetings, as recur in all kinds of Gilds to our day. Disputes among members were to be decided by the Gild. The disclosing of the affairs of the Gild was to be severely punished. In those places in which the Gild had no special hall, its meetings were often held in the Town-hall¹. The fraternities must accordingly have enjoyed high consideration.

¹ As I discussed this subject a little with Mr. Toulmin Smith,—I think we settled the name together,—I may say that he looked at the main object of the Gilds he was dealing with, those of A.D. 1389; and as that was unquestionably social, like that of our modern Benefit-Societies, he gave these Gilds their right name. To have called them "Religious," because of their ornament of a saint's name, would have seemed to him and me a monstrous contradiction, in the days of Chaucer and Wycliffe, of William who had the Vision of Piers the Plowman, and others who have left us records of what Romanism, with its monks and friars, practically then was in England.—F. J. FURNIVALL. See Additional Notes, No. 2.

² See p. 179 of Mr. Smith's collection. See also Wilda, p. 361.

³ See Wilds, p. 33. ⁴ p. 168 sqq. of Mr. Smith's collection.

As to the Gilds among the clergy, the Capitularies of Hincmar-which, as said above, related to them ²-contain ordinances against the extravagances of the priests at funeral meals, and at the feastings which used to follow their meetings, especially those of the priests of a deanery (or diaconasia), on the first of each month. No priest was to get drunk at them, nor was he to empty goblets to the health of saints or of the soul of the deceased; nor was he to force others to drink, nor get drunk himself at the desire of others. The priests were not to burst out into indecent noise or roaring laughter; they were not to sing vain songs nor tell inane jokes; nor were they to allow scandalous performances of bears or female dancers to be made before them, nor delight in other mummeries, "because this was heathenish, and forbidden by Canon law." Nor were they on every occasion to provoke each other, or anybody else, to passion and quarrels, and still less to fighting and murder; nor was he who was provoked to assail at once his provoker. On the contrary, the priests were to breakfast with honesty and fear of God; holy stories and admonitions were to be read, and hymns sung, and every one was to go home in good time. Exactly the same ordinances are contained in the Capitularies of Bishop Walter of Orleans³, which likewise bear date in the year 858.

These passages do not, however, contain anything from which the existence of a Gild amongst these priests can be inferred; for the extravagances mentioned might be connected with any kind of meeting. In later times, however, the elergymen assembled on the first day of each month to deliberate on their interests, were united in special fraternities, which, from their meeting-day on the Kalends of each month, were called "Gilds of the Kalenders." It is generally inferred from this, that probably even in Hincmar's time the priests bound each other by mutual agreement to pray for their salvation, and to observe certain rules with respect to their meetings; and these meetings are accordingly believed to have been Gild-meetings of the clergy. This is nothing but a mere conjecture, it is true. But it is also true that, in later time, the members of the Gilds of the Kalenders used to assemble on the Kalends of each month for divine service, for deliberation on their interests, and for common meals, like the priests in the time of Hincmar. In a deed of the fifteenth century they are still called "fratres in calendis missas celebrantes 1." In any case, therefore, the name "Gilds of the Kalenders" seems to be derived from these monthly meetings.

In later times the objects of these Gilds were extended to the exercise of any good works, especially towards the Gild-brothers themselves,—as for instance, the distribution of loaves among them,—and also to the assistance of the poor, the furnishing of church-attire; and these Gilds, as is shown by the Statutes of the Gilds of the Kalenders at Bristol², employed themselves even in the keeping of old records, and in the maintenance of schools. Now and then the Statutes of these Gilds remind their members expressly, that their fraternity was erected "non solum pro commodis præsentibus, et lucris temporalibus inhiandis, sed magis pro beneficiis celestibus et perpetuis ³;" and especially with regard to the great feastings of these Gilds, such admonitions may not have been out of place. Most of the Statutes of the Gilds of Kalenders have, for the regulation of their feasts, a special bill of fare, as an appendix ⁴. In some Gilds there were special stewards to provide for these meals, and then the expenses were defrayed by common contributions; in others, some of the brethren and sisters, each in their turn, had to prepare the meal from their own means.

These fraternities existed originally only among the clergy. In later times laymen too took part in them; and then the only distinction of these Gilds from the other religious fraternities was, that the clergy prevailed in them, whilst proportionally only few clergymen belonged to the others, and were even sometimes expressly excluded from all offices⁵. The only account of a Gild of Kalenders contained in the present collection of Mr. Smith, that of the Gild of the Kalenders of Bristol, belongs to this later time. Often the number of members was limited in these Gilds, sometimes to the number of the twelve apostles, sometimes to twenty-four. In this case the number of lay members was always fixed in proportion to that of the clerical members. Thus the Gild of St. Canute at Flensburg consisted,

¹ See Wilda, p. 348.

² Labbei Concilia, ed. Coleti, t. x. cap. 14, p. 4: "Quomodo in conviviis defunctorum, aliarumve collectarum gerere se debeant." Cap. 15: "Quid cavendum sit presbyteris, quando per Kalendas inter se conveniunt."

³ Ibid. cap. 17, p. 73: "Quomodo in consortiis et conviviis gerere se debeant."

¹ Wilda, p. 352. ² See p. 287 of Mr. Smith's collection ⁵ See p. 264 of Mr. Smith's collection.

according to its Statutes from the year 1382, of twenty-four priests; but whenever this number could not be filled up, laymen might be admitted, but only to the number of eight, at the outside. The wives of laymen were, however, excluded from the meetings till the year 1422. In this year, the Gild-book narrates, the ecclesiastical brothers were moved by the prayers of the lay brothers, repeated for several years, to grant the admission of their wives to the meals after the general meetings. There was, however, to be one condition: the wife of the lay brother, whose turn it was, was obliged to provide the meal, and to wait at table. The mayor and his wife were to have the first turn¹.

The laymen, however, always remained in a subordinate position. At the meals they had seats separate from those of the priests, probably because the latter talked over their affairs at table,-and in the deliberations the laymen had no vote. As among the other Religious Gilds, there were special ones for various classes and ranks, so there existed also Gilds for the higher and the lower clergy, the so-called Major and Minor Gilds of the Kalenders. One Gild of Kalenders existed in almost every town; in the larger towns even more. The organization of the Gild of Kalenders was the same as in other Gilds. Often the president was called Dean -perhaps a remnant of the origin of these Gilds.-Often, too, the Gilds of the Kalenders had halls like the other Gilds; and, as in the lay Gilds, the brothers of the ecclesiastical Gilds used to go there daily "to beer and to wine."

The Reformation shook the whole system of Gilds to its foundation; and this was especially the case with the Religious Gilds of the laity, and the Gilds of the Kalenders. "In England," says Madox 2, " these Religious Gilds have been judged to be founded in superstition;" and it was the same in all countries in which the Reformation gained ground. The Gilds were therefore abolished in all Protestant countries; but not on the Continent as in England, in favour of the private purse of the King and his courtiers³; on the contrary, we see in Northern Germany and in Denmark, the property and income of these Gilds delivered everywhere, according to the intention of the founders, to the common treasure for the poor, to poor-houses, hospitals, and schools⁴. It is very interesting to see that the regular conventions of priests are found in Denmark even in the sixteenth century, after the introduction of the Reformation 5. They were still called by the same name, "Gilds of the Kalenders," though they were held no more every month, but only once (or several times) a year. The synod at Rothschild ordered, that they should also take place in those provostships in which they had not existed till then, that the ministers might remain united in doctrine and ceremony. Nobody was, however, to be burdened with the preparation of a meal; and no stranger to the place, and no foreigner, was to be admitted a member of the Gild. The conclusion of another synod says: "When a priest goes to the meeting, he shall not be armed. During dinner they shall abstain from scandalous talk, drunkenness, and unseemly disputes; four dishes and no more are to be served; and towards evening everybody is to go home." A former synod, of the year 1562, had already forbidden the abuse of prolonging these conventions for two or three days. Pontoppidan¹ describes these conventions as they took place in the age after the Reformation, as follows: "The priests, together with their wives, heard a sermon in the church of the brother whose turn it was; they then proceeded round the altar, deposited there an offering on behalf of the poor scholars of the next town; the conclusions and proceedings of the foregoing provincial synod were then recited, and their other affairs talked over and put in order. After this they, together with their whole families, went to the parsonage, where they indulged a little at dinner, 'in bona charitate' sang certain songs at meals, and made themselves merry in other wise; but sometimes quarrelled also scandalously, and made a great uproar." The resemblance of the synodal precepts mentioned above on this page to those which Hincmar of Rheims gave earlier in the ninth century to the "presbyteris, qui per calendas conveniunt" is striking. It shows clearly that after so many centuries these meetings were still held in the same way, and that the same abuses $\overline{2}$ had to be opposed.

When the zeal against everything connected with Catholicism, inflamed by the Reformation³, had cooled down a little, the old

 2 In the year 1598, a parson at Ewerdrup had to prepare the meal at the meeting of the Kalenders. What was wasted there is to be found minutely in Pontoppidan, Ann. Ercl. ii. p. 4° . There were consumed, among other things, one head of cattle (at the price of 18 marks), six lambs (12 marks), two fat swine (20 marks), seven geese (7 marks), ten pairs of fowls (3 marks 12 shillings), three tuns of beer of Rostock (33 marks), and two tuns of homebrewed beer (10 marks). The whole meal cost 156 marks 1 shilling.

³ Compare excellent Parson Harrison: "Our holie and festivall daies are verie well reduced also vnto a lesse number; for whereas (not long since) we had vnder the pope foure score and fifteene, called festivall, and thirtie Profesti, beside the sundaies, they are all brought vnto seauen and twentie: and with them the superfluous numbers of idle wakes, GUILDS, FRATERNITIES, church-ales, helpe ales, and soule-ales, called also dirge-ales, with the heathenish rioting at bride-ales, are

² Firma Burgi, p 27.

¹ Wilda, p. 359. ² Firma Burgi, p. 27. ³ By Act 37 Henry VIII. cap. 4, and Act 1 Edw. VI. cap. 14. See Miss Lucy Toulmin Smith's Introduction, p xlii.

⁴ Wilda, pp. 372, 373.

⁵ Ibid. p. 353.

¹ Pontoppidan, Ann Eccl. Dan. iii. p. 47.

associates felt painfully the want of their former convivial gatherings. Gilds were therefore re-established for social purposes, and from this probably originated our clubs and casinos of to-day. Of the essential nature of the old Gilds there is, however, no other trace to be found in these modern representatives.

The great analogy between the modern Friendly Societies and the old Religious or Social Gilds, has been already pointed out by Sir Frederick Eden¹. He also pronounces the opinion, that "notwithstanding the unjustifiable confiscation of the property of the Gilds under Henry VIII. and Edward VI., there is every reason to suppose that private associations, on a more contracted scale than the ancient Gilds, continued to exist in various parts of England," and "that it is extremely probable, that many of these Societies [i.e. the Gilds], even after the confiscation of their lands at the dissolution, continued their stated meetings in the common room, or hall, for the purposes either of charity, or of conviviality 2." An able article in the Quarterly Review for October, 1864, on "Workmen's Benefit Societies" (p. 318), refers also to their analogy with the Gilds. The latest comparison between both has been drawn, with reference to the Gild-statutes contained in Mr. Toulmin Smith's collection, by Mr. J. M. Ludlow, in the Fortnightly Review for October, 1869.

well diminished and laid aside."—Harrison's Description of England, A.D. 1577-87, in Holinshed, vol. i. p. 138, col. 2. (On Wakes and Church-ales, see Stubbes's Anatomie of Abuses, pp. 177, 173 of the 1836 reprint of the fifth edition.)—F. J. F. ¹ State of the Poor, vol. i. ch. iii. ² Ibid. p. 597.

III. THE GILD-MERCHANTS.

THOSE sworn fraternities for the protection of right, and the preservation of liberty, of which mention has already been made in Part I., arose independently of the towns. Yet in the towns, the necessity of protecting liberty, property, and trade, against the violence of neighbouring nobles, the arbitrary aggressions of the bishops or the burgrave, or the bold onsets of robbers, or-as in the case of towns which sprang from the settlements of traders in foreign countries-against the onslaughts of the surrounding and often still barbarian inhabitants, -often too the feeling of insecurity within the towns themselves,-must have specially moved the small freemen to the formation of the societies above referred to. These inhabitants of the towns were old free landed proprietors; partly of the neighbouring estates, but chiefly of land within the territory of the towns themselves. Most of them carried on trade; some probably also handicrafts. But the possession of town-land is the distinguishing mark of these earliest burghers. To this possession alone was full citizenship everywhere attached in the first movements of civic life. Hence, whilst the dangers just mentioned as threatening liberty and property made it necessary to provide means of protection, and whilst the possession of soil in the same small territory-indeed, within the walls of the same town,-together with the similarity of occupations, increased the community of interests, close vicinity of residence made easy the conclusion of alliances. Naturally therefore, the whole body of full citizens, that is, of the possessors of portions of the townlands of a certain value, the "civitas," united itself everywhere into one Gild, "convivium conjuratum;" the citizens and the Gild became identical; and what was Gild-law became the law of the town.

Such Gilds existed in England even in Anglo-Saxon times, as the formerly-mentioned Gilds of Dover, of the Thanes at Canterbury, as well as perhaps the Gild-Merchant at London ¹, together with many others, of which only later accounts are extant. Such also were the Gild-Merchant of York¹, the great Gild of St. John at Beverley, of the Hanshouse of Beverley, as well as that of the Blessed Mary of Chesterfield, though these were of a somewhat later period . The Old Usages of Winchester, too, contain many intimations of a former relationship of this kind between the Gild of Merchants there and the whole body of the citizens³; and the same is true of the Ordinances of Worcester⁴. One of the documents relating to these Gilds contained in this volume, contains the grants of liberties, and of a Gild, to the townsmen of Beverley, similar to the grant of civic constitutions to several German towns,-as, for example to Lübeck, according to the municipal laws of Soest, to Freiburg according to those of Cologne⁵,-and to the grant of communal rights to the people of Rheims, "ad modum communiæ Laudunensis 6" (Laon), by Louis VII. of France. By this document, on p. 151 below, Thuistan, Archbishop of York, grants to the townsmen of Beverley, a Gild, and "all liberties, with the same laws that the men of York have in their city." King Henry I., as well as Thurstan's successors, confirmed this Beverley grant; and there is even a document, stating its confirmation by Pope Lucius III. From this kind of Gild sprang, in England, the method of recognizing the citizens as an independent body, by confirming their Gild 7.

¹ Wilda, p. 244; Firma Burgi, p. 26.

The same relationship between the Gild and the town community existed in France. In Paris, the government of the town lay in the hands of the mercatores aqua, who formed the municipal⁸ body. In the eleventh and twelfth centuries, especially in the North of France, appear unions of the free

³ Cf. ibid. p. 357. The Usages date from a time in which the commonalty of Winchester enjoyed already a share in the government of the town. Yet the members of the old Gild of Merchants appear still as its governors; it is from amongst them ("the meste gode men,"-an expression which occurs frequently also in Germany and Belgium for the patrician families) that the Council of the Mayor, and the twenty-four sworn men, are taken ; and these exercise a vast influence at the election of the Mayor, and on other occasions. (Cf. English Gilds, p. 349.) ⁴ English Gilds, p 369

⁶ Raynouard, Histoire du Droit Municipal en France, tom. ii. livre iv. ch. i. § 10 (Paris, 1820).

⁷ Madox, Firma Burgi, p. 27: "Peradventure, from these Secular Gilds, or in imitation of them, sprang the method or practice of gildating and embodying whole towns."

xev

townsmen, in order to protect themselves against the oppressions of the powerful, and the better to defend their rights¹. So, in 1070, the citizens of Mans established a sworn confederacy, which they called *commune*², in order to oppose the oppressions of Godfrey of Mayenne. The people of Cambrai did the same against their bishop in 1076, during his absence; and as he, on his return, refused to recognize their confederacy, they shut the gates of the town against him. An affair of the same kind had taken place there already in 9.573. These instances might be multiplied. The numerous grants of communal rights to French towns from the eleventh to the thirteenth century, are nothing but the recognition by the king of such Frith-Gilds as had been previously in existence for a longer or shorter period. Kings, even when they did not favour Gilds upon their own demesnes, generally did so upon those of the nobility, whose power they wished to break⁴. But everywhere then, as in later times upon the formation of trade-unions, many transitory confederations, many unsuccessful attempts, and a great expenditure of courage, magnanimity and energy, preceded the permanent establishment of the communes.

Thus, in 1188, Count Philip of Flanders confirmed to the town of Aire in Artois, its laws and customs, such as his predecessors had already granted and recognized to the citizens, in order to secure them from the attacks of "wicked men ⁵." These customs were those of the Amicitia, the Gild of citizens, which had been established by them probably even before the time of their first recognition, for protection against attacks from without, and for securing peace within. What the Amicitia was for Aire, the so-called Vroedscapen were for the towns of the Netherlands⁶, the Hezlagh for Sleswig⁷, and apparently the St. Canute-Gild for Flensburg⁸. There are hardly any records bearing reference to Gilds in Germany in the tenth and eleventh centuries; probably because they had disappeared from public notice in consequence of the measures taken against them by princes and bishops; yet the relations existing at a later period between the "highest Gild" and the town, leaves no doubt that

³ Cf. Moke, Mœurs, Usages, Fêtes et Solennités des Belges, Bruxelles, ii. p. 6.

⁴ Raynouard, tom. ii. livre iv. ch. 7, 8; Wilda, p. 152.

⁵ D'Achery, Spicilegium (ed. Paris, 1723), tom. iii. p. 553: "Quas ob injurias hominum perversorum propulsandas . . . eis indulserunt." See also Wilda, pp. 147-151. ⁶ Wilda, p. 151.

7 Ibid. pp. 77, 152-158. * Ibid. p. 158, &c.

¹ Wilda, p. 250.

² English Gilds, pp. 151 and 165. (By the quotation English Gilds is always meant the Statutes contained in Mr. Toulmin Smith's collection.)

⁵ Cf. Wilda, p. 221, &c., and p. 231, &c.

⁸ Raynouard, tom. ii. livre iv. ch. i. § 9. See also Wilda, pp. 239-244.

¹ See the account of the grounds of ratification in the Charters of the French Kings. Raynouard, tom. ii. livre iv. ch. 7.

² In Belgium and Germany it was only the unions of the lower classes which were called communes.

xevii

here too the Gild was the germ of the town-constitutions¹. "But the enigma, that many towns in France (as even Paris, and almost in like manner in England, London) had municipal constitutions. without such a commune or Gild ever having been granted to them. finds its solution in the fact, that the Gilds existed there before German municipalism had come into being, and that the latter had developed itself unnoticed out of the former²." This may also be said of the great towns of Flanders³. Of London, more anon⁴.

The earliest notice of such a Town-Gild upon the Continent, of that in Sleswig, contains a noble instance of a daring fulfilment of the duties imposed upon the Gild-brothers. Magnus, the son of King Nicholas of Denmark, had slain the Duke Canute Lavard, the Alderman and protector of the Sleswig Gild. When King Nicholas, in 1130, came to Hetheby (that is, Sleswig), his followers advised him (as an old Danish chronicle relates) not to enter the town, for the townsmen put in force the law with extreme severity within their Gild, called Hezlagh, and did not suffer any one to remain unpunished who had killed or even injured one of their brethren. But the king despised the warning, saying, "What should I fear from these tanners (pelipers) and shoemakers?" Scarcely, however, had he entered the town, when the gates were closed, and at the sound of the Gild-bell the citizens mustered, seized upon the king, and killed him, with all who tried to defend him⁵. Thus, even at the beginning of the twelfth century, the Gilds enjoyed in Denmark such respect, that the lord of the land, Duke Canute, was pleased to become their Alderman: and they had such power that they could venture to revenge, even upon a king, any violation of the law committed on a member of their great family.

The Sleswig Gild was called Hezlagh, that is, either sworn Gild, convivium conjuratum, or highest Gild, summum convivium 6. If the latter, other Gilds must have existed besides it. Although the body of citizens and the Gild originally included the same persons, yet the quality of being a full-citizen did not of itself include the fellowship of the Sworn-Gild; for this a special acceptance was required. Now, as the towns flourished and increased in well-being, material differences in property must have arisen among the full-citizens - partly through the failure of individuals in the race for wealth, partly through the settlement of new poor families in the town-which could not but have a lowering effect on their occupations⁷. This led to closing the old Gild which hitherto had existed alone in a town; by the side of which others then formed themselves with the same or similar ends. But the oldest Gild maintained a very natural precedence over the others, and was even called the "higher" or "highest 1 Gild." Gradually, some system of hereditary transmission of the freedom of the Gild came into existence de facto, in that the son generally entered the fraternity to which his father belonged : the sons of Gild-brothers were naturally more willingly accepted than other new members, and, later on, the conditions of entry were rendered more easy for them. Thus originated a certain circle of families which from generation to generation belonged to the highest Gild, and continuously constituted its stock. The oldest Gild remained no longer equivalent to the whole body of citizens; the Full-burghers Gild became the Old-burghers Gild, and according to place and time its development became more or less aristocratic².

In Sleswig, when King Nicholas was slain there in 1130, the Gild still included the whole body of the citizens. The Chronicle at least speaks of the citizens in general, who mustered at the call of the Gild-bell (the town-bell)³. On the other hand, in Germany, at a somewhat later period, the government of the town is everywhere found in the hands of a "highest Gild." In Cologne the Richerzechheit, or Gild of the rich, summum convivium, occupied the municipal offices. In the eleventh century, during the struggle of the Cologne people against their bishop, Hanno, there was still only one Gild, which included the whole of the citizens :---at least, there is no mention of patrician families. But by the end of the twelfth century this Gild had become a summum convivium⁴. The government of the town rested exclusively with a "patrician-aristocracy," the Richerzechheit, which had already grown insolent, exercised an oppressive sway, and looked upon power as a lucrative monopoly. This led, in the thirteenth century, to violent revolts of the craftsmen, particularly the weavers, who were especially thriving there. They were no longer willing to bear alone the burdens of the Commonwealth, but desired a share in the administration, at least in what concerned the management of the city household, and especially as the "Old-burghers" contributed least to the payment of the taxes. Several times, indeed, we see the weavers allied with the bishops of Cologne against the

¹ Wilda, p. 170. Compare also Arnold's Verfussungs Geschichte der deutschen Revestacelte, 1854, i. p. 401. ² Wilda, p. 152. ³ Moke, i. 191. ⁴ See pp. xcviii, xcix of this work.

⁵ Wilda, p. 71. ⁶ Ibid. p. 72. ⁷ Arnold, ii. p. 208 ; Moke, i. p. 179, ii. 107.

¹ Wilda, p. 170, quotes the Statutes of Dortmund: "Si vero percussor est confrater maioris gylde nostræ amam vini superaddat burgensibus pro emenda." The members of the highest Gild enjoyed also the privilege of a less number of sworn brethren being required. Cf. Wilda, pp. 75-86. ² Cf Wilda, pp. 77, 78; Arnold, vol. i p. 246.

⁴ See also Arnold, vol. i. p. 401 &c.

³ Wilda, p. 77.

ruling families. The like often happened in those days-as for example, at Liège, Huy, and Bâle-and also in the earlier alliances of the French communes with the kings against the nobility, as well as in the modern alliances between the working-classes and Tories, or Cæsars. But the men of Cologne did not succeed in their object, in the overthrow of the patricians, until the second half of the fourteenth century. Contemporary with the Richerzechheit there existed in the town other Gilds of merchants; but information as to their participation in the government of the town is wanting 1. Traces of the same or some similar development are to be found in Spire, Strasburg, Frankfort-on-Main, as well as in Freiburg and Lübeck, and in several other towns². The frequently recurring repetitions, by the town-hating Hohenstauffen. of Charlemagne's prohibition of conjurations (societies bound by mutual oaths), are shown by this to have been nothing but abortive attempts to annihilate the Gilds, whose existence was peremptorily required by the circumstances of the time. These prohibitions however affected the highest Gilds less than the others; at least, Frederick II.'s prohibition of the Gilds of Goslar in A.D. 1219, specially excepts the Gild of Coiners³, which in the free towns was regularly identical with the highest Gild, as in Cologne, Spire⁴, and other places.

In England, where the Gilds were far in advance of those of any other country, there were highest Gilds of the kind described, even in Anglo-Saxon times. There, according to Lappenberg⁵, the landed proprietors on or near whose estates the towns were built, for a long time exercised great influence in them, and constituted their aristocracy. Thus, in Canterbury, the condition of becoming an alderman was the possession of an alienable estate (soca), the possessors of which were united with other landed proprietors to the there-existing old Gild of the Thanes. But as there were at Canterbury two other Gilds besides, this Gild of the Thanes was probably the summum convivium of that city 6.

With a much higher degree of development we have however to deal, as I believe, in the before-mentioned union of the Frith-Gilds of London, the like of which recurs at a later period at Berwick-upon-Tweed, and in a less degree of perfection in the German towns. The fact of London preceding other places in this development, presents no difficulty, since England must be regarded as the birthplace of Gilds 6, and London perhaps as their cradle. At least there is documentary evidence that the constitution of the City was based upon a Gild; and it served as a model for other English towns'i. According to the Judicia Civitatis Lundonia of the time of King Athelstan, the Frith-Gilds of London united to form one Gild that they might carry out their aims the more vigorously. This united Gild governed the town; as is proved by the fact that their regulations bound even non-members. The occasion of this union was, perhaps, that here, as afterwards in other places, other Gilds had gradually formed by the side of the original sole Gild, and rivalries between the old and the new prejudiced the attainment of the aim of the Gilds-the protection of freedom and of right. Possibly the English Knighten Gild was this original one. According to Madox², the alderman of the Knighten Gild was the alderman of the Merchant Gild of the City. Nor is our conjecture contradicted by Stow's statement 3 as to the date of the origin of this Gild; for this was probably only a sanction for the Gild's possession of landed property which it had received from King Edgar. It would not of course require royal permission to come into existence. The Knighten Gild had possession and jurisdiction both within and without the City, and its lands afterwards formed a quarter of London, whose name "Portsoken" shows also that it was formed from a territory situated originally without the city gates 4. It was thus probably a Gild like that of the Thanes of Canterbury.

A similar union took place three centuries later at Berwickupon-Tweed. In the years 1283 and 1284 the townsmen of Berwick agreed upon the statutes 5 of a single united Gild : " that where many bodies are found side by side in one place, they may become one, and have one will, and, in the dealings of one toward another, have a strong and hearty love." Article I. therefore provides that "all separate Gilds heretofore existing in the borough shall be brought to an end," and that "no other Gild shall be allowed in the borough." All formerly existing Gilds were to hand over to this one Gild the goods rightfully belonging to them, and "all shall be as members having one head; one in counsel, one body strong and friendly." The way in which this statute was drawn up shows clearly that "citizen" and "Gild-brother" were considered identical. It also contains a series of regulations concerning the administration of the

¹ Wilda, pp. 176-194, 235 &c. 257 &c.; Arnold, vol. i. pp. 418, 419, 425, ² Wilda, pp 194-228, 231. 433. ³ Wilda, p. 169. ³ Lappenberg, vol. i. pp. 610-612.

⁴ Ibid. p. 195. ⁶ See Additional Notes, No. 1.

¹ Wilda, p. 248. See also Hullman, Stadtewesen, vol. iii. p. 73.

² Firma Burgi, p. 30.

³ Stow's Survey of London (ed. 1720), bk. ii. p. 3 &c.

⁴ Lappenberg, vol. i. p. 614; cf. also Wilda, p. 247.

⁵ English Gilds, p. 338, &c.

town, the police of the markets, and various other points of municipal interest¹. The words of the preamble and of the first article show that, before the union of the various Gilds, rivalries detrimental to the body of the citizens had sprung up. The succeeding articles make it clear that only the better inhabitants, the merchants, were Gild-brethren and citizens²: and several of the articles point out that at least one of the consolidated Gilds had been a Frith-Gild3, which originally coincided with the whole body of citizens⁴. It may be that this first Gild included -as was the case in Canterbury-the old families, the original possessors of the soil in and around the town, who either then or afterwards carried on trade; or that it acquired with the growth of the town an aristocratic family character, as was the case in many German towns; or that it limited, for other reasons, the number of its members. Then new Gilds arose, whose members were but little, or not at all, behind those of the first, either in rank, social consideration, or wealth, and who therefore strove for an equal share in the government of the town. This led, in Berwick, to the above-noticed amalgamation of the Gilds, and in the German cities to a participation in the Town-Councils. Thus it was with Spire and Frankfort; thus also with Lübeck and Strasburg, and probably also with Cologne. In London this process was going on perhaps as early as the tenth century. The admission of these new Gilds formed the transition from the Gild constitution of the town to that of the "commune," which was often further developed under violent storms, when the patricians withstood the ever-increasing struggles for power of those inhabitants who were excluded from political rights. The history of the German and Belgian towns furnishes abundant proof of this being the case.

A peculiar union of Gilds must be inferred from an article in the Gild-Statutes of Malmoe in Denmark⁵. According to this article a confederation existed among the Gilds of various places, and had general assemblies of the Gild-brothers at Skanör. Perhaps its condition was analogous to that of the Flemish Han-e, or of the confederacies of the German towns, or of Edinburgh, Stirling, Berwick, and Roxburgh, united to a general Scottish Trade-Gild. It reminds one also strongly of the organization of the English Trade-Unions at the time of their change from local into national societies, when they united a great number of towns all over the country.

It may not be out of place here to dwell for a moment on the confederations among the German towns in the thirteenth century which I have just mentioned. They, too, originated from circumstances similar to those which called forth the first Frith-Gilds; they were emanations from the same spirit, were founded on the same principles, and had rules similar to theirs; they were Gilds with corporations as members. The most important among these unions was that of the Rhenish towns. At the time of the interregnum, that is, at the very moment when Germany was left utterly without a ruler, when there was no power to check the princes in the unlimited extension of their rights, when they levied tolls at their pleasure, and ground the poor to the bone by exorbitant taxes; when knights and nobles lived by highway robbery, waylaid streets and passes, and plundered and murdered the merchants; when the strong oppressed the weak, unpunished, and might was right; - in that classical age of clublaw, when there was no supreme power in the empire, the union of the Rhenish towns stept for a time into its place. This union was no mere offensive and defensive alliance; its object was the maintenance of an entire system of order and law, and of the authority of the Empire. It forced even princes and nobles to join it. Like the Gild-brothers of Cambridge, the towns entered upon mutual obligations by oath; and the measures which they adopted for the protection of their members, and for the chastisement of the breakers of their peace, were similar to the Cambridge ones. A special clause insured common protection to the poor and little as well as to the mighty and great, whether they were lay or cleric, Christian or Jew 1.

A short examination of the Statutes of the Town-Gilds will justify our claim for these confederations of towns to be shoots from the same root, fruits from the same tree, and higher stages of the same development from which the Frith-Gilds sprang. From the time when these Frith-Gilds stood at the head of the towns, their Statutes show, without a particle of change, the essential nature of the Gilds as disclosed by the Gild-Statutes of Cambridge. These Gilds appear as an enlarged great family, whose object is to afford such assistance to their members in all circumstances of life as one brother might expect from another, and consequently, above all things, protection against the unbridled arbitrariness of the mighty, whether exercised by violence, or attempted at law by means of numerous friends as compurgators. The Gilds do not appear however as associations for instituting a new law, but for maintaining the laws already existing, for supplementing a system of order as yet defective and only in course of development, and for guarding in common against the dangers attending a weak government.

¹ See Arnold, vol. ii. p. 65 sqq. ; Barthold, Geschichte der deutschen Städte und des deutschen Bürgerthums, vol. ii. p. 200 sqq. Leipzig, 1850.

¹ Articles 2, 15, 16, 19 22, 23, 24, 26, 27, 28, 29, also 30; further 33, 34, 35, 40, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46. English Gilds, p. 338, &c. ² Articles 18, 25 (as to the last see p. cvii), 20, 21, 30, and others.

³ Articles 12, 13, 31, 32. ⁴ Cf. Article 14. ⁵ Wilda, p. 103: "Qui vero in aliquo convivio contumax inventus fuerit vel satisfacere noluerit, si legitime citatus fuerit ad synodum generalem in Skanör, si ibidem respondere contemserit, ex tunc a dicto convivio excludatur." The drawing-up of this statute took place towards the end of the thirteenth century. See Wilda, p. 115.

The most detail-giving Statutes of Frith-Gilds which any country can show, are the Danish¹. The following statements² rest mainly on their Ordinances :---

If a Gild-brother has been slain by a stranger, the Gild appears as an ally of his relations for taking revenge, or for obtaining the wergild or blood money. But if a Gild-brother has slain a stranger, the Gild assists him in the atonement he must make for the manslaughter, by means of the wergild; or in his escape, if he has been outlawed for the crime. Even if one Gild-brother kills another, the case is chiefly considered as a matter for the family of the slain; and, having made atonement to it, the culprit may remain a member of the fraternity. Only in the case of malicious and wilful murder was he expelled as a worthless man (niding), and left to the mercy (that is, vengeance) of his victim's family. The Gild-brothers also rendered each other such assistance as was sanctioned by the laws and customs of the time, in prosecuting and supporting their rights in courts of law. But it was everywhere the first principle of the Gild to assist him only who had justice on his side. How strictly this principle was observed may be inferred from the universal esteem enjoyed by the Gildbrothers, so that their evidence was considered specially credible; and wherever twelve persons were required as jurors or compurgators, half the number of Gild-brothers, or even less, were deemed sufficient.

To maintain and carry out their Ordinances, the Gild required a special jurisdiction; and, in consequence of the necessary distrust by the citizens of that time of the tribunals of their masters, it was natural that quarrels of all kinds which arose between members after their admission were brought within the reach of the Gild. Quarrels among members only came, as a rule, within the jurisdiction of the association; and it was only in consequence of the peculiar relation of some Gilds to the town that disputes between non-members had also to submit to the Gild. The limits of this jurisdiction varied according to time and place; but it was everywhere the rule that Gild-brothers, before going into the law-court, had to bring their case before the Gild for the sake of attempting, at least, reconciliation between them. But the Gild never assumed a right over the life and limbs of its members; compensation only, and fines, were used for punishments, the highest penalty being expulsion.

The same regulations as the Religious Gilds had with regard to helping Gild-brothers in every need, are to be found in the Frith-Gilds. On this point the Statutes of the Gilds of all countries are almost identical. If a brother falls into poverty, if he incurs losses by fire or shipwreck, if illness or mutilation renders him unable to work, the brothers contribute to his assisttance. If a brother finds another in danger of life on sea or in captivity, he is bound to rescue him, even at the sacrifice of a part of his own goods; for which, however, he receives compensation from the brother assisted, or from the community. English Gild-Statutes frequently mention loans to be given to brothers carrying on trade, often with no other condition than the repayment of it when he should no longer need it. The sick brother found in his Gild aid and attendance; the dead was buried¹; for his soul prayers were offered, and services performed; and not unfrequently the Gild gave a dowry to his poor orphan daughter. The numerous provisions as to the poor, as to pilgrims, and other helpless people, in the Statutes of English Gilds, prove that nonmembers in want found help from them as well.

The regulations as to the payment of chaplains of the Gild, as to common service and prayers, as well as to common feastings, were equally general : and everywhere fines recur equally for the infringement of the agreed-to Ordinances, for unseemly behaviour, and for offending of members.

There was an alderman at the head of the Gild, and often stewards by his side as assistants. Other officials are also now and then to be met with. The reception of a member depended upon the whole association. If any one living in the country, or a foreigner, wished to become a member of the Gild, a citizen had to pledge himself for his honour. In an association so closely united, the honour of every single member was to a certain extent the honour of the whole body. Pure life and spotless

¹ See also especially Moke, vol. ii. p. 92.

¹ Gilds had probably been transplanted from England to Denmark under King Canute, about the middle of the eleventh century. They soon placed themselves under the special patronage of the three royal saints of the land, St. Canute the King, St. Canute the Duke, and St. Erich the King, and were called after them St. Canute's Gilds and St. Erich's Gilds. From that time the government got up relations with them, and favoured them as associations for the maintenance of law, security, and order.

² Compare especially Wilda, pp. 116-144, and the Gild-Statutes contained in this volume.

civ

reputation¹ must therefore appear as the condition of Gildfreedom. Besides this, the Gild-Statutes demand no other condition for admission. Everybody entering the Gild had to bind himself by oath to keep the Gild-Statutes.

Women also might become members of the Gild. They were, however, generally the wives or daughters of Gild-brothers. It is only an exception when in several of the Gilds women became free of the Gild in their own right. They, however, shared only in the advantages and burdens of the Gild, and never took part in its administration or its councils.

Many of the towns whose government was in the hands of such Gilds, especially those accessible by the sea, had been founded by merchants. Like the modern so-called "factories" in Asia and Africa, the old merchants fortified places from which they carried on trade with the surrounding people. But in all other towns also the great majority of the more respectable burghers lived by trade. "When the Normans approached the harbour of Tiel," says a writer of the eleventh century, "the population living on the Wahal fled, leaving behind all its goods, money excepted: for it consisted of merchants." He speaks besides of their common feastings, and says that they did not pronounce sentence according to the law of the land, but according to their own will, maintaining that the Emperor had granted and confirmed to them this right by charter 2. It is therefore evident that a Gild of merchants existed there, who governed the town. The excellent market of Autwerp is mentioned as early as 837, in which year the Normans put it to the flames; Gant (Ghent) is described as flourishing by trade and fishing; and the same may be said of a number of other Belgian and French towns. The magistrates of Paris are said to have been called nautæ in the times of the Romans¹; and in deeds of the twelfth century the words burgenses and mercatores, or mercatores per aquam, are used as synonymous. The corporation of the Paris merchants stood at the head of the town². It was the same with the towns in Germany. Of the foundation of Freiburg in Brisgau we are told, that when Berthold of Zähringen intended to found a free city, with the same liberties and laws as the men of Cologne had in their city, he first assembled a number of respected merchants, to whom he allotted ground for the building of houses on the place destined as the market-place. From their number he took also the consuls of the town. Lübeck was founded likewise on the basis of a free merchant community. And as it was in these towns, so it was in their prototypes At Cologne, in the eleventh century, the terms " burghers" and " merchants" are alternately used as synonymous. At Spire the patrician families of the town, from whose ranks the council was taken, carried on trade. In like manner the leading families of Ratisbon consisted of merchants³. As to Denmark, the Danish word for town-Kiöbsted (bargain-place)-sufficiently denotes its character. In London also the Gild which was the base of its constitution, may have consisted chiefly of merchants. Wilda⁴ alleges, in proof of this conjecture, the early importance of London trade; the ordinance in the above mentioned judicia, that every merchant having made three long sea-voyages on his own account was to have the rank of a Thane; and lastly, the report, that in a national assembly at Oxford in the year 1036, the shipowners, as the most important burghers of London, were delegated to elect King Hardicanute. There is no doubt as to the mercantile character of the later Town-Gilds in England; they are even called there gildæ mercatoriæ; and the

² Moke, vol. i. pp. 118, 120, 192.

¹ Moke, vol. i. pp. 114-123. ² Raynouard, tom. ii. livre iv. ch. i. § 9.

Wilda, pp. 231, 233, 236, 260, and 235. Ibid. p. 249; see also Madox, Firma Burgi, p. 26.

⁵ One of these gild e mercatoric certainly existed at York in the time of Henry I. At this date the Gild at Beverley was constituted after its model. (See p. 151 of Mr. Smith's collection.) It became the general rule to confirm the Gild of a town by granting it all the liberties which another town already enjoyed. Wilda (p. 251) quotes from Madox, as towns which had received this confirmation under Henry II., Winchester, Shrewsbury, Andover, Southampton, Wallingford ; under Richard I, Gloucester; under King John, Helleston and Dunwich; under Henry III., Hereford Into the reign of the latter king falls also the rise of the Gild at Chesterfield. (See p. 165 of Mr. Smith's collection.) If the gilda mercatoria at Coventry (p. 226 of Mr. Smith's collection) was really a Town-Gild, its rise must belong to a much earlier time than its confirmation by Edward III. in 1340. Perhaps this confirmation was only a repetition of the sanction of the corporate rights, which might appear desirable to the merchants of Coventry, the better to protect their commerce, which, according to their complaints, suffered from their great distance from the sea. Besides, the Gild. as Mr. Toulmin Smith justly remarks, words by which the king confirms their Gild to the burghers of a town, are often "quod habeant gildam mercatoriam '." In Scotland too the gildæ mercatoriæ stood at the head of the towns².

¹ A passage not yet sufficiently explained in the Sleswig Town-Statutes (Wilda, p. 83), appears to me to find its explanation from this fact. According to this passage, the Gild-brothers needed a less number of compurgators than a nonmember of the Gild. If the latter was not married, however, he enjoyed the same privilege as a Gild-brother. But if he married, and was not a member of the Gild, he required the double number. People have justly sought for a special explanation of this Ordinance, by which the married was placed in a worse position than the unmarried. Now at that time the civitas and the convivium conjuratum were identical, it is true; nevertheless, the quality of a full-citizen did not give by itself the freedom of the Gild. A special admission was required. But every married full-citizen of unstained reputation was doubtless a member of the Gild; and if he were not, it was a sign that some stain on his honour excluded him, which justified in itself the requirement of a greater number of compurgators. But as long as a man was not married, he was not considered an adult, he could not therefore require to be a member of the Gild, and no one could wish to subject him to disadvantages at law for the simple reason that he was young. Compare also the regulations at Hamburg, Wilda, p. 268.

Security from external dangers, and the maintenance of peace in the interior of their towns, had been the original motives of the burghers in uniting themselves into these Gilds. But as almost all Gild-brothers carried on trade, the once existing organization was soon used for the furthering of the common trade interests; for it was in the nature of the Gild to provide generally for all wants which the family union was no longer sufficient to satisfy, and for the provisions for which the State was not yet developed and strong enough. To confederate in defence of liberty and right, was in itself the first requisite for the prosperity of trade and traffic. The regulations also that a Gild-brother who had incurred losses by shipwreck or undeserved misfortune, should receive compensation, may properly be referred to here; and, more still, the gratuitous loans given to the poor Gild-brother for carrying on his trade³. Moreover, it was the special endeavour of the Gild to obtain privileges which would further trade, for instance, the right of coinage, staple-right, immunity from tolls, &c.4 The Gild provided also for the regulation of industry, and for buying and selling (compare, for instance, the statutes of Berwick-upon-Tweed ⁵, and of the Gild of the Holy Trinity at Odensee ⁶); and for institutions such as the cloth-halls, with their severe control of wares, of which there existed one as early as 1060 at Valenciennes⁷. The importance of these cloth-halls may be seen from the fact that the merchants of Novgorod, after having several times received defective pieces of cloth from other places, determined that no cloth but that from the hall at Bruges should be allowed entrance into the Baltic ports and the Eastern markets⁸. The sooner a town became chiefly a commercial place, the sooner did the Gild there take the character of a Merchant-Gild. These Gilds had also the superintendence of the craftsmen, as I shall notice when I speak of the origin of the Craft-Gilds. The Gilds founded by the merchants of the same land, even of the same town, in foreign countries-perhaps the oldest, and the prototypes of all others-and their confederacies among each other and with the mother country, the Hanse, can only be mentioned here, as to enter into details would lead us too far.

Though the Merchant-Gilds consisted chiefly of merchants, yet from the first, craftsmen as such were not excluded from them on principle, if only such craftsmen possessed the full citizenship of the town, which citizenship-with its further developmentdepended upon the possession of estates of a certain value situated within the territory of the town. The strict separation which existed between the merchants and the crafts probably arose only by degrees. Originally the craftsmen, no doubt, traded in the raw materials which they worked with. Thus the London tailors were, even in the time of Edward III., the great importers of woollen cloth¹; and as late as the sixteenth century the brewers of Hamburg were the principal corn-merchants². The growth of wealth and of the number of the people necessarily called forth greater division of labour; the full citizens having become rich, only carried on trade, whilst the handicraft was left exclusively to the poor and the unfree. The poor were originally excluded from full citizenship and from the Gild by the want of a property qualification; and when, in consequence of the development which has just been explained, the poor and the craftsmen became identical³, this led to the ordinance repeated in Danish, German, and Belgian Gild-statutes, that no one " with dirty hands," or " with blue nails," or " who hawked his wares in the streets," should become a member of the Gild, and that craftsmen, before being admitted, must have forsworn their trade for a year and a day 4. The statement in the Gild-Statutes of Skanör⁵ of the year 1266, "that no baker should henceforth be accepted as a member of the Gild," belongs probably to the time of the transition just described; perhaps, indeed, the bakers there had formerly been corn-merchants too. Such a state of transition may also be inferred from Article 256 of the statutes of Berwick, according to which no butcher, as long as he carried on his trade, was to deal in wool or hides, except he were ready to forswear his axe. The facts are, that the Gild of Berwick was a might be erected without confirmation. At all events, the fourteenth century was no longer the time in which, on the foundation of Gild Merchants, townconstitutions were formed. Moreover, earlier Gilds existed at Coventry; and the statutes contain nothing which characterizes the Gild as a Town-Gild. Perhaps also this Gild was nothing but a union for mere trade purposes. The Gild of the Holy Cross at Birmingham of the year 1392 was no gilda mercatoria, but appears ¹ Molox, Firma Burgi, pp. 27, 132; Hist. of the Exch. vol. i. p. 412.

² Herbert, Hist. of the Twelve Great Livery Companies of London, 1837, vol. i. p. 22
³ See pp. 176, 229, &c. of Mr. Smith's collection.
⁴ Ibid. pp 151, 152.

⁵ Art. 22, 30, 36, 37, 38, 39, 41, 43. These Articles probably belonged to the various Gilds amalgamated in 1284. ⁶ See Wilda, p. 274.

⁷ Moke, vol. ii. pp. 52, 90, 102. See an account of English cloth halls in the Report and Minutes of Evidence on the State of the Woollen Manufacture of 8 Ibid. p. 103. England, 18c6. See also p. clxxi, below.

¹ Herbert, vol. i. p. 29. ² Wilda, p. 117. ³ See also Wilda, p. 300. ⁴ Moke, vol. ii. pp. 89, 90, 106, 141 ; i. p. 193 ; Wilda, pp. 75, 223, 274, 284, decided Merchant-Gild, and that the members traded chiefly in wool or hides. Formerly this trade was undoubtedly carried on with that of the butchers. But after the craftsmen had been excluded from the Gild, the butchers were forbidden to carry on a trade practised by Gild members. A like case was when the old laws of Gant forbade, in favour of the Gild-Merchant there, that clothes should be dyed for craftsmen ¹.

^{300.} ⁵ Wilda, p. 111.

⁶ See p. 343 of Mr. Smith's collection.

But the craftsman was not only excluded from the Gild, he was governed, and even oppressed, by it. Before, however, entering further upon this question, a short review of the foregoing investigation may be permitted. I have shown above, how after the protection afforded by the old family had been weakened, the common want of protection called forth in neighbours a feeling of family solidarity, and unity of interests of all who were menaced, and how the weakness of them all caused a feeling of general equality and brotherly love; how this led to the entering upon close fraternities, or Gilds, in imitation of the family; how these Gilds were developed, especially in towns; how in their further growth they shut themselves up in their own doors; and how this caused the formation of similar associations among the excluded full-citizens; how, lastly, these associations amalgamated again with the highest Gild at a later period, or obtained a share in the government of the town. Great are the thanks, as Kemble² justly and emphatically says, which we owe to these oldest defenders of the dignity of man against feudal arbitrariness: "in the times of the densest seignorial darkness, they offered a noble resistance to episcopal and baronial tyranny, and formed the nursery cradles of popular liberty."

Yet before this liberty attained a wider expansion, many a hard struggle had to be fought with those who had been its midwives. Independence being obtained, the old spirit departed from the citizens³. The older the Gild-Statutes, the more favourable are they to the man of low rank. Though the citizens were modest and benignant towards the poor, as long as freedom was to be obtained, yet the possession of it rendered them insolent and hard. By the enjoyment of power the descendants of the old simple associates of the Frith-Gilds became proud, ambitious, and tyrannical. The freer and more independent the burghers became, and the less they needed assistance from the general body of the crafts for the defence of liberties acquired and the obtaining of fresh ones, the greater was the degree in which this degeneration of the original noble spirit seems to have taken place. At least it appears to me that the greater dependence on a strong executive power, in which the towns remained in England and Denmark, was one of the causes why we find there no patrician order, whilst the ruling class in the Belgian and German towns, which had grown into small, and almost independent, republics, formed itself into an exclusive aristocracy. This aristocracy consisted chiefly of the descendants of the old merchant families, and partly of the offspring of the noble possessors of the surrounding estates, and of the officials originally appointed by the princes for the government of the towns.

² The Saxons in England, vol. ii. p. 312. ¹ Moke, vol. ii. p. 89 ³ A writer of the twelfth century describes the degeneration of the citizens as follows : " Igitur in initio communia fœderationis fuit grata quia optimi viri eam tum sanxere, vita quorum justa, simplex, innocens fuit, ac sine cupididate agitabatur; sua cuique satis honeste placebant, jus bonum apud ipsos valebat, concordia maxima, minima avarit a inerat. Civis civem honorabat, dives minorem non exprobrabat. . . . Postquam vero cives paulatim cœpere torpescere et alter in alterum insurrexere, scelera sceleratorum multa (inulta) reliquere, quisque sua dishoneste dilatavere ; . . . sic gradatim vi, mendacio, perjurio inferiores quoque opprimere cœpere ; jus æquum, urbis bonum sic evanuit, corruit etiam dominium." (Chron. Aubertinum, ad annum 1138; Hist. Fr. vol. xiii. p. 499, quoted by Moke, vol. ii. p. 12.) See also Moke, vol. ii. p. 92 sqq. The victory of the Liège citizens over the Duke of Brabant at Steppes in 1213 was followed by a bitter oppression of the craftsmen by the ruling families, carried almost to slavery. The craft organizations were abolished, and the presidents removed; the patricians

The accumulation of riches helped to widen this ever-increasing breach between the feelings and interests of the different classes. Riches acquired by trade and employed in the purchase of estates and lucrative privileges, and the like, enabled the Gild-brothers to remain idle. Idleness became a matter of rank and of honour¹, and a part only of the Gild-members carried on wholesale trade. Even the laws of the land make the distinction between the patrician and the man "without hearth and honour, who lives by his labour," and the former might with impunity box the ears of the latter for not showing him sufficient respect². As ever, the ruling class, these patricians, also threw the chief burden of the taxes upon the governed. Frequent raisings of these taxes made them always more oppressive, while the income which they afforded, as well as the corporation property and the revenues it yielded, were employed for the private uses of the ruling families3. Besides this, the law was partially administered, or redress entirely refused to the unprivileged; and the worst oppressions went even so far as to forbid the craftsmen to drink wine, except in case of sickness (Moke, vol. ii. p 69).

² Thus the municipal law of Brussels of the year 1229 (Moke, vol. ii. p. 115).

⁸ Arnold, vol. i. pp. 418, 419, vol. ii. pp. 299, 343, 377; Moke, vol. ii. pp. 13, 25, &c. Lacomblet, Urkundenbuch des Niederrheins, vol. ii. p. 245, Dusseldorf, 1840: "Quod quociens placet maioribus ciuitatis, ipsi faciunt . . . noua exactionum statuta, quarum exactionum onus portant fraternitates et alii populares, qui communitas appellantur et sic depauperantur," etc.

¹ Arnold, vol. ii. p. 195 ; Wilda, p. 201.

in consequence of the mundium¹ led to the fear that a new serfdom might arise. As many of the craftsmen had once stood in the mundium of the bishop or the burgrave, as long as these ruled over the towns, so, after the patricians had got the dominion, a mundium of these over the lower classes came into existence, and those "who struck the lion down, had to pay the wolves homage." The mundmen were obliged to swear an oath (fidelitas) and to agree to services and taxes, for which the mundmasters promised them protection and assistance. This relation was particularly rigid at Strasburg; some of the ruling families there extorted in this way from the craftsmen a yearly rent of from 300 to 400 quarters of oats. In Cologne the craftsmen were almost the serfs of the patricians. Had the dominion of the patricians lasted longer, this dependence would certainly have become hereditary².

The general deep hatred of the governed towards their oppressors seems therefore only too just; and the one idea which animated the souls of the craftsmen of the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries³, the abolition of the patriciate, seems only too easily to be understood. It was not seldom that they were aided in this endeavour by the degeneration of the patricians themselves. The principles of association, of brotherly love and unity of interests, under which the patricians had grown free and strong, must have hindered the rivalries of the strong in all their endeavours; and in free competition they fought for superiority in the towns in which a patriciate was most predominant. I need only recall to mind the fights between the Overstolzen and the Weissen at Cologne, between the Zornen and the Mülnheimer at Strasburg, between the Starbearers and the Popinjays at Basle, the strifes of the Auer with the rest of the patricians at Ratisbon, and the similar differences among the ruling families at Spire⁴. But the more the interests of the strong differed, the closer were the confederations of the weak. Already in the thirteenth century in all these towns the most violent struggles broke out between the craftsmen, united in the most brotherly way into Craft-Gilds, and the hated patricians. Tournai, Gant, Bruges, Brussels, Louvain, Huy, Liège, Cologne, Frankfort-on-Main,

Spire, Strasburg, Bâle, Augsburg, Magdeburg, Halle, and all other towns, however named, were witnesses of the changing fortune of their contests. Towards the end of the fourteenth century the victory was almost everywhere on the side of the Craft-Gilds.

Fierce¹ as the civil war had been, the people were moderate and generous in their victory². Their idea was that of equality of political rights and of justice. Notwithstanding their hatred against their tyrants, the multitude did not wish violence to put its stamp on their laws; they did not wish to oppress those who for former merits might have a right to participate in the government of the towns, and who by education were their superiors³. Mixed governing bodies were formed, consisting of patricians and craftsmen; and often even a majority of one vote was left to the former⁴. In some places, it is true, the craftsmen compelled the patricians to enter their fraternities if they wished to take part in the government of the towns'; but even then the great soon got such paramount influence, that new laws had to provide that the "small folk" should form half of the council of the Craft-Gild⁶. The craftsmen did not, however, in the long run remain at the head of the town; but the political equality which their efforts had obtained was maintained in principle; the old Gild constitution was replaced by that of the "commune."

In England the same change of the town constitution went on at the same time. The ordinance of the London citizens in Edward the Second's time, that no person, whether an inhabitant of the City or otherwise, should be admitted to the freedom of the City unless he were a member of one of the trades or mysteries⁷, shows clearly the preponderance of the craftsmen. But the completion of their triumph may be seen by the account, that "In the 49th Edward III. an enactment passed the whole assembled commonalty of the City, by which the right of election of all City dignitaries and officers, including members of parliament, was transferred from the ward-representatives to the trading-com-

² Compare the generous treatment of the South by the North after the close of the late civil war in the United States.

- ⁵ See Moke, vol. ii. p. 80. The same happened at Cologne. ⁶ See Moke, vol. ii. p. 159.
 - ⁷ Herbert, vol. i. p. 27.

¹ Protection given by a noble or rich man to a poorer, for services to be rendered, and assessments paid by the latter.

² Arnold, vol. i. p. 425 ; vol. ii. pp. 192, 193 ; Moke, vol. ii. p. 69 ; Lacomblet, vol. ii. p. 245.

³ Moke, vol. ii. p. 127, says : "L'histoire du 14 siècle n'a rien de plus extraordinaire que la persistance des tisserands et des foulons de Brabant à rêver encore leur cité détruité, comme jadis les Hebreux captifs songeaient à la reconstruction de Jerusalem.'

⁴ Arnold, vol. i. pp. 352, 366; vol. ii. pp. 297, 396.

¹ Thus, for instance, at Magdeburg in the year 1301 ten aldermen of the Craft-Gilds were buint alive in the market-place. After the Cologne weavers had lost, in 1371, the "Weavers' Battle" against the ruling families, thirty-three weavers were executed on November 21, 1371; on the day after also houses, churches, and monasteries were searched; all who were found were murdered; lastly, 1800 of them were exiled, with their wives and children, and their hall, "a palace," was demolished. The exiled found a reception at Aix-la Chapelle, where they helped considerably to raise their trade. Further examples could easily be enumerated.

⁴ Moke, vol. ii. p. 131. ³ See Arnold, vol. ii. p 191.

nanies." In the year following, the number of the companies which took part in this election was increased from thirty-two to forty-eight². Nevertheless here also the power remained ultimately in the hands of the old burghers. When, after the ordinance under Edward II, all citizens of London were obliged to belong to the Trade-Gilds, the old burghers probably entered, as in a similar case the old ruling families of Cologne did³, into some of the better Trade-Gilds, from which in later days sprang the so-called twelve great companies; and they pursued under new shapes their old political and industrial interests. Already, towards the end of the reign of Edward III., the separation of these richer companies from the poorer ones may be observed. They gained paramount influence in the Common Council; and from this time dates the still-existing custom of choosing the Mayor of London exclusively from them⁴. The Grocers-merchants who, according to Herbert⁵, received their name from the engrossing (buying up wholesale) "all manner of merchandize vendible "-were particularly powerful. Not less than sixteen aldermen belonged to their Gild, and in 1385 they carried the election of Sir Nicholas Brembre as Mayor for two successive years against the rest of the citizens⁶. As regards industry, the ule remained however for centuries, as will be shown further on, to the principle of small capital (see pp. cxxiii, cxxiv).

In the time of King Henry VI. the victory of the crafts was general in England; for about that time the kings, as Madox⁷ tells us, began generally to recognize the constitution and liberties of towns in other terms than by confirming their Gilds. "They granted to the men of a town or burgh that they should be a communitas perpetua et corporata, a corporate and perpetual community." The Craft-Gilds, whose rise the old city authorities had endeavoured till now also here to suppress, obtained the victory' about the same time as their brethren on the Continent did. A more detailed account of the transition is wanting. Nevertheless in England there is nothing to be found of the severe struggles of the German and Belgian companies against the patriciate. The latter never attained a similar development on British soil; probably because, as has been stated, the rich did not obtain a similar independent dominion in the towns. which were less independent of the sovercign; and because there is not in the English aristocracy in general that caste-like seclusion which characterizes the Continental nobility. Greater freedom of the lower classes, as well as the gradual formation of political institutions according to the relative amount of the social power of different classes, which is so characteristic of England, perhaps contributed in this case too-as under similar circumstances of later times-to ward off a bloody revolution.

In the Danish towns also no real exclusive rule of special families seems to have sprung from the Gilds. The towns in Denmark were smaller, and therefore the Gild did not appear, in proportion to the entire population, as a close circle of families. Commerce was there of less importance, and so no very great difference arose between merchants and craftsmen in point of fortune. To this must be added the less independence of the towns in general as already mentioned. For these reasons also the Gild existed in Denmark until the time of the Reformation, which shook vehemently the whole system of Gilds, and wrought the fall of most of them, on account of their connection with the Roman Catholic service. At a later period, it is true, Gilds were carried on or re-established in Flensburg, Copenhagen, and other places. But after the political as well as the religious objects of the Gilds had disappeared, there remained of their old essence nothing but social purposes. Shooting at the popinjay was an old exercise handed down from the glorious times of the burghers, when they combated kings and made them responsible for wrongs committed on Gild-brothers. This became now their chief object. The old St. Canute-Gilds changed everywhere into Archer-Gilds; kings sometimes became members of them; and the degenerated descendants of the Hezlagh of Sleswig, instead of, like their forefathers, defending their old liberties and privileges against sovereigns with the bow, shot in common with them at the popinjay¹.

In Germany too these Gilds, where they went on, and sometimes as the House Limpurg in Frankfort on Main still exist, sank into the same political insignificance; and the only advantage which the Gild now affords is the right of receiving assistance from its funds in certain emergencies of life.

1 Wilda, pp. 156 sqq., 161 sqq., 283 sqq.

¹ Quoted by Herbert, vol. i. p. 32, from Norton's Commentaries on London. ³ See Wilda, p. 259.

² Herbert, vol. i. p. 33.

⁵ Ib. p. 29. ⁴ Herbert, vol i. p. 36 sqq. 7 Firma Burgi, p. 27.

⁶ Ib pp. 38, 39.

⁸ See Delpit, Collection générale des documents français qui se trouvent en Angleterre, tom. i. p. lxxx. Paris, 1847.

IV. THE CRAFT-GILDS.

THE origin of the Craft-Gilds-which everywhere in the fourteenth and fifteenth century, as has just been shown, either snatched the government of the towns from the hands of the Oldburgher Gilds, or at least obtained a share in it by the side of those Gilds-has been the subject of considerable controversy. In spite of the absolutely independent origin and development of the handicrafts in the Germanic states of the Middle Ages, and in spite of their character being entirely different to that of the Romans, some authors, finding in the Roman collegia opificum institutions which may in some degree be compared to the Craft-Gilds, have derived from them the unions of the handicraftsmen that sprung up with the handicrafts. But this view needs rather to be proved historically by its adherents, than to be refuted by its opponents. It would be much more probable that the Craft-Gilds descended from the companies into which, in episcopal and royal towns, the bond-handicraftsmen of the same trade were ranged under the superintendence of an official, or that they took their origin from a common subjection to police control or from common obligations to pay certain imposts. But even these views deserve no further consideration after Wilda's striking refutation. "The Craft-Gilds," as Wilda says, "did not spring from subjection and dependence; they originated in the freedom of the handicraft class ¹."

The population of the towns, at least of those on the Continent, consisted, as late as the eleventh century, of officials, old freemen, and bondmen². To the last belonged the greater part of the handicraftsmen, who, obliged to pay certain taxes and to perform certain feudal services and labours for their lords, were subjected to officers appointed by them. But besides, there were free handicraftsmen, who in earlier times probably belonged to the body of the full citizens; for the expulsion of craftsmen as exv such from the full-citizens' Gilds, took place only at a later period of their development, as has been already stated in Part III. As long as one part of the handicraftsmen remained in the organized state of bondage just described, whilst the other part belonged to the full-citizens' Gilds, there was neither want nor room for a further free organization of that class, similar to that of the later Craft-Gilds. The former stood, in all trade matters. entirely under the orders of the lords of the town, whether these were bishops, burgraves, or citizens; and as to legal protection, they were their clients. But the handicraftsmen who were fullcitizens received from the full-citizens' Gild on the one hand legal protection, and on the other hand by far greater advantages in matters of trade than even from the later Craft-Gilds; for as full-citizens¹, these handicraftsmen enjoyed perfect freedom of trade in the towns, whilst the foreign handicraftsmen, and those who were not full-citizens, had to buy from the lords of the town the right of carrying on trade, and had to purchase, by various burdens and imposts, the privilege of using the markethalls and other institutions established for buying and selling.

After the free handicraftsmen had been expelled from the fullcitizens' Gilds, their relation to the old-burghers was similar to that of the ancient freemen at the time when they confederated into Gilds for protection against the aggressions of the great. On the one hand, the citizens endeavoured to suppress the handicraftsmen into a kind of subjection, and on the other, as, after the expulsion of the royal and episcopal officers, they had the police in market and trade matters in their hands, it was in their power to take measures injurious to the craftsmen. The old-burghers must have felt a great temptation to subject the handicraftsmen, sprung from the free families, to the same imposts as those paid by the bondmen. The right also to allow foreigners, on payment of entrance fees, to carry on trade, could not but endanger the interests of the native craftsmen. Just as in earlier times the maintenance of the personal liberty and the preservation of the small freeholds of the old freemen were concerned, so the question was now to protect the independence of the craftsmen and their earnings, which depended on their stock and labour. Isolated, they must have succumbed to the difficulty of their circumstances; hence these of necessity called forth the same free organization of free craftsmen, as that of the old freemen in earlier times. The constitution of the old Gilds evidently served as the model of the Craft-Gilds, and it appears to have been altered only in so far as a change was rendered necessary by the peculiar wants of the craftsmen which made them confederate into Gilds, namely, protection of the industry of the freemen.

¹ Wilda, p. 307. Compare also Arnold, vol. i. pp. 250-258. ² See Additional Notes, No. 3.

¹ Wilda, p. 302. Legal advice of the sheriffs of Magdeburg, in the beginning of the thirteenth century, to Duke Henry the Bearded, for his town Goldberg: "Noveritis vestre nobilitatis benignitas, quod quilibet burgensis, aut propriam habens domum vel aream quarumcunque rerum venalitatem habuerit, eas in domo propria libere vendere potest aut pro ahis rebus commutari. De domo quoque, quam ad augmentandum censum vestrum in communi foro frequentari et per singulas mansunculas inhabitari statuistis, scire debetis indubitanter, quod si dominus noster Archiepiscopus hoc in nostra civitate attemptaret penitus deficeret."

Foremost amongst the free handicraftsmen were the Weavers. They formed a kind of middle class between the patricians and the bond craftsmen. The fact that whilst the other crafts worked to supply mere local demands, the Weavers' manufactures found markets in the most distant countries, naturally invested them with greater importance. They were distinguished above all others by wealth, self-respect, and a sense of freedom. Their unions enjoyed of old the greatest independence. In all towns they stood at the head of the craftsmen; and the contests of the handicraft class with the patricians for political emancipation, and its victories, were, above all, the struggles and victories of the Weavers¹.

Accordingly, in all the manufacturing countries of that time, in England, Flanders and Brabant, as well as in the Rhenish towns, the most ancient Gilds were those of the Weavers. The Gild of the London Weavers was chartered by Henry I.², and so was that of the Oxford Weavers. In the reign of Henry II. Weavers' Gilds, confirmed by the king, existed at Nottingham, York, Huntingdon, Lincoln, and Winchester³. In Germany the Woolweavers' Gild of Cologne arose as early as the eleventh century 4. And in like manner the oldest German charter⁵ referring undoubtedly to a Craft-Gild⁶ is that of a Cologne Weavers' Gild. In the year 1149 the textores culcitrarum pulvinarium (weavers of pillowcases) formed a fraternity with the consent of the judges, sheriffs, and aldermen; and thenceforth all who wished to carry on the trade within the town were obliged to join the fraternity and to submit to its rules. The record proves that a union of these handicraftsmen had existed long before the year 1149, and that it was merely confirmed in the said year. At Spire the Gild of the Wool-weavers existed at the beginning of the twelfth century. At Mayence the Weavers are mentioned as early as 1099; at Worms in 1114. At Frankfort-on-Main also, wool-weaving ranked first among the crafts¹. It was, however, in the first manufacturing country of the Middle Ages. in Flanders and Brabant, that the influence of the Wool-weavers' Gild was the most prominent: it appears there as almost the sole leader in all the revolutions of the handicraft class. And when we consider the early flourishing state of the Belgian woollen manufactures-for as early as the first century the clothes of coarse wool woven in Belgium found a greedy market in Rome²; also, that the necessity of defending their coasts against the inroads of the sea and of pirates ³ always kept most keenly alive in the minds of the people the fundamental idea of all Gilds, the brotherly solidarity and community of interests; lastly, the bold spirit of independence which led even serfs here to confederate into Gilds⁴,-we may infer that here, among these extremely industrious and stubborn weavers of Flanders and Brabant, did the first Craft-Gild originate.

* Wilda, p. 314.

Although the Craft-Gilds arose first among the most eminent of the handicraft class, among those who were free,-just as in earlier times the most ancient Gilds originated among the old freemen, and later on the Trade-Unions among the best situated working men and ci-devant small masters,-to stop the deterioration of their condition and encroachments on their rights and interests, yet this new organization was also soon made use of by the lower members of their class as a means of elevation. With the liberation of the bond handicraftsmen from bondage proper, many of the companies into which they had been ranged passed gradually over into the number of free Craft-Gilds. The latter appear, therefore, everywhere in greater number about the time when the last traces of bondage disappear. Craft-Gilds of this kind, when obtaining their privileges, were frequently put under obligation to pay certain fixed imposts in return for their greater independence in labour and trade, and for the remission of the fines on inheriting property⁵, to which their

¹ Arnold, vol. ii. p. 208, and Moke, vol. ii. passim.

² Delpit, vol. i. p. lxxxiii.

⁴ Arnold, vol. i. p. 254.

⁵ Lacomblet, vol. i. p. 251. See below (p. cxix, note 1).

⁶ The record of the appointment of twenty-three men as fishers at Worms by Bishop Adalbert circa annum 1106 (Schannat in Cod. Probat. Hist. Wormat. Num. ii. p. 62), seems to speak rather of the creation of one of those companies among bond-handicraftsmen, mentioned in the text, than of a free-Craft-Gild. It is utterly unlike the manner in which all other Craft-Gilds have been chartered.

Arnold, vol. i. p. 254, &c.
 Moke, vol. i. p. 58.
 Ibid. p. 51.
 See Part I. of this Essay, pp. lxxvi, lxxviii, lxxix.
 I find in the Vita Gebehardi Episcopi Constantiensis (Pertz, Scriptores, vol. x. p. 588, lines 32-59: "Post hac convocatis servis suis elegit ex eis optimos quosque, et constituit ex eis coquos et pistores, caupones et fullones, sutores et hortulanos, carpentarios et singularum artium magistros, et constituit eis, ut eo die, quo fratribus deservirent, de annona quoque fratrum in patre reficerentur, quia dignus est operarius cibo suo. Ut autem bono animo suis ministrarent dominis, huiusmodi donario ipsos cumulavit, scilicet ut cum quis præsentium vel episcopal or lay lords were entitled, as well as for other matters. And in proportion to the degree of independence which they obtained according to circumstances, these imposts were greater or smaller. Such, for instance, was the case at Bâle, Constance, &c. Everywhere, however, these societies were changed after the model of the Gilds of those farther advanced craftsmen which have been spoken of. The latter impregnated them with an altogether different spirit and a new life. A similar process may have taken place, in certain cases 1, in fraternities originally religious, which, after the origin of Craft-Gilds, framed trade regulations after the latter's example, and-as in later times certain friendly societies changed into Trade-Unions-so gradually transformed themselves into Craft-Gilds. The time of the origin of Craft-Gilds in general may be said to extend from the beginning of the eleventh to the middle of the thirteenth century². The origin of certain Craft-Gilds depended of course on the gradual rise of the various trades in a town.

The organization of the free craftsmen into Gilds, we thus see, was called forth by their want of protection against the abuse of power on the part of the lords of the town, who tried to reduce the free to the dependence of the unfree, and, by imposts and otherwise, to encroach on the freemen's earnings. Being organized, the Craft-Gildmen provided for the maintenance of the customs of their Craft, framed further ordinances for its regulation, saw these ordinances properly executed, and punished the Gild brothers who infringed them. The maintenance of their independence against the city authorities, and the possibility of carrying out and making efficient their trade-rules, depended, however, on the condition that all who carried on the trade should belong to the Gild. And though the first Gilds, at their formation, included doubtless all men of the trade, yet in course of time some one or more craftsmen must have turned up, who, unwilling to submit to the rules framed for insuring good work and for protecting the interests of the trade, would carry on his trade without belonging to the Gild. It was impossible either to check this, and prevent detriment arising from it, or to enforce their regulation of the trade in a legitimate manner, unless the Gild had been previously acknowledged by the lord of the town or the body of citizens. And thus, though the Craft-Gilds as voluntary societies did not need confirmation by the authorities at their birth, yet this confirmation became afterwards of the greatest importance when these Gilds wanted to be recognized as special and independent associations, which were thenceforth to regulate the trade instead of the authorities of the town. This once obtained, all further protective measures would follow as a matter of course.

This transfer of all trade concerns to the management and jurisdiction of the Craft-Gild was generally accomplished by a confirmation of their ordinance, that every one carrying on the trade within the town or a certain district, should join and belong to the Gild¹. And in return for this privilege the Gild was yearly to pay certain taxes². In London these taxes went to the king. Thus, under Henry I. (A.D. 1100-33) and every succeeding king, the London Weavers paid to the crown a rent or ferme for their Gild; and Madox³ enumerates eighteen Gilds which, under Henry II. (A.D. 1154-89), were amerced as adulterine, for neglecting to pay this tax. But as, in consequence of these privileges of the Craft-Gilds, the citizens no longer enjoyed undivided sway in the towns, they showed themselves everywhere extremely jealous of the jurisdiction which had thus sprung up in their midst, to their own detriment. They therefore opposed with all their might the establishment of Craft-Gilds; and the whole history of these Gilds, till they obtained the mastery in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries, appears as nothing else than one continual struggle of the handicraftsmen with the town for these privileges. The Norman kings however, equally ready to make the most of both these clashing interests eorum successorum, qui de progenie illorum esset, moreretur, exuviæ de eo non sumerentur, sed hæredes relictam hæreditatem indivisam possiderent; si vero de alia progenie aliquis accessisset, ab hoc donativo alienus exstitisset." For the bond-handicraftsmen in towns and their societies, see Additional Notes, No. 3.

¹ Perhaps the many religious regulations, and the many relations to the cathedral, of some of the Gilds at Bâle (compare, for instance, Berlepsch, vol. ii. pp. 18, 19), as well as of the Fullers at Lincoln (compare Mr. T. Smith's collection, p. 179), refer to such a process, though it seems rather doubtful to me. But see also Mr. Ludlow in the Fortnightly Review, October, 1869, p. 393.

² Compare Arnold, l. c.

¹ Lacomblet, vol. i. p 251. Record of the confirmation of the Gild of the textores culcitrarum pulvinarium at Cologne in 1149: "fraternitatem ... confirmatam suscepisse, hac videlicet ratione, ut omnes textorici operis cultores (scilicet culcitrarum pulvinarium), qui infra urbis ambitum continentur, sive indigene sive alienigene huic fraternitati quo jure a supra memoratis fratribus constat disposita sponte subiciantur. Ei vero aliqua enormitate obviantes et subire non coacti nolentes, judiciaria severitate refrenati, cum rerum suarum detrimento, subire et obsecundari tandem compellantur." For the London Weavers see note 1, p. cxx. In the charter of the Oxford Weavers in Madox's History of the Exch. vol. i. p. 339, we read: "nemo operaretur de ministerio eorum infra quinque leucatas circa Burgum Oxoniæ." See also below, p. cxxi, note 7, the charter of the Magdeburg Shoemakers. That this ordinance merely enforced a custom which already existed in the craft before the confirmation, may be seen there in the passage beginning, "Cum enim jus et distinctio, que inter eos est," etc.; as well as in the passage in Italics in this note.

² Compare also, below, the charter of the Magdeburg Shoemakers, p. cxxi, note 7.

⁸ History of the Exch. vol. i. pp. 390, 391.

for the benefit of their exchequer, seem to have put up to auction the confirmation and the suppression of these Gilds.

The contest of the Weavers with the City of London furnishes us with a very striking example of this struggle between the rising Craft-Gilds and the body of the old citizens. The Weavers had obtained from Henry I. the privilege that "nobody, except by them (i.e. by becoming a member of their Gild), shall introduce himself, within the City, into their mystery, and nobody within Southwark or other places belonging to London, except he be a member of their Gild 1;" and these privileges were confirmed to them by Henry II. Exemption from the jurisdiction of the City excited the jealousy of the citizens to such a degree, that the Weavers' Gild had to maintain the most violent struggles with them for its privileges and property. King John had to promise the citizens, in answer to their prayer, "that the Gild of Weavers shall not from henceforth be in the City of London, neither shall be at all maintained;" but as the Gild had been accustomed to pay the king eighteen marks per annum, the citizens "should pay twenty marks in money for a gift" instead. It appears, however, that this suppression of the Craft-Gilds was as ineffective here as in the like case in Belgium and Germany; for as early as the sixth year of Henry III. (A.D. 1221-22) we find the Weavers and the City again at strife; and "the Weavers of London," as Madox relates, "fearing lest the mayor and citizens of London should extort from them their charter and liberties granted to them by King Henry II., delivered that charter into the Exchequer, to be kept in the treasury there, and to be delivered to them again when they should want it, and afterwards to be laid up in the treasury." Even in the fourteenth year of Edward II. (A.D. 1320-1) the privileges of the Weavers remained still a point of contention between them and the town; but in this case it was before a court of justice. On occasion, as it appears, of a complaint for transgression and abuse of their privileges, the Weavers had to prove their right to have a Gild, as well as the legality of every single ordinance framed by them for the regulation of their trade. Their privileges could not, however, be impugned as a whole, but several regulations were pointed out which had crept in after the grant of their charter 2. Among the documents contained in Mr. Toulmin Smith's collection, those referring to the Tailors' Gild at Exeter showeven in the fifteenth century the existence of the same struggle between this Gild and the authorities of the town¹. Sometimes, as in the case of the Bakers' Gild at Bâle, these conflicts, which the new organization of the handicraftsmen called forth between their wardens and the police authorities of the towns, were the chief cause of fixing the rights of the Craft-Gild in a charter².

To the complete independence of the Craft-Gilds, it was indispensable that they should have the right of freely electing a warden for regulating their trade and for managing the Gild. In England this freedom was never restricted; at least, I know nothing to the contrary from the accounts of English Craft-Gilds³. But on the Continent the right of appointing the warden of a Craft-Gild varied according to the nature of the origin of the Gild, or the degree of independence which the particular handicraft enjoyed at the time when its Gild was recognized. Thus the Craft-Gilds which the free handicraftsmen formed amongst themselves possessed, of old, absolute independence in the election of their warden, as, for instance, the Weavers' Gild at Cologne⁴, and the Craft-Gilds in Flanders⁵. At Bâle, on the contrary, where the Craft-Gilds sprang from the companies of bondmen above-mentioned (p. exiv), the bishop appointed the warden, according to the oldest charters, and in the probably less important trades (Spinnwettern and Butchers, 1248); whilst in 1260 the Tailors (who were at the same time cloth-merchants) elected their own warden⁶. In 1157 Archbishop Wichmann of Magdeburg had, from truly generous motives, granted to the Shoemakers the right of free election of their warden. This instance was, however, probably as unique, as the disposition was rare⁷. In Paris, the provost in the thirteenth century appointed

¹ Mr. Toulmin Smith's collection, pp. 299-316. ² Compare Wilda, p. 310. ³ The governor, however, of the fraternity of the Porters in London, constituted in 1646, is always an alderman, whose appointment is vested in the Court of Aldermen. (Allen's History and Antiquities of London, vol. ii. p. 412.) ⁴ Lacomblet, vol. ii. p. 250. Award of arbitration between the archbishop and the town of Cologne, &c., 1258: "Quod ab antiquo consuetudine fraternitates eligunt sibi quosdam, qui magistri fraternitatum dicuntur, per quos insolentes fraternitatum compescuntur," &c ⁵ Moke, vol. ii. p. 95.

⁶ Berlepsch, Chronik der Gewerke, St. Gall (no date), vol. ix. p. 19, vol. v. p. 18, vol. ii. p. 18.

⁷ The charter runs thus: "In omnibus actibus nostris, in quibus aliquid de honore et utilitate Magdeburgensis ecclesie agere studuimus, libertatem matrem actionis nostre esse volumus, ut, cum honor et utilitas in disputatione nostra accurrerit, libertas suprema semper existeret quia honor et utilitas sine libertate vilis servitus estimatur. Notum itaque esse volumus universis tam futuris quam presentibus, quod officia civitatis nostre magna sive parva, quodlibet in suo honore secundum jus suum integrum esse volentes, jus et magisterium sutorum ita consistere volumus, ut nullus magistratum super eos habeat, nisi quem ipsi ex communi consensu magistrum sibi eligerint. Cum enim jus et distinctio, que inter and deposed, as he pleased, the wardens of the Cordiers (ropemakers), and the Poulaillers (poulterers); but the Etuvistes (bathkeepers) elected freely and independently three preud'hommes for regulating their trade '. Free election then became the rule in all trades, till Charles IV. of France (1321-1328) deprived the Parisian craftsmen of the right of freely electing their wardens². Charles VI. in the year 1408, whilst confirming the statutes of a Craft-Gild, actually appointed one of his valets to the wardenship³. In other countries, even in the thirteenth century, it became the rule for Craft-Gilds to elect their wardens themselves: and it was only during the contests between the crafts and the hereditary ruling families in the German and Belgian towns that the craftsmen had to acquiesce in the appointment of their wardens by the patricians. But this of course changed at once with the triumph of the handicraftsmen.

¹ Madox, Firma Burgi, p. 286 : "nullus nisi per illos se intromittat infra civitatem de eorum ministerio et nisi sit in eorum Gilda neque in Sudworc neque in aliis locis Londoniæ pertinentibus." The words "ministerium" or "officium" were used in medieval Latin for mystery, trade, craft-gild.

² Compare Madox, Firma Burgi, p. 192, &c.; Herbert, vol. i. pp. 17, 24.

This triumph, as has been shown in Part III., was won everywhere in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries, though sooner or later, according to circumstances. In London the Craft-Gilds appear in full possession of the mastery in the reign of Edward III. The privileges which they had till then exercised only on sufferance, or on payment of their fermes, were now for the first time generally confirmed to them by charter by Edward III.; the authorities of the City of London, who had in former times contended with all their might against the Craft-Gilds, now approved of their statutes; and in the fourteenth century a large majority of the trades appeared before the mayor and aldermen to get their ordinances enrolled. At the same time they adopted a particular livery, and were hence called Livery Companies. Edward III. himself actually became a member of one of them, that of the Linen-armourers, and his example found numerous imitators amongst his successors and the nobility of the kingdom 4.

Though political power, as has been already stated, did not continue everywhere in the hands of the handicraftsmen, they vet retained everywhere the independent government and jurisdiction over their trade; and everywhere the fundamental principle of their trade-policy prevailed, namely, the protection to live freely and independently on an industry based on small capital and labour. This was shown in England by the Act 37 Edward III. c. 5 (A. D. 1363). In the nineteenth year of Edward III. (A. D. 1345), a part of the Pepperers had separated themselves from their old Gild and had formed a society of their own. The account 1 of what took place at the formation of this society,-how "twenty-two persons, carrying on the business of Pepperers, agree to meet together at a dinner" (for defraying the expense of which each had to pay twelve pence), "and commit the particulars of their formation into a trading society to writing," and then immediately after the meal elect their warden, and decide on their periodical contributions,-shows great similarity with the proceedings at the formation of modern working-men's associations; as, for instance, those of the Bookbinders' Trade Society, according to Dunning's excellent account². But these twenty-two Pepperers—altogether unlike their Bookbinder imitators-were the richest of their trade³, and had probably belonged formerly to the old-citizen class, and had, like all citizens under Edward II., been obliged to join a Trade-Gild. Well, these seceding Pepperers now formed themselves into a separate society, exercised still de facto the freedom of trade which had formerly belonged to them as full citizens, and thus threatened to crush, by their riches, the numerous other Trade-Gilds. At least a petition brought against them in the 36th Edward III. complains "that great mischiefs had newly arisen, as well to the king as to the great men and commons, from the merchants called Grocers (grossers), who engrossed all manner of merchandize vendible, and who suddenly raised the prices of such merchandize within the realm; putting to sale by covin, and by ordinances made amongst themselves, in their own society, which they call the Fraternity and Gild of Merchants,' such merchandizes as were most dear, and keeping in stores the others until times of dearth and scarcity." In consequence of this, the Act 37th Edward III. c. 5 decreed "that all artificers and people of mysteries shall each choose his own eos est, eos, qui eo jure participare non debent, ita excludat, quod opus operatum alienigene infra jus communis fori vendere non debeant, constituimus, ne alienigene opus suum operatum ad forum non deferant, nisi cum omnium eorum voluntate, qui jure illo quod Inninge appellatur, participes existunt. Itaque ad recognoscendum se annuatim Magdeburgensi archiepiscopo duo talenta solvent, que magister eorum presentabit, prout archiepiscopus mandavit," &c. (Berlepsch, vol v. p. 30.)

¹ Ouin-Lacroix. Histoire des Anciennes Corporations d'Arts et Métiers, &c. de la Capitale de la Normandie, Rouen, 1850; Statuts des Cordiers de Paris, art. 10, (p. 738); Statuts des Poulaillers de Paris, Art. II (p. 747); Statuts des Étuvistes de Paris, art. 5 (p. 739). ² Wilda, p. 324.

⁵ Ouin-Lacroix, p. 734-Statuts des Barbiers de Tours en 1408, art. 1: "Notre premier barbier et varlet de chambre est et sera garde du dict mestier, auquel tous devront obéir.'

⁴ Compare Herbert, vol. i. pp. 28, 29; Delpit, p. lxxx., and the numerous ratifications of ordinances by the City authorities from 1344-1418 in Riley's Memorials.

¹ See the detailed account of the proceedings in Herbert, vol. i. pp. 43-45, also Pp. 304-308. ² Trudes' Societies and Strikes. Report of the Committee on Trades' Societies appointed by the Social Science Association, p. 93, &c. London, 1860.

[&]quot; Compare Herbert, vol. i. pp. 304-308.

exxiv

mystery before the next Candlemass; and that having so chosen it, he shall henceforth use no other '." This was a legal recognition of the principle of the trade-policy of the craftsmen, namely, that provision should be made to enable every one, with a small capital and his labour, to earn his daily bread in his trade freely and independently, in opposition to the principle of the rich, "freedom of trade." In like manner this principle became prevalent in all the Craft-Gilds on the Continent, and we find it formulated with special clearness in the Emperor Sigismund's extremely original "Secular Reformation" of 1434².

This period of development of the Craft-Gilds was followed by a further extension of them in the beginning of the fourteenth century, and soon afterwards by their degeneration. But before I enter upon this question, and upon the abuses which undisputed possession of their privileges and the full sway in all trade matters produced in them, I wish to speak more fully of the constitution of the Craft-Gilds during the first stage of their growth³. This constitution was but the perfect expression of the wants which called forth the Craft-Gilds, and of the task which they had to perform. Their fundamental principle was the same as that of the Frith-Gilds, that is, of those artificial unions which sprang up to replace the natural family compact, and to secure the protection which the latter afforded to their members in former times (see Part I.). The Craft-Gilds themselves first sprang up amongst the free craftsmen, when they were excluded from the fraternities which had taken the place of the family unions, and later among the bondmen, when they ceased to belong to the familia of their lord. Like those Frith-Gilds, the object of the early Craft-Gilds was to create relations as if among brothers; and above all things, to grant to their members that assistance which the member of a family might expect from that family. As men's wants had become different, this assistance no longer concerned the protection of life, limbs, and property, for this was provided for by the Frith-Gilds, now recognized as the legitimate authority; but the principal object of the Craft-Gilds was to secure their members in the independent, unimpaired, and regular earning of their daily bread by means of their craft. When then the Craft-Gilds, like the earlier Gilds for the maintenance of justice (Part I. pp. lxxiv, lxxv), were legally recognized, and were brought into the State organism as special associations for the regulation of their trade, a new fundamental element, namely, their quality as a police authority, was added to the element common to all Gilds.

Both these elements are to be found in the Craft-Gilds of all countries; indeed, in all they attained a development so similar, even in details, that whosever knows the Gild-Statutes of one country, knows those of all. Only in certain concrete regulations do we find deviations which I will point out in the course of this treatise¹.

The very soul of the Craft-Gild was its meetings, which brought all the Gild-brothers together every week or quarter. These meetings were always held with certain ceremonies, for the sake of greater solemnity. The box, having several locks like that of the Trade-Unions, and containing the charters of the Gild, the statutes, the money, and other valuable articles. was opened on such occasions, and all present had to uncover their heads. These meetings possessed all the rights which they themselves had not chosen to delegate. They elected the Presidents (originally called Aldermen, afterwards Masters and Wardens) and other officials, except in those cases already mentioned, in which the master was appointed by the king, the bishop, or the authorities of the town. As a rule, the Gilds were free to choose their masters, either from their own members, or from men of higher rank, though they were sometimes limited in their choice to the former². Did the election fall on a member who would not accept it, he was subjected to fines. Of a council.

^a There was a contest on that account at Cologne in the year 1258 between the Archbishop and the Craft-Gilds. Lacomblet, vol. ii. p. 247; compare also Wilda, p. 324. See also Mr. T. Smith's collection, p. 305.

¹ Herbert, vol. i. pp. 29, 30.

² Goldasti, Constitutiones Imperiales, tom. iv. p. 189, Francof. 1713. After much complaining "that one person carries on more trades than belong to him," it is said in cap. v., "Will you hear however what is ordained by Imperial law ? Our forefathers have not been fools. The crafts have been devised for this purpose, that everybody by them should earn his daily bread, and nobody shall interfere with the craft of another. By this the world gets rid of its misery, and every one may find his livelihood. If there be one who is a wineman, he shall have to do with this (i. e. the wine trade), and shall not practise another thing besides. Is he a breadbaker, the same, &c., no craft excepted. And it is to be prevented on Imperial command, and to be fined with forty marks of gold, where it is heard that the Imperial towns do not attend to this, that nobody of any trade whatever shall interfere with the craft of another," &c. Compare also cap. viii.

³ For the sake of completeness, and to avoid repetitions, I have sometimes also availed myself in the following statements of Gild-Statutes of the fourteenth century, except as to such points of course in which the degeneration had already begun in the fourteenth century.

¹ In order not to have to cite repeatedly the same sources for every individual statement, I refer here in general to Herbert, vol. i. pp. 40-102; also to the Ordinances in Riley's Memorials, and to Mr. Toulmin Smith's collection, especially to pp. 179, 182, 184, 208, 284, 312, 331, 334. Further, to the Gild-Statutes contained in Berlepsch, vols. ii-ix, and to the rich collection of Ouin-Lacroix; also to Ortloff, Das Recht der Handwerker, Erlangen, 1818, to Schönberg's article in Hildebrand's Jahrbücher für Nationalökonomie und Statistik, vol. ix. pp. i. &c., 97 &c., as well as to Hunter's History of Sheffield, p. 119, London, 1819.

which (like that of the Court of Assistants of later times) stood by the side of the masters, we find in early days at most but a trace, in the quorum of members which had to co-operate with the master on various occasions, as, for instance, in the exercise of jurisdiction. In Germany we find something similar in the council of six or eight men of some Gilds at Bâle and Vienna¹ earlier than in England, where we first notice in 1397, in the records of the Grocers, that six persons of that company were chosen to aid the wardens in the discharge of their duties. These cases excepted, assistants are first met with in the sixteenth century. We also find in the Grocers, as early as 1348, four auditors " to superintend the accounts and delivery of the wardens."

The wardens summoned and presided at the meetings, with their consent enacted ordinances for the regulation of the trade, saw these ordinances properly executed, and watched over the maintenance of the customs of the craft. They had the right to examine all manufactures, and a right of search for all unlawful tools and products. They formed, with the assistance of a quorum of Gild-brothers, the highest authority in all the concerns of the Gild. No Gild-member could be arraigned about trade-matters before any other judge. We have still numerous documentary proofs² of the severity and justice with which the wardens exercised their juridical duties. Whenever they held a court, it was under special forms and solemnities: thus, for instance, in 1275 the chief warden of the Masons building Strasburg Cathedial held a court sitting under a canopy. The local trades of the towns continued under a certain amount of control by the town authorities even after the Craft-Gilds had obtained power. The elected wardens had to be brought every year before the mayor, and had to swear "faithfully to execute their offices." The mayor also decided disputes between the several Gilds, and could fine and imprison the wardens of companies at his pleasure. The control of the sale of the most necessary provisions, such as bread, meat, drink, and fuel, was the special care of the town authorities, in order to prevent adulteration and overcharges³.

The punishments which the Craft-Gilds decreed consisted in the payment of fines, or, in earlier times, of certain quantities of wax, or of beer or wine to be drunk at their feasts. In case of more serious offences, such as perjury, persistent disobedience, &c., exclusion from the Gild was the consequence; and this was accompanied with loss of the right to carry on the craft'. Princes, churches, and city authorities frequently received a share in the fines, as well as in the entrance-fees and contributions of the members. This was especially the case in France?. where permission to carry on a trade had often to be purchased direct from the king. For enforcing payment of entrance-fees, contributions towards paying the fermes (dues), as well as of fines, the Craft-Gilds made use of the very means so much talked of in the case of the Sheffield Trade-Unions, namely, rattening, that is, they took away the tools of their debtors3. It is true that they, as their claims were legally recognized. could sell the tools and take what was due to them out of the proceeds, whilst the want of such recognition compelled the Trade-Unions to enforce payment of arrears by hiding and detaining the objects seized upon. This coercive measure existed unchanged even in the seventeenth century 4; so that this rat-

¹ The Constitutions of Masonry published by Mr. Halliwell are very explicit as to the punishment of disobedient members. The 12th Punctus says that they shall be taken in charge by the lords, sheriff, mayor, and knights, &c. present (with the master and other masons) at the assembly where the ordinances are made ; and the 15th Punctus says that if they will not make amends for their disobedience, they shall be turned out of the craft and not allowed to carry it on, and

"The scheref schal come hem sone to, And putte here bodyes yn duppe prison, For the trespasse that they hav y-don, And take here goodes and here cattelle Ynto the kynges hond, every delle, And lete hem dwelle here ful stylle. Tyl hyt be oure lege kynges wylle.

(1. 463-70.)-F. J. F.

^a For instance, Ouin-Lacroix, p. 746-Statuts des Poulaillers de Paris (thirteenth century), art. I : "Nus ne puet estre poulaillier à Paris, se il n'achate le mestier du roy, et le vent cil qu'il l'a achaté du roy, à l'un plus à l'autre mains, si comme il semble bon."

³ Compare Herbert, vol. i. p. 18. "Why the working implements of such of the mystery as were in arrears for their fermes might be distrained by the bailiffs of the Gild, to the amount it was computed they owed, and such distresses sold to pay the same?... why on non-payment of a member's share of the king's ferme, his working tools to the amount should be sold, or detained in the custody of the bailiffs; and also that any member offending against the liberties of the Gild, should be adjudged in like manner to have his working implements seized and disposed of ?... also if any withheld from another of the Gild his proper wages, and would not pay him, the Gild had power by their bailiffs to distrain. . . . "

* Compare Herbert, vol. i. pp. 191, 192. "If anie member, of his froward disposition or otherwise, refuse to pay quarterage, penalties, arrearages, or other amerciaments, the master and wardens, with their officers, shall have power at lawful times to enter such member's shop, and distrain the same." The same measures, seizure of tools and closing a member's shop, were also the means of coercion and punishment in the German Craft Gilds, the so-called "Handwerklegen" (i. e. stopping of the craft of a member). Compare Politz und Bülau, Neue Jahrbücher der Geschichte und Politik, 1843, vol. i. p. 359, &c.

¹ See the Gardeners of Bâle (Wilda, p. 325), the Spinnwetter at Bâle 1271 (Berlepsch, vol. ix. p. 20), the Tailors of Vienna 1340 (Berlepsch, vol. ii. p. 226).

² Compare, for instance, Mr. T. Smith's collection, p. 321; Herbert, vol. i.

p. 47. &c. ³ Mr. T. Smith's collection-The Office of the Mayor of Bristol, art. 14, 25, 26, 27, 28 (pp. 416, 420, &c.); Herbert, vol. i. p. 55, &c.; Arnold, vol. ii. p. 282, &c.; Ouin-Lacroix, p. 735; Wilda, p. 319; Riley, pp. 156-162, 174, &c.

tening, which called forth such pharisaical indignation from the united employers' press, probably enjoys an uninterrupted descent from employers' associations up to the time of Edward II. But it is even far older. It is the old right of distraint of the creditor against the debtor, which occurs in the earliest laws of all German tribes, and was lawfully exercised in Germany up to the sixteenth century¹.

As the object of the association of claftsmen was the regulation of their trade, it was a necessary condition of the efficient working of their rules, that all who carried on the trade should belong to it. This was a matter of course, when they had been legally recognized as a special authority for lawful purposes. Hence it is altogether wrong to represent the constantly recurring ordinance, that every one carrying on the trade should join the Gild, as a consequence of the monopolistic tendencies of the Craft-Gilds. There was, on the contrary, no question whatever of a monopoly in that time. It was not then as it was at the time of the degeneration of the Craft Gilds, when, as corporations with a limited number of members. they prohibited all non-members of the Gild from carrying on the trade. On the contrary, every person was at first permitted to carry on the trade, if only he joined and submitted himself to the organism created for the purpose of regulating it, that is, if he entered the Craft-Gild; and then, as a member entitled to vote, he exercised influence on its decisions. The yearly fermes (dues) too, which the craftsmen had to pay for their privileges, sufficiently explain their wish to draw into their society all the men of their trade, in order to secure increased contributions; and when Edward III. granted a special Gild to the Flemish Weavers, the indignation of the London Weavers may be easily understood, as well as their effort to make the Flemish men participate in the payment of their fermes².

The income of the Craft-Gilds consisted of small entrancefees, of wax for the churches, and of taxes which were levied for special purposes as they occurred; for instance, on the death, impoverishment, pilgrimage, &c. of a member. Regular periodical contributions are only met with at a later stage.

The rules laid down by the Gilds, and to which all men of the trade had to submit, had reference (1) partly to securing the good quality of the work, and (2) partly, like all Gild-Statutes, to the temporal and eternal welfare of their members. Both kinds of rules were consequences of the fundamental principle of all Gilds, namely, care for the common interest by means of association. In the first kind, however, the function of the Gild, as a police authority on behalf of the public, possibly prevailed. But even in them the idea was present that by these measures they protected themselves against loss of the honour and good repute of the trade, as well as against loss of custom. The latter motive may be especially attributed to those craftsmen who, like the Weavers, worked for a more extensive market.

Wherever the Craft-Gilds were legally acknowledged, we find foremost, that the right to exercise their craft, and sell their manufactures, depended upon the freedom of their city, a fact which is sufficiently explained by the political tendencies of the Craft-Gilds. It is an exception when we find, as in the case of the Fullers of Lincoln, that strangers also were admitted on payment of special taxes to the Gild. On the Continent, after the fourteenth century, a system of reciprocity was frequently established between the several towns, as for instance in 1365 at Tournay¹.

No one was admitted to any trade, even to the lowest, or tolerated in it, whose moral conduct and honour were not stainless; no one, also, who had not proved himself a proper workman; and, therefore, no one who had not served a regular apprenticeship. The duration of this apprenticeship differed in various trades. In England it generally lasted seven years, in France from three to four, sometimes six; in Germany from two to four years. The admission of an apprentice was an act of special solemnity, corresponding to the important legal consequences it involved. As it was the beginning of a kind of novitiate to citizenship, it generally took place in the Town-hall, in the presence of the town authorities (in London, even in the present day², it is performed in the Guildhall by the Chamberlain of the City), or in solemn meeting of the Craft-Gild. On this occasion the apprentice was specially instructed in his duties, both as to his moral conduct and the trade. At last, a record of the act-the indenture-was drawn up, which also contained the special conditions under which the apprentice was placed with his master. By this admission the apprentice became a member of the family of his master, who instructed him in his trade, and who, like a

¹ See Walter's Deutsche Rechtsgeschichte, Bonn, 1853, § 538, and Bluntschli's Deutsches Privatrecht, § 102, No. 3.

² Compare Herbert, vol. i. p. 20, note; Madox, Firma Burgi, pp. 194, 195.

¹ Ouin Lacroix, p. 749—Statuts des Tisserands de Tournay en 1365, art. vi.. "Ceux qui ne sont pas de Tournay ne pourront y exercer ce métier, que dans le cas ou les habitants de cette ville pourront exercer le même métier, dans celles d'oir ces étrangers sont originaires."

² Compare Arundell's Reminiscences of the City of London and its Livery Companies, p 162, London, 1869. For the instructions to apprentices from the sixteenth century, see Stow's Survey of London, Edit. 1720, p 328. Compare too Moke, vol. i. p. 195, Berlepsch passim, for instance, vol. ix. p. 29.

father, had to watch over his morals, as well as his work, during his apprenticeship. At the expiration of his apprenticeship the lad (then a man) was received into the Gild again with special forms and solemnities, and became thereby a citizen of the town. On both occasions a fee had to be paid: in London it was 2s. 6d. on becoming an apprentice, and 3s. 4d. on becoming a member of the Gild.

After the care for skilful workmen, the next concern of the Gild was for the use of proper tools, and the application of welladapted processes of manufacture. No member of the Gild was allowed to possess tools "unless the same were testified to be good and honest;" and the statutes contained directions and prohibitions, entering into the most minute details, with reference to the method of working. It was specially forbidden, in the strongest terms, to mix inferior materials with a better sort, to the detriment of the buyer, or to sell patched-up articles as new. Measures were also taken to protect the public against the spoiling of materials entrusted to the craftsmen for manufacture. Thus, the statutes of the Whittawers¹ directed the Gild-brothers to assist a member who did not know how to go on with his work, in order that it might not be spoiled. Such directions are specially frequent among the Masons², from whom customers received special guarantees for the proper completion of their work. We also find sanitary regulations with regard to the observance of cleanliness in carrying on the craft. Subject to these measures of supervision, all Gild associates were allowed to sell all articles of the trade within the town, and without any other control than that of the Gild.

Nominally, to insure the good quality of their wares, the Gild-Statutes always ordain that no one "shall work longer than from the beginning of the day until curfew," nor "at night by candlelight." But doubtless the real ground for this ordinance was rather regard for the well-being of the Gild-brothers; it was the wish to give them leisure for fulfilling their domestic and political duties, and to prevent the collective body from being forced to over-exertions by the competition of a few too zealous for gain, and from being thus deprived of every enjoyment of life. Similar considerations were also sometimes the cause of long holidays; as for instance of the prohibition of the London Weavers 1 to work between Christmas and Purification-day (Feb. 2). The same considerations, supported by religious motives, caused the strict prohibition of work on Sundays and festivals, and "on Saturday or the eve of a double feast, after noon has been rung." This last ordinance, forbidding work on the last mentioned afternoons, was common to all countries, and had its origin in a custom of the Roman-Catholic Church to solemnize the eve of festivals and Sundays by religious services ². Hence it was lost at the Reformation ; and it was not till lately that English workmen were able to regain their lost holiday. There were also other measures arising from this general tendency to prevent a ruinous competition amongst Gild-brothers, as contrary to the spirit of brotherhood. Their ordinances were framed for the "better relief and comodytie of the porer sorte." No Gild-associate was to entice away a brother's customers nor a brother's servant. We frequently also meet with restrictions in the number of servants and apprentices which an individual member was allowed to have. And at an early period regulations as to prices, under the supervision of the town authorities, became common. The Gild-Statutes further forbad working for a customer who was still indebted to a brother. Any member becoming poor from "adventures on the sea, or the advanced price of merchandize, or by borrowing and pledging, or by any other misfortunes," might claim to be relieved in proportion to the fraternity's funds. Even in 1723 the bye-laws of the Gild of the Joiners and Carpenters of Worcester ordained, "that whereever any freeman buys any parcel of timber or boards coming to the city to be sold, and fit for the crafts, every freeman may have a share therein, not exceeding a third, at cost price, on request, and paying ready money, under penalty of 20s. for refusing to share "." As long as members of the Gild were out of

¹ Herbert, vol. i. p. 19. The acts and ordinances of the Company of Cutlers and makers of knives in Hallamshire prescribe in art. i. that no manufacturer, whether master, servant, or apprentice, shall perform "any work apperteyninge to the said scyence and mysterye of Cutlers" for twenty eight days next ensuing the 8th day of August in each year, nor from Christmas to the 23:d of January; and in Art. iv., "No person occupying any wheel for the grinding of knives to allow of any work being done there during the holiday months. Penalty as before." (Hunter's History of Sheffield, p. 119.)

² See, on the Saturday half-holiday in England in A.D. 1303, Robert of Brunne's Handlyng Synne, ed. 1862. (Note by F. J. F.)

^s English Gilds, p. 210. Mr. Ludlow (The Fortnightly Review, Oct. 1869, p. 405) very truly observes: "The spirit of this rule, as well as of that of the Berwick Gild as to sharing a load of herrings with one's neighbours, is exactly the same as that of the rules of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers, requiring members who take piecework to share equally any surplus made with all members working on the iob."

¹ Riley's Memorials, p. 232. See also English Gilds, pp. 321 &c., 331.

² Riley's Memorials, pp. 280–282—Regulations for the trade of Masons. According to them, he "who wishes to undertake work in gross" has to bring forward four ancient men of his trade as security for the proper execution of the work; and they, in the event of his not fulfilling his duty, have to elecute the work themselves. Compare also the Code of the Rochlitz Stonemasons of 1462, art. 3-7 (Berlepsch, vol. viii. p. 196).

work, no member was to work with non-members. On the other hand, a member was always allowed to employ his wife, children, and maid in work; for the whole household of a Gild-brother belonged to the Gild¹. This led unfortunately in later times to many easings to the sons of Gild-brothers in learning the trade and acquiring the freedom of the Gild, as well as to the degeneration of the Gilds into family coteries. Another consequence of these laws was, that after the death of a Gild-brother, his widow could carry on his trade, and could remain a member of the Gild. Even if she married again a man of the same trade who was not free of the Gild, she generally² conferred on her second husband that freedom by mariying him. If, on the other hand, she married a man who did not belong to the same trade, she was excluded from the Gild during that wedlock. The same brotherly spirit gave rise also to laws forbidding insults and ill-usage among Gild-brothers; to the prohibition to appear before a court of justice for disputes about debts and other matters, unless every transaction had first been examined by the Gild-wardens, and every compromise proved impossible; and also to a series of other rules referring to their domestic conduct³ among each other, and the prevention of unneighbourly tricks. The Gild-Statutes also, in conformity with the spirit of the times, often contain sumptuary laws for the members, and especially with reference to apprentices. As the Craft-Gilds did duty also as divisions of the military forces of the town, we find in their statutes many articles⁴ referring to this matter; and

² The only exception known to me is art. vi. in the Statuts des Poulaillers de Paris: "The wife of a poulterer may carry on the said mystery after the death of her husband, quite as freely as if her sire was alive; and if she marries a man not of the mystery, and wishes to carry it on, she must buy the (right of carrying on the) mystery, in the above described manner; as she would be obliged to buy the mystery, if her husband was of the mystery, and had not yet bought it; for the husband is not in the dominion of the wife, but the wife is in the dominion of the husband" ("quar li homme n'est pas en la seignorie à la fame, mès la fame est en la seignorie à l'home") .- Ouin-Lacroix, p. 747.

³ For instance, "that no man of the fraternite take his neyghbor's house yt is of the same fraternite, or enhaunce the rent against the wille of the foresaid neighbor." - Herbert, vol. i. p 49; compare also Berlepsch, vol. v. p. 18, vol. ix.

p. 21. ⁴ Wilda, p. 340. The Statutes of the Débiteurs de bois of Gant declare : "Tout membre qui ne se rend pas en armes sous la bannière du métier, quand les bonnes gens de Gand se réunissent en équipage de guerre, forfaira le prix de plusieurs jours de travail pour chaque fois."-Moke, vol. i. p. 196. Compare also the Statutes of the "Spinnwetter" at Bâle, 1271, Berlepsch, vol. ix. p. 21.

brilliant were the victories which some of the Gilds gained under their trade banners¹. Naturally enough, the Craft-Gilds were not deficient in that element essential to all Gilds, the common meal, which in later times was held in their sometimes magnificent hall 2.

The Gild, which, as we have shown, stood like a loving mother, providing and assisting, at the side of her sons in every circumstance of life, cared for her children even after death; and the ordinances as to this last act breathe the same spirit of equality among her sons on which all her regulations were founded, and which constituted her strength. In cases of insolvency at death, the funerals of poor members were to be equally respected with those of the rich.

Besides being brotherhoods for the care of the temporal welfare of their members, the Craft-Gilds were, like the rest of the Gilds, at the same time religious fraternities. In the account of the origin of the Company of Grocers³ it is mentioned that, at the very first meeting, they fixed a stipend for the priest, who had to conduct their religious services, and to pray for their dead. In this respect the Craft-Gilds of all countries are alike; and in reading their statutes, one might fancy sometimes that the old craftsmen cared only for the well-being of their souls. All had particular saints for patrons, after whom the society was frequently called; and where it was possible, they chose one who had some relation to their trade⁴. They founded masses, altars, and painted windows in cathedrals; and even at the present day their coats of arms and their gifts range proudly by the side of those of kings and barons. Sometimes individual Craft-Gilds appear to have stood in special relations to a particular church ⁵, by virtue of which they had to perform special services, and received in return a special share in all the prayers of the clergy of that church. In later times the Craft-Gilds frequently went in solemn procession to their churches. We find innumerable

¹ For instance, the Journeymen-Bakers of Munich at Ampfing, 1322 (Berlepsch, vol. vi. p. 151), the Butchers of Liège at Steppes, 1213 (Moke, vol. ii. p. 66), the Furriers of Brussels at the siege of Malines, 1303 (Ibid. p. 124), above all, the Flemish Weavers at Courtrai, 1302 (lbid. p. 146), &c. &c. ² We have an account of the Tailors' Hall in London existing already in the time of Edward III. (Herbert, vol. i. p. 87).

⁸ Herbert, vol. i. pp. 43-45. ⁴ For the names of the saints in certain trades, see Brand's Popular Antiquities, vol. i. p. 202, ed 1841. (Note of F. J. F.)

⁵ Compare the London Saddlers (Herbert, vol. i. p. 16); but their Gild was probably a purely religious one; see also the Fullers of Lincoln and their relation to the deanery of that city (Mr. T. Smith's collection, p. 179); and the Craft-Gilds at Bâle and their relation to the cathedral (Berlepsch, vol. ii. p. 18, vol. v. p. 18, vol. ix. p. 19).

¹ This answers too the question of Mr Toulmin Smith : "Why is he (a fuller of Lincoln) not to work at the bar in company with an ordinary woman, while he may do so with a master's wife or her handmaid?" (Note on p. 180 of his collection.) In Riley's Memorials, too, the rule is frequent, "that no one of the trade shall set any woman to work, other than his wedded wife and daughter" (for instance, pp. 216, 277, 547, &c.). Compare too Wilda, p. 329.

ordinances also as to the support of the sick and poor; and to afford a settled asylum for distress, the London Companies early built dwellings near their halls. The chief care however of the Gildmen was always directed to the welfare of the souls of the dead. Every year a requiem was sung for all departed Gildbrothers, when they were all mentioned by name; and on the death of any member, special services were held for his soul, and distribution of alms was made to the poor, who in return had to offer up prayers for the dead, as is still the custom in Roman-Catholic countries ¹.

Sometimes we find in one and the same place a single trade, or kindred trades, organized into several Craft-Gilds; as for instance in London, two Gilds of Tanners, one without Newgate and one without Cripplegate²; and the four Weaver Gilds at Cologne in the thirteenth century 3; just as is still the case with the Trade-Unions. And like the amalgamations of Trade-Unions. which are always becoming more frequent in the present day. these different old Craft-Gilds frequently amalgamated in later times; as for instance the above-mentioned four Weaver Gilds at Cologne in 1396, and the Fullers and Shearmen of London in 15274. Like the Trade-Societies embracing all England, and even more, and like the early German Town-Confederations, these Gild-Unions in some trades were extended over whole countries. Thus we gather from the charter of the Tailors of Schweidnitz in 1361, that they formed a union of the tailoring trade in twenty-five Silesian towns⁵. And in the middle of the fourteenth century the various Cutlers' Gilds in Germany were united into four great fraternities, at Augsburg, Munich, Heidelberg, and Bâle, by whom all great differences, which could not be settled by the separate Gilds or their presidents, were legally decided 6. But the most renowned of these confederations was that of the various building-lodges of Germany. It was brought about in 1452 by Dolzinger, chief-master at the building of Strasburg Cathedral; and in 1454 common statutes were discussed and passed at a general meeting at Ratisbon, and were revised and confirmed on several other lodge days. In accordance with these statutes, four central lodges were created, Strasburg. Cologne, Vienna, and Zurich, each with a separate district. Strasburg, however, had the precedence. The overseer of the cathedral works was Grand-Master of the Stonemasons' fraternity, and according to its code, confirmed by the Emperor Matthias in 1613, he was even then still considered as " chief judge of stonework." Even in the eighteenth century the Masters of the Stonemasons' lodge at Strasburg demanded a goldfinch from the lodge at Rochlitz as a token of its dependence¹. And as late as 1789, the Vienna lodge administered justice throughout the whole of its district, awarded punishment, and so forth. This union of the workmen in the building trades was followed by others amongst kindred or technically-identical crafts, especially amongst those which, on account of the trifling demand for their wares, could not exist in small towns at all, and only in limited numbers in large towns, as for instance the Locksmiths and Sword-cutlers². The central societies were in the capitals, the branches in the small towns. Three masters in any one of the confederated towns formed a corporation, whose acts, if they were in conformity with the acts and statutes of the central society, were legally recognized by the other confederated societies. As the branch societies were subordinated to the central one, they were always obliged to send a couple of deputies to the meetings which took place at the abode of the central society; and to give there the accounts of their branches. At these meetings the common good of the Gild was discussed; and all concerns which could not be regulated by the branches were settled. Sometimes even the branches and central societies divided their money proportionately amongst themselves. The central societies of several crafts were at Nürnberg; and masters from all parts of Germany-and even from Courland and Livonia -there purchased freedom and master's credentials, and got their apprentices enrolled ; as, for instance, the Combmakers, Filecutters, Brushmakers, Coppersmiths, &c.³ I would not enter into all these details, were it not for their great similarity to the circumstances of some Trade-Unions of the present day, for instance, the Amalgamated Engineers.

² Herbert, vol. i. p. 31.
⁴ Herbert, vol. ii. p. 654.
⁶ Berlepsch, vol. vii. p. 123.

Though in the preceding paragraph I have spoken partly of very late times, yet one relation, namely, that between workmen and masters before the degeneration of the Craft-Gilds, has not yet been touched on at all. The facts recorded concerning it, before the

¹ Thus, for instance, in the Statutes of the Fullers of Lincoln it is said (English Gilds, p. 180): "When any of the bretheren and sisteren dies, the rest shall give a halfpenny each to buy bread to be given to the poor, for the soul's sake of the dead." These alms, in order that the poor should pray for the dead, sprang from the same belief as the causing masses to be said for the souls of the departed, and there is therefore no room for Mr. Toulmin Smith's doubts and questions in his note on p. 181.

⁸ Arnold, vol. i. p. 254, &c. ⁵ Berlepsch, vol. ii. p. 230.

¹ Berlepsch, vol. viii. pp. 186, 187.

² Politz and Bulau, 1842, vol. ii. pp. 341-343.

³ Ortloff, Recht der Handwerker, pp. 82, 83.

middle of the fourteenth century, are extremely meagre. They consist entirely of prohibitions against engaging the servant of another before the expiration of his servitude, or so long as his former master had a claim on him; of regulations as to the number of servants allowed to a master; of punishments incurred by masters who kept back their servants' wages; and lastly, of the ordinance that all disputes between masters and servants should be decided by the wardens of the Gild. Servants' wages also were probably at that time fixed by the wardens. This slight notice of servants in the accounts of the early Craft-Gilds may however be sufficiently explained by the character of handicrafts in that age. They were for the most part merely local trades, and were mostly, if not entirely, carried on by natives of the towns, as many Gild-Statutes expressly declare. A great influx of labour, and an overstocking of the trade with hands, were therefore impossible. Moreover, the Gilds were not yet close corporations, and in the then state of handicraft a large capital to carry it on as a master was not required. And if we consider, finally, that from the frequently recurring restriction of a master to only one servant¹, a very insignificant number of them must be inferred, and that many Gild-Statutes do not even mention servants at all, but only apprentices, it appears very probable that the majority of apprentices would, as soon as their apprenticeship had expired, practise their handicraft on their own account, and that only a few would work as servants, and these merely for a time. Of a real working-class, with separate interests and ideas, there was therefore at that time no question at all. We meet with an exception to this rule only in the cloth manufactures of the Belgian towns, which were carried on on a larger scale and for an extended market. Here servants took part, as delegates of their class, even in the supervision of labour², gave their consent to the ordinances for regulating the trade, and received their pay in a definite proportion to that of their masters. In some places, as at Bruges, the servants received a real share in their masters' profits³. Even where the supervision of woollen manufactures was entirely in the hands of patricians, no regulations were framed without the servants having been previously heard¹.

¹ For instance, Statuts des Chandeliers de Rouen, rédigés en 1360, Ouin-Lacroix, p. 589.

² Moke, vol. ii. p. 108: "A Ypres, nous voyons les valets admis à partager la surveillance du travail. Ce dernier règlement, qui date de 1280, divise ainsi les inspecteurs : il y aura dans la ville d'Ypres deux voies (c'est-à-dire deux inspection-), l'inspection du nord et l'inspection du sud. Dans chacune six maître- et trois valets."

³ Moke, vol. ii. p. 99, says, speaking of the "Anciennes Ordonnances d'Ypres" of 1280: "Voici dans quelles proportions s'y trouvent calculés les salaires du maître et du valet dans le métier des tondeurs :—

Such harmonious relations, however, cannot be inferred from the accounts we have after the middle of the fourteenth century ; and this, it appears to me, was in consequence of the degeneration of the Craft-Gilds, which in certain places and in certain trades commenced with the fourteenth century. We must not forget that these Gilds were not unions of labourers in the present sense of the word, but of persons who, with the help of some stock, carried on their craft on their own account. The Gild contests were, consequently, not contests for acquiring political equality for labour and property, but for the recognition of political equality of trade-stock and real property in the towns. These contests, therefore, nowhere led to a participation of the masses in the government; but in the place of an oligarchy of landed proprietors, an oligarchy of capitalists stept in ². If originally the capital required for carrying on a craft was but insignificant, and was possessed by the majority of the lower classes of the townsmen, so that the possession of small capital did not characterize the Gild in a higher degree than labour, yet this state of things was changed with the advance and flourishing of trade, and the increase of riches amongst craftsmen. But in proportion as a trade advanced and acquired wider markets, it afforded greater opportunities for the employment of capital; and in the same proportion the Craft-Gild changed from a society for the protection of labour, into an opportunity for the investment of capital. But at the same time this rise in the moneypower of the Gilds-and especially of the cloth manufacturesdrew the villeins in masses into the towns and into the trades '. Concern for the productiveness of their investments aroused the spirit of monopoly in the craftsmen, and called forth a mul-

Le Maître.	Le Valet.
12	8
10	8
6	5
26	22

54 43 Les règlements du métier des Tisserands à Bruges (p. 14) ordonnent que de cinq deniers le maître en ait trois, le valet deux (or le maître fournissait le métier et le local).

"Plusieurs ordonnances règlementaires portent pour clause, 'du consentement des maîtres et des valets.'"

Thus at Brussels, see Moke, vol ii. p. 108.

² Arnold, vol. ii. p. 292, &c.

* Compare Eden, State of the Poor, vol. i. pp. 30, 43, 57, 61.

titude of restrictions on the competition of the new aspiring families. The entrance fees were raised; and on the Continent arose the custom of requiring a costly masterpiece from every outsider who wanted leave to carry on a craft on his own account, whilst entrance was made easy to the sons and sons-in-law of members, as well as to those who married a widow belonging to a Gild¹. At Bremen, where, it appears, shoes were made for a larger market, as early as A. D. 1300, the membership of the Gild among the Shoemakers was inherited by both sons and daughters; and every one who became master had to pay a quarter of a mark. In 1308 it was decreed in that town that whoever was not born in the Gild, must before entering it be possessed of a fortune of eight marks free of debt². At Tournay³ it became necessary as early as 1365 to forbid usurers carrying on the Weavers' trade. The capitalist character of the Gild became preponderant to such an extent, that proof of the possession of capital, or of a house in which the trade was to be carried on ', was frequently made a requisite for a candidate's admission. Often we find a forbiddance to carry on trade with borrowed capital⁵; and hence, even where the practice of inheriting the freedom of the Gild had not been established by the Gild-Statutes⁶, the freedom became practically hereditary on account of the difficulty of complying with the conditions for entrance. Even the requisite of spotless honour for admission was abused by the Gild-meetings in order to keep off competition, for they had the right of refusing admittance to anybody. Whole classes of persons were denied admission, as in Germany, all born out of wedlock, the sons of peasants, &c.7 In England also legitimate birth was a requisite of admission⁸. Besides,

¹ Ouin-Lacroix, p. 651-Statuts des Éperonniers de Rouen en 1358, art. xi. p. 655 ; Statuts des Filas iers et Filassières de Rouen, 1358 et 1394, art. xvi., &c.

² Berlepsch, vol. iv. pp. 32, 34. ³ Ouin-Lacroix, p. 749-Statuts des Tisserands de Tournay en 1365, art. ii.: "Un usurier ne pourra exercer le métier de tisserand."

- 4 Berlepsch, vol. vi. pp. 126, 127.
- Berlepsch, vol. ii. p. 229-Charter of the Vienna Tailors, 1340.

6 Ouin-Lacroix, p. 740-Statuts des Forgerons d'outre les rivières d'Orne et Aure en Normandie en 1405, art. i.: "Nul ne forgera s'il n'est fils d'un ferron ou mari d'une de ses filles.

⁷ Berlepsch, vol. iv. p. 33; Pölitz and Bulau, 1841, vol. ii., Stock's article on Gilds.

⁸ See the Constitutions of Masonry, printed by Mr. Halliwell from the MS. Bibl. Reg. 17. A. I, fol. 32, in the British Museum, second edition, 1844. Though these recognize the keeping of concubines by Masons, telling one,

> 'Thou schal not . . ly . . by thy felows concubyne, No more thou woldest he dede by thyne,"-(l. 324-328)- yet by Articulus quintus the apprentice is evidently to be of lawful birth :--- exxxix

in this country in the fourteenth century every citizen had to swear, when he received the freedom of the City, that he would take no apprentice "but if he be free-born, (that is to say) no bondsman's son 1; " and if after he was made free of the Gild and the City, it was known that he was of servile condition, he lost his freedom². In short, in the fourteenth century commenced the transformation of the trades into entails of a limited number of families,---though this number may have been large; and the narrow-minded spirit of capital, petty rivalries, and hateful egotism began to take the place of the great idea of association and solidarity under which the Craft-Gilds grew up and flourished. Sometimes the richer craftsmen withdrew from their poorer brethren into separate Gilds, as, for instance, the Shoemakers from the Cobblers, the Tanners from the Shoemakers³; and we frequently hear of disputes among the Craft-Gilds concerning what belonged to their trade 4. The Emperor Sigismund also complains, in 1434, in his Secular Reformation⁵, that membership of the Gilds had then to be "grossly bought," that in the town council the crafts followed with partiality their own advantage only, to the public detriment; and he believes that the only remedy would be their abolition. Similar abuses of the craftsmen perhaps contributed to the ordinance requiring returns as to the aims, constitution, statutes and means of the Gilds,

"The fyfthe artycul ys swythe good,

So that the prentes be of lawful blod."-(1. 147-8.)

And the apprentice of higher degree is evidently also legally born :--

" By olde tyme wryten y finde,

That the prentes schulde be of gentyl kynde;

And so sumtyme grete lordys blod

Toke thys gemetry, that ys ful good."-(l. 143-6. F. J. F.)

¹ Compare the well-known passage in the Constitutions of Masonry (MS. of the fifteenth century), ed. Halliwell, p. 16, Articulus quartus :---

"The fowrthe artycul thys moste be, That the mayster hym wel bese

That he no bondemon prentys make,

Ny for no covetyse do hym take;

For the lord that he ys bonde to,

May fache the prentes whersever he go.

3ef yn the logge [note the early use of the word lodge] he were ytake,

Muche desese hyt my3th ther make,

And suche case hyt my3th befalle,

That hyt my3th greve summe or alle."-(1. 127-136. F. J. F.) ² Stow's Survey of London, p. 328, where examples are produced of citizens losing the freedom of the City in later times on account of their being born as bondsmen.

- ³ Berlepsch, vol. iv. p. 41, &c.; Ouin-Lacroix, p. 748-Tanneurs de Sens, 1375, art. x.
- Berlepsch, ibid ; Riley, Memorials, pp. 156-162 ; Herbert, vol. i. p. 104. ^b Goldasti, Constitutiones Imperiales, vol. iv. p. 189, cap. iv.

in 12 Richard II.. to which we are indebted for most of the documents contained in Mr. Smith's collection. At least, complaints against the Gilds were at other times the occasion for such inquiries. Thus, in the case of the London Weavers in 14 Edward II., and later in 1437, 15 Henry VI., on a petition¹ of the Commons to the king declaring that the Craft-Gilds abused the privileges granted to them by enacting ordinances hurtful to the common profit of the people; and in our time also we have seen, from the same cause, something similar in the Royal Commission on Trade-Unions. The Act which followed in consequence of the petition in 1437, the 15th Henry VI. c. 6, 7, ordained, besides the returns just mentioned, "that they [the Gilds] should not make or use any ordinance in disparity or diminution of the franchises of the king or others, or against the common profit of the people, nor allow any other ordinances without their being first approved and enrolled before such Justices of the Peace, and that the same should be by them afterwards revoked and recalled, if not found to be wholly loval and reasonable," &c.

The last-mentioned restrictions in the Craft-Gilds at a timethe middle of the fourteenth century-when the villeins were rushing in great numbers into the towns to take up trades, must have prevented a great number, and in several trades the majority, of workmen, from themselves becoming independent masters; and thus there arose a real working-class, with separate views and interests. Whilst the statutes before the fourteenth century frequently do not even mention the workmen, after the middle of the fourteenth century it became absolutely necessary to regulate their relations to their masters. Above all things, the provisions for the settlement of disputes between masters and workmen which recur in all countries, are striking, as well as the care that both masters and workmen should fulfil their obligations to each other. The deciding authorities were here always the wardens of the Gild. Masters who withheld from the workmen the wages to which they were entitled were compelled to pay by the Gild authorities². On the other hand, "if any serving man shall conduct himself in any other manner than properly towards his master, and act rebelliously towards him, no one of the trade shall set him to work until he shall have made amends before the mayor and aldermen, and before them such misprision shall be redressed¹." In the case of the Tailors of Vienna the rule became necessary that "no workman shall be allowed to leave his master fourteen days before a festival," that is, at a time when there would be the greatest demand for work². Among the Tailors of Silesia we find that in 1361 the system of journeymen travelling in search of work was already completely organized³. Some of the Continental statutes - probably with the object of restricting competition-made it a requisite of mastership that every one should have worked as a journeyman for a certain number of years⁴. Moreover, all journeymen were strictly forbidden to work on their own account ⁵; and, where they were allowed to marry. their wives were forbidden to work⁶. These workmen had also frequently to become members of the Gild, and had to pay contributions⁷. But a great difference was evidently made between the workman who had no prospect of becoming a master, and the apprentice who took to the trade with that view⁸. Besides also. we meet with beneficent regulations in favour of the workmen. Thus, for instance, the articles of the Braelers⁹ decree : "If any serving man of the said trade, who has behaved himself well and loyally towards his masters whom he has served, shall fall sick, or be unable to help or maintain himself, he shall be found by the good folks of the said trade until he shall have recovered and be able to help and maintain himself."

instance, Ouin-Lacroix, p. 748-Statuts des Tailleurs de Montpellier en 1351. art. xi.: "Si quelque maitre ne faisait pas justice à ses ouvriers en leur refusant leur salaire, il sera tenu de les satisfaire à l'arbitrage des maîtres." Art. xii. : "Si quelque ouvrier obligé envers quelq'un des maîtres, ne voulait s'acquitter à l'arbitrage des autres maîtres, nul des maîtres ne lui donnera plus d'emploi." See also Ibid. p. 740-Statuts des Forgerons, &c., en Normandie, 1405, art. i., and many other Gild-Statutes.

¹ See Riley's Memorials-Ordinances of the Whittawers, 1346 (p. 232); Braelers, ¹³⁵⁵ (p. 277); Founders, 1389 (p. 512); Brasiers, 1416 (p. 624), &c.

⁵ See, for instance, Ouin-Lacroix, p. 748—Tailleurs de Montpellier en 1351, art. xiii. ⁶ For instance, Ouin-Lacroix, p. 584—Cardiers de Rouen en 1397, art. xii. p. 675; Gaîniers de Rouen en 1402, art. xiii. ⁷ See Riley's Memori Is, p. 547—Articles of the Leathersellers, 1398; Ouin-Lacroix, Tailleuris de Neuer de Leathersellers, 1398; Ouin-

⁸ For instance, Riley's Memorials, p. 570—Articles of the Bladesmiths, 1408 : "And that no one of the said trade shall teach his journeymen the secret of his trade, as he would his apprentice, on the pain aforesaid."

⁹ Riley's Memorials, p. 277.

¹ Herbert, vol. i. pp. 106, 107.

² Riley, Memorials, p. 306-Articles of the Alien Weavers, 1362: "If any workman has served his alien master by the day or by the week, and the said master will not pay the workman for his work, according as they shall have agreed, the good folks who shall be ordained or sworn to keep and rule the said trade, shall have power to forbid the said master to be so daring as to work at the said trade until he shall have paid his workman what he is bound to pay him. And if he shall do the contrary, and be convicted thereof, let him pay to the chamber the penalty that is underwritten." See also Ibid. p. 512-Ordinances of the Founders, 1380, and others. The Gild-Statutes of the Continent show the same fact, for Berlepsch, vol. ii. p. 229.

³ Ibid. pp. 230-233.
⁴ See, for instance, Ouin-Lacroix, p. 735—Statuts des Boulangers d'Arras en 1372, art i.

Lacroix, Tailleurs de Montpellier en 1351, art. ii.

The plague of 1348, and the consequent depopulation, brought the opposition between the interests of the working-class and the employers for the first time on a large scale to a crisis. As the clergy took advantage of the small number of those who could say masses and prayers in conformity with the intentions of the faithful in order to increase their fees, and as merchants and tradesmen took advantage of the small supply of wares to raise their prices, in like manner the workmen endeavoured to use, for a general rise in wages, the distress into which the propertied class had been plunged through the universal dearth of labour. The consequences of this were the notorious Statutes of Labourers (23 and 25 Edward III.), in which it was ordained for workmen in general, but especially for agricultural labourers and those employed in the building trades, that no workman should take more, and no employer should give more, than had been customary before the plague. It has become the fashion in our time to represent these wage-regulations as a policy contrived for the oppression of the labourer, and this especially in explanations to working-men asking for legal regulations of wages,-as they frequently did towards the end of the last century and in the beginning of the present,-of the superior value of modern legislation for the working-class. To give such a character to these statutes is however, in my judgment, a complete misrepresentation of the real state of the case. These regulations of wages were but the expression of the general policy of the Middle Ages, which considered that the first duty of the State was to protect the weak against the strong, which not only knew of rights, but also of duties of the individual towards society, and condemned as usury every attempt to take unseemly advantage of the temporary distress of one's neighbour¹. According to Knighton, there existed at the time of the plague such distress and such general loosening of the bonds of society as is only to be found in the descriptions of earthquakes in South America. Whole villages died out; houses fell into ruins; nobody would work except for enormous wages. In consequence of this, whole flocks perished for want of herdsmen, and the corn-crops, which were unusually rich that year, perished on the ground, as no reapers could be found. All existing relations threatened to become dissolved. To this was added an incursion of the Scots; and then the king, in order to bring something like order into the chaos, and to save the State and society from destruction, issued the ordinance which compelled the labourers to work for fixed wages. In order to have something like a fixed standard, he naturally reverted to the scale of wages which existed before the plague. But ordinances of this kind were by no means directed against the labourers alone, for similar measures struck at all who in a similar spirit of usury would enrich themselves from the general misery, like those clergy who claimed larger fees for their prayers and masses, and like those merchants and tradesmen who raised the price of their goods. The purpose of the law, to protect especially the weak, may also be seen in the punishments which the rich incurred who paid higher wages, thereby raising the general rate, and thus preventing poorer men from hiring labourers¹. However much this policy must be condemned as unwise from an economical point of view, yet surely to render it suspected, as is the pharisaical wont in our days, is miserable; for at all events its basis is more moral than ours, when we give up our workmen without protection to their employers, and they have to choose only between the conditions of their masters and the workhouse or starvation.

In the towns the plague produced the same consequences as in the country, and accordingly, in 1350, we meet with a regulation by the mayor of London, of wages and prices in all trades in the City². Likewise, in the ordinances of the Craft-Gilds agreed upon after the plague, we invariably find the rule that nobody "shall take for working in the said trade more than they were wont heretofore '." And when, in the year 1362, a tempest caused fearful ravages amongst the roofs of houses, there was issued a "Royal order, that materials for roofing, and the wages of tilers, shall not be enhanced by reason of the damage done by the late tempest ';" an order whose title alone confirms my statement as to the motives of these laws. These endeavours of the labourers to raise wages of course showed themselves first and most strongly in the trades in which, as in the cloth manufactures 5, the new development had progressed the farthest, and in which there existed a large working-class. Thus we find, in the year 1350, a petition⁶ from the Master-Shearmen to the City authorities of London, in which they complain that they could no longer have journeymen at the same rate of wages as formerly; that "now the men will not work otherwise than by

¹ From this policy sprang indeed all mediæval price-regulations of wares, and especially of provisions, as well as the severe punishments and the frequent and wellmeant, though mistaken, prohibitions of the engrossing of goods to re-sell them at higher prices in times of dearth.

¹ See Knighton's Chronicle in Historiæ Anglicanæ Scriptores decem, pp. 2599-2601. Londini, 1652.—Consult generally on the Black Death of 1348, Mr. Seebohm's excellent series of articles in the Fortnightly Review about two years ago.—F.

² Riley's Memorials, p. 253.

⁸ For instance, Riley, pp. 245, 292, 330, &c. 4 Ibid. p. 308.

In later times a Truck Act was also first required for the cloth manufacture, that of 4th Edward 1V. c. 1 (1464-5). 6 Riley, p. 251.

the cloth, and then so greatly hurry over the same, that they do great damage to the folks to whom such cloths belong; " and that therefore the old customs should be re-established under penalties. One of their ordinances in the same year ¹ shows that the journeymen in disputes between a master and his workmen had " heretofore " already availed themselves generally of strikes as a means of procuring satisfaction for their fellow-workers; it was therefore "ordained that from henceforth, if there be any dispute moved between any master and his man in the said trade, such dispute shall be settled by the warden of the trade." If the workman did not submit to the warden, he was "to be punished by the mayor and aldermen at their discretion." The statutes of the Alien Weavers of 13622 contain the same enactment verbatim.

Accounts at that time of strikes in the building-trade are particularly numerous; and this is easily explained by the peculiar circumstances of this trade, which differed from all others. The trade appears to have been of a twofold kind. When cathedrals and palaces were built, there was but one master-the architect of the present day. Between him and the workmen there were masters and foremen answering to the masters and foremen of modern factories³. The "lodge⁴" itself of the architect was very similar to our factories; it consisted of one or more workshops in which the workmen worked together; and the part of the Code of the Rochlitz Stonemasons referring to the workmen, bears a perfect resemblance, mutatis mutandis, to our factory rules⁵. In the building of dwelling-houses, however, it appears to me that the owner himself conducted the work, that he engaged both masters and workmen, and that the masters stood to him in the same intermediate position as the foremen above mentioned. Hence we find in the legal regulation about wages, special directions how much wages the masters in the

¹ Riley, p 247.

² Ibid. p. 306.

* See in Berlepsch, vol. viii. pp. 194-209, the Code of the Rochlitz Stonemasons of 1462, which was formed after that of Strasburg; also Ouin-Lacroix,

p. 227, &c. 4 The German word is "Hütte." It meant as well the workshop as the place of meeting, which in those days were identical.-The seemingly different meaning of the word lodge in early (as in modern) England has been noticed above, p. exxxix, note 1. Compare too from the same Constitutions of Masonry, p. 22, of the apprentice's duty :---

> "The prevystye of the chamber telle he no mon, Ny yn the logge whatsever they done; Whatsever thou heryst, or syste hem do, Tell hyt no mon, whersever thou go."-(1. 279-282. F. J. F.)

⁵ Berlepsch, vol. viii. pp. 204-209.

building trades were to receive 1; and it was frequently defined how much the master might retain of the wages which were paid to him for the workmen², or that he should deduct nothing for himself³. Sometimes also they undertook such buildings in gross, i. e. by contract 4, as is proved by the statutes of the London Masons of 1356. Thus these old building-trades show a great similarity in their institutions to those of our modern Great-Industry; there were fewer persons who carried on the trade on their own account, and a greater number of dependent workmen, than in the other trades; and the last-mentioned ordinances point to relations, such as are still greatly abhorred by workmen of the present day. Naturally, those relations led then to the same differences between workmen and their employers as they lead now. Thus in England the "Royal mandate as to the workmen who have withdrawn from the works at the Palace of Westminster 5" tells us of a strike amongst the workmen in the building-trades; and the two laws enacted there in the Middle Ages against combinations, congregations, and chapters of workmen, the 34th Edward III. c. 9 and 3rd Henry VI. c. 1, were directed against workmen in the buildingtrades only ⁶. Moreover, the peculiar position of these trades is indicated by the fact that all the legal regulations of wages in the Middle Ages which are cited by Eden 7, refer-by the side of agricultural labourers-exclusively to the workmen in the building-trades. About this time also there sprung up in the building-trades in France the "compagnonnage," and for centuries it existed among workmen only employed in these trades ⁸.

Though the combinations and Trade-Unions in the buildingtrades of that age may be explained by the altogether peculiar circumstances of these trades, and though they must therefore be considered as an exceptional phenomenon, yet, on the other hand, the rise of a class of journeymen with special interests and views must have necessitated and called forth an organization of

¹ See Riley, p. 253-Wage-regulations of the City of London; also the 25th Edward III. c. 2, as well as the 34th Edward III. c. 9. ² Berlepsch, vol. viii. p. 171. ³ Ibid. p. 197, art. 9.

4 Riley, p. 281. 5 Ibid. p. 271. Compare, too, the Ordinances of Worcester, art. 57 (Mr. Toulmin Smith's collection, p. 397). The Act of Henry VI. (A. D. 1424-5) mentions "the yearly congregations and confederacies made by the Masons in their general chapiters assembled."

⁷ Eden, State of the Poor, vol. i. See also Riley, Liber Albus, pp. 251, 288.

* See Simon, Étude historique et morale sur le Compagnonnage, Paris, 1853, p. 90, and others. This term meant originally, says the Dict. de l'Académie, "the time during which a young man who had finished his apprenticeship worked at his master's before he could set up for himself. It is used now for the union of artisans in dif-ferent associations." The latter is the sense in which it is employed in the text. them. Accordingly, we meet on the Continent about this time with special fraternities of journeymen, which were formed after the model of the fraternities of craftsmen, just as the Craft-Gilds were after that of the Town-Gilds. Their statutes refer to common divine service at stated times, to common meals-with a multitude of directions about maintaining order on these occasions and at other meetings-to burials, to support and nursing of the sick, to entrance-fees, contributions, &c. Every journeyman of the trade in a town had to belong to it. We also find directions for the journeymen to do their duty faithfully to their masters, and inculcations of the rules of the Craft-Gild, as, for instance, that no one should summon another before a court of justice until a compromise had been first attempted before the wardens of their own journeymen's fraternity, and next before those of the Masters' Gild. For these fraternities appear generally as supplements to the Masters' Gilds, providing only especially for the social and religious wants of their fellow-members of the journeyman class. They were therefore recognized by the Masters' Gilds, and even established by their consent. Thus the Journeymen-Bakers of Copenhagen 1 founded, in 1403, a Gild in honour of St. Catherine; and we have still the ordinances of the Journevmen-Bakers at Hamburg from 14812. Many others, no doubt, existed besides. In London also the same wants led the journeymen to form the same organizations. But here the City authorities were evidently afraid of the workmen abusing their unions as a means of raising wages. At least, in 1383 they issued a proclamation 3 forbidding all congregations, covins, and conspiracies of workmen in general; and when, in 1387, three journeymen cordwainers, wishing to found a fraternity, combined with a Friar Preacher, in order that he might obtain for them a confirmation from the Pope, and thus secure them against the last-mentioned prohibition of the City, they were pounced down on, and carried off to Newgate, under the powers of the said proclamation, before their plan could be carried out⁴. A record of 1396 shows the existence of a religious fraternity of the serving-men of the Saddlers, " called yomen 5." They had their

¹ Wilda, p. 343.	^a Berlepsch, vol. vi. p. 125.
³ Riley's Memorials, p. 480.	4 Ibid. p. 495.

.

⁶ Mr. Riley observes in a note to this word, that "it possibly may have been intended as an abbreviation of the words ' young man,' equivalent to garcio, and valettus." I have no doubt that this is the right explanation of the word. The 20th Richard II. s. I speaks of "varlets called yeomen." The word is identical with the German : Geselle, Junggeselle. Junggeselle means bachelor, a word which was very often used for yeomau ; see, for instance, Herbert, vol. ii. p. 652. The reason for calling the journeymen of the craft yeomen and bachelors, was probably that they were at that time in England, as was the case in Germany, not allowed own livery, and six governors; and had, in 1396, existed thirteen vears. But as the Masters were of opinion that this fraternity might be made the means of raising wages, it was, at the Masters' request, suppressed by the City authorities 1. The same fate befell, in 1415, the brotherhood of "yomen taillours," who in like manner wore a livery, had their meetings and religious services, and lived in houses in common ². However, in spite of this attempt at suppression, the brotherhood continued to exist; for in 1417 they petitioned the City authorities to allow them to hold religious services for the souls of their departed fellowmembers on the feast of the Beheading of St. John the Baptist (August 29), and " to do other things which theretofore they had been wont to do." We have no account as to the result of this petition, but it was most probably refused.

As a substitute for these attempts to form an independent organization of the journeymen class, the City authorities always decreed, as in the above-mentioned case of the Shearmen, "that the serving-men in the trade aforesaid should in future be under the governance and rule of the masters of such trade, the same as the serving-men in other trades in the same city are wont, and of right bound, to be." To this was added, for their protection, this precept, "that the said masters must properly treat and govern their serving-men in the trade, in such manner as the serving-men in like trades in the city have been wont to be properly treated and governed;" and at the same time the means of appeal against the decisions of the Gild-masters is given to the workmen; for it is ordained : "And that if any serving-man should in future wish to make complaint to the Mayor and Aldermen, for the time being, as to any grievance unduly inflicted upon him by the masters aforesaid, such Mayor and Aldermen would give to him his due and speedy meed of justice as to the same³."

From the wording of these decisions, as well as of the regulations referring to workmen in the above-mentioned ordinances of the Shearmen, one might infer that the workmen in the just-named trades had not yet been under the control of the Gild-masters. But this is contradicted by the fact that in other cases the workmen were at that time generally subject to their authority; as well as by the fact that the City authorities in the year 1415 expressly reproached the wardens of the Tailors' Gild that societies

```
<sup>2</sup> Ibid. p. 600.
                                         <sup>3</sup> Ibid. p. 542.
k 2
```

to marry before they were masters. (On the other hand, we must recollect that \mathbf{x}_{-1} Spelman, and Wedgwood after him, hold the true derivation of yeo- to be the Gothic gavi, Fris. gao, gae, a district, county, village, whence Fris. gaeman, a villager.—F.) ¹ Riley's Memorials, p. 542.

existed among their workmen, though those workmen were subjected to the wardens' control. It is possible, however, that in certain trades, and especially in those trades in which-as in the cloth-manufacture-there was a large working-class, the workmen, who themselves had no prospect of ever becoming masters, had up to that time not become apprentices, and did not therefore belong to the Gild; and that they were now for the first time subjected to the authority of the Gildmasters. Perhaps the following enactment of the Leathersellers refers to this: "That from henceforth no one shall set any man, child or woman, to work in the same trade, if such person be not first bound apprentice, and enrolled in the trade ; their wives and children only excepted¹."

It appears, however, that the way in which the affairs of the yeomen were regulated by the masters of the Craft-Gild, to which the yeomen now belonged as freemen on the expiration of their apprenticeship, satisfied their wants on the whole; for from thenceforth we know of no further accounts of such fraternities in London. From two laws of Richard II. one may infer that fraternities of this kind existed in other parts of England; for one of these laws enacts, "that no varlets called yeomen" should wear liveries; the other, "that no livery should be given under colour of a Gild or fraternity, or of any other association, whether of gentry or servants, or of commonalty 2." The ordinances of the Gild of the Tailors at Exeter in the time of Edward IV. show, moreover, that the servants there belonged to the Gild; but the ordinances speak also of a "ffeleshyppe of the Bachelerys³," which was probably a fraternity like that of the Journeymen-Bakers at Copenhagen, which we have already referred to; and it probably stood in the same relations to the Craft-Gild. But to this fellowship there belonged also "schoppe-holders," probably such as had become masters and had not yet married. One instance that masters and wardens of Gilds really protected workmen against their masters, is furnished by the "Examples of the Control by the Gild ' " contained in Mr. Toulmin Smith's collection. In the Gild of the Cordwainers of Exeter a certain number of wardens was even regularly taken from the journeymen⁵.

The degeneration of Craft-Gilds-which began, as has already been shown, so soon after they had obtained independence and authority in trade matters in the towns-progressed, after it had once begun, with increasing rapidity. In the fifteenth century the capitalist quality of the craftsmen becomes more and more prevalent among the requisites for obtaining membership; and ever more numerous become the restrictions by which they endeavoured to seclude themselves, and thus to make the handicrafts the monopolies of a few families. But this was even more the case in the following centuries, and therefore Lord Bacon, speaking of these Gilds, justly describes them as "fraternities in evil."

Accordingly we find in 1503, in 19 Henry VII. cap. 7, a repetition of the restrictions on the "masters and wardens from making any new bye-laws or ordinances concerning the prices of wares and other things, for their own singular profit, until first examined and approved of by the Lord Chancellor, Lord Treasurer, or King's Justices," restrictions which had been attempted in vain, as it appears, by 15 Henry VI. cap. 6. But as the corporations, again acting contrary to this law, arbitrarily raised the entrance-fee of apprentices to 40s., the Act 22 Henry VIII. cap. 40 (A.D. 1530) fixed it again at 2s. 6d. on becoming an apprentice, and at 3s. 4d. on obtaining the freedom of the Gild. In 1536 it became even necessary to pass a law (28 Henry VIII. cap. 5) forbidding the masters of the corporations to take an oath from the apprentices that they should not carry on the trade on their own account without the masters' consent; and also forbidding them to exact sums of money for granting the freedom of the Gild. How little these laws availed against the selfish endeavours of the Craft-Gilds to prevent apprentices from becoming masters, and thus diminish competition, is shown in the account by Stow (edition of 1720, p. 329): "It was a great matter in former times to give £10 to bind a youth apprentice; but in King James I.'s time they gave £20, £40, £60, and sometimes \pounds_{100} with an apprentice. But now these prices are vastly enhanced to £500, or £600, or £800." In agreement with this is the account that Cromwell granted the Grocers a charter, by which they were empowered to levy a fine of \pounds 30 on a member at his admission 1. The ordinances of the Cutlers of Hallamshire², of the sixteenth century, and of the Framework-knitters 3, of the seventeenth, show moreover, in the privileges enjoyed by the children of Gild-members, the same tendency to make the trade hereditary which prevailed among the Craft-Gilds on the Continent.

Though the last sums mentioned by Stow probably merely refer to the twelve great companies, yet the general laws under

¹ Riley's Memorials, p. 547-Ordinances of the Leathersellers, 1398.

² Herbert, vol. i. p. 60. Compare also Eden's State of the Poor, vol. i. p. 597, note.

³ Mr. Toulmin Smith's collection, p. 313.

⁴ Ibid. p. 322, No. 6.

⁴ 1bid. p. 332.

¹ Herbert, vol. i. p. 183.

 ⁴ Hunter's History of Sheffield, p. 119.
 ⁵ Journals of the House of Commons, vol. xxvi. pp. 790-794.

Henry VIII., which have been quoted, point to such great difficulties hindering apprentices in all trades from becoming masters, that we can easily understand why they were so exasperated against strangers, who, specially allured and favoured by kings, could carry on their crafts without these hindrances. This exasperation led to repeated insurrections of the apprentices, the first on Evil May-day 1517; another in 1586, against those foreign tradespeople who for the sake of religion had sought refuge in England¹; and in 1641 it gave rise to a petition from the apprentices to Parliament for measures against the strangers, who took away all their prospects of independent settlement, whilst they themselves had to struggle with so many hindrances².

In Germany also, after the sixteenth century, ordinances against the abuses of the Craft-Gildmen are met with regularly in the laws of the Empire³, and especially against the exclusion of whole classes of persons from the Craft-Gilds on account of pretended infamy of birth. On admission to the Craft-Gild, real proofs of nobility-just as in the case of collegiate chapters-had to be furnished at the examination whether a candidate was worthy by his birth of the Gild or not⁴. In the ordinances of individual German States we meet with similar enactments against the heavy expenses on the admission of apprentices as we do in England, and which were followed by similar results⁵. As the apprenticeship did not last seven years, as in England, but only from two to four years, the Craft-Gilds, in order to diminish competition, laid the journeymen under the obligation of travelling, sometimes for five years⁶. Moreover, after the end of the fifteenth century, the making of a masterpiece became a requisite for the right of the independent exercise of a craft. This was a very costly article, and, after all, unsaleable, as the things required were frequently altogether useless ¹. Moreover, in spite of ordinances of individual German States to the contrary, the most luxurious inauguratory dinners² were required, so that the few who found it possible to become masters, generally commenced business in debt. The sons of masters, however, were exempt³ from all these restrictions, from the appointed term of apprenticeship and the travelling, as well as the masterpiece. Indeed, the tyranny of these family-clubs extended itself to the most intimate relations. Whilst the journeymen were generally forbidden to marry⁴, the masters were required to be married 5; and sometimes the candidate for the mastership was even obliged to point out an "honourable and virtuous" maiden as his future wife⁶. The descent of the bride or wife was then subjected to the same examination as that of the craftsman himself; but if the latter resolved to marry the daughter or widow of a master, special favours were in store for him. Corporations frequently traded with their freedom⁷, and the latter was often attached to particular houses. Stock says very justly indeed: "A merchant's shop, a brew- or bake-house, a stall in the shambles, the workshop of a smith or shoemaker, resembled a prebend; they were only more difficult to obtain; but they were also worth more than the latter, because they were hereditary"." In France also the Craft-Gilds, after the middle of the fifteenth century, hardened into the same narrowmindedness as in England and Germany, with the same favours to the sons of masters as regards the term of apprenticeship and of travelling, entrance-fees and masterpieces, so that as early as 1614 the Third Estate desired the suppression of these Gilds.

The transformation of the Craft-Gilds into societies of capitalists, exercised of course also an influence on their government; and it appears altogether natural when, in the sixteenth century, we see that government entirely transferred into the hands of the richer Gild-Members. The Gild-Members were at that time in England divided into three classes: the livery, to which the richer masters were admitted; the householders, to which the rest of the masters belonged; and the journeymen belonging to the Gild, who were simply called "freemen," sometimes also "yeomanry" or "bachelors." Instead of the former sovereign meeting of all Gild-Associates, there now appeared a "Court of Assistants," who governed the Gild and enacted its ordinances.

¹ Politz and Bülau, vol. ii. p. 121 (1841); Berlepsch, vol. ii. p. 239. In England also masterpieces were sometimes required; see, for instance, the bye-laws of the Company of Framework-knitters; Journals of the House of Commons, vol. xxvi. PP. 790-794.

² Berlepsch, vol. vi. p. 128. ⁴ Ibid. vol. iv. p. 77. ⁶ Ibid.	⁵ Pölitz and B ⁷ Ibid.	³ Ibid. vol. iv. p. 52. aulau, vol. ii. p. 125 (1841). ⁸ Ibid. p. 127.
--	---	--

¹ Stow, ed. 1720, p. 333.

² The Apprentices of London Pet-tion presented to the Honourable Court of Parliament, 164 (British Museum): "And first we beseech your honours to take into consideration the intolerable abuse of our apprenticeship: for where we by coercion are necessarily compelled to serve seven or eight years at least, before we can have the immunity and freedom of this city to trade in: those which are mere strang rs do snatch this freedom from us, and pull the trades out of our hands, so that by these means, when our times are fully expired, we do then begin in a manner to suffer a second apprenticeship to them, who do thus domineer over us in our own trades," &c.

³ Reformation guter Polizei zu Augsburg, 1530, tit. 39; 1548, tit. 36, 37; Recessus Imperil, 1551, §§ 83, 84; 1559, §§ 75-80; 1566, § 178; 1570, § 152; Reichspolizeiordnung, 1577, tit. 15, 37, 38; Recessus Imperil, 1594, §§ 125-127; 1654, § 106; Conclusum Imperil, 1731.

⁴ See Stock's article on Gilds in Pölitz and Bülau, vol. ii. 1841.

⁵ See Berlepsch, vol. ii. p. 235.

⁶ Ibid. vol. vi. p. 119.

The first legal appointment of a Court of Assistants is met with under Philip and Mary'. After the time of James I., the transfer of the elective franchise from the "communitas" to the courts of the companies became general in the charters; and in this manner, what had hitherto existed merely on sufferance became legal. The king appointed the first members of the court for life. As these withdrew or died off, the court itself filled up the number from former Masters and Wardens. But these it likewise chose from amongst the liverymen. To the rest of the Gild-Members, election-day briefly meant the day on which they assembled in the Gild-hall to hear the names of the elected proclaimed². An oath was also introduced for all members, in which they swore to obey the Master and Wardens and their ordinances 3. Refractoriness towards the Gild, violation of its laws, refusal to accept office if elected,-these were punished as formerly. The charitable regulations also remained the same as in former times.

The transfer of the centre of force from the Meetings of all the Gild-Associates to the Court of Assistants was not always effected without opposition from at least a part of the members, as is proved by a pamphlet of the year 1649 on the Constitution of the Clothworkers' Company, the successors of the old Weavers' Gild⁴. According to this pamphlet, a part of the Gild-Associates, relying on the old charters of the Gild, appear to have claimed for the whole body of the Gild-Members, both the right of electing their Wardens, as well as of framing ordinances. Against this the said pamphlet endeavours to prove, with the most arbitrary misrepresentation of the sense and the words, that the word "commonalty" in the old charters meant, not the collective body of Gild-Members, but only the Master, Wardens, and Assistants. A glance at the charters shows at once the untenableness of this assertion 5. The transfer of the supreme authority rested rather, as it seems, on ordinances of the Gild. However, the democratic party failed in their endeavours.

⁵ The Charter of the Company of Clothworkers of London, London, printed in the year 1648 (British Museum).—During my stay in London, the same struggle was going on in the Watermen and Lightermen's Company between the masters and the men the latter being represented by the Thames Working-Lightermen and Watermen's Protection Society, as I was informed by the Secretary of this Society. The possession of large capital, which became more and more a requisite for the independent exercise of a trade, would impair more and more the prospects of workmen becoming masters, and would call forth an ever-increasing antagonism between the interests of workmen and masters¹. It is evident that, under these circumstances, special laws and organizations became necessary for the workmen. In Germany, where the Craft-Gilds were governed as in England, by one master and eight councillors,—except that in Germany the government did not degenerate into such an oligarchy as in England, because the collective body of Gild-Members always elected the governors,—we meet with such organizations in connection with the system of the travelling of journeymen which had become obligatory since the sixtcenth century.

It was a difficult task to live in a large town, in a foreign land, with a very scanty supply of cash, until the wandering journeyman had convinced himself, after many inquiries, whether there was work to be had in the place. At the same time it was a matter of importance to the masters living in a town to have the means of finding out whether there were journeymen in search of work, so that in case of necessity they could at once obtain hands for their workshop. Both these wants were met when the host (Herbergsvater, father of the inn) appointed to the charge of the house of the Gild (the so-called Herberge, inn) was obliged to take in every one who could furnish proof that he was a journeyman of that particular craft. When, then, a travelling journeyman arrived, who wanted work, the host was able to give him the necessary information, for there was in the house a list of all the masters who were in want of journeymen. If several masters had asked for men, he who was first on the list received the first journeymen who arrived; but the master who had more journeymen, had always to give place to him who had fewer in his workshop. Sometimes a special master or a journeyman was appointed by the Gild to look out for work for the wandering journeymen². If the journeyman found no work, he received in various crafts (the so-called geschenkten, donation-giving ones) a sum of money to support him on his journey to the next town, which was called the donation (das Geschenk): this came not merely from a fund which the journeymen had formed amongst themselves for that purpose, but the masters also contributed towards it 3. There are a series of ordinances referring to cases

¹ Herbert, vol. i. p. 118.

² Ibid. vol. ii. p. 652, &c. ³ Ibid. vol. i. p. 188, &c.

⁴ One copy of this pamphlet is in the Corporation Library, Guildhall, and two copies in the British Museum. In all three the title is wanting. One of them is in the collection of pamphlets of the year 1649 given by George III. to the Museum, and has attached to it a sheet of writing-paper, on which is written in ink: Chitwin's Collections of ye Company of ye Clothworkers Privilidges, Aug. 1649.

¹ The true employer's spirit is already to be seen from the pamphlet, Relief of Apprentices wronged by their Masters, London, 1689 (British Museum).

² Already ordained by the Reformation guter Polizei, 1530, tit. 39.

³ Berlepsch, vol. iv. pp. 73, 74.

in which a journeyman was to forfeit the donation; and as the Imperial laws 1 which at first forbade altogether the giving of donations (on account of the abuses connected with the system) had no effect, they were contented with restricting it.

In the more important trades in Germany this system of travelling led to the formation of special fraternities of journevmen, which so strikingly resemble the Trade-Unions, that a description of them may be of interest. The following account is derived principally from the Statutes 2 of the "Shoe-servants," of Arnstadt in Thuringia in the year 1628. As the Introduction informs us, these rules were ordained at the request of the masters of the Shoemakers' Gild of that town. It narrates that of old the Shoe-servants had a fraternity, imposts, and some Articles; but that since these had fallen into abeyance, and the Articles had been destroyed in the great fire, the masters had decided "to get some new Articles confirmed, especially as in these evil, unquiet, and perverse times it was highly necessary to establish and maintain sound discipline and honesty in the crafts." In the first place, an inn was established, where all wandering journeymen had to turn in. The host was called Father; the housewife, Mother; the daughters and maid-servants, Sisters; the sons and servants, Brothers 4. To call them otherwise was an offence for which there was a fine. The greatest reverence had to be paid to the Father and Mother. In this inn the Shoe-servants could obtain a meal for two groschen $(2\frac{1}{2}d.)$, and a night's lodging for four pfennige (about a halfpenny). Work was also found for him here ; and no wandering Shoe-servant was allowed to enter the service of a master before he had been at the inn. The fraternity was governed by the whole body of Shoe-servants, who met every fortnight for this purpose. Religious service was held before every meeting. All Shoe-servants had to attend the meeting, with the exception of masters' sons who worked with their own father; for as they were not obliged to travel, the chief object of the fraternity did not concern them. But masters' sons who did not work with their father were obliged to appear. Those who came late were fined. Two elders presided at the meetings. But no meetings could take place, no regulations could be framed, and no decisions come to without the presence of the masters' deputies, who were elected annually. The journeymen had also their own box, containing their Articles. their seal, and whatever other documents or valuable effects the fraternity possessed. The box was provided with two, and sometimes with three, locks, the keys of which were kept respectively by one of the elders and one of the masters, so that neither could open the box in the absence of the other. The seal of the journeymen could only be used with the consent of the whole fraternity and the deputed masters. The opened box was the sign that the meeting had begun, just as with the Craft-Gilds. While, therefore, the box was open, all present had to remain with uncovered heads, and during such time all disrespectful conduct, as well as improper clothing, cursing and swearing,in short, all that showed want of respect,-was severely punished. On the other hand, we find that, whilst the box was open, a social cup was handed round, to the expense of which all had to contribute. One of the elders had to collect this, as well as the other contributions; and in case he neglected this or any other duty, he incurred punishment. The other contributions of the members consisted in one groschen $(1\frac{1}{4}d.)$ entrancefee, in a fortnightly contribution of six pfennigen (about three farthings), with one groschen $(\mathbf{1}_{\mathbf{1}}^{\mathbf{1}}d)$ every quarter. In return the members received support in sickness, for which, however, they had to make repayment if they were restored to health; and in the event of death they were buried at the expense of the fraternity. All journeymen had to attend the funeral; and this was also the case when any member of a master's family died. The Statutes contain, besides, regulations for promoting orderly conduct and good morals among the Shoe-servants. Associating with common women, playing at dice, immoderate drinking, inducing others to drink, gaming, and such-like things, were all punished. No one was allowed to go about the streets except in decent clothes; and all who insulted or calumniated others were also punished.

For the identical way of naming amongst the French "Compagnonnage," compare Simon, Étude sur le Compagnonnage, p. 154.

Much the same were the journeymen fraternities in all trades¹; except in the Stonemasons', for every individual master stonemason, with his journeymen, formed a fraternity². The societies of the French "compagnons" corresponded to these organizations; except that with them I know nothing of a superintendence by the masters. There were in both the same ceremonies³

¹ See the Reformation guter Polizei, just mentioned, and Conclusum Imperii, 1731, § 7.
² Berlepsch, vol. iv. pp. 67-72.
³ The German word is "Schuhknechte," i. e. shoe-servants. The journeymen Shoemakers were thus called in Germany up to the year 1799, when, at Nürnberg, they first got to be called "Geselle" (Berlep-ch, vol iv. p. 67).

¹ See Berlepsch, vol. vii. pp. 162-168 ; vol. ix. pp. 76-89.

² Ibid. vol. viii. p. 192.

³ See in Berlepsch, vol. ii.-ix., the chapters on the journeymen and their customs; also Simon, Sur le Compagnonnage, and Agricol Perdiguier, Le Livre du Compagnonnage, Paris, 1857.

upon admission, on entering the inn, on meeting together, and so forth; and though these may be partly explained by the intention of the journeymen thus to enhance in their own eyes the importance of their state, so rich in toil, yet these ceremonies must nevertheless be considered to a great extent as absolutely absurd. As neglect of these formalities was severely punished by the journeymen, they drew down upon themselves severe enactments from the German Imperial Legislature¹; and in France the Compagnons Cordonniers et Tailleurs of Paris fell in consequence under the greater excommunication in 16482.

Especially interesting too, with regard to modern Trade-Unions, is the Craft-Gilds' practice of punishment by Schelten, reviling, i.e. declaring any one infamous³. Both master and journeymen were reviled in this manner; and, indeed, on the most silly grounds, as, for example, when any one had killed a cat or touched a dead dog; so also for infringements of Gild principles, as when any one enticed away another's custom. Indeed, whole Gilds imposed such interdicts upon each other. Every Gild and every journeymen's fraternity kept a "black list." In this, as well as in the testimonials of travelling journeymen, the names of the reviled were entered, so that the warning against them spread through the whole country. As soon as the journeymen heard of the occurrence of such a reviling, they turned out of the workshop of the reviled master, or refused to work with the reviled journeyman, until these had made atonement, and were again recognized as honourable by the governing body of the Gild⁴. This reviling was the most severe punishment that the Gilds could inflict on refractory members; and though the strike was not then a legal means of coercion-for the Imperial laws were violently opposed to it-yet this shows that it was at least recognized as such by the employers 5.

But frequently-as, for example, when the Gild omitted to punish a master who had infringed any of the trade customs of the journeymen, or who in their judgment was not honourable, or when the masters, by means of the local authorities, had carried a resolution which was to be entered in their book of Articles-all the journeymen of a place struck work, and then wrote to the journeymen of other districts, warning them from coming to the places of strike¹. Such occurrences took place especially at Mayence, Würzburg, Augsburg. The most famous of them, that of the Augsburg Shoe-servants 2 in the year 1726, was in fact the cause of the Imperial decree of 1731, which was directed against this and several other abuses of the handicrafts. The Imperial laws, however, were never carried out, and the decrees of the territorial princes remained ineffectual, since the handicrafts throughout the whole of Germany hung together. Further tumults on the part of the journeymen led at last to the entire suppression of their fraternities. In many parts of Germany, however, they existed till the present century 3.

² Simon, Sur le Compagnonnage, p. 74. ¹ Conclusum Imperii, 1731, § 9. ³ In the early Middle Ages every creditor used to revile thus his debtor on nonfulfilment of his obligations. See Gengler, Deutsches Privatrecht, Erlangen, 1854, p. 198.

⁵ Politz and Bülau, 1843, vol. i. pp. 359-364. ⁵ The possession of still greater power by the journeymen is shown by the contest between the Chapter of the cathedral at Magdeburg and the journeymen Smiths of that city, in the year 1600. The Gild of Smiths at Magdeburg extended also over the surrounding small towns and villages; but the jurisdiction over the masters and journeymen who lived there was exercised, not by the Gild, but by the journeymen Smiths of Magdeburg. This relation was even recognized by the government, and in the contest of 1600 the journeymen compelled it to carry out their wishes, by threatening to leave the workshops and even "to stop the masters' hammer." Indeed, the Chapter was obliged to pay them a fine of a hundred thalers. Politz and Bulau, 1843, vol. i. pp. 365-369; printed also in Berlepsch, vol. vii. pp. 72-75.

Among all these seditions, though, I do not know one which had its origin in disputes about wages. It was rather presumed infringements of privileges, innovations in trade customs and the like, which always produced the uprising. In France, it is true, we already find strikes on account of wages⁴. On the whole, however, these situations show a tolerable understanding between master and journeymen. The special associations of journeymen are much rather supplements of the Craft-Gild-organization, than confederations directed against the masters : nowhere do we find a trace of opposition against the prevailing trade-system, as such, like we see in the quarrels between our Trade-Unions and their employers; the old disagreements seem merely like family disputes between parents and children.

But while in Germany and France the working-class was thus completely organized, and even to a certain degree governed itself under the superintendence of the masters, we must ask whether a similar state of things did not exist among English working-men? The "Acte towchinge Victuallers and Handycraftmen," 2nd and 3rd Edw. VI. c. 15 (1549), forbids, it is true,-jointly with the conspiracies and covins of the sellers of victuals "to sell their victuals at unreasonable prices,"---all " confederacies and promises of the artificers, handicraftsmen, and labourers; not only that they should not meddle with one another's work, and perform and finish what one hath begun; but also to constitute and appoint how much work they shall do in a day, and what hours and times they shall work ;" and, besides, "that they should not make nor do their works but at a certain rate." But all regulations forbidden in this Act recur frequently in the bye-laws of companies; they therefore in no way originated in agreements of workmen only, but as much in those of masters. Moreover, whilst the word "labourer" certainly does not refer to the skilled workmen of the crafts, but probably only to labourers in agriculture, the prohibition of confederacies of " artificers and handicraftsmen" is directed as much against the masters as against the workmen of the crafts. And the act forbids, in the same breath with the confederacies of the craftsmen in general, all conspiracies of "divers sellers of victuals" for raising prices. This Act, therefore, does not refer at all to combinations similar to those of our working-men of the present day (as is the prevalent explanation), but is simply an attempt to check the increasing abuses of the Craft-Gilds, and this especially in the trades providing for men's daily wants, where such abuses would be felt most severely. This explanation, which is at once proved by a closer examination of the Act itself, is moreover confirmed when the Act is compared with its German counterpart, the Imperial Code of Police of 1577, title 37¹. This law contains absolutely identical prohibitions; but these apply avowedly as well to the masters as to the workmen of the crafts. But in any case, the 2nd and 3rd Edw. VI. c. 5 refers only to transitory combinations, and the existence of a regular organization of the working-class cannot be inferred from it.

² Ibid. p. 142.

¹ Berlepsch, vol. iv. p. 77. ⁸ Weisser's Recht der Handwerker, Ulm, 1823, p. 73.

⁴ Ouin-Lacroix, pp. 15, 16.

The account in Stow² of the rising of the London apprentices, "when some of their brotherhood have been unjustly, as they pretended, cast into prison and punished," rather points to the journeymen's fraternities of the Continent. Their outbreaks against the foreigners I have already noticed. In the seventeenth century also they often acted as a body, and expressed their opinion on all religious and political questions of the time³. Especially interesting in this place is the fact, that when

² Stow, edit. 1720, pp. 332, 333.

³ See The Honour of London Apprentices exemplified in a brief Historical Narration, London, 1647 (Brit. Mus.); further, the account in Godwin's History of the Commonwealth, vol. ii. p. 368, "how the apprentices entered Parliament and forced the Speaker and the members to put the question and pass the votes they Cromwell had abolished the feasts of Christmas, Easter, and Whitsuntide, "and other festivals commonly called holidays," as tending towards superstition, and had introduced the strict puritanical observation of Sunday, the apprentices, who by this "were not only deprived of the benefit of visiting their friends and kindred, but also of all set times of pleasure and lawful recreations," petitioned¹ Parliament for the appointment by law of one day in every month for these purposes; and Parliament thereupon set apart for them the second Tuesday in every month². The masters, as it appears, were in no way pleased at this, and curtailed their apprentices in the enjoyment of their "play-days³;" whereupon Parliament, on a further petition from the apprentices, ordered that on these fixed play-days all shops should remain closed ⁴.

In deciding the question whether there existed special organizations of the journeymen within the Crafts, an ordinance of the Clothworkers' Company appears also worthy of consideration : "The Master, Wardens, and Assistants shall choose the warden of the Yeomanry; they shall govern the Yeomanry in such sort as in former times has been used 5." Were these wardens of the Yeomanry the same as the masters who, as in the German Gilds, were delegated to the fraternities of journeymen? And may we therefrom form a conclusion as to the existence of fraternities of like nature in England? The ceremonies which were customary among the Trade-Unions in the woollen manufacture down to the thirtieth year of the present century, show such a striking similarity to those of the German fraternities of journeymen⁶, that the supposition suggests itself of a derivation of those Trade-Unions from the old journeymen fraternities. Yet I willingly admit that in required ;" see also Malcolm's Anecdotes of the Manners and Customs of London, 1811, p. 190.

¹ Two Humble Petitions of the Apprentices of London and parts adjacent, for Lawful Recreations, &c., London, 1646 (Brit. Mus.)

² See the Ordinances of the Commonwealth, an. 1647, cap. 81, for abolishing festivals. ³ See the Humble Remonstrance of the Apprentices of the City of London, 1647 (Brit. Mus.)

⁴ See the Ordinances of the Commonwealth, anno 1647, cap. 83-Daies of recreation allowed unto Scholars, Apprentices, and other Servants.

⁵ Herbert, vol. ii. p. 657.

⁶ See the customs of the German journeymen in Berlepsch, vols. ii.-ix. The ceremonies of those Trade-Unions I found in a pamphlet avowedly written in the interests of the employers, Character, Object, and Effects of Trade-Unions, London, 1834, p. 67. They are again printed in a book by Ward (Workmen and Wages, at Home and Abroad, London, 1867, p. 102), plagiarized in the most shameless manner—with a disregard of the passages which even in that pamphlet are favourable to the workman—both from the above, and from another, On Combinations of Trades, London, 1831. And this one-sided plagiarism its author then dedicated to Mr. Gladstone 11

¹ Reichspolizeiordnung, 1577, tit. 37—Of Crafts in general: "We have also heard as certain, that the craftsmen in their Craft-Gilds, or otherwise, conspire and combine, that no one shall sell his finished labour or work by open sale for more or less than the others; and they thus raise the prices in such sort, that those who need their labour, and wish to buy, must pay at their (the craftsmen's) pleasure, &c. We therefore declare our earnest opinion and desire, that this shall henceforth be in no way suffered by the authorities, but that they shall watch over it: where the crafts offend however against this, they shall be punished by the authorities according to circumstances, without mercy."

default of all other information on such organizations¹, this hypothesis does not appear tenable, unless further proofs should be produced², especially as in England the journeymen were never obliged by the Gild-Statutes to travel for a certain number of years, whilst in Germany and France all journeymen's associations owed their origin to this system of travelling.

As to the general position of the workmen in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, and especially as to the relations between masters and men, we find from the above ordinances of the English Clothworkers, that "controversies between the livery and their apprentices were to be settled in the old way before the master at the Common Hall," and that "journeymen should make no unlawful assemblies, brotherhoods, congregations, and flockings together." The Gild-Statutes of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries further ordain regularly, that "no person of the mystery was to hire himself to a person of another mystery, where greater wages were offered; no journeyman should work with any of another fellowship, if he can be set on work by a freeman of his own art;" no member was to suffer his apprentice or servant "to buy and sell to his own use, or that of persons of other mysteries," such practice having brought masters "to an after deale and sore damage." On the other hand, we find a series of regulations, of which the maintenance became in later times the main object of Trade-Unions. "No person was to exercise the trade, who had not served an apprenticeship of seven years, or been instructed by his father for that term :" no member was to instruct anybody in the trade, except his male children and apprentices regularly bound: no member was to employ any workman except he were free of the company; no journeyman was to work with a non-member. Further, "None shall lend out or put forth any of his apprentices to work with any other, because it will hinder and take away the living of free journeymen; no foreigner shall be employed before a free journeyman : no householder shall keep above two apprentices at one time, except he employ a journeyman freeman, and then he may keep three; every master, warden, and assistant may keep three:" or as in Sheffield, "No person to have more than one apprentice in his service at one time, nor to engage another before the former be in his last year, nor take any for a less term than seven years ¹." Besides, other accounts of the seventcenth century show that, in the trades in which these restrictions were not maintained-either because they were not corporate, or because the 5th Eliz. c. 4 did not apply to them, or because the regulations of the Gild or the Statute were not observedthe workmen, in consequence of the abuses practised by their employers, had fallen into the very hardships for the prevention of which the Trade-Unions in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries have striven to maintain those old regulations².

² It is remarkable that whilst there exists a rich German literature from the seventeenth century on Craft-Gilds, and especially on the position of the workmen in these Gilds, nothing on this subject is to be found in England. Most of the authors who have written on it in Germany were professors of universities or students, who had to write a dissertation in order to take their degrees.

¹ See Herbert, vol. ii. pp. 656, 657, and vol. i. p. 191; also Hunter's History of Sheffield, p. 119, and Journals of the House of Commons, vol. xxvi. pp. 790-794.

² See "The Case and Proposals of the Free Journeymen Printers in and about London, humbly submitted to consideration. Licensed Oct. 23, 1666." "Whereas there are at this present in and about the City of London, to the number of a hundred and forty Workmen Printers, or thereabouts, who have served seven years to the art of Printing, under lawful Master Printers, and are reduced to great necessity and temptations for want of lawful Imployment, occasioned partly by supernumerary Apprentices and Turn overs, which have increased the number almost to twice as many on the whole, as would be sufficient to discharge all the publick and lawful work of the kingdom, The Workmen Printers above-mentioned, &c. propose : I. That no Forreigners (that is to say) such an one as has not served seven years to the art of Printing, under a lawful Master Printer, as an Apprentice, may be entertained and employed by any Master Printer for the time to come. 2. That a provision may be made to hinder the increase of Apprentices and a limitation appointed as to the number, &c. _ 3. That no Turn-overs be received by any Master Printer, but from a Master Printer ; and that no Master Printer turning over any Apprentice to another Master Printer may be permitted to take any other Apprentice in his place, till the full time of the said Apprentice so turned over be expired : for otherwise, the restraint and limitation of Apprentices will be evaded, and the number supplied by Turn-overs," &c. (British Museum.) Compare also the preamble of "An Act for the good order and government of the Makers of Knives, &c. and other Cutlery Wares in Hallamshire, in the county of York, and parts near adjoining" (21 Jac. I. 1624).

¹ Since I sent the above to the printer I have found among my extracts a note taken from the Journals of the House of Commons, vol. xlix. pp. 322-324, which supplies some further information. According to a Report of a Committee of the House in 1794, on Petitions of the Woolcombers, complaining of the use of the "Gig-mill," there existed then a club among the Woolcombers. Out of a hundred workmen there was not one to be found who did not belong to it. Every member had to pay contributions according to the wants of the society. Its object was to assist journeymen travelling in search of work, when work was scarce, and to relieve the sick and to bury the dead members. Everybody wishing to get relief must be in possession of testimonials of the society as to his proper conduct as a Woolcomber and as to his honesty. Whoever deceived the society lost his claims to such testimonials and to relief from the funds. The objects of this club, it is seen, were the same as those of the German Gesellenladen and the French compagnons. If we add to this, that the just-quoted records of ceremonies among Trade-Unions refer to Woolcombers al-o, the suggestion made in the text seems greatly corroborated. The fact that the modern Trade-Unions call the assistance given to members out of work simply "donation," the translation of the "Geschenk" of the German journeymen's fraternities, seems also worth noticing. There is however one difference to be noted. The said Woolcombers travelled only when work was scarce, while the "wandering" of the German, and the Tour de France of the French journeymen, were obligatory. This, as well as the date, make me therefore inclined to consider this Woolcombers' Club as a Trade-Union for assisting men thrown out of work by the Gig-mill, which may perhaps, however, have descended from an old journeymen's fraternity.

As the Craft-Gilds everywhere had sunk down to mere societies for the investment of capital, and as their dividends depended entirely on the exclusion of competition, it was unavoidable that the spirit of gain should lead them to restrictions which became always more oppressive for the public. The annoyances they caused were considerably increased by a process which, after the sixteenth century, was of frequent occurrence in all countries: those Craft-Gilds namely, which had hitherto comprised kindred crafts, split up into several, according to the individual trades. These then watched each other with the utmost jealousy in order to prevent encroachments on their mutual rights, and continually fought each other in endless lawsuits. Thus, for instance, the Fletchers and Bowyers in London separated themselves into two corporations in the reign of Elizabeth 1. One might wonder that, on the one hand, the workmen, whose position was so much deteriorated by the degeneration of the Craft-Gilds, did not at once overthrow their dominion, as the Craft-Gilds had formerly superseded the degenerated Gilds of the patricians (pp. ex, exi above); and that, on the other hand, the State did not, in the interest of the public, take any steps towards the abolition of the Gilds, which had already been desired so often. But as to the working-men, though their position, and especially their prospects, had been greatly deteriorated by this degeneration of the Craft-Gilds, their interest was rather a reformation, than the abolition, of those bodies. The Craft-Gilds maintained a number of regulations, which protected the working-men, and in consequence of which their material position appears comfortable and free from cares, if compared with that of the factory hands at the beginning of this century, when these regulations no longer existed. Uprisings of working-men are therefore to be found in those days only in consequence of infringements of Gild-regulations. But as for a reformation of the Craft-Gilds according to the interests of the working-men, the latter were not powerful enough to carry it out against their masters. These still held strongly together in their Gilds, and did not yet, as in later times (and as formerly the patricians), rival each other in weakening competition. The State also had changed, and no longer consisted, as before, of an organization of many smaller states. As, after the sixteenth century, the State became in all countries continually more centralized by its kings, it was not possible for the journeymen to act with the same facility as the craftsmen had acted in former times in the towns. Moreover, owing to the men's isolated method of working, they had not yet acquired the same feeling of solidarity, or the same consciousness of the power of masses, as our factory hands since have. And as to the State abolishing the Craft-Gilds—kings used the bourgeoisie as a support; first, as Henry VII. in England, against the nobility¹; and then, because they needed them for pecuniary reasons. The capitalists had yet to attain the same dominion in the State, which in the fourteenth century they had obtained in the towns.

¹ See Herbert, vol. i. p. 175.

The first loan to the kings by the Gilds in England was made to Henry VIII.² in 1544. Thereupon followed, under the pretence of a holy zeal for the purity of religion, the most shameless confiscation of the whole property of the Craft-Gilds in favour of the king's private purse, by 37th Henry VIII. c. 4, and 1st Edward VI. c. 14-for the donations of which this property consisted had always in Roman-Catholic times been charged with yearly payments for supporting chantries for the souls of the respective donors. The corporations of London had to redeem their property with $\pounds 18,700$. From this period the extracting of money from the trading corporations became a regular source of supply to Government. In most manifold ways Elizabeth, and afterwards James and Charles, contrived to screw out of the Companies their wealth. This was especially managed by the granting of patents for monopolies, and for the oversight and control of different trades, to courtiers, by which the public suffered quite as much as the Companies. During the Civil War too, and the Commonwealth, the Companies had to suffer great exactions and oppressions 3.

But the causes of the overthrow of the Craft-Gilds arose in the bourgeoisie itself. These causes were, the rise of large capital, and its investment in manufacture. The 2nd and 31d Philip and Mary already indicates the commencement. After stating that " the rich clothiers do oppress the weavers, some by setting up and keeping in their houses divers looms, and maintaining them by journeymen and other persons unskilful; some by engrossing of looms into their hands, and letting them out at such unreasonable rents as the poor artificers are not able to maintain themselves by, and much less their wives and families; some again by giving much less wages for the workmanship of cloth than in times past, whereby they are forced utterly to forsake their occupations, &c.; it is enacted that no clothier, living out of a city, burgh, or market-town, shall keep more than two looms, nor more than two apprentices," &c. In short, the Act endeavours to protect the small masters against the competition of the rich capitalists. But neither this Act nor all the other attempts of the corporations could restrain the process of development, which, especially in consequence of a series of technical discoveries, threw manufacture altogether into the hands of the large capitalists. Handicrafts, and the corporations together with them, lost continually in importance, and only made themselves hated and despised in their endeavour to arrest the natural progress of events. I need not enter into the details of these excesses of the Craft-Gilds: for as the merits of the following system consisted chiefly in these faults of the former. and as in consequence of this peculiar kind of merits the followers of the new era were not restrained by modesty from selfpraise, the Craft-Gilds' faults are universally known '. These excesses caused the removal of the trades carried on under the new system, to places free from the influence of corporate control. Birmingham, Manchester, and other places of kindred note. owe to this their career of prosperity, which was soon to leave the ancient cities and boroughs far behind. The competition of the Great-Industry rising in the new cities deprived the old corporations of their real essence, by making the attainment of their chief objects illusory, and thus turned them into mere empty shadows of their previous grandeur. In France the sovereign people finally swept the corporations away in the night of the 4th August, 1789. In Germany, several bureaucratic enactments brought them piecemeal to death, and the last remnants were destroyed by the North German Industrial Code of 1860. In England they died out gradually before the newly-rising Great-Industry; and all that remains of the ancient Gilds in the Livervcompanies of to-day, is the common eating and drinking.

¹ See Herbert, vol. i. p. 109. ² Ibid. p. 112. ³ Ibid. p. 113, &c. l 2

Yet in England there grew up successors to the old Gilds, in the Trade-Unions of working-men, which, like the first Gilds of the old freemen, sprang up as a defence against the great capitalists, who, like ever the strong, competed with each other at the expense of the weak.

¹ See however the account of the London Framework-knitters' Company in Part V.

V. THE ORIGIN OF TRADE-UNIONS.

TRADE-UNIONS are the successors of the old Gilds. With this assertion I concluded the foregoing part of this Essay. It is far from being a new statement. On the contrary, friends and enemies of these associations have repeatedly, in words and print, pointed at their connection with the old Gilds, the former to justify, by this pedigree, their existence, the latter to condemn them at once by describing them as continuations of institutions considered for long, and generally, at best as antiquated. Their enemies, by the dodge of applying to them the epithet of "longcondemned associations for the restriction of trade," generally dispensed with all further inquiries into the real results of their working.

Indeed, every reader of the foregoing pages who has ever made himself familiar with the rules of a Trade-Society, or with one of the numerous blue-books inquiring into the organization of Trade-Societies, must grant at once their similarity to the Craft-Gilds. But notwithstanding this striking likeness, and the numberless writings on the subject of Trade-Unions, nobody has yet inquired historically how these Unions originated ¹, and how far they may really be considered as the descendants of the old Gilds. All opinions on this point which I have yet met with are vague, and, as I am obliged to say, far from corresponding with the reality. The most plausible theory is expounded by Mr. Ludlow in one of the best papers ever written on Trade-Unions². According to his idea, the first Trade-Unions originated in the capitalist-masters withdrawing from the Craft-Gild, so as " to contine it to the operative class, so that the Gild would necessarily merge in the Trade-Society." He accordingly says, "The Trade-Society of our days is but the lopsided representative of the old Gild, its dwarfed but lawful heir." For the historical proof of the identity between the two, he refers to Mr. Hill's Account of Trade-Combinations at Sheffield'.

¹ Mr. Thornton's chapter On the Origin of Trades' Unions (in The Fortnightly Review, New Series, vol. ii. p. 688, and in his work On Labour and its Claims) bears the same relation to the real origin of Trade-Unions, as Rousseau's Contrat Social to the historical origin of States.

² Trade Societies and the Social Science Association, in Macmillan's Magazine, February and March, 1861.

Considering only the rules and restrictions prevailing in the old Craft-Gilds, and comparing them with the regulations which our modern Trade-Associations, existing only among workmen, try to enforce, one might feel inclined to accept this opinion at once. But the fact is, that in no one single instance did such a withdrawing of the masters from the Craft-Gild, leaving it to the workmen alone, ever take place. On the contrary, I think it more probable that the masters generally remained in the corporation, to prevent its bye-laws being enforced against them, and to annihilate its influence. Such, at least, was the case at Sheffield-as I will show further on-or the audience of Mr. Roebuck's declamations against the United States, the still existing Cutler's Company in Hallamshire, would have consisted of the same persons as returned Mr Mundella for Sheffield ! Trade-Unions are no lopsided representatives of the old Gilds; they are complete Gilds themselves, as well as the Town-Gilds and Craft-Gilds And when calling them the successors of the old Gilds, I did not mean to designate them as continuations of the Craft-Gilds, nor do I think that their descent from these now certainly antiquated societies could justify their existence. But if I succeed in proving that wherever we find in a trade the first formation of such unions among the workmen, and if, wherever more detailed records of their origin are extant, we see them arising under the same circumstances and for the same objects as the Frith-Gilds and Craft-Gilds previously arose, that is, under the breaking-up of an old system, and among the men suffering from this disorganization, in order that they may maintain independence and order, I think that this, together with the identity of their organization with that of the Gilds, will not only justify me in calling the Trade-Unions the successors of the latter, but will justify as well the existence of the Unions, as I shall then have proved that certain circumstances of disorganization, if unchecked by stronger restrictions², call forth necessarily in all times the same organizations into Gilds. Indeed, in our time of physical and economical law-making, one might call this a historical law.

Our inquiry makes it necessary that we should first of all represent to ourselves the regulations of the Statute of Apprentices, the 5th Elizabeth, c. 4, which codified the order existing for centuries among the Craft-Gilds, and applied it to all the trades of its time. There were indeed combinations and associations similar to Trade-Societies already before 1562. But, as I have shown in Part IV., they were but exceptions, occurring chiefly in the building-trades ¹. And the very fact of their occurring in the building-trades in the Middle Ages, is another proof of the justness of the theory which I am going to put forward in these pages; for these trades resembled entirely our modern manufactures, with their small number of masters and their masses of workmen. with sub-contractors, and deductions from wages. And as to the 2nd and 3rd Edw. VI. c. 15, it has been shown above² that this statute refers, not to associations of journeymen like our Trade-Societies, but to the abuses of craftsmen in general.

According to the 5th Eliz. c. 4, no one could lawfully exercise. either as master or as journeyman, any art, mystery, or manual occupation, except he had been brought up therein seven years. at least, as an apprentice. Every householder dwelling in a city. town-corporate, or market-town, might take apprentices for seven years at least. But only those youths might be taken as apprentices whose parents possessed a certain fortune; and none could be bound but those who were under twenty-one years of age. Whoever had three apprentices must keep one journeyman; and for every other apprentice above three, one other journeyman. As to journeymen, it was enacted that, in most trades, no person should retain a servant under one whole year, and no servant was to depart or be put away but upon a quarter's warning. The hours of work were fixed by the Act to about twelve hours in summer, and from the day-dawn till night in winter. Wages were to be assessed yearly by the justices of the peace or the town-magistrates, at every general Sessions first to be holden after Easter. The same authorities were to settle all disputes between masters and apprentices, and protect the latter. The 1st Jac. I. c. 6 expressly extends this power of the justices and town-magistrates to fix wages, to the wages of all labourers and workmen whatever.

It is evident that, as long as the regulations of the Statute of Apprentices were maintained, the position of the workmen was

¹ See p. cxliv, above.

² See pp. clvii, clviii.

¹ Trades' Societies and Strikes. Report of the Committee on Trades' Societies appointed by the Social Science Association, London, 1860, p. 521.

¹² The want of a similar growth of Trade-Societies on the Continent must be accounted for by the military sway prevailing there at the end of the eighteenth and the beginning of the nineteenth century, which suppressed all kinds of meetings and unions, and by the absence of a similar disorganization of trade to that which prevailed at that time in England.

secure. The long term of service assured them the regularity of employment, which they desired above everything. The magistrates were, according to the intention of the Act, to assess the wages so as to "yield unto the hired person, both in the time of scarcity and in the time of plenty, a convenient proportion of wages;" and the hours of work were not excessive, especially as the manner of carrying on industry was not then so exhaustive as it is now-a-days. Besides, the restrictions as to apprentices prevented a too great competition from lowering the skilled workmen to the level of common labourers. But as Adam Smith¹ tells us, the operation of this statute was limited by interpretation to cities, towns-corporate, and market-towns, and to those trades only which were established in England before the 5th Eliz.

In order to prove my assertion, that the Trade-Unions originated with the non-observance of these regulations, I will now successively consider, first, some of the trades subject to the 5th Eliz. c. 4; then, some of those which were incorporated by charter; and lastly, some which were free from any restrictions, whether by charter or Acts of Parliament.

The woollen manufactures were the old staple trade of England. I have already spoken in Part IV. of the great importance of the Craft-Gilds of the Woollen-weavers; and we have seen how the great number of workmen employed in this trade led them to combine whenever there was a temporary want of sufficient organization². Later on, the trade came under the 5th Eliz. c. 4, and was regulated besides by the 5th and 6th Edw. VI. c. 22 as to the use of machinery, and by the above³ cited and and 3rd Philip and Mary, c. 11, as to the number of looms which one weaver might have.

According to a report of a Committee of the House of Commons in 1757, the assessment of wages by the justices seems to have fallen into disuse in this trade already before 1720. In that year the justices fixed a rate of wages; but it was not carried out into practice. This want of fixed wages evidently led to oppressions of the workmen by the masters, and induced the men to combine. Accordingly, in 1725 the 12th Geo. I. c. 34 prohibited the combinations of workmen employed in the woollen manufactures; and an Act of the following year ordered the justices once more to fix the rate of wages in this trade. In accordance with this Act, the workmen petitioned the justices in 1756 to fix such rates of wages. But as the masters made a counter-petition, the justices refused to act. The immediate consequence, according to the evidence of a master, was, that the Weavers revolted, hindered the journeymen who went on working, and drove them from their looms. This master estimates the losses which arose to the country from these riots, at from $\pounds_{15,000}$ to $\pounds_{20,000}$. This strike induced the master manufacturers to agree with the workmen, and peace was at once re-established ¹. In the same year the justices were ordered again, by the 29th Geo. II. c. 33, to settle the rates of labour yearly in the woollen manufactures.

³ See p. clxiii. ² See pp. cxliii, cyliv, above.

But these were mere transitory skirmishes, called forth by individual attempts of the masters to abolish the existing order of things. As, however, this order was still maintained by the legislature, these attempts did not at that time lead to the formation of lasting Trade-Societies. This did not come about till the transition of the woollen manufactures from the domestic to the factory system, and till the attempt of the master manufacturers to get the 5th Eliz. c. 4 repealed. A Parliamentary Report² exists which gives almost a photograph of the state of the woollen manufactures at the time of these changes. As it is of importance for the understanding of the origin of Trade-Unions in all trades to have a clear idea of this transition, I will give a detailed account of these changes in the woollen manufactures, and will then deal less fully with the other trades.

The woollen manufactures were carried on in the last century by small masters in their own homes. They dwelt in villages and scattered houses, and often cultivated besides a little land, from three to twelve or fifteen acres. Often too they had a horse to carry their cloth to market, or, in later times, to the public mill. The number of such small masters in the environs of Leeds was estimated in 1806 as 3500.

Every master had served a seven years' apprenticeship. Though the 5th Eliz. c. 4 was not known, either to masters or men, its regulations were maintained, because they corresponded to custom. Thus even in 1806 there were in Harmley, a clothworkers' village of from 4000 to 5000 inhabitants, ninety-seven apprentices bound for seven years, and only four bound for a shorter period.

Each master employed on the average ten journeymen and apprentices. As a rule there was one apprentice to two or three journeymen. Besides, the master was regularly assisted by his wife and children. Children working with their fathers did not need to be bound by indenture. As a rule, all these persons worked in the master's house, where the wool was worked through all the various stages, till it became undressed cloth, and, if necessary, was dyed. Sometimes also the journeymen did the work in their own houses, and were assisted in it by their wives.

¹ Wealth of Nations, Bk. I. ch. x. Part ii.

¹ Journals of the House of Commons. vol. xxvii. pp. 730-733. ² Report and Minutes of Evidence on the State of the Woollen Manufacture of England, July 4th, 1806. Every single statement made in the following account in the text can be proved from this report, which I recommend every reader interested in the subject to peruse, as it is one of the most interesting reports 1 know of

The master himself taught the apprentice his trade. If the latter had the prospect of ever becoming a master himself, he was also taught how to buy raw materials. In this case the master received a premium on taking the apprentice. After the seven years' apprenticeship the apprentice could settle at once as a master; but as a rule he worked first for one or two years as a journeyman. The fact that a young man of good repute could always get credit for as much wool as would enable him to settle as a small master, is especially urged in recommendation of this system. The great stability and regularity of employment appears, however, as its chief advantage. Slackness of trade did not at once stop work in the workshops. The master went on working, although he could not find an immediate sale for his products, and took his wares to the market. The fact is, that he seldom worked to order. Sale in the cloth-halls was the rule. If, then, a sudden stagnation occurred in the foreign market, or a large firm became bankrupt, the losses distributed themselves over a larger surface. They fell on the whole body of manufacturers; and though cach individual small master suffered by it, there were but few, if any, whom it ruined. In such extreme cases the small masters also often took work from other small masters, to maintain their families.

Like the trade of the masters, the employment of the journeymen was exceedingly regular. As a rule, journeymen were hired for a year, and had board and washing at their masters'. They received besides, annual wages of from $\pounds 8$ to $\pounds 10$. There were journeymen who had continually for twenty years and more worked with the same masters. If trade became slack, or there was a stop in the sale, journeymen were not suddenly discharged in masses. Such discharges scarcely ever happened; as a rule, the masters let the men work on in the hope of better times. They considered it a duty to keep, in time of distress, the workmen to whose exertions in good times they owed their wealth. If a master was in want of work for his journeyman, he used to see about for a job for him at another master's; if one could not be got, he was kept on by his old master. "The men and masters," says a master, "were in general so joined together in sentiment, and, if I may be permitted to use the term, love to each other, that they did not wish to be separated if they could help it." If, on the other hand, a master ever had more orders than he could satisfy, he asked another master to lend him a journeyman¹.

The centres of this organization of trade were the cloth-halls, to which the masters brought their products to market. In Leeds there were two halls, one for white cloth and one for coloured. Similar halls were at Bradford, Halifax, and Huddersfield. There the cloth was examined and measured by the authorities. The two chief cloth-halls at Leeds were under the direction of a certain number of Trustees, who were elected for three years by all the clothworkers of the manufacturing villages, as the most trustworthy and most intelligent of their body. They watched over the general trade interests, and especially the observance of all rules and bye-laws which were framed from time to time for the government of the halls. No clothworker was allowed to bring his wares for sale in these halls, unless he had served a seven years' apprentice-hip.

The introduction of machinery brought a change into this state of things. Mills were now erected on rivers and streams, to make use of the fall of the water. Various processes, which had before been chiefly performed by hand under the masters' own roof, were now executed in public mills by machinery. In the neighbourhood of every manufacturing village were several such mills to be found. The manufacturer brought his wares to them with little trouble and loss of time, and fetched them back after they had gone through the necessary process. The cost was but small, so that he was enabled to get by these mills the advantage of very expensive machines. Sometimes too the master himself performed the work by machinery in the mill, in order that it might be well done.

¹ See the Report above referred to, p. 8. See, for the pas-age cited in the text, p. 4.3 As the statements in the text might be thought by some exaggerated, \mathbf{I} will quote some questions and answers from the Report. "During the time you were employed by a domestic manufacturer, had you regular work constantly ?" "Yes, I had; I never had reason to complain." "Were you constantly employed without reference to masters, or were you sometimes employed and sometimes dis-charged ?"—" I never was discharged; I have been with masters where they were short, and they used to see about for a job for me, and if one could not be got, I was continued." "If the domestic master was short he wished you to pick up another job, if you could get it; if not, he would continue to give you employment?"-"'Yes." (p. 117.) "As to the habit of clothiers keeping the persons they employed, you have stated that to be your habit?"-"Yes." "Would it have been possible for you, without evident disadvantage to yourself, to have kept on persons, paying them wages, without deriving any benefit from their work ?"-"We consider it as a duty, and there is that good understanding between the employers and the employed, that we should think it a very irksome task to turn off a workman whom we consider as a good and an honest workman." (p. 131.) And again on p. 40: "I scarcely ever knew a man discharged from his master because his master could not give him employment."

In this domestic system of industry the work was chiefly performed by persons who were its proprietors. It was not so in the system of the "rich master clothiers" which arose in the West of England. They bought the foreign wool directly from the importer, and the native in the fleece, or from the woolstapler. They then gave it to workmen to work up, partly in their own houses, partly in the masters'. For every single process through which the wool had to go until its completion, the masters gave the ware to another class of workers, none of whom went out of his own line. By this the workers obtained great skill in the performance of their operations. As in this system, so also in the system of the master manufacturers which came into existence with the origin of machinery, the workers were not the owners of the work they worked on. The merchants, for the most part possessors of large capitals, now became manufacturers themselves, and erected mills. In one or several buildings they kept more or less operatives working-up by machinery, under the employers' or their overseers' superintendence, the materials belonging to them.

These changes in the manner of carrying on industry led to others in the position of the journeymen. The first change was, that the apprentices were often no longer bound by indenture, though they mostly still served their seven years without it. In the mills, however, it also soon became usual to employ workers who had served no apprenticeship, besides great numbers of women and children; the latter at an earlier age than would have been possible without machinery, and according to the 5th Eliz. c. 4. Their labour was of course much cheaper than that of skilled workmen. The number of employers who had served no apprenticeship increased more and more. Whereas formerly the cloth of no master who had not served a seven years' apprenticeship was admitted to the cloth-halls, the trustees framed in 1796 a new regulation, according to which those manufacturers also were to be admitted who had carried on the trade of a clothworker for only five years. Soon after, all persons were admitted to the cloth-halls without any qualification.

It seems that at the beginning neither masters nor journeymen resisted at once the violation of the old customs and laws. But the employment of great numbers of children, apprentices, and journeymen who had served no apprenticeship, soon took the bread out of the mouths of the Weavers, and this led in 1796 to the formation of a Trade-Society, the so-called Institution, among the Clothworkers at Halifax, to prevent people from carrying on the trade in violation of custom and law. They did not know that, according to the 5th Eliz. c. 4, they might produce in court against the transgressors of this law, for they were entirely ignorant that this statute existed at all; they only knew the old restrictions as the customary order. Another object of the Institution was the assistance of sick members. When, by the 39th Geo. III. c. 81, in 1799, all such associations were suppressed, and the accumulation of funds by them especially prohibited, the Institution was nevertheless carried on. The only change was, that instead of keeping accumulated funds, the necessary money was levied by subscriptions in each case of want. The Institution included the workmen of several places.

As the new system spread, the greater irregularity of employment was felt more and more by the workmen. Every small fluctuation of trade affected the capital of a single large manufacturer much more than it had formerly affected a multitude of small ones, who had often even not noticed it. Every stop in the sale led at once to a discharge of workmen. Whereas formerly in bad times the small masters had worked on stock, the mastermanufacturers avoided the accumulation of stock, and worked only to order. Whilst formerly wages had been settled for the year, now every fluctuation led to reductions of wages. Besides, "the opulent clothiers made it a rule to have one-third more men than they could employ, and then these had to stand still part of their time¹." At the beginning, on the erection of a mill, the master-manufacturers enticed the workmen by high wages from the service of the domestic clothiers; but then every fluctuation brought reductions of wages and discharges. Whenever such discharged workmen found work again even for less wages at a domestic clothier's, on account of the greater regularity of employment they never wished afterwards to change their place, even for higher wages at the factories².

The position of the domestic master-clothiers was also greatly deteriorated by the spread of the factories. With the growth of these, home-work decreased. Many who had been masters sank to be workmen. Many who would formerly have become masters, now remained workmen for ever. They began to fear that the factory system would entirely supplant the domestic, and they therefore supported the workmen in their resistance.

As, in consequence of the 39th and 40th Geo. III. c. 106 (1800), all combinations were severely prohibited, the workmen

¹ Report, p. 111.

A journeyman who had formerly worked in a factory, being asked why he works for a small master though at less wages, says: "My reason is, when I have been out of employ, I have gone from house to house to work; and it seldom happens that the smaller clothiers change their men, except in the case of death and sickness. I never could lay hold of such an opportunity before."—Report, P. 115.

combined under the cloak of Friendly-Societies. The Report from the Committee on Woollen-Clothiers' Petitions of March 14th, 1803, contains the rules of a Trade-Society which had been begun as a Friendly-Society on Sept. 24th, 1802, and also an advertisement from a newspaper, "calling a meeting of one weaver out of the parish he represents, in order to determine on prosecuting those who unlawfully exercise or follow the trade of a weaver." At the same time we see the Trade-Society already anxious for the morals of the workmen—as before, the old Gilds —for they offer a reward to him who would detect any workman embezzling materials. The chief object of this and similar Trade-Societies was the legal prosecution of transgressors of the 5th Eliz. c. 4, of the 5th and 6th Edw. VI. c. 22, and the 2nd and 3rd Philip and Mary, c. 11.

After several employers had been condemned, first the mastermanufacturers of Somersetshire, Wiltshire, and Gloucestershire¹, and afterwards those of Yorkshire², petitioned Parliament for the repeal of the last-named statutes. They especially urged the fact, that there were no master-manufacturers, and very few journeymen, who had served a seven years' apprenticeship, and that masses of workmen would become breadless if the 5th Eliz. c. 4 was carried out. Others³ desired the repeal of the 5th and 6th Edw. VI. c. 22 only, but wished the maintenance of the two other statutes for the protection of the domestic trade, the 27th, 28th, and 32nd sections of the Statute of Apprentices excepted. On these petitions the said laws were in 1803 (43rd Geo. III. c. 136) suspended for one year for the woollen manufactures, and all prosecutions for violating them were stopped. This suspension was renewed in 1804, 1805, 1806, and so forth, until the final repeal of the laws (49th Geo. III. c. 109) in 1809.

After these petitions had been presented to Parliament, the trustees of the cloth-halls at Leeds assembled the clothworkers of the villages which they represented, to agree on counter measures. They signed counter petitions, and appointed agents to support them before Parliament. The necessary moneys were raised by subscriptions. Besides, the trustees prosecuted employers who violated the laws in question. They acted for both masters and men.

But it soon appeared to their constituents, that the trustees did not proceed with sufficient zeal. "When we saw," says a journeyman, "that they did not advance, and as we knew the evils arising therefrom, and that we thereby should become breadless," the workmen took the affair into their own hands, petitioned Parliament by themselves, and appointed their own agents. They again formed an Institution, about the year 1803. All journeymen belonged to it, and all working in any workshop contributed together to its funds. Even so early as this, contributions are to be found from members of other trades, as from Bricklayers, Carpenters, &c. Many home-working master Clothiers also, and very wealthy ones among them, joined the Institution to push forward affairs before Parliament, as the trustees seemed to give up the concern. It appears from evidence before the Committee, that the Institution spent from $\pounds_{10,000}$ to $\pounds_{12,000}$ on petitions to Parliament.

According to the "Rules and Orders of the Clothiers' Community, 1803," the chief object of the Institution was to carry out the legal regulations as to apprentices, in their original purity. But it is declared at the same time that those who till now had carried on the trade contrary to these regulations should continue without molestation. The activity of the society was only to extend to the future. The Rules complain besides, that the abuses which had arisen, especially the large number of hands who had been driven into the trade, had destroyed the mutual dependence between masters and men, and had produced pride and overbearing on the part of the former. Henceforth all apprentices were to be considered unlawful who had not been bound by indenture for seven years. They were to be bound, moreover, at so early an age, that their term would have expired before their majority, as no indenture was binding after their twenty-first year. The only exception was made in the case of a son of a lawful workman who served his father seven years. I must here mention, that with the factory system a new kind of apprentices sprung up, namely, apprentices bound to journeymen; hitherto all had been bound to the master. Nobody, as the Rules further ordain, was to learn two trades at once. In other Rules, workmen of other trades also stated that this regulation of the 37th Edw. III. c. 5¹ was to be maintained.

To the prosecution of this chief object, the Institution added the assistance of the sick, and of the widows of deceased members, under entirely similar conditions as are still now usual in Trade-Unions. The necessary moneys were collected, in every single case, in the name of the sick, or of the widow of the deceased. In Leeds, the contribution of each member was 1d. a week, and at Halifax 3d. Twice a year a committee of thirteen was elected by the members at a general meeting, to manage the affairs of

¹ See pp. cxxiii, cxxiv, above.

¹ Report from the Committee on Woollen-Clothiers' Petition, March 14th, 1803.

² Report on Yorkshire Woollen Petitions, May 9th, 1803

⁸ Report on Woollen-Manufacturers' Petition, April 24th, 1804.

the Institution. Seven were to form a quorum. Fines were imposed for not accepting office when chosen. On resigning, the committee had to render account of their doings. There were also stewards, who had to provide for the collection of contributions, and the assistance of the sick. Besides, we find here also what we found in the Statutes of all Gilds, from the Gilds of Abbotsbury, Exeter, and Cambridge, namely, that all offences at meetings, by using bad language, ill-behaviour, and the like, should be punished. The committee had the right to alter the rules according to need. If any cause of complaint arose, either as to apprentices or as to some other rule, the men of the workshop were first to inquire into the case, to try and arrange the difficulty. But wherever they did not succeed, the difference was to be brought before the committee, whose decision was to be final.

The masters, however, did not continue long in the Institution. The fact was, that it also assisted men on strike. At one place the workmen of a master-manufacturer quarrelled with him and struck work. The members of the Institution wished to assist them; upon this the masters left the society.

When the master-manufacturers heard that the object of the Institution was to petition Parliament for the maintenance of the 5th Eliz. c. 4, they required their workmen to leave it. On refusing this they were all discharged. The master-manufacturers even entered into combinations for suppressing the Institution, which, strange to say, notwithstanding the 39th and 40th Geo. III. c. 106, was considered allowable by the Parliamentary Committee, though it was hostile to the Institution. On the other hand, the workmen at some places forced the owners of mills who worked for others on hire, to enter their society, as otherwise they declared they would not work for them. They also hindered them from working for such masters as were hostile to the Institution. Once, when a master-manufacturer employed unlawful workers, his journeymen struck work. The rest of the master-manufacturers then promised their colleague assistance, and offered to do his work for him in the meantime. But when they attempted to do this, all their journeymen threatened to leave their factories at once. Finally, the masters signed a contract, according to which they obliged themselves to engage no more workmen for the future, contrary to the 5th Eliz. c. 4.

When, year after year, notwithstanding all petitions of the workmen, the Acts regulating the woollen manufacture were suspended, a factory was burnt down; and in September, 1805, the London Fire Insurance Companies received letters of caution from workmen, wherein they declared that, as Parliament refused to protect their right, they would do it themselves. Though the Report of the Committee expressly states, that not the Institution, but individuals, must be charged with these nefarious deeds, yet they prove the exasperation prevailing among the workmen. But notwithstanding this exasperation, and the attachment of the journeymen to their Trade-Society, which even then was so great, that as a master said in evidence, if it were prohibited they would rather follow it than the laws of the land, yet this Trade-Society ceased at once, when in Christmas, 1805, the trustees of the cloth-halls again took up the petitions. The workmen at once delivered them all their funds. It is evident from this, that the object of the Institution was nothing but the maintenance of the existing legal and customary regulations of trade. As soon as the State ceased to maintain order, it stepped into its place; and as soon as there was a prospect of a more legitimate authority putting the law into practice, the Institution ceased at once.

The Committee of the House of Commons before which this evidence was taken was, however, not favourable to the cause of the workmen. As ever on such occasions, the followers of the movement were spoken of as "poor deluded wretches," and it was made an especial fault of the Institution, that "its inevitable though gradual result must be the progressive rise of wages among all classes of workmen¹." The Committee met the petitions for the maintenance of the existing laws with the very naïve consolation, that the advantages of the domestic system were so great, that it could never be supplanted by the factory system; and by referring to the "true principles of commerce which were now so generally understood and acknowledged." But as the Committee recommended in the same breath the maintenance of the laws prohibiting the export of raw materials and machinery, the emigration of skilled workmen to foreign countries, and combinations of journeymen, it seems that they accepted Adam Smith's principles with conditions only. Their reason for advising the repeal of the 5th Eliz. c. 4 appears rather to have been the one uttered by one of the members of the Committee, namely, that its "maintenance would put the determination of the price of labour in the power of those who had the means of working²." Indeed, Adam Smith was right in saying, "Whenever the legislature attempts to regulate the differences between masters and workmen, its counsellors are always the masters !"

1 Report of 1806, p. 17.

² Minutes of 1806, p. 178.

After the repeal of the said statutes (p. clxviii) the combinations among the workmen in the woollen manufactures became chronic.

Earlier than the Trade-Society which the Clothworkers began in 1802 under the cover of a Friendly-Society, the Shipwrights of Liverpool had formed themselves in the last century into a Trade-Society, which was nominally a mere benefit-club¹. Here too the abuse of employing chiefly apprentices caused the origin of this union. But much earlier than the Trade-Societies in both these trades were those of the Hatters. Besides being under the 5th Eliz. c. 4, the hat-trade was under two Acts of the 8th Eliz. and the 1st Jac. I., which only confirmed the regulations of the Statute of Apprentices expressly for that trade. In this trade prevailed, early in the eighteenth century, the system of carrying on industry by means of sub-contractors (alias sweaters), who were called Little Masters. They received the materials from the master-manufacturers, and got them worked up by apprentices only. This led to combinations of the journeymen. From 1772 an extremely vigorous Trade-Society existed among them for maintaining the existing order and providing for the interests of the operatives. As soon as the employers attempted to give work to sub-contractors, they forced them by strikes to take it back. The society was called the Congress, was regulated by statutes, and framed bye-laws. All workmen of the trade belonged to it. Every one had to pay a weekly contribution of 2d. As the workmen thus prevented the masters from employing an excessive number of apprentices, the masters petitioned Parliament in 1777 for the repeal of the legal restrictions as to apprentices, and for prohibitions of combinations of journeymen². Both were granted by the 17th Geo. III. c. 55, which did not however repeal all restrictions, for every master-hatter was to employ one journeyman for every apprentice he might take.

In the Tailors' trade also combinations must have existed early in the eighteenth century, as the 7th Geo. I. c. 13 forbade them. I could, however, find nothing as to the cause of these combinations in the Journals of the House of Commons. But it is probable that here also, as in other trades, as for instance in the woollen manufactures just mentioned, the discontinuance of the legal regulation of wages by the justices of the peace occasioned these combinations. This seems the more probable, as the preamble of the 8th Geo. III. c. 17 speaks of those who by "many subtle devices " tried to evade the regulations of wages by the justices according to the 7th Geo. I. c. 13. By these words masters are evidently meant, as the devices of the workmen would have simply been strikes. In any case, however, the combinations of the Tailors seem to have been but transitory, and not to have led to the formation of lasting Trade-Unions. At least, during the entire eighteenth century we hear no more of combinations of journeymen, and not even the 8th Geo. III. c. 17 makes mention of them.

I now turn to the consideration of some trades incorporated by charter.

The trade of Framework-knitting was not yet established in the 5th Eliz.' But in the year 1663 Charles II. incorporated "several persons, by the name of Master, Warden, Assistants, and Society, of the Art and Mystery of Framework-knitters, of the Cities of London and Westminster, the Kingdom of England and Dominion of Wales, for ever, with power to exercise their jurisdiction throughout England and Wales; and from time to time to make Bye-laws for the regulation of the said business of Framework-knitting, and to punish persons who should offend against such Bye-laws." By § 33 of the Charter² the Master was directed to "enforce the statute of the 5th Eliz. c. 4, or any other statute as respects apprentices and the occupations of the trade."

By this ordinance of the Charter, therefore, the 5th Eliz. c. 4 had authority also over this trade. But evidently the Charter was not of the same effect as the Statute of Apprentices would have been, if it had had direct authority over the trade. The execution of the ordinances of the Charter depended on the Master and Wardens of the Company, that is, on the good-will of employers. As early as the beginning of the eighteenth century the masters employed apprentices in unlimited numbers, often in the proportion of ten and more apprentices to one journeyman; and there is even a man mentioned who had for thirty years employed constantly twenty-five apprentices to one journeyman. Indeed, this abuse of the want of fixed legal restrictions cannot surprise us, for besides the less wages to be paid to an apprentice, the parishes often paid bounties to the amount of \pounds_5 for every boy taken from the workhouse ³.

By this system the adult workers immediately after the expiration of their apprenticeship fell into deep misery. They ³ Felkin, p. 75.

¹ Social Science Association's Report on Trude Societies, p. 480.

² Journals of the House of Commons, vol. xxvii pp. 730-733.

¹ Felkin's History of the Machine wrought Ho iery and Lace Manufactures, London, 1867, pp. 71, 75. ² See the Charter in the Report from the Committee on Framework-Initters' Petitions, 1812, p 49.

therefore, in 1710, petitioned the Company to carry out the regulations of the Charter with regard to apprentices. But the Company refused. This was followed by a riot of the workmen; they destroyed about 100 frames, threw them out of the windows, and thrashed the opposing masters and their apprentices. The frightened masters gave in, and promised to observe for the future the ordinances of the Charter with regard to apprentices. But as the system of parish apprentices was continued, the trade, notwithstanding this promise, was so overstocked with lawful journeymen without employment, that the most serious seditions ensued. The extent to which they went may be seen from the fact that in 1727 an Act was passed, prohibiting under penalty of death the breaking of frames, which was the men's chief way of revenging themselves on their masters ¹. The overstocking of the trade with breadless parish apprentices who had served their term, brought them, in the years 1740 to 1750, near to starvation, according to Mr. Felkin's² account. "There was often only one coat in a shop, which was worn by each in turn 3, as he went out from its precincts; so that one Moss, a Northamptonshire master, refused to employ a man possessed of a good coat, declaring the best workmen were only to be found in ragged ones."

On May 22, 1745, the Company ordained new bye-laws 4, which were confirmed by the Lord Chancellor in accordance with the 19th Henry VII. c. 7. They enacted once more the old restrictions as to apprentices. Besides, these bye-laws contain the first direct news of the practice which was to bring such infinite misery on the workmen, namely, of owners of frames who, though they did not themselves exercise the trade, let frames out on hire 5. This is the first intimation of mere capitalist-employers. But when the Company did nothing further but attempt to enforce its authority in favour of the London employers throughout the whole country, this led to the entire loss of its influence.

When, at the beginning and in the middle of the eighteenth century, the trade retired more and more from London to Nottingham, the Company sent its deputies there to maintain its privileges. But the Nottingham manufacturers did not acknowledge them. They were already employers of the modern style; they had (for the most part) not served a seven years' apprenticeship themselves, and employed unlawful workers, such as journeymen who had not served their legal term or did not belong to the Company, as well as women and children; of two employers, we are even told that the one worked with twentythree, the other with forty-nine, apprentices, without employing any journeymen. The Company relying on its Ordinances confirmed by the Lord Chancellor, threatened to enforce these masters' submission at law. But then its former conduct towards the petitions of the journeymen in 1710, and its own degeneration, were revenged upon itself. The retort on it was that its members did not themselves maintain the seven years' apprenticeship as a qualification of trade,—that they had themselves given up the requisite of a masterpiece,-and that instead of preventing frauds they rather committed them themselves. The fact is, that the London manufacturers were quite as much modern employers as those of Nottingham, and their whole proceeding appears nothing but a trick arising from envy. The workmen, however, hailed with joy the proceedings of the Company. The Company also addressed the men especially, asked them to join them, made easier for them the conditions of entrance, promised the re-establishment of the old order, and designated themselves as the true friends of the workmen, whilst they called their other employers their enemies¹. The master-manufacturers, threatened with lawsuits by the Company, petitioned Parliament and accused the Company of ruining the trade by monopolies. As Parliament was of the same opinion, the Company became unable to enforce its bye-laws legally, and therefore ceased henceforth to exercise a real influence over the trade².

² Ibid. p. 82

Notwithstanding the enormous rise of framework-knitting in the period from 1750 to 1780, the workmen-as Mr. Felkin says-but slowly, partially, and indirectly profited by it. The trade suffered under the constant influx of boys, girls, and nonfreed workmen. Whilst these abuses had hitherto produced only violent transitory revolts, they then-when all hope in the efficiency of the Company had been finally destroyed-led to the formation of a Trade-Union of the workmen. Thus arose the Stocking-makers' Association for Mutual Protection in the Midland Counties of England, for the purpose of making regulations as to apprentices, inasmuch as a legal order was wanting. This body soon became so powerful in Nottingham that it influenced the elections for Parliament, and even made them. Mr. Abel Smith was thus returned without opposition in 1778, when the members of this Association marched in procession before his chair, accompanied by two assistants, the clerk, and other

¹ Journals, &c., vol. xxvi. p. 794.

² Felkin, pp. 79, 80.

Felkin, pp. 73, 227-229.
 Among the London tailors such a coat is called a "reliever."

⁴ Journals of the House of Commons, vol. xxvi. pp. 790-794.

⁵ See Felkin, p. 79.

deputies of the London Framework-knitters Company. "This formerly authoritative body had," as Mr. Felkin says, "another opportunity thus given them, by wise and timely measures, to have rendered themselves useful between the master-hosiers and their discontented workmen. The novelty of high rents exacted for frames, with other charges, had not yet settled into a legalized custom; the best of the journeymen and wisest of the masters might have been conciliated, and the Charter revived; but the time was wasted in squabbles about fees, and the Company lost almost its last hold on the trade¹."

As the complete abandonment of the workmen to the discretion of the employers plunged them, notwithstanding the flourishing state of the trade, into the greatest misery, they petitioned the House of Commons in 1778 for a legal regulation of the rate of wages. In consequence of low wages, the payment of frame-rents, and other charges of the employers, they were, according to their statement, unable to maintain themselves and their families. As the master-hosiers made a counter-petition, a Committee was appointed to inquire into the complaints of the workmen. The witnesses examined confirmed the justice of the journeymen's statements in an alarming manner. The earnings of a workman were affirmed to be about 6s. a week. Besides, there were the most infamous exactions on the part of the employers. According to the evidence of an examined master, many of them hired workmen without giving them sufficient employment, for the mere purpose of obtaining frame-rents². But notwithstanding the Report of the Committee, the influence of the masters prevailed, and the motion for enacting a law according to the petition remained in the minority. On this the employers in the silk branch of the trade attempted at once to reduce the prices paid for the work 25 per cent., and a strike was the immediate result ³.

On the 2nd of February, 1779, the Framework-knitters of Nottingham and the environs again petitioned the House for the regulation of the trade of framework-knitting. This petition was followed by similar ones from Tewkesbury, Godalming, Derby, London, Westminster, and Northampton. Witnesses from all these places were examined by a Committee⁴. The shameless exactions on the workmen by their masters unveiled by this Committee find their equal only in the articles of the Morning Chronicle¹ in 1849, on the position of the London Tailors, and their oppressions by Sweaters. According to the evidence of all witnesses examined, wages had constantly fallen during the then last twenty years, whilst the prices of food had risen. The employers had always endeavoured to reduce wages. After various deductions-which the workmen had to submit to-for frame-rent, winding, seaming, needles, candles, &c., their wages are stated as 6s. or 8s. weekly. Numbers of workmen could not even earn as much. The most disgraceful abuse was carried on as to frame-rents. The value of a frame is stated as $\pounds 6$ or $\pounds 8$. But for its use the workmen had to pay rents from 18. 3d. to 2s. a week, that is, up to 86 per cent. The workmen were obliged to hire these frames, if they wished to get work; if a workman had himself a frame, he was refused work. This rent the workmen had to pay whether they worked or not, even during their sickness, for Sundays and holidays, or when they had no materials, which the employers had to furnish. Many employers in Nottingham stinted their workmen from making more than a certain number of stockings a week, though they could have made more, - evidently that they might thus be able to deduct the more frame-rent from a certain sum of wages. The workmen had to buy from the employers the materials for making the stockings. The latter then rebought the stockings from the workmen. But they also often left them on the workmen's hands. The workmen, says the Report, were in a state of starvation. They had to submit to any conditions of their employers. A number of workmen who had signed the last year's petition to Parliament had had to leave off work .-- The witnesses brought forward the fact that the masters and men at Dublin had agreed on a price list, and that the Lord Mayor had confirmed it; that both parties were there now content, and that the workmen had bettered themselves in consequence of the list, and earned more wages. They desired a Bill fixing prices, which would, as they thought, produce a very wholesome effect.

On this Report the House resolved that a Bill should be introduced for regulating the trade of framework-knitting, and for preventing the frauds and abuses therein. Mr. Meadows, one of the members for Nottinghamshire, brought in the Bill on May the 10th, 1779. It was strenuously supported by Mr. Robert Smith (afterwards Lord Carrington), who said "the measure was moistened and saturated by the tears of the poor distressed families of framework-knitters ²." Leave was given to bring in

¹ See for these statements Felkin, pp. 115-117.

² Journals of the House of Commons, vol. xxxvi pp. 63:, 728, 740-742.

³ Felkin, pp. 115 117.

^{*} Journals of the House of Commons, vol. xxxvii. pp. 117 295, 301, 370-372.

¹ The numbers of December 14th and 18th. See also Cheap Clothes and Nasty by Parson Lot, 1850. ² Felkin, pp. 115-117.

the Bill, with only one dissentient voice. Upon this the employers counter-petitioned. They said that if the Bill should become law, this, "from various reasons" (sic !), would be most injurious to the petitioners, and to the wholesale merchants in the trade of framework-knitting. A Committee was appointed, which was once more to inquire into the state of the workmen. On the 9th of June they reported that the former statements of the workmen were true, and proposed only a few amendments in the Bill. The second reading was carried by twenty-four against twenty-three. But it was thrown out upon the third reading by a majority of fifty-two to eighteen ¹. Indeed, I was wrong in approving above of the saying of Adam Smith, that whenever the Legislature has attempted to regulate the differences between masters and workmen, its counsellors have always been the masters. This statement contains but half the truth. It has also always been the same whenever the Legislature refused such regulation.

Upon the rejection of the Bill, great excitement of the workmen ensued. They crowded to Nottingham, broke the frames of those manufacturers by whose special influence the Bill had been lost-as well as of other employers-threw them out of the windows, burned a house down, and destroyed much property belonging to the employers. More than 300 frames were broken on this occasion. The whole of the employers then promised, if the riots would at once cease, to remove all grievances. On this, peace ensued. Public opinion seems to have been on the side of the journeymen, for the workman accused of having set fire to the house was acquitted. But the employers kept their word badly. They had formed a union of their own. After the ferment had subsided, they issued an address, stating that they would oppose all regulations, whether by charter or Acts of Parliament, as tending to drive the manufacture to France, where workmen were contented with low wages².

The grievances of the workmen in the trade increased more and more. From 1780, in consequence of the system of rentcharge for the use of stocking frames having become fully established, the construction of machinery proceeded very rapidly for the next thirty years. The cost bore so small a proportion to the rent, as to induce many persons not in the trade to purchase frames³. On this came a vast increase in the number of apprentices. Mr. Felkin mentions an instance of a father and son in Nottingham having, in 1810, twenty-four apprentices; and two framework-knitters at Hinchley having 100 between them.

The whole district was accordingly in a constant state of riot. In their distress the workmen turned their attention once more to the powers entrusted to the chartered London Company, and sought its intervention for their relief. But it was then too late for its action. The Company proceeded, indeed, at law against a manufacturer for taking apprentices in violation of the bye-laws of the Company, but the manufacturer was condemned in 1s. damages only. As wages became more and more dependent on the discretion of the employers, the workmen again applied in 1812 to Parliament to enforce payment by statement-lists. But though a Bill embodying such clauses passed the Commons, the appeal was unsuccessful in the Lords. On this the workmen in all the branches of the trade entered into union in 1814¹. Since then, until the time of Mr. Mundella, attempts to fix statement-lists of prices have changed with strikes, when these were violated by the masters, and with unsuccessful applications to Parliament for laws regulating the trade.

To mention another incorporated trade, I take the Cutlers in Sheffield. Already before 1790 the masters there must have attempted to violate the customary restrictions as to apprentices; and they were probably hindered in this by the journeymen. But far from withdrawing from the corporation, they complained of these restrictions in 1790 to Parliament, and petitioned for alleviations in the bye-laws of the Company². These were granted in an Act of June the 7th, 1791³; and forthwith, on the 9th of September of the same year, we find combinations among the Scissor-grinders and other workmen. On the 3rd of April following the Scissor-smiths' Benefit Society was formed. According to Mr. Hill's account⁴, it was a Trade-Society to oppose the actions of the employers, which probably took the shape of a Friendly-Society to evade the 39th and 40th Geo. III. chap. 106.

The same phenomena which we observed in the trades incorporated by charter, or under the 5th Eliz. chap. 4, recur in those which had been always free from any legal restrictions. Among these was the trade of the Calico-printers 5. Nevertheless, though the regulations of the 5th Eliz. chap. 4 had no power over this trade, yet they were observed in it as the order sanctioned by the general

¹ Journals of the House of Commons, vol. xxxvii. pp 386, 396, 421, 441. Felkin. pp. 117, 227-229. ¹ Ibid. p. 117. ² Felkin, pp. 117, 227-229.

¹ Felkin, pp. 435-439 and foll —The London Company existed till 1835. Journals, vol. xlvi. pp. 11, 12

⁵ Jbid. p. 717. ³ Ibid. p. 717. ⁴ S S A. Rep. on Trades' Societies, p. 526 ⁵ See for the following statements, "Minutes of evidence taken before the ⁵ See for the following statements, "Minutes of evidence taken before the Committee, to whom the petition of the several journeymen Calico-Printers and others working in that trade, &c, was referred," July 4, 1804, and the Report from the Committee on these minutes, July 17, 1806.

custom of trade before the introduction of machinery. But simultaneously with the introduction of machinery, about the year 1790, the unlimited employment of apprentices in the place of adult journeymen became general in this trade. And the disproportion between journeymen and apprentices which, not restricted by even the possibility of a legal prosecution, arose in the counties of Lancaster, Derby, Cheshire, and Stafford in England, and in those of Lanark, Renfrew, Dumbarton, Stirling, and Perth in Scotland, sur assed by far that existing in all other trades. In Lancashire there were cases of fifty-five apprentices to two journeymen only; and in the county of Dumbarton cases of sixty to two. These proportions had however been in no way caused by a want of hands from the great rise of the trade after the introduction of machinery. On the contrary, whilst all apprentices were working full time in the factories, the journeymen sought in vain for work. And whenever the state of the trade necessitated a discharge of hands, the journeymen were always discharged first, whilst the apprentices remained fully employed. The reason was rather this, that the masters, by employing apprentices instead of journeymen, saved one-third in wages. And it was not rare "that apprentices were discharged immediately upon the expiration of their apprenticeship, although the work was unfinished, the masters being unwilling to pay them journeymen's wages, even until such work was finished." Against the evil consequences naturally to be apprehended from the comparative unskilfulness of boys, the masters provided, by making at their discretion an adequate deduction from their wages, whenever work was spoilt by the boys. The position of the apprentices was just as precarious as the situation of the journeymen was miserable. The employers declined taking apprentices on indenture, and accepted them only on verbal promises of serving seven years. To enforce the observation of this agreement, they required from the parents of the boy a bond of \pounds 50, and also retained a certain part of their earnings-as a rule \pounds_{10} -until the term of apprenticeship agreed to had elapsed. Besides, the apprentices often had to serve from eight to ten years instead of seven; for when at any time the employer had no work for his apprentice, he forced him to serve more than his term for the time in which he had no work. The employer, on the other hand, did not take upon himself any legal obligation whatever towards his apprentices. He could discharge him at will, and very often did so. These apprentices were partly parish apprentices, partly children of workmen, who were forced by their employers by threats of instant dismissal in case of refusal to apprentice their children. And whilst the trade "produced among the generality of workers a great difficulty of breathing, diseases of the lungs, &c.; whilst their sight was apt to fail them at an early age, and the period of old age very soon reached them," and they thus became unfit for any other employment, they were mostly discharged at once after the expiration of their apprenticeship. There is also evidence as to workers being dismissed immediately on their sight beginning to fail them ¹.

This abuse of power on the part of the masters, and their aggressions, especially on the journeymen's customary right of preference to employment, which they had acquired by a regular apprenticeship, led at once, as might be expected, to the formation of Trade-Societies. All journeymen of the trade belonged to this Calico-printers' Trade-Society, as all Clothworkers did to their Institution. At first there were no regular obligatory payments, but all contributed voluntarily to a common fund. From this fund the sick members, and those out of work, were assisted. When such accumulations of funds had been prohibited by the 39th and 40th Geo. III. chap. 106, the Calico-printer Unionists gave each member a ticket. On presenting this, the bearer-like the wandering journeymen in Germany-received a donation from the workers in every workshop he passed. Originally, everybody was free to give what he pleased; but gradually there arose too great a disproportion, as the zealous often gave 6d., whilst the lukewarm gave nothing. Then the journeymen were bound to fixed contributions, in England to a halfpenny, in Scotland to 1d. each. It seems that as the trade developed further, only the more zealous journeymen belonged to the Union, and that thus a closer and more restricted association arose, which no longer comprehended all workers in the trade. Another rule among these workmen which has a certain likeness to those of the German journeymen's fraternities, was, that every apprentice or workman who wished to work in a workshop, had first to apply to the journeymen, before asking the masters for work. The reason was, that if discontent existed, or there was not plenty of work, the employers might not take advantage of the new offer of labour to discharge their journeymen or reduce wages. If new apprentices were taken, a strike ensued. When the journeymen struck work, the apprentices generally went with them, and were assisted during the turn-out by the journeymen. In London and the parts adjacent, however, the most friendly relations existed between masters and men; but it was also shown, on inquiry into fourteen workshops, that the proportion of apprentices to journeymen was only 37 to 216.

¹ Compare Sheridan's speech on these abuses in Hansard, vol. ix. pp. 534-537.

These combinations existed until the year 1802, when the journeymen first applied to the House of Commons for redress, and "the moment they found their petition entertained, and felt any ground of hope that their grievances would be fairly considered, all combination ceased, and their reliance for redress was entirely founded upon the justice and liberality of Parliament¹."

The Committee appointed by the House made an excellent Report on the evidence which it had taken, and warmly recommended measures for the relief of the Calico-printers. The Report dwelt specially on the fact, that the legislation of the then last years for the working-classes "had operated only in favour of the strong and against the weak." "Everything," it says, "is made subservient to the interest of the masters, and exclusively too; for the diminution of expense, considerable as it is, the manufacture arising out of their multiplication of apprentices at reduced wages, and the introduction of machinery, do not appear to have produced any reduction whatever in the price of the fabric to the consumer." Mr. Sheridan brought in a Bill in accordance with this Report, proposing (among other things) to lessen the number of apprentices. Parliament, however, refused the Bill a second reading, especially on a speech of Sir Robert Peel (the father), who opposed it in the name of the masterprinters. He was a party to the question, as the evidence shows, for his manufactory at Church Bank, in Lancashire, was as overstocked with apprentices as those of other employers. This refusal caused the revival of Trade-Unions among the journeymen Calico-printers; and it is worth mentioning, that the precarious condition of the apprentices themselves caused them even later on, in 1831, to form a Trade-Society of their own², which was to assist and supplement the Trade-Society of the journeymen in their endeavours, just as the journeymen's fraternities of the fifteenth century on the Continent supplemented the Craft-Gilds.

As regards the Cotton-trade, I have not been able to find accounts of the first Trade-Societies among its journeymen. But the following statement about it agrees with what occurred in all other trades, when the exceedingly well-informed author of the essay On Combinations of Trades says (p. 15), "that this manufacture, which was of too modern an origin to be obnoxious to the 5th Eliz. c. 4, was never without unions among its artisans." An early organization of the journeymen Cotton-workers may also be inferred from the evidence contained in a Parliamentary Report of 1811¹. It is said there, that for seventy years statementlists of prices had existed in that trade, which were agreed upon by masters and men, and that they had been given up thirteen years before, by which great misery had been caused to the workmen.

Though the examples mentioned sufficiently prove my assertion as to the origin of Trade-Unions, I will yet give an account of the Trade-Societies in the Silk-manufacture; for the real nature of Trade-Unions comes out nowhere more clearly than here. Already before 1773 the assessment of wages by justices of the peace or by the Lord Mayor had fallen into disuse in the silkmanufacture in London, Westminster, Middlesex, and within the liberties of the Tower of London. In consequence, the competition of employers to undersell each other had lowered the wages of workmen. This led to continual differences as to wages between masters and men. Several deeds of violence were committed by the exasperated workmen, and much property belonging to those employers who would not pay the customary wages was destroyed ². Strikes were frequent; and the men on strike were assisted by contributions from all the workmen of the trade. They chose a committee for managing all matters connected with the trade. But when the committee once ordered a levy of 2d. for every loom used by a workman, guarrels ensued with the masters, which finally led to the enactment of the 13th Geo. III. c. 68³. According to this Act, the justices of the peace or the Lord Mayor at the above-named places were, from July 1st, 1773-from time to time, after demand so to do had been made to them-to assess the wages of the journeymen in the silk-manufacture. Employers giving more or less than the assessed wages to their workmen, or evading the Act, as well as journeymen entering into combinations to raise wages, were to pay certain fines, the amount of which, after the deduction of the necessary expenses, was to be applied to the relief of needy weavers and their families. By the 32nd Geo. III. c. 44, of the year 1792, these regulations were extended to the manufactories of silk mixed with other materials; and by the 51st Geo. III. c. 7, of 1811, to the female workers in the respective trades. These three Acts were called the Spitalfields Acts.

After the enactment of the first Spitalfields Act, no more strikes

¹ The words are Sheridan's. Compare also Report, p 6.

² See the account of the Young Society of Block-Printers in Manchester, in the essay On Combinations of Trades, pp. 73-76. London, 1831.

¹ Report on Petitions of Several Weavers, June 13th, 1811.

² Minutes of Evidence taken before the Committee to consider of the Several Petitions relating to the Ribbon Weavers, March 18th, 1818, p. 40.

³ Second Report of Minutes of Evidence, April 20th and 28th, and May 8th, 1818, p. 57.

took place in Spitalfields¹. Masters and men were unanimous in their praise of the effects of these Acts; and an employer even declared, that in case of their repeal, he would instantly retire from the trade². In the year 1795 a general price-list was fixed in conformity with the 13th Geo. III. c. 68; and this was followed by several others, the last in 1806³. The great expenses caused by the publication of these price-lists, amounting sometimes to \pounds_{300} , were defrayed by subscriptions of the workmen⁴. But as all did not contribute to them properly and equally, the men elected in 1805 a "committee of ways and means," which levied contributions according to the number of looms worked on by a journeyman⁵. But as the masters frequently endeavoured to violate the list agreed on before the magistrates, further subscriptions were required, first to assist those workmen who had been discharged for insisting on their lawful wages, until they should again get work, and then for prosecuting in court those masters who violated the law 6. This led to a confederation of those journeymen who were more zealous for the common weal, into a Trade-Society.

According to its statutes⁷, the "Rules to be observed by a few friends called the Good Intent," it had as standing officers only a few collectors of contributions, who were called "The Finance," and, besides, a paid secretary. The entrance-fee was twopence, the weekly contribution a halfpenny. If a member was out of work he received a donation. Yet this case was evidently a rare one, as is proved by the rule of the statutes, that in case of more than one journeyman being out of work, the sum which was to be applied to the assistance of men out of work should not be augmented, but equally distributed between them. This proves therefore, apart from the distinct evidence on the point, that after the enactment of the Spitalfields Acts no more strikes occurred; that strikes were not the object of the society. And indeed, as the journeymen could protect their interests at law, there was no room for strikes. If differences broke out between masters and men, the latter chose a committee ad hoc, which was again dissolved after the case had been settled. The journeymen sometimes also elected on this committee masters who had before been workmen themselves, and who, even after their rise, had known how to preserve the confidence of their former associates. This committee prosecuted, in the name of the journeymen, those employers who violated the said Acts. It represented them also whenever a new price-list had to be fixed. In opposition to this society of the journeymen the employers formed another, with the object of defending its members in court when prosecuted by the journeymen. It also represented the masters on the settlement of a new price-list. Whenever such a new price-list was to be fixed, the committees of both societies met; and after an agreement as to the prices had been come to, the committee of the journeymen brought the change, or the new regulation, before the magistrates to receive their sanction. The complaint of the employers, that the magistrates regulated the prices always more according to the statements of the workmen than according to theirs, proves that the journeymen were not badly off under these legal regulations of prices. Sometimes, also, such new regulations led to discussions before the magistrates. But "in most cases," says a master silk-manufacturer, "where a dispute as to the fixing of prices has occasioned a discussion before the magistrates, it has arisen from the contending masters not being operative weavers; there would not then (i.e. if they had been operative weavers) be such disputes as there have been, as the masters were not capable of answering those articles which the journeymen have put them." On the 4th of December, 1813, the journeymen's society consisted of 83 members, and was in possession of \pounds_5 8s. 11 $\frac{1}{2}d$. In October, 1817, its finances seem to have been embarrassed. It accordingly circulated an address to its members, calling for contributions. This address gives at the same time an account of the society's operations. "Within the last nine months upwards of fifty persons (by means of the Trade-Society) have obtained the lawful prices of their work, which was withheld from them to a very great extent by their employers; the expenses of obtaining which, with other things, have borne so heavy upon your finances, that you are embarrassed to a very large amount."

⁶ Ibid. pp. 59, 194. ⁵ Ibid p. 5+. 7 Compare as to this Trade-Society the Second Report, pp. 54, 56, 57, 59, 165, 166, 168, 180, 188, 194, 195, 196.

exei

After a contest of almost a hundred years-for the violations of the 5th Eliz. c. 4 began about the eighteenth century-the master-manufacturers at last obtained the victory in 1814. For the woollen manufacture the Statute of Apprentices had previously been repealed; by the 54th Geo. III. c. 96 the industrial system, which was as old as the Craft-Gilds, was abolished for all trades. Indubitably, the condition of things before this repeal had become untenable; for whilst the law was nominally in force, it was practically not observed. All agreed, therefore, that a new law had become necessary. But whilst some wished for the amendment of the statute, others desired its entire repeal. Petitions were presented to Parliament by the followers of both views. But whilst 300,000 were for the maintenance of the statute, there were but 2000 for its repeal¹. A Parliamentary Committee was appointed in 1813 to inquire into the facts of the question. All witnesses examined were against the repeal. The arguments of the workmen brought round to their side even the Chairman of the Committee, who had formerly been little inclined to their views². The workmen's petitions also laid particular stress on the point, that by the thitherto prevailing laws the journeymen lawfully educated for their trade had acquired a right similar to property, and that the repeal of the statute of Elizabeth would be to them what the deprivation of land or any other property would be to owners thitherto protected by the laws 3. And, indeed, in this the workmen were right. For what else is land but an opportunity of getting an income? and what else had the journeymen acquired by their seven years' apprenticeship, and by the expenses incurred for their education in the trade, but the opportunity of getting an income? and does not our age, which on expropriations pays compensations to landowners for the loss of this opportunity, owe such compensations also to those journeymen; at the least to the amount of the cost incurred by their education to their trades during the seven years required ? But we acknowledge only rights of capital, and these only when they are fixed in saleable commodities.

¹ Minutes, p. 40; Second Report, p. 194. ² If the Spitalfields' Acts should be repealed, "I should in all probability leave the trade, and for this reason: I allude to no individual, but I have sufficient experience of human nature, and I have seen enough to know, that there are many people who would so oppress the poor to get goods manufactured very cheap, that I should not have a disposition to enter into competition with them, and I should in all probability retire from the trade." (Minutes. p 43.)

⁴ Ibid. p 56. ³ Second Report, p. 188.

The debates in Parliament on the repeal of the statute show as its enemies, either employers or mere theoreticians, who, with the entire superciliousness of the followers of a still young theory, spoke with contempt of the glorious reign of Queen Elizabeth as of the time when nothing was yet known of the infallible doctrine of the new era⁴. It is remarkable, however, that these enlightened adherents of the new theory differed from Adam Smith in his justification of combinations of workmen⁵. The employers, on the other hand, described this openly as a chief reason for the repeal of the statute, that the seven years' apprenticeship restricted the number of workmen, and thereby enabled them to combine with success against their masters ⁶.

The spirit of the repealers may be seen by the assertion, that "the persons most competent to form regulations with respect to trade were the master-manufacturers ." Thus at last the statute was repealed in the interest of the employers.

I am not going to criticise further here the repeal of the 5th Eliz. c. 4, but I may be allowed a word on the dodge of the cry against State or Government interference by which this repeal was carried, and so many other regulations of trade desired by the workmen were refused. It seems to me, on the contrary, that this repeal was an interference; and I can also imagine refusals of such regulations, which would constitute interferences. For what does interference mean? Evidently an unjust meddling with the affairs of another. But what is the State, and what is Government; or rather, what ought they to be? The State is the organization of the people, and Government the natural centre of popular life. When this is really the case, there can be no question of State interference, so long as the State fulfils the will of the people. For nobody who acts according to his own will can be said to interfere with himself. The whole term "State interference" presupposes therefore a condition of the State as it ought not to be; it presupposes a State which is something else than the organization of the people, a government which is not the natural centre of popular life; both, something foreign to the people. And such was the State when the 5th Eliz. c. 4 was repealed, and when those regulations of trade were refused. If it had been otherwise, it would not have acted in favour of the 2000 against the interests of the 300,000; and, in the case of those refusals, not against the expressed will of the majority of the interested part of the people. This repeal, and these refusals, were acts of interference on the part of a minority with the wishes of the people. And, indeed, the then existing Parliament did not even nominally represent the latter. This was also shown by the debates on the repeal. A general want of interest prevailed on the deliberation of a law of such grave importance to the life of the people; the House was even counted out ².

The repeal of the 5th Eliz. c. 4 declared the state of industrial disorganization and disorder as the only lawful state. This state became only too soon the prevailing one in all trades. Parliamentary reports³ on the condition of the ribbon-trade and the silk-manufacture at Coventry, Nuneaton, and Macclesfield, describe, as the immediate consequence of the repeal, such a

 ¹ Hansard, vol. xxvii. p. 574.
 ² Ibid. p. 570.
 ³ See Report from the Committee on the Petitions of Watchmakers of Coventry, &c.,

July 11, 1817, p. 4-. ⁴ Compare Hansard, vol. xxvii. pp. 564, 572, 884.

⁶ Ibid. vol. xxvi. p. 213. ⁵ Hansard, vol. xxvii. p. 572.

¹ Hansard, vol. xxvii. p. 572. ² Ibid. vol. xxviii. p. 14. ³ See the two above referred to Reports on the State of the Ribbon Trade (p. clvxxix, notes 1, 2). N

growth of the system of sweaters and half-pay apprentices, that the journeymen were driven to famine, and the female workers to prostitution ¹. "Whilst the statute of the 5th Eliz. was in force," says the Report, "the distressing circumstances now complained of never occurred." The whole of the masters and weavers. therefore, petitioned in 1818 for the extension of the Spitalfields Acts to the silk-trade in the said places. Reports of the years 1817 and 1818 give an absolutely identical account of the condition of the Watchmakers at Coventry². Further, as the justices of the peace no longer assessed wages after having heard masters and men, the workmen now endeavoured to introduce regulation of wages by statement-lists of prices, agreed upon by masters and men³. But they were violated upon every occasion by the employers. The words which Pitt + spoke on the subject of the Arbitration Act were now completely fulfilled. "The time will come," he said, "when manufactures will have been so long established, and the operatives not having any other business to flee to, that it will be in the power of any one man in a town to reduce the wages, and all the other manufacturers must follow. If ever it does arrive at this pitch, Parliament, if it be not then sitting, ought to be called together, and if it cannot redress your grievances, its power is at an end. Tell me not that Parliament cannot—it is omnipotent to protect." The workmen were quite of the opinion of Pitt, and numberless were the petitions which, after 1814, they addressed to Parliament for the legal regulation of their trades. But as Parliament thought it could not redress their grievances, they tried selfhelp. After the repeal of the Act of Elizabeth combinations and unions therefore arose in all trades. But whilst, on the one hand, the workmen were refused legal protection, self-help, in consequence of the 30th and 40th Geo. III. c. 106, was considered a crime. In 1818, bail to the amount of £200, and two surfices for $\pounds 100$ each, were required for the appearance of a common workman at the next Session to answer a charge of combining⁵. The greatest mischief was, however, that the Combination Laws, by confounding right and wrong, led men to

¹ Minutes of Evidence on the Ribbon Trade, March 18 1818, pp. 5, 24, 33.

- ² Report from the Committee on the Petitions of Watchmakers at Cocentry, &c., July 11, 1817; Report from the Select Committee to consider the Laws relating to Watchmakers, March 18, 1818.
- ³ Compare especially, as to the Silk-weavers of Macclesfield, the Second Report on the Ribbon Trade referred to; moreover, the Report on Petitions of Several Weavers, June 13, 1811.
- ⁴ I quote from Mr. Maxwell's speech, May 15, 1834, Hansard, Third Series, vol. xxiii p. 1091.
 - ^b Report of the Artisans' Committee, 1824, p. 405.

exev

regard with less aversion things really vicious. The people, in their despair, did not shrink from the greatest deeds of violence and the most infamous crimes, in self-defence. The Combination Laws had deteriorated the character of the people to such a degree, that even after their repeal in 1824 such deeds of violence still occurred, as was disclosed by the Cotton-spinners' trial at Glasgow in 1838; and in several trades the instances descend, as we all know, to the latest times.

I will now briefly sum up the evidence with regard to the origin of Trade-Unions, supplied by this sketch of the condition of the workmen in the several trades during their transition from small to great industry. We see first that the old regulations of trade by the Craft-Gilds and by the 5th Eliz. c. 4-which had originally been ordained in the interest of the public for securing good quality of work-now appear as really framed for the "better relief and comodytie of the poorer sorte." Wherever an alteration of the order established by them occurred, the artisans and small masters were menaced in their secure and well-to-do situation, and the harmony between masters and men was destroyed. And as soon as attempts were made to abolish this order, and legal protection was refused, the men combined for its maintenance. I refer to the instances of the combinations of the Framework-knitters in 1710, of the Clothworkers in 1720 and 1756, and to the London Silkweavers before the enactment of the Spitalfields Acts. And, indeed, in the time after the repeal of the Statute of Apprentices it was notorious' that wherever labour was not regulated by law, or by an order agreed upon by masters and men, combinations of workmen prevailed.

As soon as the disorganization spread and the gravest abuses became general, whilst the prospect of a maintenance of order by the State disappeared, the workmen formed their Trade-Unions against the aggressions of the then rising manufacturing lords, as in earlier times the old freemen formed their Frith-Gilds against the tyranny of medieval magnates, and the free handicraftsmen their Craft-Gilds against the aggressions of the Oldburghers. And like the objects of those Gilds, the object of the Trade-Unions was the maintenance of independence, and of an entire system of order, in a time of industrial and social clublaw. The Clothworkers give an example of this. Already, in 1796, the non-observance of the 5th Eliz. c. 4 had become so general in the cloth trade, that the trustees of the cloth-halls at Leeds admitted to them masters who had served no apprenticeship. And in the same year there arose a Trade-Society of workmen for the maintenance of the customary order. Thus also originated the Congress of the Hatters, the Union of the Calico-printers, and the rest of the above-mentioned Trade-Societies.

¹ Compare the Second Report on the Ribbon Trade of 1818, p. 60.

But these societies arose only when those who had hitherto been obliged to protect the order of the trade refused this protection. Thus the Stocking-makers' Association for Mutual Protection was only formed after the London Framework-knitters' Company had proved itself either unwilling or insufficient to maintain the regulations of the trade. The Clothworkers formed an Institution in 1803 only, when the trustees of the cloth-halls had ceased to perform their duty. But as soon as the trustees again showed themselves ready to fulfil that duty, the Institution was dissolved. And with this agrees Sheridan's account of the combinations of the Calico-printers. The societies themselves also only resorted to self-help to maintain their regulations when legal aid was denied them. Thus Trade-Unions arose in all trades under the 5th of Elizabeth, first, for the legal prosecution of employers who had violated this Act; and, indeed, in the silk-trade the Trade-Society existed merely for the better execution of the Spitalfields Acts. On the other hand, we find incendiarism by the Clothworkers on the suspension of the 5th of Elizabeth, and riots of the Framework-knitters on the refusal of protection by the legislature.

Originally the organization of the Trade-Society comprehended all the workers of a trade in the place : thus was it with the Silkweavers, with the Calico-printers, with the Institution of the Clothworkers. Likewise the amount of contributions depended originally on the free-will of the members. It is only later that we find closer and more restricted associations among the more zealous, and fixed contributions. As combinations of workmen were prohibited, especially after the 39th and 40th George III. c. 106, Benefit-Societies were frequently made the cloak of Trade-Societies. Such Trade-Societies were the Friendly-Society of the Clothworkers in 1802, the Benefit-Club of the Liverpool Shipwrights, the Scissor-smiths' Benefit-Society at Sheffield : and indeed this was almost the rule until 1824¹. During the whole of the Middle Ages after Charlemagne, the Political Gilds abroad concealed themselves in like manner under cover of the Religious Gilds². Mr. Dunning's account of the London Bookbinders' Society shows also that societies first instituted merely for the purpose of "taking a social pint of porter together," changed afterwards into Trade-Societies. Such changes of Friendly-Societies may often have happened. I have pointed in Part IV. to the similar transformations of Religious into Craft-Gilds¹. If in the times of the Craft-Gilds in England journeymen's Associations had existed there like those on the Continent, there can be no doubt that later on Trade-Unions would also have arisen from those Associations. I have already referred in Part IV.² to the different points by which this opinion can be supported. The Trade-Society of the Calico-printers also showed similar regulations to those that prevailed in the German journeymen's Associations.

The rules of Trade-Societies cited in the foregoing pages are still very imperfect. Yet even they show the essence of the Gilds as defined in Part I.³ Like the oldest Gild-Statutes, they show merely the outlines of an organization. The system is not yet worked out into details. But if one considers the statutes of one of our modern Trade-Unions, as, for instance, those of the Amalgamated Engineers, one finds an organization elaborated into the minutest details, which is very similar to the later Craft-Gilds. It would be very interesting to show from the history of this queen of Trade-Unions, which now (like the Hanse in former times) has its ramifications in all parts of the world, how its organization gradually developed itself in the same phases as that of the old Gilds did. Attempts at General Trade-Associations by the Trade-Unions were also not wanting, quite as vain and short-lived as the German Town-Confederations. I refer to the National Association for the Protection of Labour of 1830, and to the later similar experiment of Thomas Duncombe. It would also be very interesting to show how the workmen, after the disuse of the customary regulations of wages, laboured continually to bring about an orderly condition of wages by statement-lists of prices; how they were constantly opposed in this, on principle, by the employers, who would not suffer restrictions where they considered themselves as alone having rights, until, in consequence of the threatening attitude of the workmen, they have, since the example set by Mr. Mundella, agreed at last to an institution which is nothing but an amended edition of the regulation of wages by the Craft-Gilds⁴. And in some noble instances we already see the return to the sharing of profits with the workmen, as it existed in Bruges before the degeneration of the Craft-Gilds¹. I believe that to show this would not only produce a "dim" consciousness that "the world is settling into a new order after more or less of disorder²," but that it would prove that social order has to a great extent already taken the place of disorder³. But to prove this in detail would require special essays which cannot be added here.

¹ See the ninth resolution of the Committee of the House of Commons in 1824. ² See Pertz, vol. i. p 68, cap. 10. Ouin-Lacroix, pp. 423-425, cites a series of prohibitions of Religious Gilds by councils, kings, and barons, because they were "conjurationes vel conspirationes laicorum, quibus nomen confraternitatis imponunt, impletatem pollicentes sub nomine pietatis."

¹ See p. cxviii, above. ² See pp. clix, clx, above. ³ See p lxvii, above. ⁴ See pp cxxxvi, cxl, note 2, above. It appears from the Report on the Petitions of Several Weavers, June 13th, 1811, that statement-lists of prices, agreed on by masters and men, existed early in the eighteenth century in the Cotton-

I shall be satisfied now if I have proved that the spread of disorder called forth at once in each single trade Gild-like organizations of those suffering by it, to maintain the old order, or to create a new one. I wish only further to point to the fact that the English, among whom the old Gilds probably originated, have in this new movement again preceded all other nations. As each new political era has begun in England-whether they were barons who wrung from King John the Magna Charta Libertatum, or the middle-classes who in the seventeenth century obtained here first the dominion in the State—so the era of the workingclasses comes first to development on English soil. And as in the earlier Middle Ages from the days of Charlemagne the Frith-Gilds, and in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries the Craft-Gilds, so now the Trade-Unions will be the great engines for obtaining the sway. Already since 1824 they have enjoyed a kind of recognition; and already they have fought contests quite as fierce as, if not fiercer than, those of the old craftsmen against the patricians. The history of their sufferings since the end of the eighteenth century, and of the privations endured for their independence, is a real record of heroism. It is only to be hoped that now, when they are free from all legal restrictions, they may use only-instead of the arms of violence, which belong to former times—the legal means which belong to our days, and which are thrown open to them by the franchise. May the English working-men, like the English barons and middle-classes in former times, be a bright example in the attainment of freedom to their brethren on the Continent!

trade. About the beginning of this century they fell into disuse. Masters and men therefore petitioned Parliament in 181 for the appointment of a Committee, consisting of both parties, which from time to time should regulate wages, and which would have been very similar to the boards of arbitration of Mr. Mundella or Mr. Kettle.

³ Consider also the account of the Trade-Union of the "Knights of St. Cuspin" in Massachusetts in the article in the Spectator, Dec. 11, 1869, on "The Workmen's Revolt in Massachusetts."

P.S. Attention may be called to the "History of the Holy Trinity Guild at Sleaford [in Lincolnshire], with an Account of its Miracle-Plays, Religious Mysteries, and Shows, as practised in the Fifteenth Century," &c., by the Rev. G. Oliver, D.D. Lincoln, 1837. 5s. The account of the Gild-a Social or Religious Gild—is provokingly meagre, and the amount of talk in the book very great; but it states, at p. 50, that an ancient MS. Compotus Book belonging to the Gild was then in the possession of Dr. Yerburgh, the Vicar; and that it ranges from A.D. 1477 to 1545, when the Gild was dissolved at the Reformation, though two later informal entries in 1585 and 1613 are made in it. I have sent inquiries after this book. Dr. Yerburgh's History of Sleaford may contain further information about this Gild. Dr. Oliver, at p. 52, note 20, states the income of the Sleaford Gild at 801., while that of the three principal Gilds at Boston was less, the Gild of Corpus Christi there being valued at 321., that of the Virgin at 241., and that of St. Peter and St. Paul at 101. 38.—F. J. F.

¹ See p. cxxxvi, above.

² Mr. Congreve in the Fortnightly Review, New Series, vol. v. p. 417.

1.

RETURNS,

IN ENGLISH,

MADE TO THE KING IN COUNCIL, BY ORDER OF PARLIAMENT,

AS TO

THE ORDINANCES, USAGES, PROPERTIES, &c.

OF

ENGLISH GILDS,

IN THE TWELFTH YEAR OF RICHARD II: A.D. 1389.

FROM THE ORIGINALS,

IN THE

PUBLIC RECORD OFFICE.

THE original of each of the Returns here printed is contained in a separate record. Few of these records are in a good state : many of them are in a very bad state: while in several cases a part has been eaten away, or become otherwise destroyed. The following methods have been therefore adopted, in the hope of making the documents more intelligible, and more convenient for reference.

Some of the original Returns are headed by the name of the place whence they come. In every such case, that name is here put, with the spelling used in the original. Where there is no such heading, the name of the place where the Gild was in fact established is here put, between brackets. And in every case where the Gild had any distinctive name, and that name is not contained in the heading of the original Return, it is here put, between brackets, before the name of the place.

To every heading a note is added, stating where the Return is to be found, among the three Bundles in which, as is fully explained in the Introduction, all these Returns are now kept. The serial number of each Return is given, as this was found marked in pencil in the Bundle, at the time when copies were made for the present work. A statement of the condition in which the original writing is now found is added.

In many cases, although the original record has been eaten or decayed, the sense can nevertheless be made sure of. In such cases, this sense is here given, either in the marginal abstract, and without words inserted in the blank, or by the insertion, in italic type and between brackets, of what seem likely to have been the actual words that are now destroyed. In a very few instances, a single word, accidentally omitted by the winter of the Return, has been inserted between brackets, but not in italics.

In printing these Returns, I have sought, by careful punctuation, and the use of hyphens and other usual modern means, to bring out the sense more clearly. The stops found in the originals are arbitrary, and are usually only the straight stroke, single or double, sloping from right to left. But, as there is no uniformity among these Returns in the manner of using those marks, the adherence to such methods of punctuation would be only confusing to the reader.

I.

[GILD OF GARLEKHITH, LONDON.*]

In be worship of god almighti oure creator, and hys moder The gild was seinte marie, and al halwes, and seint Jame apostle, a nourish good fellowship. begun in 1375. to fraternitee is bygonne of good men, in be chirche of seint Jame atte Garlekhith in Londone, be day of seint Jame, be zer of our lord M¹.CCC.LXXV., for amendement of her lyues and of her soules, and to noriche more loue bytwene be bretheren and sustren of be bretherhede: and eche of hem had sworen on be bok, to perfourme be point; vndernethe wryten atte here power.

ffirst : al po pt both, oper schul be, in pe same bretherhede, All bretheren must be of good bei schul be of good loos, condicions, and beryng, and bt he loue repute. god and holy chirche and his neghbours, as hooly chirche maketh mencion.

Item, who pt entryth in be same ffraternite, he schal zeue at Each shall pay 6s. 8d on entry. his entre, to be comune box,______vi.s. viij.d.

Item, be forsaide bretherhede wil bt ber be wardeins perof; There shall be which wardeins schul gadere be qwarterage of bretheren and shall gather in the sustren, and trewelich 3yld here acompt perof, euery 3er ones, to yield an account be wardeins bt haue ben to-fore hem of be bretherhede, wt ober wysest of be bretherhede; be which acompt every zer schal be be morn after here fest.

Wardens; who payments, and thereof yearly.

Also, be brethren and sustren of be bretherhede, eucry zer, A livery-suit shul be cloped in suyt, and every man paye for bt he hath.

Also, be brethren and sustren of be bretherhede, at on assent, The bretheren and sisteren shall hold in suyt byfore sayd, shul every zer come, and hold to-geder, for a yearly feast.

* CCCIX. 6. Condition, fair; but a piece destroyed in the middle.

to norishe more knowclech and loue, a fest ; which fest schal be be soneday after be day of seint Jame apostle. And every paye þerto xx.d.

Two shillings a year shall be paid by each.

Also, eche brober of be bretherhede schal paye, euery 3er, atte foure tymes oper ones in he zer, ij.s., atte firmast to-fore he day of be acompt of be maistres, so bt be wardeins mowe here acompt zeld clerelich.

Four meetings, touching the gild's welfare. shall be held in each year.

Also, be maistres and bretheren to-fore said, euery 3er schul foure tymes come to-geder, at som certein place, to speke touchyng be profit and ruyl of be forsaid bretherhede, of peyne of a pond wax to be bretherhede.

Free gifts by the bretheren.

Jil-behaved bretheren shall be put out of the ĝild.

No livery-suit shall be sold within a year.

Also, eche brober ober suster bt ben of be fraternite, zif he be of power, he schal zeue somwhat in maintenance of be brotherhede, what hym lyketh.

Also, 3if per be in bretherhede eny riotour, oper contekour, oper such by whom be fraternite myght be ensclaundred, he shal be put out perof, in-to tyme b^t he have hym amended of bedefautes to-fore said.

Al[so, \flat]e brethren and sustren of \flat e bretherhede \flat t taken of be clo[bes of he]re suyt, bey ne shul noght do it away wit in be [zer after be] takyng.

[Also, zif any brot]her oper suster of be bretherhede dye, al be oper out of countre, [of peyne of 1.lb.] of wax to paye to be for-

On death of any, all the rest shall oper [schul comen to be plac]ebo and dirige, and in morun atte join in the burial service, and make offerings, under messe, and offer [w hem whan bey be warn]yd, but zif he may penalty. hym excuse reson[abely, oper zif he be] in service of kyng, saide bretherhede.

In case of quarrel. the matter shall be laid before the Wardens.

Whoever disobeys their award, shall be put out of the gild, and the other shall be helped.

Also, ne brober ne s[uster of be sai]d bretherhede ne schal noght debat with oper. And [3if it] be so b^{t} env debat chaunselich falle among eny of hem, bt god defende, bey beynge in debat shul shawe and come be cause of her debat to be wardeins of be forsaide broberhede, and be most wyse berof : and be same maistres and breperen shul do her diligence trewly to redresse it, and make bytwene hem a good acord. And zif eny be rebelle ageins b^{t} acord and ordinance, he shall be p[ut] out of be bretherhede, and be oper haue his accoun by be lawe, and be forsaide bretherhede shul be helpyng ageins be rebelle and vnboxhum.

LONDON.

Also, zif env of be forsaide broberhede falle in such meschief weekly help to bt he hath noght, ne for elde oper mischief of feblenesse, help bretheren, in old age and in sickhym-self, and haue dwellid in be bretherhede vij. zer, and done ness, berto alle be duytes with-in be tyme; euery wyk aftir, he schal haue, of be comune box, xiiii.d., terme of his lyf, but he be recouered of hys mischief.

Also, jif any of be forsaide bretherhede be enpresoned falslich and to those wrongfully by enme, oper by fals conspiracie, and have noght for to fynd imprisoned. hym with, and haue also ben in be brotherhede vij. zer, and done perto as it is byfore next sayd, he sha[l] have xiiij.d. duryng hys enpresonement, euery wyk.

Also, bo bt comen here-after to be bretherhede, as brethren New-comers shall swear to keep the oper sustren, he shal swere on be papir, to-fore be wardeins ordinances. berof, for to kepe wel and trewely alle be point; of bis papir atte here power.

Also, zif env of be brethren of the forsaid Bretherhede be Every brother chosen wardein in be bretherhede, be he in toun oper out of must serve, or toun, he shal take be charge al-sone as he is warned berof, and do his deuer as a wardein of be bretherhede ought to do; and zif he refuse be same doyng, he shal paie to be same bretherhede xl.s.

chosen Warden. pay 40s.

7

nesse, or any other happes, so it be nat on hym-selue along. thorw; his owne wrecchednesse, bat he schal haue, in be wyke, xiiij.d.

Also, bat what man is take in to be brother, schal paie to be Payments by bretheren and almesse, at his entre, as be maystres and he mowe acorde; and sisteren. eueri quarter, for to meyntene be lizt and be almesse of be broberhede, iij d. And zif he have a wyf, and zhe wil be a suster, ban schal he paie six pans for hem bothe in be quarter, bat is, ij.s. in the zeer : and zif a sengle womman come in to be broberhede, paie as a brober dob.

Also, that alle the breperen and sustren of be foreseid firater- Members of the nite, schul assemble to-gydere in the chirche of seint Botulf church, and afterwards choose aboue seid, in be day of seint Katerine, and bere a masse here, officers. and offre in be worschepe of here : and also at after-non be same day, or be nexte sonday folwing, schul be to-gydere to chese here maistres for be nexte seer folwynge.

Also, what tyme bat a brother is ded or a suster, that they Buria's shall be attended. come to be dirige and offre wt hem on the morwe, vpon be oth aboueseid, but he haue a resonable cause to be excused.

Also, zif any brother deve, bat hab nouzt of his owne to be The gild shall bear charge of beried withe, zif it may so be ataken, hanne schal he be beried burials. w^t be moneye of be comune box.

Also, zif it so befalle bat any of be breberen falle syk x. myle Any brother eche weyes aboute Londone, and deye per, pat zif pe wardeyns of miles round bat zeer be of sent after, bat bey schul wende and feeche hom be have worshipful body to Londone; and pat alle be breperen schulle be redy at here warnynge, and go azens be body, wt-oute be cite townes ende, for to bringe be body in to be place bider withe worschepe. als he schal be brouzt vpon her charge aboue seid, but he haue a verrey enchesoun to be excused.

dying within ten London, shall burial.

II.

[GILD OF ST. KATHERINE, ALDERSGATE, LONDON.*]

The Wardens of the gild make a return, as asked.

1 (sic.)

Ricardus Brechford et Reginaldus Swetebon, ciucs Londonie, Custodes ffraternitatis Sancte Katerine, fundate in ecclesia Sancti Botulphi in Aldrichesgate, Londonie, veniunt coram concilio domini Regis, in cancellaria sua apud Westmonasterium, videlicet tricesimo die mensis Januarii, anno regni Regis Ricardi secundi duodecimo, et secum ibidem deferunt et apportant, in quodam rotulo scripto, totam formam auctoritate¹, fundacionis, incepcionis, continuacionis, et regiminis, fraternitatis predicte, vt in rotulo huic cedule annexo plenius continetur; facturi et recepturi inde quod per concilium domini Regis ordinari contigerit, juxta formam cujusdam proclamacionis inde facte in ciuitate predicta.

These are the ordinances of the gild:---

These ben be poynt; and be articles ordeyned of the bretheren of seint Katerine in the cite of Londone, the whiche is founden in the chirche of seint Botulf with-oute Aldrichesgate.

Oath on entry, and a kiss of love. charity, and peace.

The furste poynt is this, bat whan a brother or a suster schal be resceyued, bat bey schul be swore vpon a book to be brotherhede, for to holde vp and meyntene be poynt; and the articles bat be write after folwynge, eche man to his power, sauynge his estat; and bat euerich brother and suster, in tokenynge of loue, charite, and pes, atte resceyuynge schule kusse eueri other of po bat be bere.

Weekly help in poverty, old age, sickness, or loss by fire or water,

Also, zif it so befalle pat any of pe bretherhede falle in pouerte, or be anientised thorw; elde, bat he may nat helpe hym-self, or thorw₂ any other chaunce, thorw fyr or water, theues or syk-

* CCCIX. 9. Condition, fair.

good of be box, zif he were nat of power to paie berfore hym- good by the gild. self; and gif he were of power, lete his executors paie berfore hem-self : but how-so it befalle, bt be costages of be wardeyns be maad god of be box.

Also, bat alle be costages that be mad aboute hym be mad All costs thereof

Also, zif cas fallethe pat any of pe brotherhede haue nede for Loans to gild.

bretheren out of the gild stock, on pledge or surety.

to borwe a certein of seluer, bat bey go to be keperes of be box, and take bat he hab nede, so bat be somme be nat so moche b' on may be esed as wel as an oper, and bat bey leve a suffisaunt wed. or elles fynde suffisaunt borwes of be broberhede.

Wax lights to be found, and used at times named.

Also, bat ber shul be founde v. tapres rounde, the wighte of xx.li. of wex, for to ben ilizt on heve feste dayes, alle v. atte alle be houres of be day, in worschepe of god, and of his moder maiden marie, and seint Katerine be gloriouse virgine and martyr, and of alle halwen. And on sondayes and on othere symple festes, two schul be list of be fyue tapres atte heize masse. And zif it so bifalle pat a symple brother dye, pat may nouzt fynde hym-selue no lizt, panne po v. tapres schul be mad newe, and set aboute be body, and be torches also; and whan any brother is ded, that he have bo torches redy to brynge hym withe to cherche zif nede be.

Further services after death.

Also, whan a brother or a suster is deed, the wardeyns schul warne be frere menors that they come to be place ber he schal be beried, and seve per a dirige, and on pe morwe to seie a trent of masses atte same ffreres; and be wardeyns schul paie hem for here travaile.

New-comers by assent only.

And bat no brother schal be resceyued but vpon be day of oure assemble, at al be companyes assent.

Four men shall keep the goods of the gild, and render an account . yearly.

Also, per schul be foure suffisaunt men for to kepe pe catel wel and suffisauntly; that on to kepe be box, an-other be keye, and pat oper two schul resceyue be seluer for be quarterage ; and be foure schulle trewely give vp here acompte vpon seint Katerine day, byfore al be breberen, or elles before sixe of be wisest men bat ben to be catel and to be companye forseid.

Assent of all the gild to new ordinances.

Also, bat ber schal non of be wardevns make none newe statutes ne newe ordinances w^t-oute assent of alle be bretherhede, and bat it be don on be day of here assemble.*

And to bis breberhede bey have a vestement, a chalys, and a Goods of the gild massebok, pris of x. marks.

> * This paragraph is distinguished, in the original, by a strongly marked cross at the side, clearly for the purpose of marking its importance.

III.

GILD OF STS. FABIAN AND SEBASTIAN, ALDERSGATE, LONDON.*]

These ben be poyntes and be articles ordeigned of the brother- Ordinances of the gild. heed of seint flabian and sebastian in the Cite of Londone, be whiche is founden in be chirche of seint Botulf with-oute Aldrichesgate.

Magistri ffraternitatis

Johannes Dancastre, lymenor. Ricardus Spaigne, pelliparius.

Names of the Masters.

peace.

and a kiss of love.

The furst poynt is this; that whan a brother or a suster schal Oath on entry. be receyued, bey schul be swore vpon a book to be brotherhede, charity, and for to holde vp and meyntene the poyntes and the articles bat be write after folwynge, eche to his power, sauynge his estat; [and] bat euerich brother and suster, in tokenyng of loue and charite and pees, atte resceyuynge schul kisse oper of bo bat ben þer.

Also, 3if it so bifalle that any of the brotherhede falle in Weekly help in pouerte, or be anyentised thurw; elde, that he may nat helpe hym-self, or thurw; any other chaunce, thurw; fyr or watir, theues or syknesse, or any other hap, so it be nat on hym-selue alonge, ne thurw; his owne wrecchednesse, he schal haue, in be wyke, xiiij.d. And zif it so befalle bat he be zong ynowz to The young to be werche, and he falle in meschef, and bat it may be take bat he work. ne hath nouzt of his owene to helpe hym-self withe, that the bretheren helpe hym, eche man wt a porcioun, what his wille be, in wey of charite, sauvnge his estaat.

poverty, old age. sickness, or loss by fire or water,

* CCCIX. 10. Condition, fair, excepting some lines at the end.

Payments by bretheren and sisteren.

Also bat cueri man schal paie, atte ffurste comynge in to the brotherhede, half a mark, and iij.d. eueri quarter, to meyntene be list of be brotherhede and be almesse; and sif be man wil haue his wyf a suster, þan schal þ^t paiement stonde for hem bothe, and the to paie in be quarter othere iij.d., that is, two schillinges in be zeer for hem bothe. And zif a sengle womman come in to the bretherhede, 3he schal paie no lasse pan a brother doth.

Four days of meeting in the year; when all must attend, under penalty.

Also, bat every brother and suster schul be boxom, and come, whan bey be warned, to a certeyn place whider bat bey be assigned, four dayes in the zeer, vpon the oth b^{t} bey have maad, and on be peyne of xl.d. to paie to be box; and bis schal be peyne for alle manere defautes bat be breberen falle inne. And bese ben be foure dayes of oure assembles :- The day of seint fabian and sebastian princpaliche, herynge a masse of be foreseid seintz, and offre in worschepe of hem, on be peyne forseid. The seconde day, be sonday next after Pask. And be sonday next after missomer day. And be sonday next after micheles day. Vpon be peyne afore-seid, but he haue a verrey enchesoun wherfore bt pey mowe be excused. Also, what tyme bat a brother is ded, or a suster, that they come and offre with hem, whan bey be warned to come, vpon be foreseid peyne, but zif he haue a verrey enchesoun to be excused.

Also, zif any brother dye bat hath nouzt of his owene to be Burials shall be attended.

The gild shall bear charge of burials.

Those dying within ten miles round London shall be fetched to London for burial.

beried with, zif it mowe be so ataken, panne pat he be beried of þe comune box. Also, zif it befalle pat any of pe bretherhed falle syk x. mile eche weyes aboute Londone, and deyeth there, that 3if be wardevns of pat zeer ben sent after, pat they schul wende and fecche bat body to Londone, and that alle be bretheren be redy at here warnynge, and go azens be body wtoute be citees ende, for to bringe be body in-to be place wt worschepe bider, as he schal be brouzt vpon be fore-seid peyne. And bat be costages aboute hym be mad good of be box, aif he were nougt of power to paie perfore hym-selue; and zif he were of power, lat his executors paie perfore hem-self: but how-so it falle, pat pe costages of pe wardeyns be mad good of be box.

Also, 3if caas falle the bat any of be breperen haue nede to borwe Loans to gilda certein of seluer, that bey go to keperes of be box, and take the gild-stock, on what he hath nede of, so bat be somme be nat so moche bat on may be esed as wel as an other, and pat bey leve a suffisaunt wed. or elles fynde suffisant borwes of be broberhede; and bat non oper borwe non perof but of pe same brotherhede.

Also, bat per schul be founde vij. tapres rounde, the wighte of way lights to be found, and used xxj.li. wex, for to be lizt on heize ffeste daves, all seuene at alle at times named. houres of be day, in worschepe of god and his moder marie, and seint ffabian and Sebastian, and of alle halwes; and on sondayes and on othere symple ffestes, two to be list of be taperes at be heize masse. And zif it so befalle hat a symple brober dye, bt may nat fynde hymself no lizt, þanne þo vij. tapres schul be mad newe and set aboute be body, and be torches also; and whan any broker deich, bat bey haue bo torches redy to bringe hem to chirche zif nede be.

Also, zif any of be breberen be alosed of befte, or a comune In-behaved contecor, or of any oper wykked fame, wherfore bat be companye put out of the is apaired by, bat with-oute any delay bat bey be put out of be breberhede.

Also, bat no broker schal be resceyued but on be dayes of oure Entry of new bretheren. assembles.

Also bt foure gode and trewe men schul kepe be catel longynge Four men shall keep the goods of to be companye, and trewely jue vp here acounte be day of the gild, and render an account seint ffabian and sebastian byfore alle be breberen, or elles sixe yearly. of be wiseste of be same bretheren ; and eche zeer be foure schal be chaunged, but it so befalle bat bey be be more profitable to be companye.

Also, pat per schal non Wardeins make non newe statutz ne Assent of all the rild to new newe ordinance w'-oute assent of alle be bretherhede, and bat ordinances. it be don on of be foure dayes aforeseid.

De bonis et catallis eidem ffraternitati pertinentibus.	Goods of the gild.
In primis, duo vestimenta et unum calicem et missale
Item, vnum xiiij.s.
Item, in auro et argento in pixidexiij.s. iiij.d.

bretheren shall be bretheren out of pledge or surety.

GILD OF STS. FABIAN AND SEBASTIAN,

[In dorso.] Grant of a house in Aldersgate,

Omnibus Christi fidelibus ad quos presens scriptum peruenerit, Johannes de Thorntone, ciuis Londonie, et Johanna vxor ejus, vxor quondam Johannis de Thame, ciuis et Hatter Londonie, ac executrix testamenti predicti Johannis de Thame, salutem in domino. Cum predictus Johannes de Thame, in testamento suo, probato, proclamato, et irrotulato, in hustengo Londonie de placitis terre tento die Lune proxima post ffestum sancti Barnabe apostoli, anno regni Regis Edwardi tercii post conquestum vicesimo tercio, legauerit totum illud tenementum suum cum pertinentiis, quod perquisiuit de domino Willelmo Lothewyk, Milite, in parochia sancti Botulphi extra Aldresgate, Londonie, Margarete filie sue, et heredibus de corpore ipsius Margarete legittime procreatis, volens vlterius et legans in eodem testamento suo quod, si predicta Margareta obierit sine herede de corpore suo legittime procreato, quod tunc predictum tenementum cum pertinentiis venderetur per executores suos. Que quidem Margareta, sine herede de corpore suo legittime procreato, jam mortua est. Noueritis nos prefatos Johannem de Thorntone et Johannam vxorem ejus, virtute et auctoritate testamenti predicti, vendidisse, concessisse, et hoc presenti scripto nostro confirmasse, Stephano Vant, Bookbynder, ciui Londonie, Johanni de Bokkynge, Webbe, ciui Londonie, Philippo atte Vyne, Cappere, ciui Londonie, et Ricardo Lincolne, Hattere, ciui Londonie, totum predictum tenementum cum omnibus suis pertinentiis, habendum et tenendum eisdem Stephano, Johanni de Bokkynge, Philippo, et Ricardo, heredibus et assignatis eorum, de capitalibus dominis feodi illius, per seruicia inde debita et de jure consueta, imperpetuum. In cujus rei testimonium, huic presenti scripto nostro sigilla nostra apposuimus :--Johanne Philippot, tunc Majore ciuitatis Londonie ; Johanne de Heylesdoun et Willelmo Baret, tunc Vicecomitibus ejusdem civitatis; et Rogero Elys, tunc Aldermanno illius warde. Datum Londonie, primo die Octobris, anno regni regis Ricardi secundi post conquestum tertio.

worth 42. 13.s. 4.d. Tenementum predictum valet per annum vij. marcas. Vnde a-year, less guit rentof 13.s. a-year; reseruatur, de quieto redditu, annuatim, xiij.s. Et tenementum predictum est in manihus feoffatorum predictorum, quousque imposterum, per licenciam domini Regis, ad opus predicte Gilde siue fraternitatis, poterit amortizari ; et iidem feoffati, ex deuotione sua, quando eis placuerit, soluunt redditum tenementi predicti in auxilium manutenendi lumen, et eciam pro emendacione vestimentorum predictorum, et in aliis operibus divinis et elemosinis, prout in hac parte melius viderint expidire.*

* Each of the three paragraphs of this indorsement is written in a different hand and ink from the others. No doubt the reason of this was, that a different officer of the gild made each separate entry, taking it from such documents as were in his separate possession on behalf of the gild.

IV.

[GILD OF ST. MARY,] NORWICHE.*

The gild was begun A.D. 1360

1 (sic.)

In Dei nomine, amen. And in hono¹ of oure leuedi seinte marye, cristes moder of heuene, and alle halwyn, be ordenaunces off certeyn persones weryn be-gunnen in be Cite of Norwyche, in yer of grace a thousande thre hundred and syxti, 3e zer of regne of kyng Edward, be thridde after be conquest, xxxIIJ., and perpetueli scha¹ ben holden, in be honor of oure lady seynt marye, cristes moder, at be heye auter in be ffrere Prechours of Nortwyche.

A candle and torches to be found, and used at times and m manner named.

Thus it is ordeyned : bat alle be bretheryn and sistyn of be gylde, als longe as xij. persones of hem lyuen, bei schullen offeryn a candel and to torches of wax; and pis light bey han hoten and a-vowed to kepen and meyntenen, and bese obere ordenances bat ben vnder wreten, vp-on here power and diligence, in wyrschipe of crist and his moder; and be to torchis schullen ben of xl. lib. weyghte; and alle be brethren and sisterin schullen offeryn bis candel and be to torchis, eueri zer, be sunday aftir be nativite of oure lady, and herin here messe at be heve auter atte selue frere prechours; and eueri brother and sister offerin an ob. wyth here candel and here to torches, in honor of be holigost.

And be to torchis, eueri day in be zer, schullen ben light and brennynge at be heye messe at selue auter, from be leuacioun of cristis body sacrid in til bat be precst haue vsed.

+ Thys ben be names of be men bat ben maystres and kepers of be gyld :

Masters of the gild, and goods in hand.

Johannes Brocke, webster And bis men han in kepynge for be Henricus Wyld same light, xl.d. Johannes Hotere

* CCCX 17. Condition, fair.

+ What follows is in another hand and ink.

V.

[GILD OF ST. BOTULPH,] NORWIC'.*

E xcellentissimo principi et domino, domino nostro Ricardo, The Wardens of dei gratia Regi Anglie et francia et et unit. dei gratia Regi Anglie et ffrancie, ac consilio suo in return. Cancellaria sua, sui humiles ligei, Custodes fraternitatis sancti Botulphi Abbatis in ecclesia sancti Botulphi, Norwici, omnimodam subjeccionem ac reuerenciam et honorem. Virtute cujusdam proclamacionis, per vicecomitem Comitatus Norffolchie, apud Norwicum, de mandato regio nuper facte, vestre celsitudini nos prefati ligei vestri, juxta formam proclamacionis predicte, certificamus, quod nostra fraternitas predicta anno Domini The gild was begun A.D. 1384. millesimo cocmo octogesimo quarto fuerat incepta, ob honorem sancti Botulphi Abbatis, et luminis augmentum in ecclesia predicta singulis diebus ad missam ibidem dicendam continue sustinendi, sub certis ordinacionibus factis, quarum quidem The ordinances, tenor sequitur in hec verba :---

In nomine sancte Trinitatis, patris et filii et spiritus sancti, ac sancti Botulphi Abbatis, et omnium sanctorum, Amen.

In ye begynnyng it is ordeynede, yat yis fraternite shal be The gild shall be held on the Suuholden, at ye Chirche of seint Botulphe forsayde, on ye sonday day next after the Epiphany. next folowande ye Epiphany of oure lorde, ande yer offeren here Candel deuouteliche; and euery brother and euery sister shal offeren a ferthynge at ye messe w' ye candel; ande ye bretheren and sisteren vat bene absent, shul payen a pounde of wax to ye light.

Ande also it is ordeynede, yat alle ye bretheren and sisteren Next day, they shall have a mass of yis fraternitee shul comen, on ye monday next folowande, to of requiem.

* CCCX. 18. Condition, fair.

ye Chirche forsayde, and yer haue a messe of requiem for alle cristen soules, vp ye peyn forseyde.

Burials shall be attended, and offerings made. Ande also it is ordeynede, yat when a brother or sister deyethe, alle ye bretheren and ye sisteren of yis fraternitee shule comen to ye Dirige and to messe; ande euery brother and euery sister shul offre a ferthyng, and yeuen a ferthyng for loue of godd, a peny to a messe for ye soule of ye dede; and he shal haue, of ye bretheren costes, two torches and two candels brennand.

Help to poor bretheren. And also it is ordeynede, yat what brother or sister of yis fraternitee falle in pouert, euery brother and sister shal yeuen ye pouer brother or syster a ferthyng in ye woke.

Goods of the gild.

Et quo-ad bona et catalla fraternitatis predicte, eidem celsitudini vestre similiter significamus, quod nos, prefati Custodes, habemus in custodia, ad opus dicti luminis sustentandi, xxvj.s. viij.d. argenti. In cujus rei testimonium presentibus sigilla nostra apposuimus.

VI.

[GILD OF ST. GEORGE,] NORWIC'.*

Txcellentissimo principi et domino, domino nostro Ricardo, The Wardens of dei gratia Regi Anglie et ffrancie, ac consilio suo in return. the gild make a Cancellaria sua, sui humiles ligei, Custodes fraternitatis sancti Georgii Martyris, in ecclesia Cathedrali sancte Trinitatis Norwici, omnimodam subjeccionem ac reuerenciam et honorem. Virtute cujusdam proclamacionis, per vicecomitem Comitatus Norffolchie, apud Norwicum, de mandato regio nuper facte, vestre celsitudini nos prefati ligei vestri, juxta formam proclamacionis predicte, certificamus, quod nostra fraternitas predicta anno domini millesimo cccmo octogesimo quinto fuerat incepta, ob The gild was begun A.D. 1385. honorem gloriosi martyris sancti Georgii, et luminis augmentum in ecclesia Cathedrali predicta singulis diebus ad magnam missam ibidem celebrandam continue sustinendi, sub certis ordinacionibus factis, quarum quidem ordinacionum tenor se- The ordinances. quitur in hec verba :---

In nomine sancte Trinitatis, patris et filii et spiritus sancti, ac gloriosi martyris sancti Georgii, et omnium sanctorum, amen.

In ye begynnyng it is ordeynede, yat euery brother and The day of sister of this fraternitee shullen halwen euermore ye day of be always kept, seint George, and heren ye seruice of bothe ye euensonges and messe, and preyen for ye sisters and ye bretheren of yis fraternitee, and for alle trewe men yat trauaillen in ye kynges viage.

Ande also it is ordeyned, by comoun assent, yat ye forseyde and offerings bretheren and sistercn shullen offeren a candel brennande in ye day.

2

* CCCX. 35. Condition, good.

forsayde Chirche, on ye day of seynt George in ye worshepe of seint George, by-for ye Trinitee. Ande ye same day yei shul bene at ye Chaundelers by pryme of ye day; and yat bene absent shul payen a pounde of wax to ye light; ande every brother and every sister shall offeren an halfpeny at ve messe wt ye candel.

Next day, a mass of requiem.

Ande also, yat every brother and sister, on ye next day efter seint george day, shul comen to ye forsayde Chirche by pryme, and yer do synge a messe of Requiem for alle Cristen soules, vp ye peyn forseyde.

Burial services shall be attended, and offerings made.

Ande also it is ordeynede, yat when a brother or a syster deyethe, alle ye bretheren and sisteren of yis fraternitee shule comen to ye Dirige and to ye messe, ande euery brother and euery sister shul offeren a ferthyng, and yeuen a ferthyng for ye soule of ye dede, ande a peny to a messe ; ande of yat siluer he shal haue two candels poysand vj. pounde of wax.

Weekly help to poor bretheren.

And also it is ordeynede, yat what brother or sister of yis fraternite falle in pouert, euery brother and sister shal payen, in ye woke, to ye kepers of yis fraternite, a ferthyng ; of whiche siluer ye pouer brother or sister shal haue, in ye woke, viij.d.; ande ye siluer yat leueth, shal gone to ye makynge of ye Image of seint George.

Et quo-ad bona et catalla fraternitatis predicte, eidem cel-Goods of the gild. sıtudini vestre significamus, quod nos prefati Custodes habemus in custodia, ad opus dicti luminis et dicte ymaginis sancti Georgii faciendi, xl.s. argenti. In cujus rei testimonium, presentibus sigilla nostra apposuimus.

FRATERNITAS SANCTE KATERINE, NORWIC'.*

VII.

Norwic'. Excellentissimo principi et domino, domino The Wardens of the gild make a nostro Ricardo, dei gratia Regi Anglie et ffrancie, ac return. consilio suo in Cance'laria sua, sui humiles ligei, Custodes cujusdam fraternitatis sancte Katerine virginis et martyris, in ecclesia sanctorum Simonis et Jude in Norwico, omnimodam subjeccionem ac reuerenciam et honorem. Virtute cujusdam proclamacionis, per vicecomitem Comitatus Norffolchie, apud Norwicum, de mandato regio nuper facte, vestre excellencie, juxta formam proclamacionis predicte, certificamus, quod nostra fraternitas predicta anno domini millesimo cccmo septimo, per quosdam The gild was begun A.D. 1307. parochianos dicte ecclesie, et alios deo deuotos, fuerat incepta, ob honorem sancte Trinitatis, beatissimeque virginis marie, ac sancte Katerine virginis et martyris, et omnium sanctorum, luminisque incrementum in ecclesia predicta continuandum, sub certis ordinacionibus communi consensu fratrum et sororum fraternitatis predicte editis et factis; quarum quidem ordina- The ordinances. cionum tenor seguitur in hec verba:-

In ye begynninge wt one assent it is ordevnede, yat alle All the gild shall ye bretheren and sisteren of yis gilde shul comen to-geder to ye on the day of paroche chirche of scynt Symond and Jude in Northwiche, and make offeron ye day of seynt Katerine, for to gone with processioun wt her candel, ye whiche be born be-forn hem, ande to heren ve messe of seynt Katerine in ye forsayde chirche; ande at yat messe every brother and sister shal offeren an halfpeny.

Ande also it is ordeynede, yat what brother or sister be Penalty on any then absent absent at ye processioun forsayde, or at messe, or at offeryng,

* CCCX. 40. Condition, generally fair ; but bad along one side.

he shall payen to ye catel of ye gilde ij. pounde of wax, bot vei mowen bene excused resonablely.

Burial services shall be attended, and offerings made.

Duties of the lettered, and of the unlettered. bretherea and sisteren.

Ande also it is ordeynede, yat when a brother or sister is dede, every brother and sister shul come to Dirige and to messe; ande at ye messe, eueriche shal offeren an hal-peny, ande yeuen an hal-peny to almesse ; ande for a messe to be songen for ye soule of ye dede, a peny. Ande at ye Dirige, euery brother and sister vat is letterede shul seyn, for ye soule of ye dede, placebo and dirige, in ye place wher he shul comen to-geder ; ande euery brother and sister yat bene nought letterede, shul seyn for ye soule of ye dede, xx. sythes, ye pater noster, wt Aue maria; ande of ye catel of ye gilde shal yer bene two candels of wax, of xvi, pounde weight, aboute ye body of ye dede.

Any brother dying within eight miles of Norwich shall be brought to town for burial : or at least the usual services sl all be done for his soul. 1 (sic.)

Ande also it is ordeynede, yat if eny brother or sister deye oute of ye Citee of Northwiche winne viij. mile, yat sex of ve bretheren vat han ve catel of ye gilde in kepyng, shul wenden to yat brother or sister yat is dede; and if it be lefulle, he shul done carien ye1 Norwiche, ande elles be beryede yer ; ande if ye body be beriede oute of Norwich, alle ye bretheren and sisteren shul bene warnede to comen to ye forsayde chirche of seynt Symond and Jude, ande yer shal be done for ye soule of ye dede alle seruice, light, and offeryng, as ye body were yer present. Ande what brother or syster be absent at placebo and Dirige, or at messe, he shal payen two pounde of wax to ye catel of ye gilde, bot he be resonablely excusede. Ande neuerycles he shal done for ye dede as it is seyde a-forn.

On the morrow of the gild-day, a mass of requiem shall be sung.

Ande also it is ordeynede, yat, on ye morowe efter ye gilde day, alle ye bretheren and sisteren shul come to ye forsayde chirche, and ver done syngen a messe of Requiem for ye bretheren and sisteren soules of vis gilde, and for alle cristen soules, and euerich yer offere a ferthyng. And who-so be absent, he shal payen a pounde of wax.

Help to poor bretheren.

Ande also it is ordeynede, yat if eny brother or sister falle in pouert, thurghe auenture of ye werld, his state shal bene holpen, of every brother and sister of ye gilde, wt a ferthyng in ye woke.

Ande also it is ordeynede, by comoun assent, yat if eny discorde In case of quarrel, be bytwen bretheren and sisteren, first yat discorde shal be be laid before the shewede to other bretheren and sisteren of ye gilde, and by hem acorde shal be made, if it may be skilfully. Ande if he mowen nought bene so acorded, it shal be lefulle to hem to gone to ye comoun lawe, wtouten eny mcyntenaunce. Ande who-so do avein yis ordenaunce, he shal payen two pounde of wax to ye light.

Also it is ordeynede, by comoun assent, yat what brother of Fine on refusal to yis gilde be chosen in to office, and refuse it, he shal payen iij. pounde of wax to ye light of seynt Katerine.

Also it is ordeynede, by comoun assent, yat ye bretheren and A livery hood shall be worn; and all sisteren of yis gilde, in ye worshepe of seynt Katerine, shul shall dine together on the gild-day. han a lyueree of hodes in suyte, and eten to-geder on her gilde day, at her comoun costes; ande who-so faile, he shal payen ij. pounde of wax to ye light.

Also it is ordeynede, by comoun assent, yat no brother ne Admission of sister shal be resceyued into yis gilde bot by ye Alderman and xii. bretheren of ye gilde.

Et quo-ad bona et catalla dicte fraternitatis, eidem excellencie Goods of the gild. vestre similiter significamus, quod nos, prefati Custodes, habemus in custodia, ad opus dicte fraternitatis, xx.s. argenti.

20

the matter shall

VIII.

NORWIC': FRATERNITAS SANCTI CHRISTOFORI.*

Certificacio in Cancellaria, per Magistrun Radulfum Nektone.

The Wardens of the gild make a return.

Txcellentissimo principi et domino, domino nostro Ricardo, dei gratia Regi Anglie et ffrancie, ac consilio suo in Cancellaria sua, sui humiles ligei, Custodes cujusdam fraternitatis sancti Christofori martyris, in ecclesia fratrum ordinis sancti Augustini in Norwico, omnimodam subjeccionem ac reuerenciam et honorem. Virtute cujusdam proclamacionis, per Vicecomitem Comitatus Norffolchie, apud Norwicum, de mandato regio nuper facte, eidem excellencie vestre, juxta formam proclamationis predicte, certificamus, quod nostra fraternitas predicta anno domini millesimo cccmo octogesimo quarto fuerat ex deuotione fundata, ob honorem sancte Trinitatis, patris et filii et spiritus sancti, et sancti Christofori martyris, sub certis ordinacionibus consensu communi fratrum et sororum predicte fraternitatis factis ; quarum quidem ordinacionum sequitur series in hec verba :----

The ordinances.

Prayer for church, peace,

pope, cardinals, patriarch, holy

king, queen, dukes, earls, land, archbishops, bishops, parsons, knights, squires,

franklins, tillers,

citizens, burgesses,

The gild was begun ▲.p. 1384.

In ye worshepe of ihesu crist, ande of his dere moder, and of seynt Cristofere ye holy martir, and alle holy halwen, deuouteliche we begynnen yis fraternite by yes ordynaunces vnderwriten. In ye begynnyng, we shul preyen deuoutely for ye state of holy chirche, and for ye pees of ye londe; for ye pope of Rome and his Cardinals; for ye patriak of Jerhusalem; for ye holy londe and ye holy crosse, yat godd for his myght and his mercy barons, bache'ors, bryng it oute of hethen power into reule of holy chirche, ande

* CCCX. 66. Condition, three parts fair; remainder bad.

yat godd of his mercy make pes and vnytee in holy Chirche;

ande for alle Erchebisshopes and bisshopes, and specialy for oure craftsmen, widows, maidens, wives, commonalties, shipmen, pilgrims, unbelievers, our fathers' and mothers' souls, and for all of this gild.

bisshope of Norwiche; for alle parsones and prestes, and alle ordres of holy chirche, yat godd of his mercy saue hem and kepe hem, body and soule, and yeue heme grace here, ordre to kepe, and so to reule holy chirche and mannes soule yat it be to goddes worshepe and saluacioun of here soules and to alle cristen men; for oure lorde ye kyng, for oure lady ye gwen, Duckes, Erles, Barouns, and Bachelers of ye londe, yat godd of his grace sauue hem and kepe hem fro dedely synne, and yeue hem grace, ye Roialme and holy chirche and here owen soules so to reulen and kepen vt it be worshepe to godd, and to alle cristen men saluacioun ; for alle knyghtes, squyers, citezenis and Burgeys, fraunkeleyns, and alle trewe tyliers and men of craft, wydoues, maydenes, wyfes, and for alle ye communalte and cristen peple, yt godd of his mercy saue hem and kepe hem yt in yis werld leuen wt treuthe, and yeue hem grace so to done yat it be worshepe to godd and saluacioun to here soules; for alle trewe shipmen, and trewe pilgrymes, y^t godd for his grace yeue hem wederyng and passage, vat yei mowen sauely commen and gone ; for ye fruyte of ye londe and of ye see and ye wederyng; for alle ye men y^t bene in fals beleue, and wolde bene in goode belcue, godd yeue hem grace to comen to her desir; for oure faders soules, and moders, bretheren and sisteren, and for alle ye bretheren and sisteren of yis gilde, and for alle cristen soules : amen.

Ande also it is ordeynede, yat yis bede and preyer shal bene This prayer shall be said at every reherside and seyde at euery tyme yat ye alderman and ye meeting. bretheren bene togedere.

Ande also it is ordeynede, by ye bretheren and sisteren of yis The gild-day shall gilde, yt yei shulle holden ye day of her fraternite, euery yher, before the feast of st. Christopher. on ye sonday next a-forn ye feste of seynt Cristofore ; ande on ye same day yei shulle offren a candel of fyue lightes, brennande aforn ye heye Autor in ye freres Austyns of Norwiche; ande yei shule eten to-geder on ye same day, on her owen costes.

Ande vis is here entent, to make non ordinaunce in prejudice No ordinance shall ne lettyng of ye comoun lawe, but only in worshepe of godd and seynt cristofore, and norisshyng of loue and charitee.

be on the Sunday

be against the common law.

Yearly a mass of requiem, and offerings.

Ande also it is ordeynede, yat euery yher, on ye monday next efter ve sonday of her offeryng, yei shul bene alle to-gedere in ye same place, and haue a messe of Requiem, and eueriche offre a ferthyng for alle cristen soules.

Offerings at burials: and two door men shall carry torches.

Also it is ordeyned, yat on ye day of ye sepulture of eny brother or syster of yis gilde, yt cueryche offre a ferthyng, and veuen an halpeny to allemesse, ande aboute ye dede ij. candels of viij. pounde of wax; ande two pouere men shul bene hirede of ye almesse siluer, to holden ye torches aboute ye dede.

Help to poor bretheren.

Ande also it is ordeynede, yat yhef eny brother or sister of ye gilde falle in pouerte or myschef, by auenture of ye werld, euery brother and sister shal payen an halpeny eucry woke to ye kepere ; [and oute of yis] he shal han, every woke, xij.d., and ye remanant to ye light.

Et quo-ad bona et catalla dicte fraternitatis, eidem excellencie Goods of the gild. vestre similiter significamus, quod nos, predicti Custodes, habemus in custodia xx.s., ad opus et sustentacionem luminis predicti.

IX.

FRATERNITAS SANCTE TRINITATIS, in ecclesia Cathedrali sancte Trinitatis, NORWIC'.*

Norwic'. Excellentissimo principi et domino, domino nostro The Wardens of Ricardo, dei gratia Regi Anglie et ffrancie, ac consilio suo in return. Cancellaria sua, sui humiles ligei, Custodes cujusdam fraternitatis sancte Trinitatis in ecclesia Cathedrali sancte Trinitatis, Norwici, omnimodam subjeccionem ac reuerenciam et honorem. Pretextu cujusdam proclamationis, per vicecomitem Comitatus Norffolchie, apud Norwicum, de mandato regio nuper facte, vestre celsitudini, juxta formam proclamationis predicte, certificamus, quod nostra fraternitas predicta anno domini millesimo cccmo sexa-The gild was begun A.D. 1364. gesimo quarto fuerat ex deuocione incepta, ob honorem summe et indiuidue Trinitatis, patris et filii et spiritus sancti, luminisque augmentum in ecclesia Cathedrali predicta singulis diebus deuote continuandum, sub certis ordinacionibus communi consensu confratrum et sororum predicte fraternitatis factis; qua- The ordinances rum quidem ordinacionum tenor seguitur in hec verba :---

In ye begynnyng it is ordeynede, by comoun assent, yat alle A solemn service ye bretheren and sisteren of yis fraternite shul kepen and begynnen her deuocioun on ye euen of ye feste of ye Trinitee, at matyns commande, wt solempnite to ye forsayde chirche, wt torches brennande, and yer offeren euery brother and sister. Ande on ye morowen gone wt ye processioun, wt a candel of fyue lyghtes to brene aforn oure lady.

* CCCX. 85. Condition, fair.

Ande also it is ordeynede, yat, euery yher, yat on ye monday A mass of requiem shall be had, and next efter ye Trinite sonday, alle ye forsavde bretheren and offerings made.

shall be held on the eve of the feast of the Trinity.

sisteren shul comen togeder to ye same place wher ye candel is offered, and haue a messe of Requiem for alle cristen soules. Ande euery brother and sister shal offre a ferthyng. Ande whoso be absent, he shal payen a pounde of wax to ye light.

Burial services, and offerings.

Ande also it is ordeynede, by comoun assente of yis fraternite, yat, at ye day of ye sepulture of ye bretheren and sisteren, euery brother and sister forsayde shul offeren an halpeny, and yeucn an halpeny to almesse; ande eueriche brother and sister shal payen a peny to a messe; ande euery brother and sister shal payen, of ye commoun catel, a peny to a sauter for ye dedes soule; ande he shal haue, of ye comoun catel, two candels poysaunt viij. pounde.

Help to poor bretheren.

Ande also it is ordeynede by yis fraternitce, yat yefe eny brother or sister falle in pouert, or in mischief, euery brother or sister shal payen an halpeny in ye woke to ye officers; wherof ye pouer brother or sister shal haue xij.d. in ye woke, and ye remanant shal be done to ye light.

Fine for absence from meetings of the gild. Ande also it is ordeynede, yat if eny brother or sister be absent at eny gaderyng or beryinge, or when he be somound, he shal payen a pounde of wax to ye light, bot he be excus[ed res]onablely.

Goods of the gild. Et quo-ad bona et catalla dicte fraternitatis, eidem excellencie vestre similiter significamus, quod nos, predicti Custodes, habemus in custodia, ad opus et sustentationem fraternitatis predicte, lx.s. argenti.

Χ.

[BROTHERHOOD OF BARBERS,] NORWICHE.*

And a bretherhode per is ordened of barbres, in pe site Torches and other of Norwyche, in be worschep of god and ys moder, and lights, &c., shall be offered on Mid-A summer day. seynt Johan be Babtis, bat alle bretherin and sisterin of be same gylde, als longe as xij. persones of hem lyuen, bey schulen offeryn a candel and to torches of wax; and bis light bey hoten and a-vowed to kepyn and myntenyn, and bes oper ordenances pat ben vnder wreton, vp-on here power and diligence, in worschepe of crist and ys modyr and seyn Johan Babtis; and be to torches schul bien of xl. lib. weyght; and alle be bretherin and sisterin schullen offeryn bis candel and be to torches eueri zer a misomere day, and bey herin here messe at be heye auter atte Charunel in cristis cherge, and eueri brother and sistir offeryn an ob. wyth here candel and here to torches, in honor of god and oure lady and seynt Johan be Babtis.

And he to torches, eueri day in he zer, scullen ben light and Torches shall be brennynge at he heye messe at selue auter, from he leuacioun of during high mass. cristis body sacrid, in til hat he priest haue vsud.

This bien he names of he men hat ben maystris and kepers of he gyld :---

Philippus Barbur	And bis men han in Goods of the gild.
Jacobus Barbir	· kepynge for þe same
Thomas Barbyr at prechors J	light, ij.s. in here box.

* CCCX. III. Condition, fair.

XI.

[GILD OF THE PELTYERS, NORWICH.]

Fraternitas sancte Trinitatis, Norwici, ac sancti Willelmi Innocentis et martiris, de Norwico.*

Recital of the King's writ, pro-claimed by the Sheriff of Norfolk

Norwic'. Excellentissimo et nobilissimo principi et domino nostro, domino Ricardo, dei gratia Regi Anglie et ffrancie, ac ipsius sano consilio in sua cancellaria, sui ligei humiles et benignissimi, magistri et custodes fraternitatis constitute et ordinate in honore sancte Trinitatis, beate marie, ac beati Willelmi innocentis et martiris, ac omnium sanctorum, que quidem fraternitas est tenta in ecclesia cathedrali sancte Trinitatis, Norwici, die dominica proxima post festum Petri et Pauli, omnimodam reuerenciam cum omni subjeccione et honore. Cum nuper, de mandato Regio, per vicecomitem Norffolchie, palam et publice, inter alia, fuisset proclamatum quod omnes et singuli magistri et custodes gildarum, fraternitatum, quarumcumque, certificent in cancellariam vestram, in scriptis, plenarie, distincte, et aperte, citra festum purificacionis beate marie vbicumque tunc fucrit, de modo forma ac auctoritate fundacionis, inceptionis, ac continuationis, et regiminis, gildarum et fraternitatum predictarum, ac de modo et forma sacramentorum, congregacionum, conuiuiarum, assembliarum, fratrum et sororum, ac omnium aliorum de gildis et fraternitatibus hujusmodi existentibus, necnon de libertatibus, privilegiis, statutis, ordinacionibus, vsibus, et consuetudinibus, gildarum et fraternitatum earundem, ac insuper de omnibus terris et tenementis, redditibus, possessionibus, mortificatis et non mortificatis, ac bonis et catallis quibuscumque, ad predictas gildas et fraternitates qualitercumque pertinentibus siue spectantibus, in quorumcumque manibus hujusmodi terre et tenementa, redditus et possessiones, bona seu catalla, ad opus hujusmodi gildarum et

* CCCX. 116. Condition, partly fair; the rest bad.

fraternitatum existant, ac de vero precio bonorum et catallorum predictorum. Nosque ligei vestri, audita et intellecta proclamatione predicta per ipsum vicecomitem sic facta, regie celsi- Return made by tudini vestre, juxta formam proclamationis predicte, in omnibus obedire volentes, eidem celsitudini vestre certificamus, quod tion. nostra confraternitas antedicta ab anno domini millesimo tricentesimo septuagesimo sexto fuerit incepta et fundata; ac deinceps, ad honorem dei, glorioseque virginis marie matris sue, ac beati Willelmi, ac omnium sanctorum, diuinique cultus augmentum, ac dicte ecclesie cathedralis et sustentationis duorum capellanorum deo ibidem seruiencium releuamen, per confratres et sorores ipsius fraternitatis successiue continuata, sine prejudicio, injuria, seu calumpnia cujuscumque. Nec est dicta fraternitas in aliquibus terris, tenementis, redditibus, aut possessionibus immobilibus dotata; sed fuit et est, quando et quociens necesse fuerit, pro oneribus eidem confraternitati incumbentibus subportandis, de collecta communi inter dictos confratres et sorores fieri consueta, ac de legatis in testamentis et vltimis voluntatibus, aliisque piis deuocionibus eidem relictis et collatis, decenter sustentata et huc usque debita gubernata. Ad hos insuper modum et formam, fratres et sorores dicte confraternitatis sunt conuocandi, conuocati, assemblia[n]di seu assembliati, secundum quasdam ordinaciones, communi sensu ipsorum confratrum et sororum editas atque factas, quarum The ordinances, quidem ordinacionum tenor sequitur in hec verba :----

Constitutiones. In ye name of ye fader and sone and holy gost, thre persones o god in trinite; and in ye worchepe of oure lauedy seynte marie his dere moder, and of seynt William ye holy Innocent and digne marter, and alle halewyn. In ye yer of oure lord jhesu cryst, a thousande thre hundred The gild was seventy and sexe, Peltyers and overe god men be-gunne yis by peltyers [Aurriers] and gylde and yis bretherhod of seynt Willyam ye holy Innocent and marter in Norwyche. And alle yis ordenaunces undirwreten. al ye bretheren and systeren schulyn helden and kepen vpen here power.

the Masters and Stewards of the gild, in pursuance of that proclama-

The gild has no lands, but is maintained by charges levied, and by legacies and other gifts.

egun A.D. 1376 others.

Two candles. dressed with flowers, shall be yearly offered at St. William's tomb.

At ye fyrste, alle ye bretheren and systeren thus han be hoten: yat yey, euery yer, on ye sunday nexst aftyr ye fest of seynt Peter and Powel, in worchepe of ye trinite and of oure levedy and seynt William and alle halwen, schullen offeren to floured candelys a-forn seynt Willyams toumbe, in ye mynstre of ye trinyte, and eueri of hem offeren an halpeny at ye messe, and heren al ye messe. And qwo-so be absent, yanne he schal payen to seynt Williams lythe thre pound of wax. And it schal ben reysed and gadered be ye alderman and his felas. Also a knaue chyld, innocent, beren a candel yat day, ye wygthe of to pound, led be-twyxen to gode men, tokenynge of ye gloryous marter.

Only three excuses allowed for absence, unless it be otherwise willed.

Procession of a boy and two good men.

Also it is ordeyned, yat no man schal ben excused of absence at yat messe, but it be for ye kyngges seruise, er for stronge sekenesse, er twenty myle duellynge fro yis syte, yat he ne schal payen ye peyne of thre pound of wax.

And qwo-so schal ben escused for any over schyl, it schal ben at ye aldermannes wyl, and at ye cumpany.

No ordinance shall prejudice the king's right, or the law.

Also alle ye bretheryn and systeryn han hordeyned and graunted, for any ordenaunce yat is mad or schal ben mad a-monges hem, yat yey schal saue ye kynge hys rythe, and non prejudys don a-geyn his lawe in yes ordenaunce.

Also it is ordeyned, yat eueryche broyer and syster of yis requiem for alle ye brethere soules and systeren soules of yis

On the morrow of the gild-day, hear gylde, erly on morwe aftyr ye gylde day, schal heryn a masse of a mass of requiem.

gilde, and for alle crystene soules, at seynt Williams auter in ye mynstre of ye trynyte in Norwyche, and offeren a ferthynge. And qwo-so be wane, schal paye a pound of wax. After the mass, go to an Inn. audit accounts, and choose officers.

And quan ye messe is don, be here aldermannes asent yey schal alle to-gedere gon to an In. And every man yat hat ony catelle of ye gilde, leyn it down; and ordeynen yer of here lykynge be comoun assent, and chesen offyceres for ye nexte yer. And qwo falye, schal payen thre pound of wax.

Officers shall be chosen by picked men.

And viij. men of ye aldermannes chesynge, on ye gylde day, schulen chesen an alderman, and to felas, and a somono^r, for ye nexte yer.

Also it is ordeyned, in ye worchepe of ye trinite and of oure leuedy seynt marie, and of seynt William and of alle halwyn, Bretheren and sisteren fallen into yat qwat brother or syster, be goddis sonde, falle in mischefe er mys-ese, and haue nout to helpen hem-selfe, he schal han Almesse of eueri brover and syster euery woke, lestende his myschefe, a ferthynge: of gwyche ferthynges he schal han xiiij.d., and ye remenaunt gon to catelle. But if it be his foly, he schal nout han of ye elmes.

Also it is ordeyned, be comoun assent, qwo-so be chosen in Fine on refusal to take office. offys, and refuse it, he schal paye to seynt Wylliams lythe thre pound of wax, and vp peyne of his othe.

Also if ony brother er syster deye, he schal han of ye gylde Burial services and offerings. foure torches, and foure pore men cladde, abouten his cors. And euery brother and syster offeren at his messe, and heryn al ye messe, and byden his enterynge, and at messe offeryn a ferthynge, and an halpeny zeuen to almes for ze soule. And zeuen to a messe a peny, ye qwyche [schal be] gaderyd be ye alderman and hise felas, te don for ye soule and for alle crystene.

Also if any broyer er sister deye seuene myle fro ye cite, ye Deaths seven alderman and over seuene bretheryn, at his e[xequises, schul] city. wende in fere to ye cors, and ordeynen and don for ye soule as for on of ye bretheren.

Also it is ordeyned, be comoun assent, yat yese bretheren, An annual feast hall be held. in worchepe of ye holy trinyte and seynt William, schul etyn togedere on yat day, at here comoun cost.

And gwo-so be somouned to don semble, er to congregacioun Fine for not coming to meet be-forn ye alderman and ye bretheryn, and come nout, he schal ings. paye a pound of wax to ye lyt.

Also it is ordeyned, be comoun assent, yat no broyer ne Admission of new comers. syster in yis gilde schal be reseyuet but be ye alderman and xij. brethervn.

Also it is ordeyned, be comoun assent, yat ye comoun belle- The common bell. man schal gon thurghe ye cite on ye gilde day, after none, the bretheren to and recomandyn al ye brethere soules and systeres of ye gilde be name, and alle crystene soules; and seyn yat a messe of Requiem schal ben seyd erly on ye morwen, be prime day, in memorie of ye soules and alle crystene; and somownyn alle ye man shall summon meet on the morrow of the gild day.

trouble or misease, shall have weekly help;

31

but not so if brought on by their own folly.

brethervn an systervn, vat vev ben at ve messe at ve auter of seyn William at yat tyme of prime, vp ye peyne of thre pound of wax.

Also it is orderned, vat ve fo *

Non sunt alie constitutiones constitute nec ordinate in fraternitate predicta.

- Goods of the gild.
- Summa catallorum dicte fraternitatis, iiij.li. iiij.s., et non plus nec minus.

[Indorsed :]-ffraternitas sancte Trinitatis ac beati Willelmi Innocentis et martiris in Norwico.

* This beginning of a fresh ordinance, and its crossing out, are so in the original record. As none other of the ordinances has this beginning, the inference is, that some fresh ordinance happened to be at that time under consideration, but had not been yet adopted. The Latin clause which follows supports this inference. It is certain that fiesh ordinances were. from time to time, adopted. The case of the Shipmanes Gild gives an illustration of this fact. (See after, p. 57)

The Latin preface to these Ordinances speaks of the maintenance of two chaplains; but this was clearly a mistake, for there is nothing at all in the ordinances themselves as to the maintenance of any chaplain.

XII.

[THE TAILORS' GILD, NORWICH.]

Certificatio fraternitatis Artificii Sissorum, Norwici.*

Norwiche. Excellentissimo et nobilissimo principi, domino nostro, domino Ricardo, dei gracia Regi Anglie et ffrancie, ac ipsius sano consilio in sua cancellaria, sui ligei humiles et benignissimi, magistri et custodes fraternitatis Artificii sissorum in Norwico, facta¹ in honore assencionis domini nostri ihesu christi et beate marie virginis, omnimodam reuerenciam cum omni subjeccione et honore. Cum nuper, de mandato regis, per Recital of the vicecomitem Norffolchie, palam et publice inter alia fuisset proclamatum, quod omnes et singuli magistri et custodes gildarum, Norfolk, callung fraternitatum, guarumcumque, certificent in cancellariam ves- gilds. tram, in scriptis, plenarie, distincte, et aperte, citra festum Purificacionis beate marie, vbicumque tunc fuerit, de modo, forma, ac auctoritate, fundacionis, incepcionis, ac continuacionis, et regiminis, gildarum et fraternitatum predictarum; ac de modo et forma sacramentorum, congregacionum, conuiuiarum, assembliarum, fratrum et sororum, ac omnium aliorum de gildis et fraternitatibus hujusmodi existentibus; necnon de libertatibus, priuilegiis, statutis, ordinacionibus, vsibus, et consuetudinibus, gildarum et fraternitatum earundem; ac insuper de omnibus terris, tenementis, redditibus, possessionibus, mortificatis et non mortificatis, ac bonis et catallis quibuscumque, ad predictas gildas et fraternitates qualitercumque pertinentibus siue spectantibus, in quorumcumque manibus hujusmodi terre et tenementa, redditus et possessiones, bona seu catalla, ad opus hujusmodi gildarum et fraternitatum existunt; ac de vero precio roclamation lately made by the Sheriff of for returns as to Return now made accordingly.

* CCCX. 120. Condition, generally fair, but bad in places.

The gild was begun in 1350.

It has no lands. but is maintained by charges levied under the following ordinances.

bonorum et catallorum predictorum. Nosque ligei vestri, audita et intellecta proclamacione predicta per ipsum vicecomitem sic facta, regie celsitudini vestre, juxta formam proclamacionis predicte, in omnibus obedire volentes, eidem celsitudini vestre certificamus, quod nostra confraternitas antedicta ab anno domini millesimo tricentesimo quinquagesimo fuerit incepta et fundata. Ac deinceps, ad honorem Assencionis Domini nostri ihesu christi, glorioseque virginis marie, diuinique cultus augmentum, in capella beate marie de campis in Norwico, Deo ibidem seruitura per confratres et sorores ipsius fraternitatis, sine prejudicio, injuria, seu calumpnia cujuscumque. Non est dicta fraternitas in aliquibus terris, tenementis, redditibus, aut possessionibus immobilibus, dotata; sed fuit et est, quanto et quociens necesse fuerit, pro oneribus eidem confraternitati incumbentibus supportandis, de collecta communi inter dictos fratres et sorores fieri consueta, secundum quasdam ordinaciones communi sensu ipsorum confratrum et sororum editas atque factas, quarum quidem ordinacionum tenor sequitur in hec verba :----

The ordinances.

ORDINACIO.*

The gild shall meet together, and the susteren schullen ben to-gedere on the half thursday, at be candel berynge, and at the messe seynge and offeryn; and who-so faille bat day, bat he be nouthe bere, as comenaunt ys, he schal paie a pound of wax for is faute.

and next day be at a mass of requiem.

And also, on the fryday nest folowende, it is ordeyned bat alle bes breberen and sisteren shullen ben at a messe of requiem for the bretheryn and be sisteren bat ben dede, and for alle cristene soules : als-so ho-so make defaut that day, he schal pave half a pound of wax.

They shall obey the summons of the alderman, to audit accounts.

And also it is ordeyned, bat alle the bretheren be wache be halderman of this gilde sendit fore, shullen ben redy at that day that he sendit for hem, be-twixen be feste of the Nativite of oure lady and Misschelmasse, in wat stede that he syngnyt hem. for to here the Countes and reknynges for the dettes bat he owen to Alderman and be compayne.

* The copy of ordinances which follows, in English, is written in a different hand from the foregoing Latin preface.

And who-so make defaut pat day, and be warned, he ssal rine, if absent. paye to pound of wax.

Also it is ordeigned be be breberen, bat alle bo bat the Alder- Meeting after Easter, to choose man sendit fore, shullen ben redy on be soneday fourtnythe after officers, &c. esterne, en what place bat be Alderman assyngnetz, for to ordevnen hoo ssal make the candel pat zer, and kepent; and also bo hat arn assyngned to don that office, he companye ssal oward hem viii.d. for here trauaille. And be sexteen of the forseid chapel ssal han, for lythynge of the lythe, viij.d. Also be clerk Payments to sexton and clerk. that rynget; on the half thursday at euen, ssal han iiij.d. for his tranaille.

And also it ys ordeyned, be be Alderman and alle the breberen. Help to the poor bat who-so falle at meschief, en pouerte, croked, blyn, be be grace of Godes sonde, out-taken zef he be a theffe proued, he ssal han seuene penes in be woke, of be breberen and sisteren, to helpen hem withe.

And also it ys ordeyned, be alle be breberen and sisteren, bat Burial services and offerings. what brother or sister deve, be ferndes of be dede body sshullon whet be Alderman to seyn ; and he ssal sende for he bedel to alle be breberen and be systeren, bat bey bien at the derge of be body, and also at messe and offeren, and ben withe the body til it be closid in be herthe; and also fynden ber, of here cost, to tapers of wax, of be wythe of xij.li., at be derge and at be messe brennende. And also every broker and every sister of be gilde sshullen zeuen on halpeny in be worchepe of god for be soule; and also seyn oure ladys sauter, or don seyn. Euery brober and sister ssal zeuen a peny to a messe for be soule, hastili songen.

And also, what broker or sister bat deve vij. mile a-boute be Burial of those dying out of town. sete, be breberen bat be alderman assyngnet; sshullen gon beder w^t he wax, and bryngin be bodi to be herthe, as it is be-fore.

Also zef ony broker or sister deye in straunge cuntre, in Service for those dying abroad.

cristendom or in hethenesse, be breberen sshollen gon to be chapel on the feld, with here wax, and leyn a clotz, and down a messe of requiem for he soule, and ohere henges, als 30n he where at hom amounge; hem.

Oath to be taken by gild-members

Also it was ordeyned ferst be Peres of Weston, and be alle bo han be sithyn, ht alle bese Comenaunt; a-forsaid sshulle ben holden ferme and stable: and per-to harn pei sworon on the halidom. And alle bo bat comen after sshullen do be same othe.

[In dor so.] Alderman to be chosen.

And also it is ordeyned, bat alle the bretheren sshullen ben togedere on the friday after half thursday, for to chesen an Aldirman; which Aldirman ssal receive be catel at a serteyn day, and deliueren agen in serteyn place per pe breperen assyngnetz. And who-so faile, be friday after mete, he sshal paien half a pound of wax.

At meetings a candle shail be kept al ght and a prayer shall be said.

And also it is ordeyned, pat a-mounges the breperen and sisteren in here assemble, a candel brennande of wax, and seyn a bede in worchepe of god and of oure levedy, alle seyntes, and for alle cristene soules, and for alle be breberen and sisteren of þis gilde.

A Summoner shall be chosen, and re-warded by quit-tance of the usual payments. Fees shall be paid to the Bedel.

Also it ys ordeyned bat, fryday after noon, bat bey shole chesen a Somnor; and alle pt zei who-so be in pat office, he shal paie no siluer, but gon qwyte for hys trauaille. Also qwat brober or sister pat entrit in his time schal paie to be bedel a peny.

[Indorsed :--] Fraternitas sissorum ciuitatis Norwici, ordinata in honore assencionis domini.

XIII.

[THE CARPENTERS' GILD, NORWICH.*]

In the name of be fader and sone and holi gost, and of oure The gild was 1 ladi seinte marie, cristes moder, and al be holi cumpanye of heuene, be ordenaunces of be gilde of Carpenteris werin begunnen, in honor of be holi trinite, in be zer of grace of oure lord jhesu crist a thousand thre hundred and seuenti and fyue, be zer of oure noble kyng Edward, be thridde after be conquest, fourti and nyne; and shullen ben holden perpetuelliche in be moder Chirche of Norwiche a-forn be heye auter: and it was begunnen by bis entent, for to encresin a light of torchis atte sacrement of cristis bodi at sclue auter. The qwilk ordenaunces alle be breberin and sistrin of bis gilde han be hoten and avowed, to be honor of be trinite, to holden and stabeliche kepen, vp-on here might and power, as longe as xij. persones of bis gilde lasten and lyuen.

Thus it is, pat alle be bretherin and sistrin shullen comen to- A yearly meeting to be held, which gidere, on be saterday atte euen next after be ascension of oure shall begin with lord crist, eueri zer, at be place assigned be be alderman and his to felas, in Norwich, in cause of deuocioun, and pere biddin a bede a-forn here light in honor of trinite, and han recomoundid in here mynde be stat of holi Chirche, and for pes and vnite in be lond, and for alle be bretheren soules and sistris soules of bis gilde, and alle here frendis soules, and alle cristene. And eueri of hem shal seyn, wt good deuocioun, v. pater noster and v. aue marie be-forn be candil brennyng.

* CCCX. 174-177. Condition, fair. This return is made up in the form of a book. It has six leaves of vellum, each measuring q_2^1 inches by $5\frac{1}{2}$. Only three of the leaves are written upon, but each of these is written on both sides. The handwriting is very remarkable.

37

egun A.D. 1375.

prayers.

A yearly procession and offerings. Also it is ordeyned, pat eueri zer, on pe sunday next after pe ascensioun, alle pe breperin and sistrin, at tyme of day, shal ben at pe Chaundelers per here wax is ordeyned in Norwiche, and gon alle to-gidere, in processioun, wt here candil and here torchis, in-to pe menstre of pe trinite, and offerin es vp at pe heye auter, and heren p^e heye messe, and eueri offerin an halpeny atte messe.

Burial services and offerings.

Also it is ordeyned, hat if any broher or sister of his gilde deve with-outen he Cite of Norwiche, he shal han to Candils of he bretherin at his dirige and his messe, brennyng abouten his corps, of xij.lib. peys. And alle he bretherin and sistrin shullen ben at his dirige, and praye for he soule. And, on he day folwande, ben at his messe of requiem from gynnyng to he ending, and eucri offerin a ferthing, and geuen an halpeny to elmes for he soule. And eueri broher and sister geuen a peny to do seyn a messe for he soule, and for alle he bretherin soulis and sistrin of his gilde, and alle cristen soulis.

Deaths within seven miles of the town.

Also, if any broher or sister of pis gilde deye wit-outen Norwiche vij. mile abouten, alle þe bretherin shullen gon to his berying messe, with here alderman, with here to candelis brennende a-bouten his cors, and offrin alle atte messe, and 3euen here elmesse þere, and gaderin þe messe pens for þe soule in manere for-sevd.

Service for those dying abroad.

Also, if he dye in ferthere cuntre, he shal han his seruise and messe offring, elmesse, messe pens, and trental, as on of here othere bretherin, in be mynstre of Norwiche.

Help to those fallen into poverty or mishap, if not brought about through folly or riotous living. Also pese bretherin han ordeyned, be weye of charite, pat if any broper or sister of pis gilde falle in any meschef or pouert, be godis sendyng, or be any chaunce of pe werld, and nat be his owne folye ne ryotous lyuyng, and he may nought withe his craft ne with his godis helpen him self, he shal han, of eueri broper and sister of pis gilde, eueri woke, a ferthyng, lestyng his meschif: and pese ferthinges shal be gaderid at eueri moneth ende, and delid forth to pe nedful man, in hono^r of crist and his moder, and for alle cristene soules.

And qwo-so make defaute in any of pese ordenaunces, he hath oblisshed him-self, bi his avow and his owen graunt, to payen Fine for nonfulfilment of ordinances, unless resonabli escuse him-self be be kyngis seruise, or for any journe excuse. bat touchit be kyng or his ministris, or be any oper cause resonable.

NORWICH.

Also pis is pe bretheris entent, pat for non ordenaunce pat herin is mad, ne be no maner color of pis gilde, pei shullen makyn no meyntenaunce ne confideracie ageyn pe kyngis right ne pe comoun lawe, ne no preiudice don to no maner man, be pe feyth pat pei owen to god and pe ligeaunce pat pei awe to oure lord pe kyng.

*And bysyden alle thise ordinaunces, Robert of Elyngham, Gifts by certain Masoun, and othere serteyn masouns of Norwiche, fynden, in Cristes chirche at Norwiche, tweye torches brennyngge atte heye auter as it is by-for seyd.

* This paragraph is written in another and very different hand. It is clearly not intended to be taken as one of the ordinances, but as the statement of a fact. See the note at the end of the Gild next following.

XIV.

[THE POOR MEN'S GILD,] NORWICHE.*

The gild was begun A.D. 1380.

In honor of oure lord Jhesu crist, and of oure lady seinte marie, and in wursship of seyn Austyn, anglorum Episcopi, and alle holi halwen; in honor of which seynt austyn be pouere men of be parisshe of seynt Austyn be-gunnen [a] gylde, in helpe and amendement of here pouere parish chirche of seyn Austyn be bysshop in Norwiche, in be zer of oure lord crist a Ml.CCC.IIIJXX, be zer of oure Kyng Richard secounde be iiije.

A light to be found in honour of St. Austyn, ffirst, bat bei shullen meynten and fynden a light in be same chirche in honor of be selue seynt Austyn; and bis light eueri zer be shullen offerin vp eueri zer in be same chirche, an meynten and susteyn it vp-on here power, whil god zift hem grace, on be sunday next a-forn be feste of seynt Austyn, here avowe.

Mass, and offerings at the same time.

And on bat day bat bei offeryn here candel, alle be bretheryn and sistrin of bis gilde shullen at be offring of be selue light, and herin a principal messe in be same chirche, and offerin at be messe.

Help to those fallen poor, sick, or in other mischance.

And if any broper or sister of his pouere gilde falle in any pouerte or secknesse, or any oper meschef, be be sendyng of crist, and he may nou;th helpe him-self with his owen godis. and he may nought ne have nought to sustevne him self. he

* CCCX. 212-217. Condition, fair. This return is, like the last, made up in the form of a book. It has six leaves of vellum, each about eight inches long by five wide. Of these, only two leaves are written upon, but each of the latter is written on both sides. The front of the first leaf, which is otherwise blank, bears the indorsement given on the next page, and which is written in an entirely different style of hand from that in which the ordinances themselves are written.

THE POOR MEN'S GILD, NORWICH.

shal han, of be bretherin and sistrin, eueri woke, iij. pens, til bat he be recured.

Also it is ordeyned, bat any brober or sister of bis gilde Those dying within seven deve vij. mile abouten be Cite, or with-innen be cite, alle be miles of the city shall have burialbretherin and sistrin shullen* ben at ben enteryng of be dede services. corps, and offerin at his messe, and zeuen xxx.d. for xxx. messes singing for be soule, and for alle cristen soules.

[On the outer cover is written as follows :---]

Nomina societatis sancti Augustini :-- Nicholas Bryan, Jo- Names of gildhannes de Shypdham, Johannes de Bukenham, et alii, &c.

Nomina societatis sancte Trinitatis :- Robertus Elyngham, Names of Thomas de Hecham, Ricardus Gront, et alii, &c.

bretheren of another gild.

Et memorandum, quod Johannes Alunday, Robertus Snape, Names of certain doners. et Robertus Elyngham, preter omnia alia, inueniunt ij. cereos et vnam candelam in ecclesia sancte trinitatis predicte.†

* This word "shullen" is written twice in MS.

+ As the present return touches only the "Poor Men's Gild" [of St. Austyn], it would seem that the last two of these paragraphs relate to some Gild the particulars of which were sent up at the same time with those of "The Poor Men's Gild." The Carpenters' Gild is stated to be "in honour of be Holy Trinity" (before, p. 37); and the name of "Robert of Elyngham," mentioned in the lines added at the end of the ordinances of that Gild (before, p. 39), leaves little doubt that these two paragraphs refer to that Gild. But it is here stated that two waxes and one candle are found; while only two torches [of wax] are named in the return of the Carpenters' Gild. At any rate, it is odd that an indorsement should be found on the return of one Gild, touching another Gild, which must have been known to have made a separate return.

amendement of here soules and alle crystene, in ye worchepe of holy chirche.

Frust, yat yey schuln fynden and meyntenen a lythe of to Two torches shall be kept burning torchis of wax, of xxxij.li., euery day brennynge at leuacioun at the elevation of the host, at high of crystys body sacred, at ye hey masse, but no masse more. mass.

And vis gilde schal ben holden euery ver on ye sunday The gild shall be held on the first aest after ye trinite; and alle ye bretheren and systeren han Sunday after Trinity; and the a lyuere of sute, to kennen ye bretheryn an systeryn, and for no members shall have a livery. over enchesoun.

All shall meet the evening before, to

And on ye cuen a-forn yis day, at ye aldermannes assygnement, alle ye bretheryn and systeryn yat ben in Norwyche, or pray for their own over place yat may resonableche, schul comen to-gedere, in cause of deuocioun, and seyn a bede for alle ye brethere soules and systrys of yis gilde; and qwo-so faly of yis, he schal payn ij. pound of wax at here owen graunt, but it he may resonabli escuse hem be kyngges seruise.

Also, on ye morwen on yis day nest suwynge, be-time, alle Next morning, mass shall be bretheryn and systeryn schul ben to-gedere in crystis chirche, heard, and offerings made : to hervn a masse at ye auter a-forn ye relikes, and euery of hem and all shall go, in procession, to the offere yere. And qwan ye masse is seyd, alle ye bretheryn an nunnery of Carrow. sisteren schul gon wyt ye alderman, in deuocioun, to ye place yer here lithe is ordeyned, and gon wyt ye lythe, in processioun, to ye nunrye of Carrowe, and yer hervn a masse and offeryn an ob.

Also, if any brother er syster deve in ye syte of Norwyche, alle On death within the city, all shall ye bretheryn and sisteryn schal ben at his dirige, wyt to torchis be at the dirge, and two poor men of wax, and to pore men cladde. with them.

The same at interment : and offerings and gifts

And also on vis manere ben at his masse and his enterynge : and every offeryn a ferthynge, and zeven an halpeny to almesse for yat soule and for al crystene.

And if he deve thre myle out of Norwyche, alle ve bretheren Service on death within three miles schul comen to his enterynge, wyt here to torches and to pore of the city. men cladde, and offeryn and don as for a brother.

And if he deve wit-outen ye lystes of thre myle, and his man- Service on death bevond three sioun and his houseld ben in ye cite, he schal do don a dyryge miles. and messe wyt here lythe, and don elmesse.

shall be made

Ordinacio. To ye honor of oure lady seynt marie, and of alle halwen, yese ordenaunce of fraternyte of Sadeleres and Sporveres, in ye cite of Norwyche, wern be-gunnen in ye yer of oure lordis birthe ihesu Crist, a thowsande thre hundred foure skore and ffyue, and perpetuelli schal ben holden a-forn ye ymage of oure lady at ye heye auter in ye chirche of nunnes in ye nunrye of Carrowe be-syden Norwyche.

These ordinances shall be kept so long as twelve of the gild live.

Thus it is ordeyned; yat ye bretheryn an systryn of yis fraternyte, as longe as xij. persones of yis gilde lyuen, yey alle han hoten an a-vowed, to ye honor of god, yat yey schuln mayntenen yese ordenaunces vnderwreten, vp here power and diligence, in worchepe of cryst and of his moder and alle halwen, and

* CCCX. 57. Condition, generally fair, but bad in parts.

XV.

[THE SADDLERS' AND SPURRIERS' GILD, NORWICH.]

Fraternitas de Sadelers et Spuriers Norwici.*

Mum de fraternitate, constitutione, et ordinatione, in honore ventuali de Carrowe, pro-ut in ordinacionibus per fratres et sorores ipsius fraternitatis factis plenius continetur. Que qui-dem fraternitas est sustentata et supportata cum Sadelers et Spuryerys ejusdem ciuitatis Norwici. Non habent terras, tenementa, redditus, nec possessiones, nec catalla, vltra valorem beate marie et omnium sanctorum, de¹, in ecclesia con-

This gild is maintained by the 1 (sic.) saddlers and spurries; and has not goods worth more than ten shillings.

The gild was begun A.D. 1385. decem solidorum.

On death of any one dwelling beyond three miles, all shall come to services at Carrow.

And any brother or sister yat duellen wyt-outen ye lystys of thre myle from ye cite deye, alle ye bretheryn and systeren schal don seyn for his soule, in ye chirche of ye nunrye of Carrowe, dirige and masse, an don for is soule as for any brother or sister forseyd.

Non sunt alique alie constitutiones ordinate in congregatione predicta.

[Indorsed on the above return is the following:--]

ffraternitas Sadeleres et Spuryeres de Norwico, tenta in ceclesia conuentuali beate marie de Carrowe, juxta Norwicum.*

* This return is written on a piece of vellum which has once formed two leaves of a book, of about the same size in the page as the one described before, p. 40 note, and with ruled lines on each side of each page. The two leaves have been flattened out, and the return is written across the ruled lines. But the mark of the fold of the pages, and the holes where the threads went through to hold these leaves as part of a bound book, are still plainly seen. Such facts as the use of this piece of second-hand vellum for this return, and the very unusual use of paper for the official writs (see Introduction, and after, Part II. No. I.), perhaps point to an unwonted scarcity of vellum at this time. On the other hand, it will be seen, by reference to the Gild of Garlikhith (before, pp. 3, 5), that paper was used in 1375 to write the Gild-ordinances upon; while an inferior specimen will be found mentioned after, p. 121 note.

XVI.

[GILD OF ST. ANTHONY, LYNN, NORFOLK.]

Statute Gilde Sancti Antoni. Lenne.*

In be worchep of God of heuen, and of his modir seynt mari, Beginning of the and alle be holy Company of heuen, and souerengly of be Noble confessour seynt Antony, wt a grete deuccion b^s ffraternite was be-gonne in be toun of lenne, of men and women, lestenliche for to fyndyn, in chirche of seynt margare of lenne, be-forn be ymage of seynt Antony, on candelle of j.li. of waxe, brennend euery festivale dai thorow-out be yere, in be tyme of seruyse, in be honour of god almyghty, and of be holy confessour seynt Antony. Also it is ordeyned, be assent, b^t alle b^e men and women of b^s fraternite w^t a good deuocion shuln gon hear mass and in fere, be sonday nest aftir be fest of seynt Antony, to be Chirche of seynt margare fornseid, deuowteliche per for to heren a messe of seynt Antony; and eueriche brober and sistir shal offren an ob. in be worchepe of god and of seynt Antony. Also it is ordeyned to haven foure mornspeches in be zere. De first shal bene be monday nest aftir be fornseide soneday : be secunde shal bene be soneday aftir be fest of seynt michel : be thred shal bene be soneday aftir be fest of Epiphanie : be fourte shal ben be soneday aftir b^o fest of sevutes Tiburs and Valerian in Aprille. Also ordeyned it is, pt what man or woman, hauened de- New-comers shall uocion to bt holy confessour seynt Antony, bat wille comyn in each. to bis fraternite to ben brober or sistir (be als mekil als be forseide lyght, to be worchep of god an holy Chirche, lestyngliche in tyme comyng, wt-outen help of mennys deuocion ne may not

The gild shall meet in church, and make offerings.

There shall be four other general meetings of the gild in each year.

pay five shillings

* CCCVIII. 117. Condition, fair, except in the lower lines.

A wise Alderman shall be chosen : and four trusty Stewards: and a summoning Dean. and a Clerk.

be given.

Wages of the Clerk and the

Dean.

be meyntened and kept), shal payne v.s. Also it is ordeyned, be on assent of alle be company, to chesen an Aldirman, wyse and wittye, able and konyng to reulen and gouern be company, to be worchep of god an holy Chirche; and foure skeuaynes, trost men and trewe, for to kepyn and reseyuen be goodes and be katel of be gilde ; and on Dene, for to warnyn alle be gild brebren and sistren, as is be custum in be fornseide toune of lenne; and on clerke, to wryten pe nessessariis of pe gild. Also what broper or sistir of b^s fraternite dye, b^e Aldirman shal weten b^e dene to Burial services. seve, and be Dene hastiliche bryngyn be waxe to be Derige, wt outen any lettyng, and sythen warnyn be brethren and sistren to come to be derige and gon wt be Cors to be kirke; and eueriche broker and sistir shal offren ob. for be soule. And also, what brober or sistir of bis fraternite dye, he shal haue, of be clene katel of be Gilde, xx. messes songyn for his soule. Also, what brober or sistir of b^s fraternite lese hys katel borow b^e grace of In cases of loss or sickness, help to god, or ellis falle in sekenes, where-borow he may not helpyn hymselfe, pan ilke brober and sistir of ps gild shal zeuen, ones in be vere, i.d. to his sustenauns and releayinge. Also ordeyned it is, bt be clerke shal have, for his trauaile in be yere, xij.d., and be dene, for his trauaile, xij.d.

Be it knowe openliche to zow, be beis presentes, b^{t} we alle The foregoing are the ordinances. buxumlye vndirstondend zoure lettres sent to vs, seyend on b^s manere, bt we shuld sende zow a kopy of our statuz, and also be summe of our katelle. Weteth it wele bt be summe of our katelle Goods of the gild. is xxxiij.s. iiij.d.* At my lord be Kynges wille.

> * These figures are so much defaced that I cannot be quite sure of them ; but I have little doubt that the sum, as given above, is right.

XVII.

[GILD OF ST. THOMAS OF CANTERBURY, LYNN.]

Ordinaciones Gilde Sancti Thome Episcopi Cantuariensis. Lenne.*

In be worchep and honor of Jhesu Crist, and of his mild modir The gild was seynt marye, and of alle be holy Company of heuen, and specially of be holy martir seynt Thomas of Cauntirburye, men and woman, porow a grete deuccion to pe forseide martir sevnt Thomas, hauend, in be toun of lenne, bis fraternite be-gonne, in be zere of our lord a thowsend CCC.LXX.VJ., lestendliche for to meyntene and fynden, be-forn a certayne ymage of seynt Thomas, in be Chirche of seynt Nicholas of be fornseid toun of lenn, on kandel of ij. pound of waxe, for to brenne in seruice tyme eueriche festiuale day in be zere. And bis gild shal ben The gild, all fairly holdyn in be day of seynt Thomas aftir be feste of be Natiuite of seynt ion be baptist at midsomir. Pat day, eueriche brober and sistir of bis gilde shuln seme-lyn in a certayne place, faire and ings. honestliche arayde. And ban alle be bretheryn and sisteryn of bis fraternite, alle to-gedir shuln wend to be fornseide Chirche, ber for to heryn, wele and deuowteliche, a messe solempliche soungyn. And at be messe, alle be bretheryn and sisteryn shul offren ob., in be worchepe of god and of seynt Thomas. And bis gild shal haue foure mornspeches in be zere. De first shal bene be nest day folowend be fornseid fest of seynt Thomas. De secund shal bene be soneday aftir seynt mathue. De thrid shal bene in be day of seynt Thomas in Cristmes. De fourt shal bene be soneday aftir be fest of seynt Pernele. Also ordeyned it is, be assent An Alderman shall of be bretheryn, to chese an Aldirman to reule be Company, and

egun A.D. 1376.

arrayed, shali meet on St. Thomas's Day, and hear mass, and make offer-

There shall be four other general meetings of the gild in each year.

be chosen, and

* CCCVIII. 118. Condition. fair.

four skeuaynes to kepe be goodes of be gilde, and also a dene to four Stewards, and a Dean, and warnyn be bretheryn and sisteryn, as be manere is, and also a a Clerk. Clerke to wryten and entryn be be1 Names and be nessessarijs of 1 (sic.) pe gild. Also it is ordeyned for to fyndyn, at pe fest of Estern, A large wax candle shall be on kandel of xvj. pound of waxe, for to brenne a-bout be sepulcre kept burning. in po fornseide Chirche of seynt Nicholas. And if any brober or sistir of bis gild be ded, be dene shal do be Thorches comyn to \mathfrak{p}^e Derige, and warnyn alle \mathfrak{p}^e gild bretheryn and sisteryn \mathfrak{p}^t ben Burial services. in toun, to comyn and offren ob. at be chirche ; and what brober or sistir so comyn nout, he shal zeue ob. to Elmes for his soule. And if any broper or sistir be ded, he shal haue, of be propre katel of be gild, xxx. messes soungyn for his soule wt-in be thredd day. Also, what broker or sistir bere obir any falshede, Wrong doers be put out. thefte, or wroung on hand, he shal lese pe fraternite perpetueliche. Also ordeyned it is, b^t what man or woman b^t wille comyn in to New-comers shall pay five shillings bs fraternite porow deuccion of bt holy martir seynt Thomas, for each. to fyndyn, be tyme comyng, be fornseide lyght, to be worchep of god and of seynt Thomas (be als meche as it may nout be found wt-out mennys Elmes and deuocion), he shal payne v.s. Also it is ordevned, be on assent of alle be Company, bt what man or If any become poor, or have loss woman of b^s fraternite b^t falle in pouert, borow losse on b^e se, or by sea. or by fire, or otherwise, help borow fire or any manere othir, sond of god, alle be bretheryn and shall be given. sisteryn of bis gild shul ben gadred in fere, and helpyn hym wt a porcion of here katel, vp here powere. Peis ordennauns were ordevned be on assent of alle be bretheryn and sisteryn of bis Assent to these ordinances. gild, to meyntene and fulfillyn beis forn statuz, to be worchep of god and of seynt Thomas, to lestyn wt-outen ende. And be Clerke shal have for his trauaile, iij.s.; And be dene, for his Wages of the Clerk and the trauaile in be zere, xviij.d. Dean.

The foregoing are the ordinances. Be it open and knowen apertiliche vn-to 30w, be peis presentes, pt we fulliche vndirstondend pe lettres sent fro 30ur Chauncrye vn-to vs, shewend and seyend on p^s manere, pt we shuldyn send 30w a kopy of our statu3 and pe summe of our katel. We do 30w to wetyn pt pis is pe very kopy of our statu3, and pt xl.s. is pe ful summe of our katel, redy at our lord pe kynges wille.

XVIII.

[GILD OF ST. LEONARD, LYNN.*]

He sunt ordinaciones Gilde sancti Leonardi Confessoris de Lynne.

In honore sancti leonardi confessoris. In be worchep of god Beginning of the L alle-myghti, and of his modir seynt mary, and of alle be holy company of heuen, and specially of be holy confessour sevnt leonard, bs Gilde was be-gonne in Damgate in be toun of Lenne. porow pe deuccion of men and women, to fyndyn be-forn on ymage in be Chirche of seynt Jame of lenn, in be worchep of god and of seynt leonard, on Candelle of j.li. waxe, to brenne ouery festiuale day in be zere, a forn be ymage of seynt leonard. Alle-so it is ordeyned, be on assent of alle be bretheryn, bat eueriche brothir and sistir shal offren at be Chirche of seynt Jame, on be soneday nexte aftir be fest of seynt leonard, ob., in be worchep of god and seynt leonard. Alle-so it is ordeyned, be on assent of There shall be four general pe brethren, to have foure morspeches in pe zere. De firste shal meetings every ear. At the bene be moneday neste aftir be forseide soneday. And at bt first, there shall be chosen an Alder. mornspeche, porow on assent of alle be brethen, to chesen an man, four Stewards, a Dean. Aldirman, wise and able to reule be Company to be worchep of and a Clerk. god; and also foure men for to reseyuen and kepyn be katel of b^o Gilde; and also on certayne Oficere to warnyn alle b^o brethren to comyn to chirche; and also on clerke, to wryten be katel of be gilde. De secunde morspeche shal bene aftir pe Purificacioun of our levedy. De thred, aftir be feste of Phelip and iacob. De fourte, aftir pe feste of seynt Petre ad uincula. Alle-so it is ordeyned, be on assent of be brethren, be als mechil as be lyght

* CCCVIII. 119. Condition, fair; except in the lower lines.

GILD OF ST. LEONARD, LYNN.

New-comers shall pay three shillings each.

Burial services.

sea, or other

be given.

forted.

fornseide ne may nout be meyntened in be tyme for to come, euery man bt wille wt good deuocion comyn in-to bs ffraternite, shal pay iij.s. Alle-so, if any brothir or sistir deye, be aldirman shal comand be Oficere to warnyn alle be bretheryn and sisteryn to bryng be Cors to be chirche, wt waxe brennend, and be waxe for to brenne in be tyme of seruice. And every brobir and sistir shal offren at be messe for boby ob. 3efe any brothir or sistir of bs Company be in any mischefe, borow losse of be se, or any In case of loss by other myshappes, porow goodes sond, pe company shal ben mishap, help shall gadered to-gedir and helpyn hym. 3efe any brober or sistir of b^s gild dye w^t-in a mile a-bouten, and haue nout whereof to bryng If death outside the town, the body hym to be erthe, be Aldirman and be gilde brethren shuln wend shall be fetched at cost of the gild. and bryng hym to be erthe on beire owe costages. And if any brobir dye wt-in be iij. mile aboutyn, be Aldirman shal gon and bervne hym, or ellis hyren a man of here costages to bryng hym to b° erthe. Pere shal no bropir ne sistir sene othir in prison, b^{t} Prisoners shall be visited and comhe shal comyn and vesyten hym, and comfordyn hym in his powere. Also, if any brobir or sistir of bis gild dye, he shal haue xv. messes songyn for his soule. Also, what man or woman of pis gilde be rebel ageyne pe lawe of holy chirche, he shal lese pe fraternite of bis gilde tille he come to amendment.

Rebels against canon law, shall be put out.

Be it open to zow, be b^s presentes, b^t we fulliche vndirstondend zour lettres sent to vs. sevend on b^s manere, bat we shuld send Goods of the gild. zow a kopy of our statuz, and also te summe of our katel. We do zow openliche to wetyn, pat pe summe of our katel is xxi.s. viij.d., redy to our lord be kinges wille.

XIX.

[THE GILD OF YOUNG SCHOLARS,] LENNE.*

Hee sunt ordinaciones et consuetudines gilde sancti Willelmi. Lenne Episcopi.

In be worschip of ihesu crist, and of his modyr seynt marye, The gild was and of be holy martir seynt Wiliam, a fraternite was begonne, in be zer of oure lord Ml.CCC.LXXX0.1110., of zonge scolers, to mayntene and kepen an ymage of seynt Wylyam, standyng in a tabernakle, in be chirche of seynt Margarete of Lenne, fyndende aforn þe forseyd ymage vj. tapers of wax, brennende iche festiual day, to be worschip of god and of his modyr marye, and of seynt Wiliam be holy martir.

Also afterward, men seende to be deuocioun don in holy Gifts in support chirche, and hauende affeccioun to be holy martir seynt Wiliam, askynd be fraternite, zeuende of here fre wylle, eueryche after her power, to mayntene and to kepen be forseyd ymage, withe be lighte, in be forseyd chirche, also longe as her catel myghte endure.

Pan afterward, be assent of be breberen, zernende to ben Burial services. encresyd, to be worschip of god, was ordeynd bt what brober deyed of be fraternite of seynt Wiliam, schulde haue of be godys of be gilde, withe-outyn any delay, xxiiij. messis to helpyng of his soule, and also, at be day of his berivng, eueryche bropir, quiche myghte leeffully, schulde come and gon wt be cors to chirche, and offren as be maner is vsyd in be toun of Lenne.

Also ordeynd it was, be on assent of be forseyd fraternite.

* CCCX. 65. Condition of what remains, fair; but fully one-third destroyed.

egun A.D. 1383.

of the gild.

Help in case of poverty, loss at 1 (sic.) sea. or other mish up.

bt quat brobir felle in-to pouerte, be losse of be se, or any myshappe of bis werd¹, he schulde, foure tymes in be zere, ben releved withe be godys of gilde, be on assente of be breberen, as bei sowen here godys myghte suffysen.

Also it was ordeynd, be on assente of be forseyd fraternyte, for to have a spekyng to-gedyr thre tymes in he zer : he fyrst, be sonday after seynt micael be arcaungyl; be secund, be sonday after be fest of be conversioun of seynte poule; be bird, after be fest of philip and jacob. In quiche dayes be maister of be gilde, wip on assent of be breberen, schulde sen bt be godes of be gilde were spente and kepte vppe be askyng of be forseyd or-Accounts shall be dynauncys, to be worschip of god and of his moder marye and of seynt Wiliam be holy martir.

Three speakings together of the gild shall be held every year.

All the bretheren shall go to church on one day in the year, and hear mass, and make offerings.

then rendered.

Also ordeynd it was, be on assente of be fraternite, bt be general day schulde ben helde [vppon] be feste of reliques, in be chirche of seynt margarete atte Lenne. In quiche feste all [be bretheren] quiche myghte leeffully comen, warned be be officer of be gilde, schulde come in [to a ho]nest place, honestliche and peysiblyche to gon to be forseyd chirch, bere to here $[n \ a \ messe$ in] be worschip of god and of seynt William, offerend atte messe as devocioun of; and also, on be same day in special, to have a messe of requiem for [be soules of alle] be breberen and be gode doers of be forseyd gilde. And alle breberen [schul come to bis messe] of requiem, to offren.

Mis-doers shall be put out of the gild.

chosen.

Also ordeynd it was, be on assente of be brebern of be liche were prouyd rebel ageyn be kyng, his lige lord, [un]buxom a-geynes be lawes of * holy chirche, schulde fauour and be benefis of be forseyd gilde kyng, and reconsiled be holy chirche, to his sta Also ordeynd it was, be on assente of be breberen, Officers shall be man wyse, and a-vyse and profitabyl to be a clerk, to wryten and entren be name of be forsevd gilde; and also and leeffull vsages ordeyned.

* "be" was written before "holy," but has been erased.

Also ordeynd it was messys, and oper costes encrese of godys if he eueriche b sevl of as be godes k

Also, for as myche as we weren beden, be vertu of be, to certefyen 3^u of godes and chateux, we do 3^u to witen bat be fraternite [quiche we] haue late be-gonne, hat; dispent in be chirche of seynt margarete, to be worschip All the goods of the gild have been of god and seynt Wiliam, aboute honest werkys named in be spent. forseyd ordinauncys, be godes quiche han be zouen of be breperen comend into pe fraternite, to be spent in pe ordynauncys and be leefful vsages forseyd. Wherfore, as children in zonge we hope to have more gifts made age, hopyng in tyme comyng to have ben encresyd be help and to us. counseyl of wyse men, oure godes han dispent as we han forseyd; no catelle kepende,-trostende, as children, withe ziftes to ben amendvd.

Explicient.

Johannes Goldsmyth est Magister et Custos Gilde supradicte.†

* In cases like the present, where a large part of the original has been destroyed, the blanks thus left will not be filled up, as it is impossible, where the words wanting outnumber those that are left, to restore the former with certainty. The blanks thus appearing in the print by no means equal what is lost in the original; but they show how many lines. or parts of lines, have become irrecoverable.

+ These words are written in another hand and ink.

XX.

[THE SHIPMANES GILD, LYNN.*]

Statuta de Gilda Exaltacionis sancte Crucis, vocata Shipmanesgilde, de Lenn.

In ye honr of ihesu cryst of heuene, and of his modir seynte cion of ye holy crouche, in septembre yis fraternite is funded marie, and of alle holy halwyn, and specialeke of ye exalta-

The gild was begun A.D. 1368.

Three meetings shall be held every year, on days named, or as the Alderman shall appoint.

Every brother must come to summon any.

Officers chosen,

and not serving.

shall be fined.

pay the usual

house fees and entrance morey.

able.

and stabeled, and, be ye grace of god, euere more to lasten, in ye zer of oure lord a Thousand CCC.LXVIIJ. And yis fraternite schal haue iij. morwespeches be zere, and mo if it nede be. Ye ferste morwe-speche xal be after ye drynck : ye toyer xal be ye sunday after candilmesse day : ye thridde xal be ye sunday after ye Natiuite of sen Jon day, baptist. And if yese morwespechyis be-forn inemed be nouht holdyn at ye serteyn day a-sygned, ye aldirman xal heldyn hem at wat tyme he set; most profyte to ye gylde. And if any broyer be somound to any morwespeche, and he be in toune, and wil nouht come, ne no leue haue of ye every meeting, if aldirman, he xal paye a pound of wax to ye lytz. And if ye den fayle of hys somouns, he xal paye, for euerilk brover yt is The Dean shall be fined if he fail to in toune and nowt somouned, iij.d., but if he have grace. And qwo-so be chosen in office of aldirman, and he for-sake his offyce, he xal paye, to amendement of ye gylde, iij.s. And gwo is chosen in office of skeueyn, and he for-sake ye office, he xal paye New-comers shall ij.s. And ye den, xij.d. And qwo-so entrez in-to thys fraternite. he xal paye ye rytes of ye hows, at his entre, viij.d.; yt is for to wetene, to ye aldirman, iiij.d.; to ye clerk, ij.d.; and to ye den, ii.d.; and fynden two suffysaunt borwes to make payment of ye

* CCCX. 156. Condition, bad; and a fourth of the whole destroyed.

THE SHIPMANES GILD, LYNN.

catel for his entre in ye ferste zer. And if any brover of yis Services for the dead, and offerfraternite be ded in thys toun, ye den xal do come ye candelis ings. of ye gylde to ye dirige, and warne alle ye gylde breyeren yt ben in toune to comyn, and go wit ye body to chirche, and offre vere an halpeni at ye messe for ye soule. And if ani broyer be ded The bellman shall wit-owten ye toun, ye aldirman xal do ye belleman gon for ye soule, and ye den xal somoune alle ye gylde breyeren, and don as it is aforn-iseyd. And qwo-so is somouned, and come nouht, he xal paye, at nest morwespeche, to lyth, a pound of wax. And Masses for souls eucrilke broyer of yis fraternite yt is ded, xal haue for his soule xl.d. to messes. And qwo-so be rebel or vn-buxum ageyn; ye Unruly bretheren aldirman, in time of drynck or of morwespeche, vnskylfulleche, he xal paye to ye lyht iiij.li. of wax. And if ani broyer be rebel ageyn; oyer, he xal paye iij. i. of wax. And if ani broyer of One wronging thys fraternite bere over an falsed on hande, or wronge, and it fined, and shall may be proued, he xal paye iij li. of wax, and sythen make pes to hym yt he hat; trespased ageyn, be asent of ye aldirman and of men of ye counseyl. And qwo-so discuret; ye counseyl of ye Penalty for disgylde of yis fraternite to ani straunge man or wymman, and it of the gild. may ben proued, or, xal paye to ye lyht ij. ston of wax, or lese ye fraternite tyl he may have grace. And ordeyned The Stewards shall is, yt [ye catel of yis] fraternite yt ye skeueynes xuln haue on hande, it xal be delivered to hem be suffisaunt borwes, and be bryngen ye catel, wit ye encresement, at ye general morwespeche, by-forn ye alderman and ye gylde [breyeren. And none xal be re]bele or lettynge, so yt ye catel of yis fraternite in no maner be lessid, vp ye peyne, of ilk a skeuey[ne, of ... pound wax, or his bor] wis for hym. Also ordeyned No gild-brother is, yat no broyer of yis fraternite xal geue no wed an borw on oyer in til no plase, for dette ne for plea or suit, with trespace, ne for non over cause, tyl swilk tyme yt he hat; others. of yis fraternite, and to ye breyeren y^t ben chef of ye counseyl. And ye alderman and ye

..... And if yei moun nowt acorden hem, ye alderman xal geuen hem leue to make her suyt at ye commune law.] And gwo-so do nowt as it is aforn iseyd, he xal paye to

of the dead.

hall be fined.

another shall be make neace closing the affairs

render an account of the goods of the gild, and of the year's profits, at the yearly general meeting, under penalty, to be paid by themselves or their sureties.

shall give pledge or become surety for another, in any out leave of the Alderman and

The Alderman, &c., shall do their best to adjust the quarrel; but, if unable, shall give leave to make suit at law.

THE SHIPMANES GILD,

Fine for dis- obedience. Allowances to the officers on feast days. Help to poor bretheren.	ye lyht3 a ston [of wax. And ordeyned is, y ^t ye aldirman] xal haue, euere-ilk day wil ye drynck lestet3, ij. galouns of ale; ilk aske[ueyne, j. galoun; ye clerk,; and ye dene, And] ordeyned is, y ^t if ani broyer of yis fraternite be in pouerte, or in ani mysch[eif, so y ^t he may nowt of hys owene hol]pen hym- self, yan xal he ben holpyn wit ye comoun catel of
Payments shall be made for every voyage; and a yearly payment if no voyage made. The ale-chamber not to be entered.	Also ord[eyned is, y ^t evereilk broyer of yis gylde] xal paye to ye lyht3, for ilk a fare, vj.d.; and he and maket3 no farc, he xal paye, be 3ere, to am ye ale lyt3, wit-outen leve of men of ye offis alderman is chesen in his offys he xal
New-comers shall swear to maintain the ordinances of the gild.	fraternite and ye statutis y ^t ben qwan ye alderman is and alle ye men y ^t for to helpyn and mayn ye olde aldirman xal te make ani d not fulfillyn it he yel not fulfillyn it, he xal
New-comers must undertake to come to the yearly meetings, if at home, and must make their pay- meuts.	ryset; but men of offys. And qwo-so fraternite, for to ben a broyer of yis gylde, a broyer of yis fraternite, xal come euere-ilk a jer, qwan he is in toune, same jere, and paye yerfore as ye ordinance is; and qwo-so do nowt as it is aforn iseyd, he xal paye, to amendement of ye [gilde], ij.li. of wax, or lese ye
The livery-hood shall be kept for two years.	fraternite. Also y ^t euereilk a broyer xal kepe hys hod of lyuere of yis gylde be two, vp ye peyne for to
On death of a brother, all the rest shall be sum- moned, and shall come to the ser- vice in their livery- hoods, and make offerings.	paye two pound of wax, or lese ye fraternite. Al-so, if ani broyer of yis gylde be dede, ye den xal warn [alle ye] gylde breyeren y ^t be in toune, for to takyn on here hodis y ^t ben ordeyned of lyuere for ye gylde of ye same zere, and comen to [messe] and offere as it is aforn iseyd. And qwo-so is somouned, and come nowt, but if he haue leue of ye Aldirman, he xal paye, to [amen]dement of ye gilde, j. pound of wax, or lese ye fra-
None shall leave until the service is done.	ternite. And ordeyned is, y^{t} ilk a broyer y^{t} is in toune, and comet; to ye offrende, he xal dwelle to ye messe be don, and gon hom wit ye aldirman. And qwo-so make defaute, and do nouht Fine for default. as it is aforn-iseyd, but if he haue leue of ye aldirman, he xal paye a pound of wax, or lese ye fraternite.

LYNN.

In festo sancti Dunstani, Episcopi, anno Domini M.CCCO. A new ordinance, A.D. 1381. LXXX^{mo}. primo :- Ordeyned is, yt if ani broyer of yis fraternite Burial service in the case of any be ded witz-outen ye toun of Lynne, yan xal ilk a broyer of yis brother dying out side the town. fraternite yt is in yt place, xal comyn and gon wit ye cors to cherche, worchepefulleke, and offere yere an halpeni, and be yere tyl he be beried. And gwo-so do nowt as it is aforn-iseyd, he xal paye, to amendement of yis fraternite, ij. pound of wax, or lese ye fraternite.

In festo sancti bartholomei apostoli, anno domini Mº.CCCº. Another new or-LXXXIJ⁰. :-Ordeyned is, yt ani broyer of yis fraternite be dede in Burial service for west Lynne, or in south Lenne, ye den xal do comen ye West Lynn or torches of ye gylde to ye dirige, and warnen alle ye gylde breveren yt ben in toune, and gon and don as it is aforn iseyd.

dinance, A.D. 1382. those dying in South Lynn.

[Traces of two lines more are found on this return; but nothing can be made out, save that the goods of the gild were there named.]

eiver skyueyn, di. pounde; and ye deen, di. pounde of waxe.

messes for his soule, of ye propere cattel of ye gilde, yt his for

And if anny brover or sister be dede of vis gilde, he schal have Masses for souls of the dead.

not to be entered.

to weten, xij. messes. And who-so entres in to ye chaumbre yer The ale-chamber ve ale lyth in, and askes no leue of ye officers of ye gilde, he schal pay, to amendement of ye lyght, j.d., bot he haue grace. Also, ye deen schal haue for his travayle, be ye zere, vj.d.; ye clerk, viij.d. Also, ye skeueyns yt hath ye catel of ye gilde, yei Clerk. schal fynde borowes of ye catel, to bryng hit before ye Alderman and ye gilde breyeren and systers atte ye general mornspeche; account at the and if he do noght, he schal pay, to amendement of ye lyght, ij. yearly general meeting pounde of waxe, bot if he have grace. And yt no man dwelle No man shall stay in the gild-house longer in ye hous yer ye gilde his holden in, yen ye Alderman, after the Alderman has left. He y^t doth, schal pay, to amendement of ye lyth, j.d., bot he haue grace. And ye Alderman schal haue, for his ffesse in tyme Allowances to the fficers on feast of drynkyng, ij. galons of ale; euery skeueyn a galon; ye clerk days, and to stek oretheren and a potel; and ye deen a potel. Also, if anny brover or syster be sisteren. seke, in tyme of drynkyn, he schal haue a potel of ale. Also, if anny broyer or syster fallyth in pouerte, and may noght helpe Help to poor pretheien and hym-selfe, he schal haue, of euery brover and syster, atte every sisteren. mornspeche, j.d. And who-so entret; into yis fraternite, he Entrance money. schal pay for his entre ij.s., and fynde ij. borowes for ye catelle.

> Johannes Tyringtoun Robertus Thornegge Willelmus ffolkarde

Sunt custodes dicte gilde; et habent, de bonis eiusdem....

Salaries of the Dean and the The Stewards shall find sureties for the goods of the gild, and render an fraternite is be-gunnen, be ye sent of alle ye breyeren and systers Three meetings shall be held every of vis gilde, to have yre mornspeches be ye zere. Ye fyrst schal year, to which every brother and be ye next sounday after ye general day : ye secunde schal be sister must come, under penalty. ye souneday be-fore hallomese day : ye yre schal ben ye souneday waxe, bot if he have grace. And if ye deen faylith of his The Dean shall be fined, if he fail to summon any New-comers shall pay the usual house-fees.

T

1 (sic.)

Services for the dead, and offerings.

Penalty for bewraying the affairs of the gild.

Officers chosen, and not serving, shall be fined.

XXI.

[GILD OF THE NATIVITY OF ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST,] LENNE.*

In ye worchipe of ihesu crist of heuen, and of his der worthi of ye Natiuite of seynt Jone ye Baptist, in quose worchipe yis be-for Pentecost. Also, if anny broyer or sister be somonde to anny of vis mornspeches, and he be in tone, and wil noght come, ne make non atturne for home¹, ne non leue axken of ye Alderman, he schal pay, to amendement of ye lyght, di. pounde of somonse, for every brover or syster, j.d. And who-so entres in to vis fraternite, he schal pay to ve ryghtes of ye hous; yt is for to say, to ye Alderman, j.d.; ye clerk, ob.; ye deen, ob.: and to ye waxe, ob. And if anny broyer or syster of yis gilde be dede, ye deen schal brynge ye candeles of ye gilde to ye diryge, and warn all ye breyeren and systers of ye gilde to come offere wyth ye dede a qr., and a qr. to ye almes. And he yt offers night for ve dede, he schal paye, to amendement of ye lyght, j.d. And who-so be-wrevs ve counseil of ye gilde to anny straunge man or moder seynt mare, and of all hallowen, and specialyke

* CCCX, 165. Condition, bad.

he schal pay, to a[mendement] of ye lyght, ij. pounde of waxe; woman, and hit may be prouid be anny broyer or sister of yis gilde, he schal pay, to amendement of ye lyght, a pounde of waxe. And if ye Alderman be chosen, [and for]sake is office,

The stewards of the sild

XXII.

[GILD OF ST. THOMAS OF CANTERBURY,] LENNE.*

Four meetings shall be held every year, to which all must come, under penalty.

New-comers shall pay the usual house-fees.

Attendance at meetings must be punctual.

Services for the dead, and offerings.

Masses for the soul. Sureties and entrance money of new-comers.

Allowances to the officers on feast days.

Help to the poor.

Vese ben ye status off ye gylde of seynt Thomas of cauntyrbury. And ordeynyd it is, yat yis gylde shal haue iiij. morwe-speces be ye zere. Ye fyrst morwe-speche shal ben ye soneday next aftyr ye drynkynge: ye next shal ben ye soneday be-forn halwemesse day: ye yredde shal ben on ye soneday be-forn Lammes day: ye ferde shal ben ye soneday be-forn wyth-sounday. And ho-so ys somownd to yese morwe-specys, and yei ben in towne, and wil nowt come, he shal pay, to amendement of ye gylde, half a pownd of wax. And who-so entrys in to y^s fraternete, he shal pay to ye ry3tys of ye hous; yat is for to say, to ye alderman, j.d.; ye den, ob.; ye clerk, ob.; ye wax, ob. And ho-so komys aftyr prime be smytyn, he xal pay, to amendement of ye lyzthe, j.d. And what broyer or syster of yis gilde be ded, ye den shal don ye candelys of ye gylde to ye dyryge; and eucry brover and syster shal offeryn ij. q'tre and j. qr to ye almes: and he yat offeryt nowt, he schal at ve next morwe-speche, to ye helpynge of ye ly3th, j.d. And who-so be ded of yis gilde, he shal have messys for his soule xxvi. And who-so entrys into yis fraternite, he shal pay to ye ryzthys of ye hous, and fynde to Borwys of ye catel, and he shal payen for hys entre xl.d. And ye aldyrman shal haue, euery day, to hys fyse, tyl ye drynk lastes, ij. galonys of ale; euery skeuen, a galon ; ye clerk, j. potel ; ye den, j. potel. And who yat fallyth in pouerert, and askyth helpe of ye gilde, euery broyer and syster of ye gylde shal gyue, every morwespeche, j.d.

* CCCX. 167. Condition, bad; a part destroyed.

61

And who-so ys chozyn in office of aldyrman, and he for-sake Officers chosen, hys office, he shal pay, to amendement of ye lyzth, ij. pownd shall be fined. of wax; euery* skeueyn a pownd of wax; and ye den di. pound of wax. And who-so be [seke] in tyme of drynkyng, he shal sick. have o [ne galoun] of ale. And who-so make any noyse [in No noise to be tyme of dryn kyng, wher-thorw ye brevere and sisteren shul time. be] greuyd, he shal pay, to amende[ment of the lyzth,] di. pound of wax. And ordeyn yd it is, yat the skeueyns] shul The Stewards shall brygge ye catel of ye [gylde, atte general morve-speche,] beforn ye aldyrman [and ye gylde breyeren and systeren,] ope ye peyne of [..... And zif ye] den falveth of hys The Dean shall be [somouns, he shal pay, for] every man and womman [..... And who-so be-wrayeth] ye counseyl of ye gilde [to anny Penalty for bestraunge man or womman,] he schal pay, to amende[ment of the gylde, ..., pound] of wax. And who-so entrye[s into ye chaumbre] yer ye ale lyggys in, wyth-oute le [ue of ye officers] The ale-chamber he shal pay, to amendement of ye lyght, di. pound of wax. And vat noman sitte lenger van ve alderman, in payn of a Noman shall sit pownd of wax. man.

> Custodes dicte Gilde. Willelmus ffolkarde habent, equis portionibus, de bonis Johannes Patyrmak Rogerus Broun dicte Gilde, xl.s.

• This word is written twice over in the original.

Ricardus Harpole

Allowances to the made during feast-render an account of the goods of the gild at the general meeting.

fined if he fail to summon any.

wraying the affairs of the gild.

not to be entered.

at feast longer than the Alder-

The Stewards, and the goods of the gild.

XXIII.

[GILD OF ST. PETER,] LENNE.*

The gild was begun A.D. 1329.

Four meetings

penny, towards maintaining a light hurning during divine coming to any fined, if he fail

Officers chosen,

shall be fined.

meeting.

men.

ings.

service.

which every

This ys ye statuz of ye gylde of ye holy apostyl sente peter, by-gunnyn in ye toune of Lenne, in ye wrchepe of god and of oure lauedi sente marie, and of ve holv apostvl sente peter, in ye vere of oure lord Mo.cccmo.xx. nono.† And yis gyld schal haue foure morne-spechis in ye yer. Ye frist schal bene shall be held every after ye drynkyng: ye secund schal ben ye sonday nest be-fore year: at each of mielmes day : ye thyrd schal be ye sonday nest be-fore candelbrother and sister shall pay a halfmes day : ye ferd schal be ye sonday nest be-fore sent austenis day in may. And at every morne-speche, everiche broyer and syster yt longythe to vis gyld schal pev an halpeny, to meytevn wit-al a lythe brennynge in ye chyrche of sent Jame, a-fore ve ymage of sent peter, ye quile yat deuine seruise is seyd in festival dayys. And quo-so be somund to any morne-speche, Penalty for not and he be in toune, and wvl not come, ne make non aturne for hym, he schal a peny to ye lythe. And if ye dene faly of hys somonis, he schal peyyn, for eueriche yt is not The Dean shall be somonde, j. peny to ye lythe. And eueril yere schal ye alderman to summon any clepyn up iiij. men of ye gyld, to chesyn an alderman, skyueyns, Officers shall be chosen by picked and den, yt ben profeth-abil to ve gyld. And if any of hem vt is schosyn for-sake is offyse, he schal peyyn to ye lythe: yt is and not serving, forwetyn, ye alderman, j. pound of wax ; eueriche skeueyn, di. li. wax; and ye dene, a quarter. And if any broyer or syster of ye Services for the dead, and offergyld be ded, ye den schal do comen ye candelis to ye dyrige, and somon al ye cumpanye for to gone wit ye corse to chirche man and ye skeueynis schullyn do synge ye messis wit-in ye and offervn. And if he ne wil come, and he be in hele and in Any one not coming, if able. toune, he schal pevyn, at nest morne-speech to ve almes for is shall be fined.

soule, ij. pens. And eueriche brover and syster vt is ded of Masses for the ve gyld, he schal haue for is soule xx^{ti} messis. And ve alder-thyrd day after he is ded, on ye perile of here soulis. And The Alderman ordevnid it is, yt ye catel of ys gyld ye alderman schal delyuere goods to the to ye skeueynis, be sufficient borus to bryngyn ye catel ageine at ve general morne-speche, be-fore ve alderman and ve gyld bretheryn, of peyyne of ij. li. wax. And ye alderman schal hauen, eueriche day v^e gwile v^e general drynkkynge lestyt, ii. galonis hale for is fees ; eueriche skeuevne, i. galon ; and ve den, i. potel ; and ve clerke, i potel. And quo so enter into vis gyld, he schal makyn feythe to ye alderman for holdyn of yevse statutis : and sythen pevyn ve rythys of ve house ; vt is for wetyn, to ve alderman, j. peny ; ye clerk, j. peny ; ye den, ob., and to ye wax. ob. : and sythen mak god hys entrees, if ye cumpanye and he is acordid, or elis fyndyn borws to peyyn wt-ynne certeyn dayis. And ye dene schal haue, for is traualye in ye zere, yi.d. And The Dean's salary. also ordevnid it is, vt qwat brover or syster here over ani falsed Any brother or or ani wronge on hande, or, and it another, shall be fined. may be prouvd be men of ve self gyld, he schal payyn, to ve reparacion of ve lythe, di. li. wax. And qwat brover or syster Help to poor falle in pouerte, and may nout helpe hym-self, yanne schullyn ye breveryn and ye systeryn helpyn hym of here almesse.

shall deliver the stewards, upon surety given to render account thereof at the yearly general ineeting. Allowances to the officers on feast days.

New-comers shall undertake to keep these statutes : and shall at once pay the usual house-fees : and. at the same time, shall pay the entrance money, or find sureties.

sister wronging

Bis is ve verve copie of ve gylde of sent Petvr ve apostyle. This is a true holdyn in Lene afore-seyde, wrytyn on ye feste of seynte hillari, written on 13th January, 1388 [9]. Anno Domini millesimo cccº octogesimo octavo.

A list of some names, with other memoranda, follow the above in the original; but they have become entirely illegible.]

copy, and was

^{*} CCCX. 168. Condition, very bad.

⁺ The MS. is so much damaged that I cannot be certain whether the date is not M.CCC.XXXIX, instead of M.CCC.XXIX.

XXIV.

[GILD OF THE PURIFICATION,] LENNE.*

Thys ys the Gylde of the Purificacion of owre lauedy seint marie, bygunnyn in the toune of Lenne, in the worchype of god and of oure lauedy seint marie : and it schal ben holdyn

The gild shall meet on Candlemas day, and have, besides, three meetings every year.

Officers shall be chosen by picked men.

Officers chosen, and not serving, shall be fined.

Services for the dead, and offerings.

Masses for the soul.

Entrance-money of new-comers. Help to those in trouble.

on candelmesse day. And thys gylde schal han iij. morwespechys be vere. The fyrste schal ben on seint Blasyes day: the seconde schal be the soneday nexte after the feste of seinte Barnabe apostole: the thrydde schal be the soneday after the feste of seint Dvonisii. And every yer schal the Alderman callyn vp foure men of the gylde bretheryn, for to chesyn alderman and skyueynys that ben profitable for the Gylde. And if any of hem that arne chosyn forsake the office, he schal pave, to amendement of the Gylde, xii.d. And if any brothyr or syster be deed, the Deen schal do comvn the candelys of the Gylde to the dirige, and every brothyr and systyr schal offere j.qr. for hys soule. And every brothyr and systyr that deed ys, schal han, of the catelle of the gylde, xl. messes, wythynne the thrydde day after hyse deth. And who-so entre into this firaternite, he schal paye, to the amendement of the gylde, xl.d. Also, if any brothyr or systyr of this gylde be in mescheef, euery brothyr and systyr schal yeuyn hym iiij.d. yche yer, tyl he may helpyn hym-self.

The Alderman and Stewards; and the goods of the gild. Walter Glouere, Aldirman.

Wiliam Gedyngton Johannes Payabele Rogerus Folsham Willelmus Waltham

* CCCX. 185. Condition, good.

XXV.

[GILD OF ST. MARY,] LENNE.*

Tn ve worchippe of ihesu crist of heuene, and of his dere worthi moder seynt mare, and of ve Purificacioun, in quose worchippe vis fraternite is be-gonone. Be ye sent of ye Four meetings shall be held every brevere and ye systeres of ye gilde, to haue iiij. mornspeches be shall be held even year; to each of ye zere. Ye fyrst mornspeche schal be on ye general day, after brother and sister mete: ye secunde schal be on ye sounday next after seynt penalty. Dunstoun day in may: ye yre schal be ye souneday next after seynt Mathew day : ye ferde schal be on ye sounday be-forn seynt Thomas day be-for Cristenmes day. And al-so if anny brover or syster be somende to anny of vis mornspeches, and he be in toune, and wil noght come, ne make non attrne for hym. ne non leue askyn of ye alderman, he schal pay, to amendement of ye lyght, di. pounde of wax, bot he have grace. And if The Dean shall be ye deen faylith of his somonse, he schal pay, for every brover or summon any. sister, j.d. And who entres in to vis fraternite, he schal pay ye New-comers shall pay the usual ryghtes of ye hous; yt is for to say, to ye Alderman, j.d.; ye house-fees. clerk, ob.; ye deen, ob.; and ye waxe, ob. And if anny broyer Services for the or sister of vis gilde be dede, ye deen schal brynge ve candeles offerings. of ye gilde to ye dirige, and warn al ye brevere and sistere to come ofter, wit ye dede a qr, and a qr to ye almes: and he yt offeres noght for ye dede, he schal pay, to amendement of ye lyght, j.d. And who-so be-wreys ye counseyl of yis gilde to Penalty for bewraying the affairs anny straunge man or woman, he sal pay, to amendement of of the gild. ye lyght, a pounde of waxe. And if ye Alderman be chosyn officers chosen. and he for-sake is offece, he schal pay, to amendement of ye shall pay a fine.

* CCCX. 203. Condition, bad.

lyght, ij. pounde of waxe; every skeuyn, di. pound; ye den, di. pounde of wax. And if anny broyer or syster of yis gilde be dede, he schal haue messes for his soule of ye propere catel of ye gilde, yt is for to weten xij. messes. And who-so entres Masses for souls of the dead.

The ale chamber shall not be entered.

Salaries of the Dean and the Clerk.

The Stewards shall and sureties for the goods of the gild, and render an account at the yearly general meeting.

No man shall stay in the gild-house after the Alderman has left Allowances to the officers on feastdays, and to sick bretheren and sisteren.

Help to poor bretheren and

sisteren.

in to ye chaumbere yer ye ale lyth in, and askes non leue of ye offesers of ye gilde, he schal pay, to amendement of ye lyght, j.d., bot he haue grace. Also, ye deen schal haue for his trauayle, be ye zere, vj.d.; ye clerk, viij.d. Also, ye skeuens yt hath ye catalle of ye gilde, yei schal fynd borowes for ye catalle, to bryng hit be-for ye Alderman and ye gild breyere and sisters of yis gilde atte general mornspeche. He yt do noght, he schal pay, to amendement of ye lyght, ij. pounde of wax, bot if he have grace. And yt no man dwelle in ye hous yer ye gilde his holden in, lenger ven ve Alderman : he vt doth, he schal pay, to amendement of lyght, i.d., bot he have grace. And ye Alderman schal haue to his fesse, in tyme of drynkyn, ij. galons of ale; euery skeuen, a galoun; ye clerk, a potel; and ye Deen, a potel. Also, if anny broyer or syster be seke, of yis gilde, in tyme of drynkyng, he schal haue a potel of ale. Also, if anny broyer or syster of yis gilde fallyth in pouerte, and may noght helpe hym-selfe, he schal haue, of euery brover or sister, atte ilk a mornspeche, a peny. And who-so entres in to vis fraternite, he schal pay for is entre ij.s., and fynd ij. borowes for ye catalle.

Entrance-money and sureties.

Goods of the gild.

Robertus Thornegge, custos ejusdem [gilde], habet, de bonis, v.s.

XXVI.

[GILD OF ST. KATHERINE,] LENNE.*

Theyse arne the ordinaunces of the Gylde of Seynt Katerine the virgine, of Lenne, ordevnyd be the assent of the bretheryn in the fyrste fundacion; that the brethere and the systres of the seyde Gylde, in the reuerence of god and alle halwyn, and specialy of seynte katerine, schulne fyndyn an candele brennennde, in the worchype of god and of seynte ings shall be katerine, in the Chyrche of seynte margarete of Lenne; where, euery feste of the seyde maydyn, alle the bretheryn schun comyn, and offeryn at the heye messe. And they schun holdyn, euery Your days of ver, foure dayes of spekyngges tokedere for here comune profyte. The fyrste schal ben the nexte day after the feste of seynt katerine: the seconde schal ben the soneday nexte befor the must come, under feste of seynt Gregory: the thrydde schal ben the soneday befor the feste of seynt Jon Baptiste : the ffeerde schal ben the soneday nexte aftyr the feste of seynt mychelle. And if any brothyr or systyr be warnyd to comyn, and wyle nought comyn, at ony of theyse dayes, he schal payen, to the amendemente of the wax, j.d. Also, quat brothyr or systyr schal comyn into New-comer, shall this fraternite, he schal payen, to the sustentacion of this gylde, v.s., quanne that he may resonabely. Also, if any brothyr be Officers chosen, chosyn in office of Alderman, or Skeveynys, and he forsake it shall pay a fine with-outen cause resenable, he schal paye to the wax vj.d. Also, Two torches shall quat brothyr or systyr be deed with-ynne Lenne, the Aldirman about the body of this gylde schal doon beryn ij. torches, foundyn of the comune brother or suter,

A candle snall be kept burning in the church of St. Margaret; and on the feast of St. Katherme offermade.

speaking together shall be held every year; to each of which every brother and sister penalty.

pay five shillings each.

and not serving,

be kept burning of every dead

* CCCX. 223. Condition, good; but a corner destroyed.

GILD OF ST. KATHERINE, LYNN.

till buried ; and offerings shall be made.

Masses for the souls of the dead. coste, to the place there the deed body is ynne, to brennyn aboutyn the body the tyme of the dirige and of the messe, tyl the body is byryid, in worchype of god and of seynt katerine. Also, euery brothyr and systyr schal offeryn for the soule, in the worchype of god and holy Chyrche, j. ob. Also, euery brothyr and systyr that deveth schal han xxx. messes, of the comune almesse of thys Gylde, for hyse soule.

The Stewards, and goods of the gild.

Petrus Tapeser Sunt Custodes Gilde su-Willelmus Wodylle pradicte, et habent in Robertus Scherman manibus suis, de bonis Willelmus Lowyk dicte Gilde, xxx[iij.s.] Ranulphus Watviledere iiij.d., equis portionibus.

Summa bonorum Gilde, xxxiijs. iiii.d.

XXVII.

[GILD OF ST. JAMES,] LENNE.*

In ye worchipe of ihesu cryst of heuene, and of his der worthi moder seynt mare, and of al halwen, and specilike of sevnt Jame, in quose wyrschepe vis fraternite is be-gunnen. Be ve sent of alle ye brevere and systers of yis gilde, for Four meetings to haue iiij. morn-speches be ye zere. Ye fyrst morn-speche year; to each of schal be ye sounday next after ye drynkyng: ye secunde brother and sister schal be ye sounday next after halumesday : ye threde schal penalty. be ye sounday next after Fastyngonge : ye ferde schal be ye sounday next after ye trinite. Also, if anny broyer or sister be somonde to anny of yis mornspheches, and yei be in toune, and wil noght come, ne make non attrne, ne non leue aske of ye Alderman, he schal pay, to amendement of ye lyght, di. pounde of wax, bot he haue better grace. And if ye Den faylith of his The Dean shall be somons, for every broyer or sister, a peny. And who-so entres summon any. in to yis fraternite, he schal pay ye ryghtes of ye hous : yt is for to say, to ye Alderman, a peny; Clerk, ob.; Den, ob.; and ye wax, ob. And if anny broyer or sister of yis gilde be dede, ye services for the lead, and Den schal brynge ye candeles of ye gylde to ye Dirige, and warn offerings. al ye breyere and systere of ye gilde come ofter with ye dede a fardyng, and a fardyng to ye almes. And he yt ofter noght, he schal pay, to amendement of ye lyght, a peny. And who-so be- Penalty for bewraying the affairs wreys ye counsel of yis gilde to anny straunge mon or woman, of the gild. and hit may be prouid be anny broyer or syster, he schal pay, to amendement of ye lyght, a pounde of [wax], bot if he have grace. And if ye alderman be chosen, and he for-sake his office, shall be held every which every must come, under fined if he fail to New-comers shall pay the usual iouse-fees.

* CCCX. 227. Condition, very bad.

Officers chosen, and not serving, shall pay a fine.

Masses for the souls of the dead. he schal pay, to amendement of ye lyght, a pounde of wax; euery skeueyne, di. pounde; and ye Den, di. pounde of wax. And if anny broyer or syster be dede of yis gilde, he schal haue messes for his soule, of ye propere cattel of ye gilde, yt is to

The ale chamber shall not be entered.

Salaries of the Dean and the Clerk.

The Stewards shall find sureties for the goods of the gild. and render an account at the yearly general meeting.

in the gild house has left.

sisteren.

sisteren.

after the alderman

Allowances to the officers on feast-days, and to sick bretheren and weten, xxx, messes. And who-so entre in to ye chaumbre yer ye ale lyth in, and askes non leue of ye offecers of ye gilde, he schal pay, to amendement of ye gilde, a peny, bot if he haue grace. Also ye den schal haue for his travayle, be zere, vj.d. Also ye clerk schal haue for his trauayle, be ye zere, viij.d. Also ye skeuens yt haue ye catel of ye gilde, yei schul fyndes borowes for ye catel, to brynge hitt be-for ye alderman and ye gilde brovere and systers atte general mornspeche; and if yei do noght, he schal pay, to amendement of ye lyght, ij. pounde of wax, bot if he have grace. And y^t no man dwelle lenger in ye No man shall stay hous yer ye gilde is holden in, yen ye Alderman: he yt doth, he schal pay, to amendement of ye lyght, ij.d., bot if he have grace. And ye alderman schal haue to his fesse, in tyme of drynkyn, ij. galouns of ale ; eyer skeuen, a galoun ; ye Clerk, a potel; and ye den, a potel. And if anny brover or sister of yis gilde be seke, in tyme of drynkyng, he schal haue a potel of ale. Also, if anny brover or sister fallyth in pouerte, and may noght helpe is-selfe, he schal haue, of ilke broyer and sister, at ilk a mornspeche, a peny. And qwo-so entres in to yis fra-ternite, he schal pay [for is entre . . s.], and fynde ij. borowes

Entrance money, and sureties.

for ye catel.

Help to poor bretheren and

The stewards, and goods of the gild.

Johannes Tyringtoun) ejusdem gilde sunt custodes. Johannes Thornegge ∫ et habent, de bonis, xxxs.

XXVIII.

[GILD OF THE NATIVITY OF ST. JOHN BAPTIST,] LENNE.*

These arn the ordenaunce of ye gilde of ye Nativite of scint The gild was Johan Babtiste, founden and ordeynd ye zere of hour lord ihesu M¹.ccc. and sextene. ffirst, yere schulen been holden Three meetings vre morunspeche be ye zere. Ye first shal been ye next day aftere ye general day: ye secunde shal been ye sunday next aftere sister must come, ye fest of seint martyn: ye tridde shal been ye sunday fowrtenytz aftere hestern. And if ony brothere or sistere be somound to is morunspeche, and wil nouht comen, ne make non attourne for him, he shal paye, to amendment of ye list, ij.d. And ordeynd it is, that eueriche yere, at ye general morunspeche, Officers shall be ye Alderman shal clepen vp iiij. men : and yei shul chesyn an Alderman, skyueyns, and deen, qweche yat yei seen is most profitable to meyntene ye gilde, to ye worschipe of god and of seint Johan. And if ony of hem yat is chosen, for-sake is office, Officers chosen, and wvl nouht doon, he shal payen to amendement of ye lizt; shall pay a fine. yat is for to witen, ye Alderman, ij.li. wax; eythere skyueyn, j.li.; ye deen, di. li. Also ordeynd it is, yat ye skyuens shal hauen ye Catelle of yis gilde, shul fyndeen ij. sufficiaunt; borwes, the goods of the to brynge ye catelle, at general morunspeche, by-forn ye alderman an account at the and ye gylde bretheren, vp ye payn of ij.li. wax, to amendement meeting. of ye list; and, ofyr yat, yei shul pursu for her Catelle in qwat cowrte yat hem liste. Also ordeynd it is, yat eueriche nyth Every feast shall qwil drynkynd lastet; at ye general time, yei shul haue ye prayer. preyeers for ye pees and ye state of holy chirche, and for ye begun A.D. 1316.

shall be held every year; to which every brother and under penalty.

chosen by picked men.

and not serving,

The Stewards shall find sureties for gild, and render yearly general

* CCCX. 82. Condition, fair; but nearly one-third destroyed.

GILD OF THE NATIVITY OF ST. JOHN BAPTIST,

The gild-candle shall burn the while; and all that are there shall be notseless.

Services for the dead, and

the ordinances.

usual house-fees and entrancemorey.

Masses for souls

of the dead,

Allowances to officers on feast-

tined, if he fail to

The gild shall go to church in piocession, on the general meeting,

and hear mass. and make offer-mgs.

summon anv.

days.

offerings.

pes and ya state of ye lond; and yer-qwile shal ye Candelle yat longet; to ye gilde brennynge; and qwat man maket; ony nowse in vat time, he shal paye, to ye amendement of ye lizt, ij.d. Also, quat broyere or sistere deve of yis gilde, ye deen shal do come ye Candelle to ye Dirige, and warn alle ye breyeren and sisteres yat yerto longetz, for to ben redy to beryn him to chirche, and offren an ob. for is sowle; and if he doot; [nout qw]at is a forn seyd, he shal paye, to a mendement of ye lytz, di. li. wax [but if he] have a resonable excusacioun. Also quat broyere or sistere entret; [into yis gilde, he] shal make feyth New-comers shall undertake to keep to ye alderman to meynten yeis ordinaun[ces, and shal paye and shall pay the all the] rites of ye hous; as is for to-witen, to ye Alderman, ij.d. [to ever iche skyveyn, j.d.; to ye clerk,] j.d.; to ye deen, j.d.; and sythen paye for his entre ded, or elles fyndeen borwes for to payen in ce be ded of yis gilde, he schal xxx. messis for 30 messis shul been songen w^t shal hauen for is fees be ge..... ueyn a galoun; ye Deen a The Dean shall be And if ye Deen falietz and sistere yat is in and sistere shal pay ye worsipe of god noman be rebelle ne non gilde broyer peyne of di. li, wax..... ye selue lyt; yat is a songe is seyd in festival dayes. [Also, or]deynd it is, yat eueriche broyere and sistere shal be redy at ye hous quere yat he gilde is holde, on ye general day of their yearly [day], for to go to ye chirche, ij. and ij., wt ye alderman togedere, and here ye messe in ye worsipe of god and of seynt Johan, and offren, and also han a ozere messe for ye soules of hem yat been dede, and offren also; and qwat man or woman be fawty, he schal paye, to amendement of ye lizt, di. li. wax, but if he have good excusacioun. And qwat brothere or sistere

BISHOP'S LYNN.

falle in pouerte, he shal be holpen wt ye catelle of ye gilde, Help to poor bretheren and be ve ordinaunce of ye Alderman and of ye gilde breyeren. sisteren. Thomas de Hylburgheworthe, Skynner, Alderman.

*Ista est certificatio statutorum gylde Sancti Johannis Baptiste, ville Lenne episcopi.

Ricardus Crambudiges habet, de catallis dicte gylde, xx.s. iij.d. Goods of the gild. Item Ranulfus de Dynton, xx.s. iij.d. Item Adam de Smitton, xx.s. iij.d. Item Johannes de Bambrygges, xx.s. iij.d.

* What follows is written in a different hand from the foregoing ordinances, and with an ink so faint that the names, and several of the words, are barely legible, though the sums put after the names happen to be quite plain.

XXIX.

[GILD OF ST. GEORGE THE MARTYR,] LENNE.*

This firaternyte is be-gonnen in be worship of Jhesu Crist

Seint George be martir, in be toune of Bisshopis Lenne, be zere of heuen, and of his modir seint mary, and specially of

The gild was begun A.D. 1376.

A priest shall be found, to serve at the altar of St. George.

Candles and torches shall be found, to burn during service, and at burnals.

Services for the dead, and

offerings.

of oure lorde M¹.CCC.LXXVJ. And bis ffraternite is be-gonnen in bis atent; to fynden a Preste to syngen atte autere of Seint George in be chirche of Seinte margare of Lenne be-fore saide, in be worship of god and be holy martir, and for alle be brethir and sistrin bt to be firaternite longes. Also + ordeynd it is, bt be seluel bretheren and sistres shal fynden v. candelles, brennand a-forn bet same autiere in festivale dayes, while bat diuine seruice is saide in be chirche. And also ordeynd it is, bay shul fynden iiij. torches, ffor to brenne be principal day at messe, and at exequises of euery brothir and sistir bat dies, and her messe is in doynge, and to be body be boren to be biryinge, if it be pere present. And also ordeind it is, pt what brothir or sistir so be deed of bis ffraternite, be aldirman shal do comen be Deen, and warne alle be compaignye bat longen to bis fraternite, man and woman, bat is wt-inne be toune, to come to be exsequies of hym or of hir bat is deede, whethir-so it be, and bene redy to beren hem to be chirche, and for to offren for be Soule as be manere is to done for be deede; and what man or woman so faille, shale pay i.d. to be almes for his soule, and di. pounde of wax to be mayntenance

* CCCX. 90. Condition, very bad; and destroyed in several places.

+ This word is, by mistake, written twice in the original.

t This word also is written twice in the original.

of be list. Also ordeynd it is, but what brothir or sister die Service shall be owte of toune, als-sone as be aldirman may wit it, he shal, be be brother or sister deen, do comen be compaignye to-gedre bat is wt-inne be toune, the town. and done helden a messe solempnely atte autiere of seint George afore-saide, wt be list afore-saide, and every brothir and sistir shalle offre, atte selfe messe, as bour be body were bere present, vp be payne a for]e-saide. And also ordeynd it is, bt what Masses for souls brothir or sister so be deed of bis firaternite, [he] shal have saide for his soule lx. messes, of be preste bat loges¹ to be ffraternite, [sone] so he is dede, specialliche, and afterward to bene had in memorie wt othir pt [bene] deed aforne. Also ordeinde it is, Help to poor bat what brothir or sistir so falle in pouerte [bt he can] nouzt sisteren. helpe hym-selfe to leuen resonably, pan shal eueryche brothir and [sister bat] is of powere, atte every morunspeche, pay an ob. to helpen hem wt bt is fallen [so in pouerte]. And also ordeynd it is, bat bis ffraternite shal han iiij. morunspeches by Four meetings [be zere, in tim]e bat is profitable to be worship of god and saluacioun of be ffraternite. [De ferste shal be] be feste of seint sister shull come, marke next after be feste of seint George. De [secunde shal] bene be sunday next after be nativite of seint Johan Baptiste. pe [prid shal b]e pe sonday next after pe feste of seint fathe be virgine. And [be fourt shal] be be Sonday next after be feste of be Purificacioun of oure lady marie. [And everich brot hyr or sister bat is somende, and is in toune, and come noust, bot if he have [resonabel exc]usacioun, he shal pay, to be amendement of be list, ii.d. And also or-[deynd it is, b^{\dagger}] atte general morunspeche, in be feste of Seint marke, be aldirman shal [clepen up] viij. menn, and pay viij. Officers shall be shall chesen an aldirman, skyueyns, clerk, and [dene, bo] bat bay men. seen ere most profitable for to gouerne be firaternite to be [worship of god and of seint George. And what man so is chosen Officers chosen, in office, and for-sake it, he shal pay to maytenance of be list; shall pay a fine. pt is for to witen, be Aldirman, ij.lib. wax; euery Skyueyn, j.lib.; be Clerk, i. lib. ; and be Deen, di. lib. Also ordered it is, bat be Allowances to the Aldirman shal haue, iche nyst while be gener[al] drynkyng lastis, days. ii galouns of ale for his fees; every Skyueyne, a galoun; be eld, though the have died outside of the dead.

1 (sic.)

bretheren and shall be held every year; to which everv brother and under penalty.

chosen by picked

and not serving,

fficers on feast-

The gild shall go to church on th day of their yearly general meeting, and hear mass. and make offerings.

The affairs of the gild shall not be find sureties for the goods of the gild, and render an account at the yearly general disclosed.

Clerke, a galoun ; be Deen, a potelle. Also ordeynd it is, bat eueryche brothir and sistir pt longes to pe ffraternite shal be redy atte pe general day, atte hous pat is assigned for pe fraternite, for to gone, ij. and ij. to-gedre, worshipfully to be chirche, wt be Aldirman, for to heren messe and euensonge, and atte general messe for to offre in worship of be holy martir, and atte messe of Requiem ilke for hem bat ben deed, vp be payne of di.

meeting. Every feast shall be begun with a prayer ; the gildlight burning the while; and they that are there making no noise nor jangling.

New-comers only admitted at the yearly general meeting, and by assent of all; save good men from the country. New-comers shall undertake to keep the ordinances, and shall pay the usual house-fees. as well as entrancemoney.

If any quarrel arise, it must be told to the Alderman, who shall do his best to settle it.

A livery-hood shall be fetched before the meetings, and shall be paid for; and

lib. wax. Also pat no brother no sister ne shalle discuse pe counseil of bis fraternite to no straungere, vp be payne of forfeture of be fraternite for euermore, bot if he haue grace, if it The Stewards shall may be prouet resonabely be bretheren of [bis fra]ternite. Also þe skyueyns þat shal haue þe katelle in hande, shul fynde [sufficiaunt] borwes to saue be catelle atte generale morunspeche to be fraternite, vp be [time of her se]mblynge. Also, atte general tyme, while be drinkynge lastes, eueryche nyzt, [a-fore be feste,] be clerk shal stonden vp and done pees ben in be house, while pt [he says] be bedes for be state of holy chirche and be state of be londe, wt be list [brenninge] bt longes to be compaignye. And what maner of man bat make noise or janzelynge in be tyme, he shal pay ij.d. to be amendement of be lizt. Also, pere shal no man no woman entre in to pis ffraternite, bot atte general morunspeche, be be assent of be aldirman and alle be gilde bretheren, bot iff it be ony man of Contre bat is knowen of gode conversacioun. And what man so entre in to pis fraternite, sone so he is comen in, he shal take his charge of be aldirman, vp his feythe to kepen bese ordinance a-fore sayde vp his myzt, and paien his fees, bat is for to wyten, ij.d. to be aldirman; j.d. to be wax; j.d. to be clerk; and j.d. to be deen. And sethen, for his entrees, xiij.s. iiij.d., or elles fynde borwes to pay it wt-ynne certeyne dayes. Also ordeynd it is, bat what man so be greued wt oper, he shal warne be aldirman ber-of; and he shal done his bisynes to acorden, if he may, wt his bretheren; and, if he may nouzt, prsue be lawe where hem list. Also ordeynd it is, pat every brothir pat is of powere shal come, ilke [a daye], and feeche his hoode of lyuere of be gylde, and pay ber-fore, vp be peyne of of wax to be amendement of be list. And every brothir shall have on his shall be worn at [lyuere hoo]de atte euery morunspeche, and atte biryinge of his and at every brothir or sistir, whepir [it be, up b]e payne of di. lib. wax. Also Breakers of the ordeynde it ys, pt what brothir or sister trespas [azenes] yes ordenaunces thries, and per-of ben amercie by pe bretheren, he gild. shalle lese be fraternite for euermore, bot if he haue grace. And Salaries of the lerk and the be Clerk shal haue for his travaille, by zere, iij.s. iiij.d.; and be Dean. deen, ij.s.

BISHOP'S LYNN.

Johannes Palgraue, Aldirman

Nicholus de Suttoun Rogerus Pynchebek Stephanus Stenyor Johannes Lakynghythe, Cotoller Scabini; et habent, in manibus eorum, de bonisdictegilde, equis portionibus, iijli. iijs.

every meeting. burial service ordinances, after three fines, shall be put out of the Officers of the gild, and goods of the gild.

XXX.

[GILD OF ST. JOHN BAPTIST,] LENN EPISCOPI.*

The gild was begun A.D. 1372.

which every

summon any.

pay the usual

house-fees.

dead, and offerings.

of the dead.

penalty.

In ye worschepe of ihesu crist, and his modere seint marie, and of alle halowen, and specialli of seint Johan Babtyst. of quam vis fraternite is founden and stabeled in ye zere of hour lord ihesu Ml. CCCO.LXXIJ. And vis gilde shal haue foure Four meetings shall be held every morwe-speches be ye zere. Ye first shal been on ye self day: year; to each of ve secunde shal been on Johan Day, in Cristemesse: ye yridde brother and sister shall come, under shal be ye sunday after hesteriday: ye feerde shal been ve sunday after missumm^rday. And who-so is somound to ani of veis morunspeches, and he be in toune and in hele, and he wille nouht come, ne make attourne for hym, he shal pay di. li. wax. And if ye deen faile of is somouns, he shal paye, for ilk broyere The Dean shall be fined, if he fail to and sistere yat is nouht somound, j.d. And who so is chosun in offices of alderman, and he for-sake ye office, he shal paye ij. li. Officers chosen, and not serving, wax; and eythere sk[eu]eyn, j.li. wax; and ye clerke, di.li. shall pay a fine. wax, if he be a brovere ; and ye Deen, di. li. wax. And who-so entres in to yis fraternite, he shal paye ye rythes of ye hous; New-comers shall vat is to wyten, to ye alderman, jd.; to ye clerk, j. ob.; to ye deen, j. ob.; to ye wax, ob. And if ani broyere or sistere of vis gilde be ded, ye Deen shal do comen ye candelles of ye gylde Services for the to ye Dirige, and warn all ye gylde breyeren and sisteres to come and go with ye cors, and offyr a ferthynge; and who-so come nouht to ye offirend, he shal paye, at ye next morunspeche, j.d. to ve almes for ye sowle. And euerilk broyere and sistere of vis gilde yat ded is, shal haue, of ye propre catelle, x. messis, Masses for souls w^tin ye viij. dayes after yei been ded, vp payn of xl.d. And also who-so is rebel ageyns ye alderman, or ageynes sistere or There shall be no quarrel during bretheren, in tyme of drynk, or of morunspeche holdun, he shal any feast-time or meeting pay j. li. wax vp gree to ye list. And who-so discurets ye counsel The affairs of the gild shall not be of ve gilde to ani straunge man or womman, he shal pave i. li. disclosed. wax to ye list. And gwo-so jangle in time of drynk, or of No jangling shall go on during feast morunspeche holdun, and ye Deen comaund hem be stille, and time or meeting. he wilnouht, he shall pay di. li. wax. And ye alderman shal Allowances to the have a galoun of ale; eythere skyueyn, a potelle; ye deen, a days. potelle; ye clerk, a potelle. And ordevnd it is, yt ve Skyveyns The Stewards shall schulloun haue ye katel hon hand. Yei shal fynden sufficiaunt goods, and shall borwes to brynge ye catelle, w^t ve encresement, at ve general morunspeche, be-forn alderman and ye gylde breyeren, yp payn ii. li. wax to ye liztz, or her borwes for hem. And ye Deen meeting. shal haue iiij.d., be ye zere, for is trauaille. And ye clerk, vj.d. Clerk. and her fees. And yat noman sitz lengere zan alderman, ne No man shall stay dwelle in ye hous but men of office, yp payn di. li. wax to ye after the Alderlytz. Also, quat brovere or sistere vat cometz aftere prime be smeten, he shal pay j.d. to ye lytz; and prime shal be smetz ij. howres aftere noon. And ilk a brovere and sistre shal pay, ilk a A candle shall be morunspeche day, ob., to meynten a Candelle brennyng a-forn ye during serviceymage of seint Johan, in ye chirche of seint Jame, on sundayes and overe holydayis, qwil yat seruice is in doynge. And a odyr Moneys shall be ob. [to the encrese] of ye catelle and for ye ale. Also ordeynd gild stock, and the ale. it is, bi al ye s...., yat yis gilde shal be offred in ve chirche of Seint..... owten heende veise ordinaunce for to be kep to ye alderman qwan he entretz in to breket; hem, he grawnt hym self, for but if he haue grace.

* CCCX. 12. Condition, fair; but a piece destroyed.

John de Essex, taly.... Thomas of Cressyngh.... Adam of Smitton Thomas Peddere officers on feasthave the gild find sureties to render an account of these, and of the profits, at the yearly general Salaries of the Dean and the in the gld-house man has left.

ept burning paid towards the Officers of the gild.

XXXI.

[GILD OF ST. THOMAS OF CANTERBURY,] LENN EPISCOPI.*

Tn ve wurchepe of ihesu crist of heuene, and of his moder seinte marie, and alle ve companie of heuene, and also

Four meetings shall be held every year; to which every brother and sister shall come. under penalty.

find sureties for entrance-money

The house-fees must be paid at Service for the dead, and

If any one belie offerings.

payment of once.

specialike of ye translacioun of seint Thomas of Cantewarbiri, for quose wourchipe vis fraternite his bi-gunnen. And yeise ben ve odynaunse of yis gilde. Yat men scholen holden foure morspeches in ye zer. Ye friste schal ben on ye general day: ye secunde schal ben sunday next be-for ye feste of seint michel: ye thridde schal ben ye day of seint thomas after cristemese: ve ferde schal ben ve next sunday be-forn Pentecoste. Also, if any brozer or sister be in toune, and be warned, and wille nouht comen, ne maken non attourne for him, ne no leue asken of ve alderman, he schal payen 1.d. to ye lite. And gwo-so entre into vis fraternite of yis gilde, he schal fynden borwes to payen New-comers must for is entre as he is a-corde with ye companye. And sythen ye rythes of ye hous sone so he comen in; to ye Alderman, I.d.; to ve clerk. ob.; to ye wax, ob.; to ye den, ob. And if ani sister or brover be ded of yis gilde, ye den schal bryngen ye candeles to ye dirige, and warnen his breyern to comen and ofren here ob. atte chirche for ye soule ; and he yt comet nouht to ve offrende, schal payen ob. atte next morspeche, to ye elmesse. And if any brover or sistere maliciouseliche, or dispisantliche lie another, he shall be fined. on his broyer or on his sister, in wrecche, in present of ye Alderman and of ye gilde bretheren, schal payen, to amendement of ye lyte, alf a pownd waxche. And qwho-so be rebel

* CCCX. 89. Condition, fair ; but a large piece destroyed.

ben prouid by ye gilde breveren or sisteres, schal pave, to proued be ye gilde breyeren or sisteres, he schal payen, to ye mendement of ye lite, a pownd of waxse, or lesen ye fraternite of ye lite, a pownd waxe : eyzer skyuen, alf a pownd waxse : ye speche, wyht-outen ani lettyng : and if yei do nouht, yei scholen litz, j.d. And [qwho-so] make ani noyse in time of drynk, or in tyme of mornspe[che holden], and wil nouth be stille, ye alderreseyuen, he schal payen, to amende[ment of the litz], iij.d., or lesen his fraternite for euere-more, but he [haue grace. Also of his tounge a-zein ye alderman, or dispise ye alderman ye If any one is foulmouthed to the time yat he holden here mornspeche, schal payen, to amende- Miderman at any meeting, he shall ment of ye lyte, alf a pound of waxse. And if ani brover or befined. sister here his breyer or sister falsed on hande, and if it may another, he shall If any one wrong be fined.

amendement of ye lite, ij.d. And qwho-so be-wreye ye conseil Penalty for beof yis gilde to ani straunge man or woman, and it may be of the gild.

for euere-more, but he have grace. And if ye alderman be officers chosen, and not serving, chosen, and for-sake ye office, he schal payen, to amendement shall be fined.

den, a qwatteer. And if any broyer or sister be ded, schal Masses for souls of the dead. hauen his messes for ye soule, of ye propre cattel of ye gilde, xxiiij. messes. And who-so entre in to ye chambre yer ye ale The ale-chamber hall not be lithe inne, wiht-outen leue of men of officis, schal paye, to entered.

amendement of ye lite, ij d. Also ye alderman schal hauen, be Allowances to the officers on feast. ye zere, for his officis, to galones of ale; eiver skyuen, j. galon; days ye den, j. potel. Also, ye skyueyns of ye gylde yat hauen ye The Stewardsshall find sureties for catel in hande, scholene fynden borwes to ye alderman, for to the goods of the gild, and render sauen ye catel, and for to bringe it forht at ye general mor- an account at the yearly general meeting.

payen, to amendement of ye lite, ij. li. waxse. Also yt noman None shall come to the feast in a come be-forn ye alderman and ye gilde breyeren and sisteren, in tabard nor in a time of drynk, in tabard ne in cloke, ne barleges, ne barfote ; legs bare, nor barfote ; legs bare, nor barfote ; legs bare, nor cloak, nor with [and if he] mowe be wyst, schal pave, to amendement of ve yat noman slepe in tyme of drynke, ne late ye cvp[pe stonde No one shall sleep. nor keep the ale. nere him, v_p] ye peyne of j.d. Also y^t noman duelle in ye hous cup to himself. [after yat ye] alderman rised, but men of office ; and if yei don, in the gid-house after the Alderman [yei schul paye, to amendement] of ye gilde, eucri persone j.d. has gone.

If any one make a noise during the feast, he shall do penance by man schal don taken him [ye yerde; and] if he wil nowth holding the rod, or else pay a fine.

And if ani broyer schal eueri broyer and sister payne of

	j. feryinge. Also
A candle shall be found and kept burning.	del of waxse b of seint thomas is scheid in
Help to poor bretheren and sisteren.	or sister falle wyht his hem

[All the rest is destroyed.]

XXXII.

[GILD OF THE HOLY CROSS,] LENNE EPISCOPI.*

Tn nomine patris, et filii, et spiritus sancti, Amen. In ve honour of ihesu crist, and of his moder seinte marie, and of alle holy halwen, and namelike of ye holy crouche vat seinte Eleyne founde. We schulle holde yis gilde yre mornwe- Three meetings shall be held speches bi ye zer. Ye first schal be ye sonday nixt after every year. ye drynke: ye second, ye sonday byfor seint michel's day: ye yridde, ye sonday nixt after vre lauedyes day in lenten. And, at ye general mornwespeche, ye aldirman schal callen vp Officers shall be chosen by picked foure men, to chese an alderman, skyueyns, and dene. And men. The goods of the ye skyueyns schal be deliuered ye catel, wit tayle and boruh; gild shall be delivered to the and yat yai schulle bringe ye Catel at ye general mornwespeche, Stewards, and a yearly account and leyn vpon ye cheker bifor ye aldirman, or here boruwes shall be rendered for hem, vp peyne of ij.s. And ye Den schal do somoun alle ye The Dean shall summon all, or Gilde breyere, and ye sistres, to ye mornspeche; and he faille of paya fine. his somouns, he schal ben amercid at ve aldermannis wille. And who-so is somound to ye mornwespeche, and he be in toun, and All summoned and not coming, or wil nouth come, he schal paye half a pound of wax, bot he be not common at the right time, shall resonable-lyke escused. And he come after prime be smyten, pay a fine. he schal paye j.d. And if ony brother or sister be ded, ye den services for the dead, and schal do bringe ye Candeles to ye dirige, and eueryl broyer and offerings. sister schal offre an halpeny at ye chirche; and he yat offres nouht, he schal paye an halpeny to ye almesse at ye nixt mornspeche. And everyl brother and sister pat ded his, schal Masses for souls of the dead. haue xxx. messes for his soule, and yat ye messes schal be

* CCCX. 123. Condition, bad; and two large pieces destroyed. Most of the clauses are marked in rubric; and the first letter of the return is somewhat ambitiously illuminated.

Allowances to the officers on feast- days. Officers chosen, and not serving, shall pay a fine. The Alderman shall be obeyed. No noise nor jangling shall be made; and one stuking another shall be heavily fined	songen on ye mornwen after ye cors be biryed. Ye Aldirman shal haue, eueril day, a galoun of ale, to ye drynk lastes; eiyer skiueyn a galoun; ye den a potel, and, for his somouns, be 3er, iiij.d. And he yat is chosen aldirman, and he forsake his office, he schal paye xij.d.; eyyer skyueyn, xij.d.; ye den, xij.d. And who-so is rebelle to ye aldirman in ony tyme, he schal paye a pound of wax. And if ony broyer or sister mak ony noyse or janglinge befor pe aldirman, at ony mornspeche, he schal paye [a pound of wax]. And if ony brother smyte oyer at ony morn- speche, or [during ye time of drynke], he schal paye ffoure pound of wax. And he
The good name of the gild shall be upheld. None shall stay in the gild.house after the Alderman has gone. The ale chamber shall not be entered. Fees on entry shall be equal to all. A light shall be found and kept burning.	Gilde, whar-yourghe deshonour may, he schal paye xij.d., or lese þe fraterni wymman dwelle longere in ye hous yan pound of wax. And he yat entres outen leue of men of office, he scha brother sone or sister schal entre in als an oyor man doth. And also y schal meyntenen and susteynen ye libt yat is holy crouche and of scint Heleyne. And eueril broyer and
Entrance fees of new-comers Allowances to those who are sick or in pilgrimage. None shall go to law with another without leave of the Alderman.	to ye liht bi3er, til better may be. And yat no man ne womman entre in to yis gilde lesse yan $v_{j.s.}$ viij.d., and ye fees $v_{j.d.}^$ And if ony brother or sister be seke, he schal haue for his drynke a galoun of ale. And if ony brother or sister be in pelgrimage, he schal haue a galoun of ale to his drinke. And ordened is, yat no brother ne sister of yis gylde ne enplede oyer in no place, for no dette ne trespas, til yat he haue axed leue of ye Alderman and of men of ye
The Alderman's salary. Burnal services and offerings, All shall come to these services.	for his traualie bi 3ere, xij.d. And of yis gylde be ded, ye deen shal warnen comen to hous yer ye cors lyhth, and offren an halpeny. And whoso

* The words and figures between these marks are written over an erasure of half a line.

BISHOP'S LYNN.

and in toune, and wyl nouht come, he shal	he shal One brother shall be released from
and relesen Johan Clerke ;* for he shal	payments.
And ordened is, yat euerilk a brother of yis ffrat	shall be worn at hod of liuere of yis gylde, at euerilk a of yis ffraternite, and qwo-so do nowt ordened is, yat ilke a broyer of yis fira gylde in ilke a zer. And qwho-so

* All the latter part of this return is in such very bad condition, that it is only by using every device of oblique and reflected and transmitted light that more than a word or two can be made out By these means only have I deciphered the release of John Clerke; and I should have hesitated to put down the words thus painfully deciphered, and of which no other example is found in any of these returns in English, but that, in the instance of a very interesting Cambridge gild (see Part II. of this work), I find one John Cornwall released from all payments that others are bound to make, in acknowledgment of the pains he had taken at the foundation of that gild. When I made, some years ago, my MS. Calendar of the whole of these returns, I wrote, opposite to the words releasing John Cornwall from all payments, the word "unique." Since I have more carefully deciphered the above return, for the present work, I have no doubt that "John Clerke," of Bishop's Lynn, was thus released for the same reason as was "John Cornwall" of Cambridge.

Many instances are found where the bretheren are acquitted of payments while holding office; of which the last ordinance of the Tailors' Gild of Norwich may be taken as an example (see before, p. 36). But the two instances name 1 above, give a general acquittance of two bretheren by name, and not only while office-holders.

XXXIII.

[GILD OF THE CONCEPTION,] LENNE EPISCOPI.*

Tn ye wrchepe of Jhesu Criste of heuene, and of his moder

Seynte marye, and of alle halwen, and speciali of ye con-

Four meetings shall be held every Venr

Every brother and sister shall pay 1d. at every meeting, towards finding a light for festival-days. Any one summoned to any meeting, and not coming, shall pay a fine.

The Dean shall be fined, if he fail to summon any.

New-comers shall find sureties, and pay the usual house-fees.

Service for the dead, and offerings.

cepcioun of oure levely seynte marye, in gwose wurchepe yis fraternite is be-gunnyn, zeyse ben ye statutes. Yt men schullyn heldyn foure mornspeches in ye zere. 3e fryste mornspeche schal bene nexte ye drynking ; ze secunde schal bene on ye sonday nexte sente Mathi ve apostyl: ze thyrd schal bene on ye sonday nexte sente bernabe day ve apostyl : 3e ferd schal bene on ye sonday nexte sente Matheus day ye apostyl. Ordeynyd it is, yt eucriche broyer and syster schal payen j.d. at eucri mornspeche, to fyndyn w^t lythe in y^e chyrche of sent margarete, a forme ye auter of oure lady, ye quile deuine seruise is sevil in festiuale dayes. And if any brover or syster be somonde to y^e morne-speche, and yei bene in toune, and wil not come, ne make none aturne for him, nyn no leue aske of ye alderman, schalle payen di. li. of wax to amendmente of ye lythe, or lose ye fraternite of ye gyld for euermore, but he haue grace. And ye dene schal payen, for oueriche broyer and syster yt is not somond, and he be in toune, j.d. And qwo-so entyrit into vis fraternite of vis gyld, he schale fynd boruis, and pay ve rythis of ye huse, sone so he comythe in : ye alderman, ij.d.; ye clerk, j.d.; ye dene, j.d.; ye wax, j. peny. And if ani broyer or syster be ded of yis gylde, ye dene schal brynge ye candelis to ye dirige, and warnyn his breyeryn and systeryn to comen and offervn here ob. at ye kyrk for ye dede. And he yt comythe Any one not coming shall be nouthe to ye offerynge, schal pay di. li. wax, and he be warnyd fined, and shall pay his offering. and heyle, and be in toune ; and if he be oute of toune, he schal pay ob. for his offerynge. And if any broyer or syster dispyse or For foul words among one anmysconsel or lye his broyer, in pres[ence] of ye alderman and of other, a fine shall be paid, or the his breveryn, schal pay di. li. [wax to] ye amendement of ye gild-ship be lost. lythe, or lese y^e fraternite [of y^e gyld], but he houe grace.

* CCX. 125. Condition, very bad; a large piece destroyed.

And qwho-so be rebel of his [tongue azeynes] ye alderman, or If any one be foulmonthed to the dispise ye alderman, in [ye time of drin]kyn or heldyn any Alderman at any meeting, he shall mornspeche, sch[al pay, to ye amendement] of ye lythe, di. li. be fined, or put out of the gild. wax, or l[ese ye fraternite of ye guld]. And if ani brover or sis and it may be prouid amendement of y ^e

And qwo-so w man or woman pay to am he haue fise he s den iij .d. soule y so enteryn leue of den schal h
nys y ^t haue y ^e for ye catel, to brynge it for the aforne ye [alderman and] gyld breveryn at y^e general mornspeche; and if zey will do it nouht, an account at the ye schal pay to ye gyld $xl.d. \ldots$ eyyer, xl.d. Also, y^t no man ne meeting come, in time of drink, before ye alderman and ye gyld brever and syster, in tabard ne in cloke, ne bareleg, ne barefote; and it may be seyne, schal pay to ye lythe j.d. And qwo-so make barefoot. 1 (sic.) noyse in tyme of drycke¹, or in tyme of mornspeche, and ye dene If any one make a comande hym to ben styl, and he ne wyl noute, yane schal ye dene takon hym ye yerd ; and, if he wille nouthe resevu yt, he schal pay to ye lythe iij.d., or lose ye fraternite. Also yt no brothe goods of the gild, and render yearly general None shall come to the feast in tabard, nor in cloak, nor with legs bare, nor noise during the feast, he shall do nenance by holding the rod, or else pay a fine.

The Stewards shall find surveties for yer ne no syster be so hardy, in tyme of drynck, to slepe, ne lete None shall sleep, nor keep the alecup standing. the mid-house has gone. All shall come to services on the burial of the dead, and shall stay till they be ended.

ye cuppe stonde be hym, up peyne of j.d. to ye lythe. And also, None shall stay in yt no man dwelle in ye huse aftyr tyme yt ye aldyrman rysythe, after the Alderman but men of offyse : if he do, he schal paye j.d. to ye lythe. And also ordeynyd it ys, y^t qwat broyer or syster be ded of yis gylde, ye aldyrman and alle ye gylde breyeryn and systers schullyn Allowances to the officers on feast days.

New comers shall undertake to keep these statutes, and shall pay the house fees and entrance-money, or find sureties.

be redi to bere hym to ye chyrche, and offyrryn as it aforne seyde, and dwelle yer tylle ye messe be don, and be beryid, upp ye peyne of And ordeynyd it is, yt ye aldyrman schal haue ij. galounes of ale; euery skeueyn, j. galoun; ye clerk, j. galon ; ye dene, j. potell ; be ye zere, for here feys. Also, quat brover or syster entryt in-to yis gylde, sone so he is resevuyd, he schal takyn his charge of ye alderman, on his feyth to meynteyn yis gyld uppyn his power, and payen his fees, and sythyn for hys entres, as he is accorded w^t ve cumpanye, or ellys fyndyn borwes to pay w^tinne syrteyne tymes.

[Four or five lines more are so bad that nothing can be made of them.]

XXXIV.

[GILD OF THE PURIFICATION,] LENNE EPISCOPI.*

In ye honuraunce of ihesu crist of heuene, And of his moder The gild was egun A.D 1367 seinte marie, and of alle halowene, and speciallike of ye Purificacioun of oure lady seint marie, yis fraternite is founden and stabled, in ye zere of houre louerde a Thousande yre hundred sixti and seuene, and bi ye grace of god eaere more to lasten, and shal be helden on ye sunday next after Candelmesse day. And yis gylde shal have four morwespeches bi zere. Ye firste Four meetings shal be vp-on yc general day: ye secunde shal be ye sunday year, to which next bi-forn ye Assencion: ye yridde shal be ye sunday after come, under penalty. seint Dionise : ve fourte shal be ye sunday next after ye Epiphanie. And who-so be somoned to any morwespeche, and wil nout come, ne make attorne for him, he shal pay di. li. was. And if ye Deen falie of his somounes, he shall paye, for euerilke The Dean shall be a brothere and sistere yat is nouht somoned, j.d. And euerilke summon any. zere shal ye Alderman callen vp foure men of Gylde bretheren, chosen by picked for to chesen an Alderman and offyceeres and a Dcen yt been profitable for ye gylde. And if any of hem yat arn chosen for- Officers chosen, sake here office, he shal paye to amendement of ye list; yat is shall pay a fine. to witen, ye Alderman, j. li. wax; eythere officer, di. li. wax; and ye Deen, quarter li. wax; wyht-outen any oyere grace. And who-so is rebel ageynes ye alderman in tyme of drynke, or of The Alderman morwespeche holden, he schal paye to ye litz j. li. wax. And if ani brovere or sistere of vis fraternite bere over any falsed or If any one wrong wronge on hande, or him lie or mysseie, he shal paye to ye lit; pay a fine, and di.li. wax, and make pes to hym bat he has trespased a-geyn, by as the Alderman ye ordenaunce of ye Alderman and of ye gylde breyeren, or lese judge. ye fraternite. And if any brozere or sistere of yis fraternite be Services for the deed, ye Deen shal do come ye Candeles of ye Gylde to ye mgs.

shall be beld every every one shall fined, if he fail to Officers shall be and not serve e.

shall be obeyed.

another, he shad wake amends. and gild shall ad-dead, and offer-

* CCCX, 142. Condition, bad; and a large part destroyed.

GILD OF THE PURIFICATION, BISHOP'S LYNN.

Dirige, and warne alle ye Gilde brezeren and sistres to comen and go wyht ye cors to kyrke, and offre j. ferdynd; and he yat comest nouht to ye offrend, he shal paie, at ye next morwespeche, an ob. to ye al[messe]. And ye alderman shal haue, eueriche day whiles ye dry[nk lasteth], a galoun of ale; and Allowances to the officers on feast eytheere skyueyn, a galoun; ye [deen, a potelle; and] ye Clerk, a potelle of ale. And who-so entret [into the chambre] vere ve The ale-chamber shall not be ale litz, with-outen leve of [men of office, he shal paie to ye] litz, entered. ij d. And who-so entre in to yis fraternite, he shal paie ye] fees New-comers shall pay the usual of yis hous; to ye Ald house-fees. ob.; to ye wax, ob.; and for his entre. And orde The Stewards shall find suretics ueyns shullen haue for the goods of the gild, and ficiaunt borwes render an account at the yearly forn ye alderma general meeting. speche vp ye pey..... of vis gylde to a to ye lizt iij.d. gle in tyme of dr No jangling during feast-time. comaunde him for to ye list, di.li. wax None shall stay in the gild-house hous þan ye Alderman rise after the Alderman has gone. he schal paye, to ye litz, ij.d. Also ye Alderman shal haue, for Salaries of officers. his trauaille be zere, iiij.d. and ij. galouns of ale; eythere Skyueyn, iiij d. and j. galoun of ale; ye Clerk, vj.d. and j. potelle ale; and ye Deen, vj.d. and a potelle ale. Also, qwo-so entre in-to yis gylde, shal payen for his entrees ii.s. and is fees. Entrance-money. Yearly payments Also ordeynd it is, yat euerylk brothere and sistere shal pave towards a light. iij.d. in ye zere, for to fynde a Candelle brennend in ye chirche of seint Jame, a-forn ye Autere of owr lady, gwyl seruice is seyd in holydayis. Also ordeynd it is, yat euerilk brothere Masses for souls of the dead. and sistere yat deyeth of this gylde shal have xiij. messes sevd for is sowle. Johannes de Bysted, talvor, Alderman. The officers, and goods of the gild. Johannes Austyn, Baxter, ixs. viijd. Gilbert Plesant, ixs. viijd.*

> * These names are written in a different hand and ink from the rest of the return, and are so faint as to be hardly legible.

XXXV.

[GILD OF ST. LAWRENCE,] LENNE EPISCOPI.*

Tn ye honr of ihesu crist of heuene, and of his modir seynte marie, and of alle halwyn, and speciallich of ye holi martir seint laurence, in ye feste of ye selue day, i yis ffraternite is founden and stabled, and bi ye grace of god euere-more for to lasten.

Yise ben ye ordenance of yis ffraternite. Yat ye breyeren Four meetings and ye sisteres sholen holden iiij. morunspeches in ye zere. Ye year, on days here first morwespeche shal ben after ye drynke : ye secunde shal ben be named by the ye sunday next after mihelmesseday: ye yridde shal ben ye sunday in mydlentoun : ye feerde shal ben ye sunday bi-forn ye fest of seint margarete. And if any of yise morwespeches bi-forn i-nemed be noust holden at ye certeyn day assigned, ye Alderman shal don hem helden at qwat tyme yt it be most profitable and worsipe to ye firaternite. And if any brothir or sister All must come to be somoned to ani morwespech, and wil nouht comen, ne make pay a fine. attorne for him, ne no leue axen of ye Alderman, he shal paye, to amendement of ye list, ij.d. And qwo-so come after prime If any be after be smeten, he shal pay j.d., or leye a wed; and if he grucche, he shal paye ij.d.; and if he wil nouth payen it, he shal lesen ye firaternite. And if ye deen fayle of hiis somouns, he shall paye, The Dean shall pay for ilke a brother and sister yat is nouth somouned, j.d. And euerilk zere shal ye alderman callen vp ffoure men of ye gilde Officers shall be breyerene, for to chesen Alderman, Skeucyns, and deen, yat ben men. profitable for ye gilde. And if any of hem yat haren chosen for-shall be held every named, or as shall Alderman.

the meetings, or t.me, or grumble, he shall pay a fine, or be put out of the gild.

fine for any not summoned chosen by p.cked

* CCCX. 222. Condition, bad; and two large pieces destroyed.

91

days

officers on feastdays

	Officers chosen, and not serving, shall be fined.	sake here office, he shal paye to amendement of ye lizt: yat is for to qwyten, ye Alderman, vj.d.; eyther skeueyn, iiij.d.; and ye deen,
	The old Alderman	ij.d. And euerilke a 3er shal ye holde Alderman chargen ye newe shall charge the new Alderman and others.	Alderman, whan he is chosen, and alle hise felawes wyht3 hym, and Unters.	for to don hos it is a forn i-seyd. And qwo-so entret; in to yis
	New-comers shall pay the usual house-fees, and find sureties for entrance-money.	fraternite, he shal paye ye rigthes of yis hous, v.d.; yat is for to wyten, to ye Alderman, ij.d.; to ye Clerk, j.d.; and to ye Deen, j.d.; and to ye wax, j.d.; and fynde sufficiaunt; borwes for his Services for the dead, and offerings.	entre. vj.s. And if ani brothere or sistere of yis fraternite be deed, ye deen shal do comen ye Candeles of ye gilde to ye Dirige, and warne alle ye gilde bretheren and sisteres yat ben in toune, to comen and offren ob. at ye kyrke for ye dede; and he yat cometz nouht to ye offrende, he shal paye, at ye next morwe-spech, j.d. to ye almes. And if ye deen faile of his somouns, he shal paye, for ilke a brothir and sister yat is nout; somound, j.d.
	Masses for souls of the dead.	And if ani brother or sister of yis gild be ded, he shal haue, of ne deut.	ye propre catel of ye gyld, for his soule, xl. messis. And ye Alderman and ye skeu[eyns shullen] don seyn yo messes wyht-inne vj. day after ye terement, if it be he be dede.
	The Stewards shall pay a fine if they make default.	And if ani of ye Skeueyns make defaute, and wil n a-forn i-seyd, he shal paye, to amendement of yis frater
	The Alderman shall be obeyed.	or vn-buxum a-geyncs ye Alderman, vnskilfullike, shan be obeyed.	shal paye, to amendement of yis ffraternite,
	If one wrong another, he shall	bere over any falsed or wronge on hande, pay a fine, and make amends.	to amendement of yis gilde, iij.d., and make pes to hym yat he ye gilde bretherene and
	The affairs of the gild shall not be	to ani straunge man disclosed.	of yis gylde iiij.d.
	Written accounts of the goods of	of yis gylde on the gild shall be rendered by the Stewards.	bi scryt a-count speche a-forn so make defau of yis gilde, xl.d.
	Allowances to the officers on feast-	qwiles ye drynk las

a galoun ; ye Clerk a g

uevns hauande ye Catel of yis Gild, The Stewards shall give an account of and counseil wyth hym bi-forn ye general day, the goods of the gild at the yearly in ye zere, for to make ordenaunce and purueaunce yat be general meeting. for vis fraternite. And if ani of ye skeueyns bi-forn i-nemed 1f in default, they shall pay a fine, be founden atte defaute in ani poyntes yat longet; or fallet; or be put out of the gild. to his office, he shal paye, to amendement of yis gilde, vj.d., or lese ye fraternite. And if ye deen be comaundeed for to be And the Dean if he do not help, entendaunt hem for to helpen, and he make defaute, and whil shall be treated hereise. nouth, he shal paye iij.d., or lese ye fraternite. Al-so ordeynd is, yat no brothere ne sistere of yis gild shal make hym-self ser- No brother nor sister shall meddle uaunt, for to serven in non office, but if he be comaunded bi ye unless told by the Alderman, alderman. And qwo-so do, he shal paien ij.d., or ley a wed of ye valuwe. And qwo-so make noyse or jangele in tyme of There must be no noise or jangling drynk or of morwespeche, and ye alderman or ye deen comaunde at feast-time or neeting. hem for to be stille, and he wil nouth, he shal paye to ye list ij.d. And ye deen shal haue for his travaille, be zere, ij.s. And Salaries of the Dean and Clerk. ye clerk, ij.s. And also yat no man dwelle in ye hous lengere None shall stay in the gild-house yan ye Alderman rysetz, but men of office, vp ye payne of ij.d. after the Alderman has gone. to ye litz. Also ordeynd it is, yat eueriche brothere and sistere Vearly payments towards finding a schal payen iij.d. in ye zere to fynden wt a litz of v. Candeles, light. brennend in ye Crykche of seint margrete qwyl yat diu [ine servise is perfourmed] in festivalle dayes, and for to payen to messis. Qwat brother of ye ordinaunce of ye gylde of sente

M ^{dum} quod	•	•	•	•	•	•	•	•	•	•	٠	•
Johannes Smy		•	•	•		•		•	•	•	•	•
Johannes Glar.						•

qwreten in ye boke

XXXVI.

[GILD OF ST. EDMUND,] LENNE EPISCOPI.*

In be wurchepe of jhesu crist of heucne, and of his der wurtht qwose wurchepe bis fraternete is bi-gunnen. Pese ben be statuz of moder seynt marie, and of seynt Edmund, pt holi martir, in Four meetings shall be held every year, to which every brother and sister shall come. under penalty.

If any be after time, or grumble, he shall pay a fine. New-comers shall find sureties, and pay the usual house-fees

Services for the dead, and offerings.

pis gilde. Pat men scholen holden foure mornspechis in he zer. pe first mornespeche schal ben on be general day: be secunde schal ben on be sunday after seynt Petir: be thridde schal ben on he sunday after seynt barnabe apostele: he ferde schal ben on be sunday after seynt lukes day. Also, 3if any brober or sister be somund to here mornespeche, and yei ben in towne, and wil not come, ne make non attrne for him, ne no leue axen of be aldirman, scal payen j.d. And if he come after prime be thriis smeten, he schal paie j.d.; and zif he sette him doun and grucche, he scal payen j.d. And qwo-so entre in-to be fraternete of bis gilde, he scal finde borwes, and paie be rithes of be hous, sone so he comyt in : be alderman, j.d.; be den, ob.; be clerk, ob.; be wax, ob. And if ani brober or sister be ded of pis gilde, pe den scal bringen pe candeles to pe dirige, and warnen hise breperen and hise sisteres to comen, and offren here ferpinge atte kirke for be soule, and leben a ferpinge to be elmesse; and he b^t comyt not to be offrend, scal paien ob. atte nest mornspeche to be elmesse. And if be den faile of hise The Dean shall be somounis, for eueri brober and sister bat is not somound, he scal fined if he fail to paien j.d. Also, be den schal han, for his trauayle, be zere, vj.d.; de cklerke, viij.d.* And if any brober or sister maliciouslike or summon any. Salaries of the Dean and Clerk.

* CCCX. 229. Condition, very bad; and two pieces destroyed.

+ "de cklerke, viij.d." is added in the margin, in a very different hand and ink. But the "vj." in the line before, is written in the same hand and ink as this marginal addition.

95

dispisauntlike lye his brober or his syster, in wrecche, in present Anyusing angry words to a brother of be aldirman and of here gilde breberen, scal paie, to or sister shall be fined. amendement of be gilde, vj.d. And qwo-so be rebele of his Penalty for foulmouthed words tonge azein be aldirman, or dispise be aldirman in time bt he spoken to the Alderman. holden here mornspeche, scal paien, to amendement of be gilde, vi.d. And if any broker or sister bere his broker or his sister Penalty for wrongdoing of one to any falsed or wronge on hande, and it may be prouid be be gilde another. breberen, scal paien vj.d. to amendement of be gilde. And gwo-so be-wreie be conseil of bis gilde to any straunge man or Penalty for bewraying the affairs woman, and it may [be] prouid be 3c gilde breheren or sistercs, of the gild. scal [paien, to amende]ment of be gilde, xij.d., but if he [haue And if an] aldirman be chosen, and he forsake his Officers chosen, grace. and not serving. off [ice, he scal paien, to a] mendement of be gilde, xij.d.; eiber shall be fined. skeue[un...d.; and be] den, iij.d. And if any brober or sister Masses for souls of the dead. be de[de of bis gilde, he] schal han hise messes for his soule, of be [propre catel of] be gilde, xv. messes. And qwo-so entre [into be cham]bre pere pe ale lyth inne, with-outen leue The ale-chamber not to be entered. [of men of] office, scal paie, to amendement of be gilde, iij.d. [Also], be aldirman scal han, eueri nith wills be drinken, Allowances to the officers at feastij. galoun ale; eiber skeueyn, a galoun ale; be den, a potel times. ale; be clerce, a potel ale. Also, be skeueyns bat han be The Stewards shall find sureties catel of be gilde, sullen finden borwes for be catel, to bringen for the goods of the cild, and render an account it forth aforn be aldirman and be gilde breberen at general at the yearly general meeting. mornspeche, with-outen any lettinge: and if pei ne do not, bei sulle paie, to amendement of be gilde, xl.d. Also, bat noman ne come, in time of drinke, beforn be aldirman and be None shall come to the feast in gilde breperen and pe gilde sisteres, in tabbard ne in cloke, tabard, nor in eloak, nor with ne bar-lege, ne barfoote; and it mowe be wist, he scal paie, to legs bare, nor barefoot. amendement of be gilde, j.d. And qwo-so make any noyse in If any one make noise during the time of drinke, or in time of mornspeche holden, and be den feast, he shall do comaunde him to ben stille, and he ne wil nouth, scal taken him holding the rod, or pay a fine. be zerde, and if he ne will not reseiucn it, schal paie, to amendement of be gilde, iij.d., or lese be fraternete of be gilde for euere more, but if he have grace. Also, bat noman be so hardi, in No one shall sleep, nor keep the ale time of drinke, to slepe, ne to late be cuppe stondin be him, vp cup standing. be peyne of vi.d. Also, bat noman duelle in be hous no lengere

No one shall stay in the cild-house after the Alderman has cone law with another until after the Alderman and gild have tried to settle the quarrel.

ban be aldirman rised, but men of office : and if he don, scal pave, to amendement of be gilde, ii.d. Also, bt noman ne no No one shall go to woman of bis gilde enplede ober for no trespas, tyl gwan be aldirman and be gilde brebere han asaved for to bringen hem at one; and if he ne moun nout, ban scholen he pleden quer-so bei wolen : and if bei doun, bei scholen paien, to amendement of be gilde, xij.d., or lese be fraternete of ve gilde for euermore, but if he haue grace.

Entrance-money,

*Also if oni broker or sister ent[re into bis gilde], yo shalle pavin iiiii.s.

Names of gildbretheren and sisteren

†Stefanus Warin, et Claricia vxor ejus. Johannes Mashemaker. d. Radulfus de Hecham, et Margerie vxor eius. Ahicia de Hole, ob. Willehous de Blokene. Ricard de Litul, et Cecilia vxor eius. Henri GyNext, Henri Holf. Henre We Gylbertus Kont, et Matil Robertus de Thornege, et Catarina vxor ejus. Johannes de Brestun, et Johanna vxor ejus. Alicia de Brecham. Roger de Gevwode. Willelmus de Hogo. -Johanna Spyrkynge. -Angnes de Derham

* This paragraph is added in another hand and ink, and is hardly legible. The hand seems the same as has inserted the words "de cklerke viij.d." in the margin. See p. 94.

+ The names here following are also in another hand and ink, and afterwards a pen has been drawn several times across them. The last two names are written in yet another hand and ink, and afterwards separately erased. All the names are very indistinct.

The foregoing return from the Gild of St. Edmund, is written on a long narrow roll, in a remarkable hand, and with an ink that has much faded. It has been afterwards corrected, in several places, by another hand, and with an ink which is still black. No part of the list of names is in the same hand or ink as either the first writing of the original return or the corrections.

XXXVII.

[GILD OF ST. NICHOLAS,] LENNE PETRL*

Tn ye honuraunce of ihesu crist of heucne, and of his der The gild was worvi moder seynt marie, and of ale halowene, and speciallike of vt blisful corsant sevnt Nicholaus, vis fraternite is by-gunnen and stabled, in ye fest of ye selue day, in ye zere of houre louerd a thousande cccmo fyfty and Nyne. And yis gilde Four meetings schal haue, by zere, foure mornspeches. Ye fyrst schal be after year; to each of ye drynkynge : ye secunde schal be on blake monunday : ye yride shall come, under schal be on mesomur day : ye ferthe schal be on mykames day. And who-so is somound to any of yis mornspeches, and he be in toune and in hele, and ne wyle noughte come, ne make attorne for him, he schal pay to ye lyht half a pounde of wax. And if he whoevergrumbles grucche, he schal pay a pounde of wax, or lese ye fraternite for euere more. And if ye Deen faylie of is somones, he schal pay, The Dean shall be for ilk a man and woman yat is noght somond, a peny. And summon any. eueri zere schal ye Alderman callen up foure men of ye gilde Officers shall be breyeren, for to chesen Alderman, and Skeueyns, and Deen, vat bene profitable for ye gylde. And if any of hem yt aren chosen, Officers chosen for-sake ye office, he schal pay to amendement of ye gilde; yt is shall pay a fine. to wyten, ye Alderman, xvj.d.; eyther skyueyn, xij.d.; and ve deen, vi.d.; wyth-outen any grace. And who so trespase a gevnes Any one ill beye Alderman, or a-gevn any of ye gilde breveren, in tyme of feast or meeting, drynkynge or of mornspeche holdynge, he schal pay, to amendement of ye gilde, viij.d., and make pes to him yt he has trespas a-geyn, by ye ordinaunce of ye gilde breyeren. And if any begun A.D. 1359.

shall be held every hich every one

hall be fined fined, if he fail to chosen by picked

and not serving.

having during any shall pay a fine

7

* CCCX. 218. Condition, bad; and a large piece destroyed.

Services for the dead, and offerings.	broyer or syster of yis gilde be dede, ye deen schal do come ye candeles of ye gilde to dirige, and warne alle gilde breyeren and sisteres to come and go wyht ye cors to chirche, and offre an halpeny. And who-so come noght to ye offerand, and he be in toune and in hele, ne make non attorne for him, he schal pay, at ye next mornspeche, a peny to ye almus. And euerilke broyer
Masses for souls of the dead.	and sister of yis gilde y ^t dede is, schal haue for his soule, of ye propre catel of ye gilde, xxx. messes. And ye Alderman schal
Allowances to officers at feast- times.	haue, euere-iche day whyles ye drynk lastes, out-taken ye first nyht and ye last, a galoun of ale; eythere skyuen, a galon; ye deen, a galoun; and ye clerke, a golon. And who-so entre in-to
No one shall enter the buttery where the ale lies.	ye boteri yer ye ale lytz, wyht-outen leue of officere, he schal pay, to amendement of ye gilde, ij.d. And who-so entre in to
New-comers shall pay the usual house-fees, and find sureties for payment of the entrance-money.	yis fraternite, he schal pay ye ryghtes of yis gilde; y ^t is to weten, to ye Alderman, ij.d.; ye clerke, a peny; ye deen, a alpeny; and to ye wax, a alpeny; and fynde suffisaunt borwes of pay- ment of ye catel for his entre, yat is to seyne, iiij.s. And
The Stewards shall find sureties for gving an account of the goods of the gild, with the profits, at the yearly general meeting.	ordeyned hit is, y ^t y ^e catel of yis gilde yat ye skyueyns schullen haue on hande, schal be deliuered to hem, by suffisaunt borwes to bryng ye catel, wyth ye encrescem[ent], by-forn ye Alderman and ye gilde breyeren at ye general m[ornspeche: and] if day don [noght] hos hit is be-forn sayde, ye skeuey[ns schal pay, to a]men- dement of ye gilde, xl.d. or here borwe[s for hem. And who]-so
The affairs of the gild shall not be disclosed.	discuret; ye counseyl of yis gilde to ani [straunger, and he be] ouertaken, he schal pay, to amendement [of ye gilde, d., or lese
No one shall bring a suit at law, until the matter has been laid before the Alder- man and gild, and leave been given.	ye] fraternite. And ordeyned hit is y ^t no plete oyer in no place for dette ne leue of ye Alderman and of den be-forn ye Alderman
No one shall come to the feast m tabard, nor in cloak, nor with legs bare, nor bare-foot.	Also yat non gilde bro forn ye Alderman and leg, ne barfote, and peny. And who-so
No one shall stay in the gild-house after the Alderman has gone.	a peny. And yat no man by 3ere, vj.d. And ye Clerke shal haue, for his trauayle be ye Salaries of the Dean and the Clerk.

WEST LYNN.

Dalament Dalament	Sunt custodes dicte Gilde : tamen,	Stewards of the gild : but there is
Robertus Palmere	de bonis dicte Gilde, nichil habent,	no stock in hand.
Johannes Harte	quia bona seu catalla dicte Gilde
Johannes Dykessone	-
•	l non pertinent.

zere, xij.d.

NOTE .--- The second line of the ordinances next following, shows that Lynn Petri is but another name for West Lynn West Lynn has also been named before, p. 57.

XXXVIII.

[GILD OF ST. JOHN BAPTIST.] LENNE PETRI.*

The gild was begun A.D. 1374.

Four meetings

year, to each of which every one

tined if he fail to summon any.

Officers chosen,

and not serving.

shall pay a fine.

Any one misbefeast or meeting

shall pay a fine.

another shall pay a fine, and make such amends as others approve.

Services for the penalty.

Thise been ye statu; of ye gylde of ye holy prophete Seynt Jon baptist, be-gunnen in West Lenne in ye zere of houre louerd a thousand cccmo seuenti and foure. And yis gilde schal haue foure mornspeches be ye zeere. De first schal ben after ye shall be held every drynkynge: be secunde schal ben vp-on ye seynt Jhon day in heruyst : be thryde schal ben vp-on seynt Jon day in Cristeshall come, under messe : be fourte schal ben vp-on sevnt Jhon day in May. And whose be somende to anny mornspeche, and wil nought come, ne make a-tourne for hyme, he schal pay half a pound of wax. And if ye Dene faile of his somounes, he schal pay, for ilk a The Dean shall be brover and systere vat is nought somonde, a peny. And who-so is chosen in office of Alderman, and he for-sake is office, he schal pay, to amendement of ye gylde, ij.s.; evthere Skeueyn, xviij.d.; and ye Den, xij.d. And who-so be rebel a-geyn ye Alderman in having during any tyme of drynkynge, or of mornspeche holden, or in any overe tyme, vnskilfullik, he schal pay, to amendement of ye gilde, ij. pounde of waxe. And if any brover or sistere be rebel a-gevnes Any one wronging oyere, or bere him any falsede or wrong on hande, and hit may be the Alderman and proued, he schal [pay], to amendement of ye gylde, ij. pounde of waxe, and sythen make pees to hym yat he has trespasede a-geyn, by a-sent of ye Alderman and ye gilde breveren. And dead, and offerings, if any broyer or sistere of yis gylde be deed, ye Den schal do come ye candeles of ye gilde to ye Dirige, and warne al ye gylde breyeren and systers yat ben in hele and in toune, to come, and go wyth ye cors to kyrke, and offere a halpeny; and euerilk

* CCCX. 257. Condition, bad; and a large piece destroyed.

101

a broyer and sister schal gyuen an oyere halpeny to ye almys. And ye Den schal gedren ye forseyde halpenys, and by wyht-al breed, and gyue hit for ye soule. And if he do nought os hit is be-forn seyde, he schal pay, to amendement of ye gilde, ij.s. And euerilk broyer and sister y ^t deede is, schal haue, of ye propre catel of ye gylde, xxx. messes for ye soule. And who-so entres in to yis ffraternite, he schal pay ye fees of yis hous : yat is to weten, to ye Alderman, ij.d.; ye clerk, a peny; ye dene, a peny; and ye wax, a peny; and ffynde suffisa[unt] borwes of ye paie- ment for his entre. And ye Alderm[an schal haue], eueriche day whiles ye drynke lastet, two galouns [of ale; eueriche] skeueyn, a galoun; ye clerke, a	buy waster-bread with these offer- ings, and give it [to the poor]. Masses for souls of the dead. New-comers shall pay the usual house-fees, and find sureties for payment of the entrance-money. Allowances to officers at feast- times.
And who-so entres in to ye leue of men of office, he wax. And also ordey skeueynes scholen by suffisaunt bo	The ale-chamber shall not be entered. The Stewards shall find sureties for giving an account of the goods at the yearly general be-forn ye Ald vp ye peyne yis gilde he schal make noyse	meeting. No one shall make stylle, and he wil [of] waxe. And so yat no man dwelle [of] waxe. And so yat no man dwelle [ye] Alderman risetz, but men of office : and who-so schal pay to ye lyght half a pounde of waxe. And al-so ordeynd hit is, yat no broyere of yis ffraternite ne schal gyuen wed and	shall give pledge or become surety borow vp-on oyere, ne him somoune, ne do somoune, for dett ne for trespase, til swiche tyme as he has shewed his agreuaunce til ye Alderman and ye gilde breyeren yat ben chef of ye coun- seil. And ye Alderman and ye gylde breyeren shullen proucn, vp-on here myght, for to a-corden hem. And if yei mown noght acorden, let hem make pleynte in what plase so yat yei wyle.	law, without leave of the Alderman and others, who shall do their best to settle the quarrel.
And who-so do nought als it is by-forn hy-seyde, he schal pay, to amendement of ye gilde, xl.d. And who-so make any dis- turbaunse for any poynt yat is ordened be ye first foundurs of	Penalty on any vis gilde, he schal pay, to amendement of yis gilde, ij.s. And Salary of the Dean. ye Deen schal haue for his trauayle, be ye zere, vj.d.

Adam Outelawe habet in custodia, de bonis dicte Goods of the gild. Gilde, vj.s. viij.d. Henricus Boston habet vj.s. viij.d.

> NOTE.—Two points in this return call for remark here. First, the letter 'b' is used four times in one sentence, each time at the beginning of one of the four clauses that make up the sentence. In every other place throughout the return, 'y' is used for the one-letter sound of 'th.' In other returns, sometimes 'b' is used, sometimes 'y;' but whichever is used, it is constant throughout the same return. Second, in this return alone is it stated, though the fact was probably the same in every gild, that the offerings at the dirge were to be spent in buying bread to be given to the poor. (Compare the return No. XLVI.) And the bread so bought is to be 'wyht-al' or 'wastel' bread, that is, bread 'white and well baked.' In other words, the dole to the poor shall be of eatable bread of the best quality, and not 'cocket' (seconds) or 'simnel' (twice baked) bread.* The word 'wastel' is no doubt (by the very common transposition of the 's') the Old Northern 'veitsla' (feast), the wastel bread being what should always be given to guests. 'Veitslu-dagr' is dies epularis.

> These two sentences seem to me to shew that part at least of the ordinances found in this return were copied from the now lost ordinances of some gild much older than the date when this one itself began.

> * In a vocabulary of the early part of the fifteenth century, contained in Mr. Mayer's privately printed volume of Vocabularies, no less than twelve sorts of bread are named (pp. 197, 198). But among these there are many of very coarse quality, and not made from wheat. Wastel, cocket, and similare the only sorts recognized in the "Assise of Bread." In the Vision of Piers Plowman, the contrast between the sorts of bread is strongly put. Piers tells Hunger that,

> > "A lof of Benes and Bren, I bake for my children ;"

but adds that, after harvest,

"Ne no Beggare eten Bread, hat Benes inne come, Bote Cocket and Cler Matin, an of clene whete."

(Mr. Skeat's edition of the Vernon Text, pp. 89, 90.)

See further, the Note at the end of the "Usages of Winchester," in Part III. of this work.

XXXIX.

[GILD OF ST. JAMES,] NORTH LENNE, SANCTI EDMUNDI.*

Tn ye honour of ihesu crist of heuene, and of his modyr sevnte marie, and of alle holy halewen, and specialike in the honour of seynte James, of qwom owre fraternite is foundyn and stablyd. Yeis arn ye ordynnaunces of our Gylde, ordeynd Four meetings shall be held every be alle the hol fraternite. Yat ther shuln ben foure morwespeches year, to each ot be zere. Ye first shall be aftere ye drynke: ye secunde shall be ye shall come, under sunday nest aftere the fest of sein mihel : ye thryd shal be ve sunday nest aftere the pyffanye : the ferde shal be the sunday nest aftere ye fest of sen Barnabe apostel. And who-so be somound to any of yeise morwespeches, or to any othere, and he be in hele, and wille nouht comen, ne make non attorne for him, he shal paye to ye list half a pound of wax. And if ye Deen falie of his somouns, he shal paye, for ilk a broyere The Dean shall be and sistere nouht somound, to ye amendement of ye list, j.d. summon any. And also ordeynd it is, yat eueriche broyere and sistere shal paie, Three candles shall at eueriche morunspeche, ob. to ye wax, for to meyntene iij. during divine Candelle brennend a-forn ye seint t of seint Jame, in ye worschepe of god and of yat holi seint, seynt Jame, in ye tyme vat diuine seruise is seyd in festivalle dayes. And who-so be chosen Officers chosen, and not serving, in offyce of Alderman, and he for-sake ye offyce, he shall paie, to shall be fined. amendement of ye list, j. li. wax; and eythere skyueyn, j. li. wax;

which every one penalty.

fined if he fail to be kept burning service.

* CCCX. 141. Condition, fair; but a large piece destroyed.

+ So in original. No doubt "altar," or "image," was intended to be written.

GILD OF ST. JAMES,

New-comers shall pay the housefees, and find sureties for payment of entrancemoney.

Services on death, and offerings.

the dead.

Allowances to officers at feasttimes.

Help to needy bretheren and sisteren.

Untuly speech shall be purnshed by a fine.

One belieing or wronging another, shall pay a fine.

The ale-chamber shall not be entered.

The Stewards shall find sureties for the goods of the gild, and render an account at the vearly general meeting.

No noise nor jangling allowed during feast or meeting.

and ye Deen, j. quarter k. wax. And who-so entre in to yis fraternite, he shal paie ye rythes of ye hous, sone-so he cometa in : to ye Alderman, ij.d.; to ye Clerk, j.d.; and to ye Deen, j.d.; and to ye wax, i.d.; and fynden suffisand borwes to make ye payment of his couenauns for his entre. And if any broyere or sistere of yis Gylde be ded, he shal do come ye Candelles of ye Gylde to ye Dirige, and warn alle ye Gylde breveren and sisteres to comen and offren ob. atte cherche; and he yt comet; nouht to ye offrend, he shal paye, at ye next morwespeche, j.d. to the almus for ye sowle. And if any broyere or sistere be deed, he Masses for souls of shal have, of ye propre Catel of ye Gylde, xxx.d. to messes for his sowle, and ye Alderman and ye Skeueyns shuln do synge tho messes qwer-so welyn yei shuln. And qwo-so be Alderman, he shal haue, atte euenes, eythere euene, a galoun of ale and a qwyt lof; and ye Skyueyn, eithere heuen, a potel of ale. And if any brothere or sistere of ye Gylde falle at any meschef, he shal han, in ye wooke, qwyles he leueth, iiij.d. to sustynaunce. And whoso be rebel of his tunge a-gevn ye [Alder]man, or agevn any of ye Gylde bretheren or sisters, in [time of dryn]kynge, or* of morwespeche holden, he schal paie, to [ye amendement] of ye lizt, di. li. wax. And if any broyere or sistere of y[is Gilde bere] his broyere or his sistere any falsed or wronge [on hand, and it may be proued be ye Gylde bretheren or sisteres, [he shal paie, to ye amen]dement of ye list, j.li. wax. And who-so [entretz in-to ye chambre] there ye ale lythe inne, wt-oute [leve of men of offyce, he shal] paye to ye list j.d. And ordeynd is, ye Skyueyns schuln [have] in hand hem, be sufficiaunte [borwe]s, to bryng wespeche bi-forn [ye Alde]rman, and vp-on table. And w[ho-so] faly, y^t paye to ye list ij. li. wax, or h is borwes for him. And who-so make noyse or ianglynge in tyme [of drynk, or of morwespeche] holden, and ye Deen comande hym be [still, and he wil nout, he shal] paye to ye list di. li. wax, or lesen ye [Gilde, but if he

> * This word is written "of" in the MS. But it is so plainly a slip of the pen, that I have read it as if the letter "r" had been written.

have grace. And] ye Deen shal have for his traualie, be zere, Salary of the iiij.d. And [ordeyned] is, be alle ye Gylde breyeren, yt euerilke broyere and sistere shal paye to ye Almus, for evere-ilk broyere Alms for souls sake. and sistere $[\ldots, for]$ his soule.

Johannes Knolles, Alderman : et nichil habet de Catellis. The gild has no North Lenne.

XL.

[GILD OF ST. EDMUND.] NORTH LENNE. SANCTI EDMUNDI.*

Tn ye honour of ihesu crist of heuene, and of his modere seinte martyr seint Edmunde ve kynge, vis ffraternite is foundyn and marve, and of alle holi halowen, and specialike of vat holi

Four meetings shall be held even year, to each of which every one shall come, under penalty.

summon any.

Three candles shall be kept burning during divine service.

1 (sic.)

Officers chosen,

shall be fined.

pay house-fees,

for payment of stabled. And vis Gylde shal have foure morwespeches bi zere. Ye first shal be aftere ve drvnke : ve secounde shal bene ve first sunday of lentone: ve vridde shal bene ve sunday aftere seinte Thomas ye martyr: ye fourte shal bene ye sunday aftere seint Dionise. And who-so be somound to any of vise morwespeches, or to any overe, and he be in hele, and ne whille nouht come, ne make attorne for him, he shal paie to ve list half a pounde of wax. And if ye Deen faile of his somouns, he shall The Dean shall be fined if he fail to paie, for ilke a brovere and sistere vat is nouht somonde, to amendement of ye list, i.d. And also ordeynd it is, yat eueriche broyere and sistere shal paie, at eucrich morwespeche, ob. to ve wax, for to mentene iij. Candelle brennend a-forn ye seint, in ye worschepe of god and of v^t iche holi seint, seint Edmunde ve kynd¹ and martyr, in ye tyme yat diuine seruise is sevd in festiualle dayes. And who-so be chosen in offyce of Alderman, and and not serving, he for-sake ve offyce, he shal paie, to amendement of ve lizt, i. li. wax; and eythere skeueyn, di. li. wax; and ye Deen, quarter li. wax. And gwo-so entre in to vis fraternite, he shal paie ve New-comers shall rightes of ye hous, sone-so he comet; in : to ye Alderman, i.d.; and find sureties to ye Deen, ob.; to ye Clerke, ob.; and to ye wax, ob.; and fynde entrance-money. suffisaunde borwes to make ye paiement of his couenauns for his entre. And if ani brovere or sistere of vis Gylde be deed, ye Services for the Deen shal do come ve Candelle of ve Gylde to ve dirige, and ings. warne alle ve Gylde breveren and sisteres to comen and offre an halpenv at ve kyrke ; and he vat comet; nouht to ye offrende, he shal paie, at ve next morwespeche, to ve almus, i.d. for ve soule. And if any brovere or sistere of vis Gylde be ded, he shal haue, of Masses for souls of ve propre Catel of ye Gylde, xxx.d. to messes for his soule, and at ve Alderman and ve Skeuevns do singe vo messes. And who is rebel of his tunge a-gevn ve Alderman, or a-gevn ani of ve Unruly speech shall be numshed Gylde breveren or sistere, in time of drynke or of morwespeche by a fine. holden, he shal paie, to amendement of ye lizt, di. li. wax. And if any brovere or sistere of vis fraternite bere his brovere or One belieing or vronging another sistere ani falsed or wronge on hande, and it may be proved bi shall pay a fine. ve Gylde breveren or sisteres, he shal paye, to amendemente of ye lizt, i. li. wax. And who-so entretz in-to ye Chaumbre The ale-chamber hall not be vere ve ale lytz inne, with-oute leue of men of offyce, he shal entered. paie to ye list j.d. And ordeynd is, yat ye Catel of yis Gylde The Stewards shall find survive for vat ve Skeuevns shulen haue [in hand] shal be deliuered to hem, the goods of the gild, and render bi sufficiaunt borwes to brynge ye catel, [at ye ge]neral morwean account at the yearly general meeting. speche, bi-forn ve Alderman and ye Gyld breve ren and sisteres, and leun] down vp-on ve table bi-forn ve Alderman. And wh.... paiement, he shal paie to ye list of ye gylde And who-so make novse or langele in time of No noise nor iangling allowed and ye Deen comaunde hym be stille..... during feast or meeting. di. li. wax, or lese ye fraternite of uaile, bi zere, iiij.d. And ordeynd Salary of the Dean. and sistere shal paie to ye alm Alms for souls'

* CCCX. 149. Condition, fair; but a large piece destroyed.

Robertus Kocsoun, Al.

sake.

The Alderman of the gild.

XLI.

[GILD OF CANDLEMASS,] NORTH LENNE, SANCTI EDMUNDI.*

In the honre of ihesu crist of heuen, and of is modere seinte

Four meetings shall be held every year, to each of which every one shall come, under penalty.

tined if he fail to be kept burning

1 (sic.)

Officers chosen,

and not serving,

shall be fined.

pay the house-

fees, and find money.

sureties for pay-

during divine service.

summon any.

marie, and of alle holy halowen, and specialike of ye fest of oure lady vat is cleped Candelmesseday, this fraternite is founden and stabled. And this Gylde shalle hauen foure mornspeches by zere. The fyrste shalle ben the morn nexte aftere Candelmesday. The secunde shalle be the sunday next aftere ye feste of ye Annunciacioun of oure lady seinte marie. And the thredde shalle ben ye sonday next aftere ye feste of ye Natiuite of oure lady. The fourthe shalle ben ye sonday next aftere ye feste of ye Concepcioun of oure lady. And who-so be somound to any of yis morunspeches, or to any othere, and he be in hele, and he wille nouht come, ne make none attorne for hym, he shalle pave The Dean shall be to ye lyzt j. li. wax. And if ye Deen faile of his somouns, he shalle paye, for ilke a broyere and sistere yat is nouht somond, di. li. of wax. And also ordeynd it is, yat eueriche broyere and Three candles shall sistere shal paye, at eucrich morunspeche, ob. to ye wax, for to meyntene iij. Candelles of wax brennend aforn ye¹, in ye worschipe of god, and of iche holy mayden our lady seint marie, in ye tyme yat diuine seruise is seyd in festivalle dayes. And who-so be chosen in offyce of alderman, and he for-sake ye offyce, he shalle pave, to amendement of ye lytz, ij. li. of wax; and eythere skyueyne, j. li. of wax; and ye Deen, di. li. of wax. And who-so New-comers shall entre in to yis fraternite, he shalle paye ye ryztes of ye hous, ment of entrancesoon-so hee comen in: to ye Alderman, j.d.; to ye Deen, j.d.;

* CCCX. 207. Condition, fair; but a large piece destroyed.

and to ye wax, ob.; and fynden sufficiaunt borwes to make ye sistere of this gylde be ded, he shalle do comen ye Candelle of ye ings.

payment of ys couenante; for is entree. And if any broyere or Services for the sistere of this grad be dod, he shalle do comen ye candolo of ye	8

Gylde to ye Dirige, and warn alle ye Gylde breyeroun and sisters to comen and offren ob. atte ye Chirche: and he yat cometz nouht to ye offrend, hee shalle paye, atte next morunspeche, j.d. to ye Almus for ye soule. And if any broyere or sistre	Masses for souls of the dead.
of yis Gylde be ded, hee shalle haue, of ye propre catelle of ye Gylde, xxx.d. to messes for is soule. And ye Alderman and ye Skyueyns shun* do syngge ye messes, vppoun ye disposicioun of ye Alderman and ye Skyueyns. And who-so be rebelle of is	Unruly speech shall be punished tonge agayne ye Aldre[man], or agayne any of ye Gylde bretherene	by a fine.
or sisteren, in tyme of $[drynk]$ or of morunspeche holdene, hee shal paye, to amendement of ye lytz, j.li. [wax. And] if any	One belieing or wronging another broyere or sistere of yis fraternite bere is broyere or sistere any	shali pay a fine.
[falsed or wrong] on hande, and it may be proued by ye gylde breyerene or sis[teren, he shal paye, to a]mendement of ye lytz, j.li. wax. And who-so entre in [to ye chaumbre yer ye ale lyt3]	The ale-chamber shall not be in, wt-out leue of men of office, he shalle he shalt	entered.
ordenyd is, y t ye catelle of yis Gylde y t ye sk $\hdots \ldots \ldots \ldots$	The Steward shall find sureties for shalle be delyuered to hem by suffysaunt	the goods of the gild, and render general morunspeche be-for ye Alde	an account at the yearly general table; and who-so faille yat d	meeting.
or is borwes for him. And or of is morunspeche holden nouht, he shal paye to ye
by zere, iiij.d. And ordey	Almes for souls' sake.
and sistre shalle paye to ye	cant,
ye soule.

John Knolle, Alderman ye se North Lenne.

* This word has a scratch over it, which may be accidental, but which (though, if so, very unusual) may be intended for a mark of contraction. as if the word should be read "shullen." But there is no other instance of the kind throughout these returns. "Schun" (before, p. 67, twice) has no such mark.

+ These two words are thus twice written in the original.

XLII.

[GILD OF THE HOLY TRINITY, WYGNALE, NORFOLK.*]

Certificacio fundacionis et regiminis gilde Sancte Trinitatis de Wygnale, per Aldermannum eiusdem.

In the worchip of god, and of his modur marie, an specialy of the holi trinite, in gwose worchip this fraternite is begonne. Sey a pater noster, and Aue pur charite, and ne nos, Latin prayers shall &c. ; laudemus qui fecit celum, &c.; Benedicamus patrem, &c.; be said, out of the Church Offices. laudemus, &c. : Benedictus es domine &c : per signum sancte laudemus, &c.; Benedictus es domine, &c.; per signum sancte crucis, &c.; In omnem terram exiuit sonus eorum, et in fine orbis, &c.; Oremus, Oremus, Omnipotens, &c.; Be-sege we ihesu crist mercy, for the pees, an for the stat of holy chirche, for the pope of Rome an his Cardinales, &c.; vt in Pulpito. + And for alle the gilde bretherun an sisterun that this gilde furst begonne, and lengest sal vp-haldene, says a pater noster, Phalmus

Deus misereatur nostri, &c. Also quat brother or sustre die,

Burials at cost of the gild.

Drowned men shall be searched fo1.

and he may noughte be broughte to the hergdes wyt his owne catelle, he sal be broughte wyt the broderhedes. And if he be drowned in water, he sal be soughte vj. myle about, and the lyghte be broughte be-for hem to the kirke. Other fundacioun es ther non.

* CCCX 20 Condition, disfigured by the use of galls.

+ The MSS of this and the two following returns are in such bad condition, that I feared that some of the initial words of the prayers named in them might not have been correctly taken down I am indebted to the courtesy of the learned author of "The Church of our Fathers" (already quoted in the Introduction), for the verification of their correctness, save in a few cases where the scribe of 1389 has made literal blunders too obvious to mislead any one.

XLIII.

[GILD OF THE ASSUMPTION,] WYGGENALE, en Contee de Norffolk *

Anno regni Regis Richardi secundo¹ viij^o., die Assumsionis. 1 (sic.)

In ye worschipp of Jhesu crist, and of is dere moder seynt mare, and ye holy feleschipp of heuene, and specialy of oure lady sent mare of ye assumcion of oure lady, in wyche fraternite ys be-gunne, in ye ton of Wygenhale, for to worschippe oure lady. In ye worschipp of god and of is moder, in a-mendement of oure lyff, and sauacion of oure saules, and sayes a Pater noster and a aue pur charite.

Laudemus Deum, &c. Benedicamus pater, &c. Benedictus Latin prayers to be said out of the Clurch Offices. es, &c. Per signum sancte, &c.

Maria virgo semper letare, que meruisti Christum portare, celi et terre conditorem, quem de vtero tuo protulisti, mundi Saluatorem. Deo gratias.

Be-seke we Jhesu crist mercy, ffor ye state of holy chirche Inghish prayer of this gild, for the and al yer-to longes. Church .

Also we schal be-seke for oure lord Kyng Richard of ynge- for the King, Queen, and lond, and for ye qwene, and ffor alle ye baronyge, and for alle yat baronage; to yam longes, yat gyff yam grace to ouer-come ere enmys.

the patriarch ;

Also we schal be-seke for ye pope of Rome, and ye Patriarcke for the Pope and of Jerusalem, and for alle holy kirke, and al yat to it longes.

Also we schal be-scke for ye holy lond, yat Jhesu crist, for is for the holy land; mekul mercy, brynge it in to criste powere.

Also we sal be-seke for ye frutte yt is on ye herthe, yat god for the frut of the enth. send it soche wedurynge yt may turne cristen men to profyt.

* CCCX 119. Condition, very bad.

for shipmen and travellers; for the founders of the gild;

And ffor schipp-men and for al men yat trauayle, be se and be land. And for al yat yis fraternite first be-gunne, and longes wil vp-hold. And yei to saye a pater noster pur charite.*

> Deus miseriatur nostri, &c.; Gloria patri, &c.; Kyrieleison, &c.; pater noster, &c.; Dies fuit, &c.; habundat quemcumque; Deus a quo, &c.

and for the souls of the dead and the living.

Also be-seke Jhesu mcrcy for oure fadere saules, and for oure modere saules, and for ye criste saules yt ben in ye bitter payne of purgatore, and for al ye brethire saules and sisturres yat to yis fraternitee longes, and maynteynen in ye worschipp of oure Lady. Says a pater noster, &c.; De profundis, &c.; oremus; Incline Domine ne fideles, &c.; benedicite dominus, &c.; Ille nos benedicat. Godes helpe be a-mong vs. Amen.

Names of the bretheren and sisteren of the gild.

Johannes de Tydde. Robertus de Gedney. Adam Halyward. Robertus Helys. Johannes Dey. Thomas de Tyringetoun. Johannes Gerard. Johannes de Heyssewelle. Johannes Wyntur. Galfridus Lewer. Ricardus Mayden. Laurence Laycy. Thomas Drewry. Cicillia Leman. Angneta Haliward. Asselyn Millener. Beatrix Deve. Isabella Laicy. Cicillia de Tydde. Katerina Witrasse. Margareta Garenelle.

* Compare with this the very remarkable prayer of the Gild of St. Christopher, Norwich, before, pp. 22, 23.

..... Wyntur. Alicia Paschelewe. Alicia Gerard. Angueta Spense. Katerina de Gedney. Alicia Daundy. Elena Williams, filia....

Qwat brother or systur dey of yis fraternite, if he deye soden search shall be made for any one dede, be water or be lond, he schal be soughte vj. myle a-boute, dying suddenly, by water or by land; of oure cost, if he be nought of power to pay for hym-self; and he shall have burial serand oure lythe to ye derige and to ye kirke; and ye next vices. sonunday aftere, he schal haue ix. messes. And al yo y^t were naught at ye beriynge of ye corse, schal pay a ob. to oure lady lyght, and to ye leuacion of godes bodi ... kepe, if may so far reche.

Qwat brothere or systure bere other any falsed on hand, and Any one belieing another shall be schal paye to ye lyght ob. fined.

Ista sunt debita de gylda de Assumsionis beate marie, in Goods of the gild. villa de Wygenhale.

Robertus Helys habet de moneta,vj.s.	viij.d.
Thomas Drewre debet	xl.d.

Qwat man yat comes nought to yis toy morunspeche, he schal Any one not pay to yis lyght a ob.

coming to the two meetings shall be fined.

[Several names have been written on the back of this roll, with some accompanying description; but the whole is now quite illegible.]

XLIV.

Certificatio regiminis GILDE DE CRANBONE, in villa de WYGNALE, per Thomam Chapeleyn, Aldermannum.*

In honr of ihesu of heuen, and of his moder seinte marie, an of alle halwen, and specialy of seint Johan the Ewangelist, in be said, out of Church offices. English prayer of church, pope,

of Canterbury,

&c., king and queen, and the commons of the realm.

Latin prayers to gwose worchip this fraternite is be-gunne. Sev a pater noster : pur charite; Et ne nos, &c.; set libera nos, &c.; laudemus deum, qui fecit celum, mare, et omnia que in eis sunt; Benedicamus patrem, &c.; laudemus, &c.; Benedictus, &c.; per signum sancte crucis, &c.; In omnem terram exiuit; oremus; Ecclesiam tuam quist domine, &c. Beseche we ihesu crist mercy, for the pees and state of holy chirche, for the pope of Rome an this gild, for the the cardinals, for the patriak of Jerusalem, and for the stat and cardinals, patripees of holy chirche:-meinten hem and susten hem; and for arch, archbishop the Archibischope of Canterbury, and the Bischope of Norwyche, and other bishops, and for the Prioresse of Crabous, ‡ and for alle the couent, and for alle Archibischopes, Bisshopes, Abbotes, Priours, an for alle men and wommen of religioun; and for the kynge and the

* CCCX. 139. Condition, very bad.

+ This seems to be a mistake for "quæsumus," or for some contraction of that word ; but it is plainly "quis" in the MS., and it has no mark of contraction over it.

It is right to say that this name could not have been made out from the original return alone. But, on comparing it with an ancient MS. in my possession (formerly in the famous Dering collection, but once belonging to Sir Roger Twysden), which gives names and particulars of the old abbeys and priories in England and Wales, I find that all the remains of the word that can be traced in this return (except the dropped "h," and "u" for "w"), agree with the name "Crabhows," which is recorded in that MS. as being in the county of Norfolk. See also Tanner's Notitia, Norfolk. "Crabhouse."

GILD OF CRANBONE, WYGNALE.

gwene, and al the Comones of this Roialme, vt patet in Pulpito, &c. And also more-ouer, this is the ordinance of this Gilde, apud Cranbone in villa de Wyggenale ; qwyche was be-gunne in The gild was begun A.D. 1387. the day of Seint Johan the Ewangelist, in the zere of Kynge Richard second xjo. That if any man be ded of this fraternite, Burials at the cost wyt-inne vj. myle about, o lond or of watre, and the lyghte sal be brought to bery hym, wyt the cost of al the companie. And qwo-so of that companie absent hym fro the beryyng, he sal paie an alpenie to the gilde. Also, if any mann of companie Every quarrel ben wrothe, they sal take tway men of the brethere to accorden before two before two bretheren. hem; and if they mowe nought accorden hem, ethir sal peye a peny to the lyghte, an pursue to the Commone laghe quer-soeuer they wylle. Also more, twey dais of mornspeche in the Two meetings shall yere: that is for to say, on the day aftir day of seint Thomas in Cristimasse : the secounde, seint Thomas day of Canterbury. And qwo-so comythe nought to the day, if the ben in town, the sal paie an alpenye to the lyghte. Also we have a peyntid Goods of the gild, clothe that cost xl.s., qwyche was ordeined to hang in the chirche in the¹ of seint Johan on hes festes. Also, we fyndyn a torche to servyn atte leuacion in time of messe. An be-for the ymage of seint Johan we fynden iij. Candelie of wax. And non other fundacion no gouernynge es in oure [gilde].

of the gild.

hall be brought

e held every year.

114

XLV.

Certificatio fundacionis et regiminis GILDE SANCTE TRINITATIS, de WYGNALE, per Willelmum Cautynge, Aldermannum ejusdem.*

Tn hon^r of ihesu crist, and his modir seinte marie, and al the holy felichipe of heuen, an specialy of the Trinite, in quom

Four meetings shall be held every vear.

Payments to be made at these meetings.

The gild was begun A.D. 1387.

this fraternite is begonne, be al the conseil of xxxi. bretheren and sisteren; for to hold foure mornspeches in the yere, in worchipe of the Trinite, and in amendement of al holy chirche, and helpyng of oure soules. The first mornspeche, of Trinite sunday: the seconde, after seint Johanes day in heruest : the thred, on sunday after seint andrewes day : the fourt, on midlentene sunday. Also, that eucriche mann be redy at thys foure days, for to paie to the holy Trinites light ob. Thys is accorde be al the holv+ berthere. In the vere of Kynge Richard xj. this gilde was begonne: and therto, in worchip of god and holy cherche, William Cautyng, Aldermann of the forsaide gilde, and alle the bretheren and sisteren, paien a certein somme of seluer to leghte of Trinite, gwyche amont to vj.s. ij.d. ob. Other funda-Goods of the gild. cion no gouernynge is noughte in oure gilde.

* CCCX. 144. Condition, fair.

+ This word "holy" is so in the MS.; but it is clearly a mistake for "hole" = whole.

XLVI.

[GILD OF ST. PETER.] WYGGENALE. en Contee de Norffolk.*

To honoure and worschippe of Jhesu crist, and of is dere moder sent mare, and al ve holy feleschipp of heuene, and specialv L of ye holy a-postille sent Peter, in gwose [worschippe] this fraternite is be-gunne. For to hold toy morunspeches in ye zere : Two meetings ve first, at ve fest of sent Peter ve a-postil ; ve secunde, ve year. sonunday next after ve twelft day. And, at ye general day, All shall go to vat ilke a brother be redy wit othir, to go to ye kirke wit is garland of oak brethere wit a garlond of hoke Lewes.

shall he hold every

hurch with a 09.008

Yis is hordenned be ye a-sent of al ye brethere and systurs of Service for the dead, and vis fraternite: vat euer-iche brothere and systure be redy to go to offerings. ve kirke, wen any brothere or systure is ded of yis fraternete;

and vat euer-iche brothere hoffer a ob.; and yat iche a brother Bread to be given. and masses sung gyff a halpeny wortht of bred for is soule, and vat he haue for souls of the heah vii, messes songen for is soule.

And also, if he dev, yat is for to say if he be perichee be water Men dying by water or land to or be lond, yen schal is gyld brethere gare seke him iij, myle be searched for and buried. aboute, and brynge him to cristen mennes bereynge, if he be nouzt in power of is owen catelle; and ye lyght be brought be-for hym to ye derige, and to ye kirke; yat is for to say, a torche vat schal bren at ye leuacion of ye messe euer-iche sonnunday.

Also wen yat ye brethere and sisture ben geyderd at yere generale Meat and drink to day, qwat godes man come to oure fraternite, he schal have very meeting. mete and drynke, gwyles it wil last. And also a taper for to bren be-for sent Petur, of a pond of wax.

* CCCX. 163. Condition, fair.

be given at the [Indorsed on the foregoing return is the following —] Catella de gylde Sancti Petri in Wygenhale, in ye ton ende :—

Goods of the gild. Willelmus Cautyng_____v.s. vj.d. Willelmus Harald _____v.s. vj.d.

XLVII.

[GILD OF] EST WYNCH, de Comitatu Norfolcie.*

Tn ye honowre of ihesu cryste, and of hese modvir seynte L marye, and of al ye companye of hewene, and specialleche of sen Jon ye baptyst, in quose name yis gylde is hordeynyd. Yis Four meetings shall be held every gilde chal hawe foore morwe-spechiis: ye fyrste morwe-speche year. schal ben on sen Jon day; ye secunde schal ben on ye swnday after ye feste of sen micael; ye yrede schalben on sen Jon-is day in cristemesse; ye ferde schalben on ye sunday after crowchemesse dai. Yis gylde schal have an haldyrman, and to Officers of the gild. and their fees. screweynys, and a clerk; and qwat man yt comyt in, he chal payn a peny to ye wax, and a peny to ye clerk. And hewery ver schal ye aldyrman callyn vp fore men of ye brevern, for to Officers shall be chosen by p'cked chesen aldyrman, and to screweynys yt ben profitable for to men. kepyn ye gelde catel : and if ony of hem for-sake hys office, yt is officers chosen, and not serving. to seyne, ye aldyrman schal payn halwe a pownd of wax to ye shall pay a fine. levt of sen Jon, and eyther screweyny a gwarter of wax. And if ony broyer or sister be ded of yis gelde, he chal hawe ye candelle services for the ead. and of ye gylde to ye derige, and ewery broyer or syster chal offeryn offerings. a ferzyng, and yewen anoyr for ye soule. And qwat brover or sister yt comyt nowt to ye offeryng, he chal payn, at ye nexte morwe-speche, a peny to ye elmesse. And quat broyer or sister Masses for souls of the dead. be det [of] yis gylde, he chal hawen xiij. messes of ye pro-pir cat[el of] ye gylde. And if ony broyer or sister be sek on Allowance to members in general d[ay, he chal] haven a lof, and a potel of ale, and mes of sickness.

* CCCX. 64. Condition, fair ; but a piece destroyed.

The gild was kechen [stuff. And] yis gylde was ordeynyd and be-gwnyn in begun temp. Rich, II. y^e [... yere of the regne] of kyng Ric. y^e secunde.

Alderman and Stewards of the gild.

Aldyrman, William of Hely..... Screweys, Johannes Sm Thomas

XLVIII.

[GILD OF ST. PETER,] OXEBURGHE, [NORFOLK].*

In be honor of god, and of hese modir marie, and of seint The glid was Peter, a zelde is be-gonne, in he zer of he regne of he kyng Richard be secunde, be secunde zer. Dis is be ordenaunce of be The officers, zylde; bt be alderman and be bedel, bretheryn and sisteryn of be sisteren, shall gilde, schullyn comyn, at be secunde belle of be Euesong of seint on St. Peter's day, Peter, and beryn a-forn hem a torche brennyngge, of vj. pond of inga. wax; and pat euery gilde broper and sister be at pe euesong and messe of seint Peter, and at be secunde euesong, in be peyne of a pond wax to be lythe of seint Peter, zif he be fyue myle be halue; and, at here gilde day, euery man to offeryn a ferthyn at messe, and anober to Elmesse. And al-so, at be ded day of a broper, every couple to zeuyn iij. penys; and bt be aldirman and bedel shullyn gaderynt, be asent of alle be breberyn. And zif Help to those in ony brober or sister falle at myschef, he schal haue, be zere, iiij.¹ And zif ony brober or sister be-wreve here conseil, he shal payin, Fine for bewrayto le lythe of seint Peter, a pond of wax.

founded A.D. 1378.

bretheren, and come to evensong and make offer-> trouble. 1 (sic. ing the affairs of the gild.

Billa de catallis gilde sancti Petri in Oxeburghe, v. quarteria Goods of the gild, and price of ordei: pretium quarterii, xx.d. barley.

Willelmus Mark, Alderman ; Johannes Skultoun, bedel.

Officers of the gild.

* CCCX. 79. Condition, good. This return is one of a bundle of eight sewn together ;--of which six are in Latin, and this and the one next following are in English. All the eight relate to gilds in Oxburgh, Notfolk. To the lower edge of the first of the eight, there is sewn a piece of linen paper, 21 inches by 41 inches, containing an account of the goods of the gild. See before, p. 44 note.

sistren be ded, a mile aboute, the brethren and sistren sul ben Services for the dead. at placebo and dirige an at masse, of peine of a pounde of wax.

Thys gilde was be-gonne in the zere of the regne of the Kyng The gild was begun A.D. 1307. Edward the secounde, the first zere.

Billa de catallis gilde sancti Johannis Baptiste, in Oxeburghe, xx. quarteria ordei: pretium quarterii, xx.d.*

Robertus Baldezein, Alderman ; et Willelmus Baker, Bedel. Officers of the gild.

* In Stow's Annals (ed. 1615, p $_{301}$) is the following passage — 'In the beginning of this yeere [1387], at Leicester, an hundred quarters of Barley were sold for an hundred shillings;' and the marginal note is, — 'Barley sold for xij.d. the quarter.' Thus the price of barley in Leicestershire, in 1387, was little more than half the price of it in Norfolk in 1388.

XLIX.

[GILD OF ST. JOHN BAPTIST.] OXEBURGH, en le Contee de Norffolk.*

The officers, bretheren, and sisteren, shall come to evensong on the day of St. John the Baptist, and make offerings.

1 (sic.)

Help to those in trouble.

In ye honor of god, and of his modur marie, and of seint Johan Baptist, a brotherhed is be gunne. This is the ordinance of the gilde :---that the Alderman and the bedel, an brethren an sistren of the gilde, xlij., comyn at the second belle of the furst euesonge of seint Johan the Baptist, and a candel beryng a-forn hem brennynge, to the cherche of seint Johan; and that euery gilde brother and sistur be at the furst eucsonge, and at the messe of seint Johan, and at the second eucsonge, vp the pein of a pounde of wax to the lyght of seint Johan, if he be thre myle about. And the alderman sal offren a pany at the messe, and iche brother and sistre a farthynge, in the worchip of Seint Johan; and iche brother and sistren schal giffen a farthynge in the worchip of seint Johan. And also, at the ded day of a brother or sistre, eche brother an sistre sal zeuen a messe peny, a¹ offren a farthynge, and zeuen a farthynge to pore men p^r his soule. And if any brother or sistre falle at meschief, he sal hauen gilde, † houereday a farthyng, and on sunday a halpeny, be zeire, wille that he his at meschief. And if any brothren or

* CCCX. 80. Condition, fair. See note to the return last foregoing. + The word "gilde" is here used in the sense of that word as found in the oldest English (Anglo Saxon) writings, namely, for a rateable payment, as is explained in the Introduction. The word is not thus used in any other of these English returns. It will be seen that this Oxeburgh gild was an old one, having been founded A.D. 1307.

ILLUSTRATIONS

OF

THE ORDINANCES AND USAGES

0F

EARLY ENGLISH GILDS.

FROM ORIGINAL RECORDS

IN THE

PUBLIC RECORD OFFICE;

AND

FROM OTHER ORIGINAL SOURCES.

Most of the documents contained in this Part are taken from the same bundles of original "Returns," made in the twelfth year of Richard II. (A.D. 1389), from which the whole of those contained in Part I. are taken. But none of the Returns used in this Part were made in English. They were made either in Latin, or in the old Law-French. I have translated the substance of them more or less fully in each case, according as the original throws more or less light upon the usages and character of English Gilds, and so upon the Ordinances contained in Part I. A note is here added in each case, as in Part I., stating the bundle, number, and condition of the Return used.

A few instances are taken from other sources than those bundles of Returns, though still from documents in the Public Record Office. I give these in order to illustrate, as well the character of the Gilds themselves. as the existence of other important means, besides the Returns here chiefly used, of obtaining a knowledge of the old Gilds. Some, again, are taken from sources other than the Public Record Office, the source of each being acknowledged in its place. In both the cases where I have thus gone outside the Returns made in 1389, several of the originals are found in English, but some are in Latin, and some in the old Law-French.

The important, and hitherto wholly unknown, illustrations (in English) which I have been happy enough to recover from their long hiding-place among the old records of the city of Exeter, and which are here printed, stand out conspicuously among the rest, as well for their intrinsic interest. as for the strong light which they throw on the connection between the old Gilds and the Corporate Bodies of Cities and Towns.

This Part II. begins with the Writs sent round, at the end of 1388, to all the Sheriffs in England, to make proclamation for the sending up of the Returns called for by the Parliament of Cambridge. The illustrations that follow are, with one exception, arranged in a rough geographical order, beginning in the North. The one exception is the Gild of Berwick-upon-Tweed; which I put last of all because the Latin original was printed in Germany in 1831, being, so far as I am aware, the only document used in this volume that had ever been printed, either in England or elsewhere, before the present work was begun. It will be seen that the Return made by The Great Gild of the Hans-House of Beverley is no exception to the originality of the documents now for the first time used. The Gild of Berwick-upon-Tweed is here used, because it serves well to illustrate the relations in which the old Gilds so often stood to the organic Commonalty, or Body Corporate, of the place; as is further done by Gilds that will be found under the heads of Lancaster, Birmingham, Bristol, &c., as well as by the very complete case of Exeter.

I.

WRITS TO THE SHERIFF OF EVERY SHIRE IN ENGLAND, TO MAKE PROCLAMATION THAT RETURNS SHALL BE SENT UP BY ALL THE GILDS.

(a) THE WRIT FOR RETURNS FROM THE SOCIAL GILDS.*

DICHARD, by the grace of God, King of England and IV France and Lord of Ireland, to the Sheriffs of London, greeting. For certain good and reasonable causes brought and made known before us and our council in our last Parliament, held at Cambridge, We, strictly enjoining, command you that you do at once, on sight of these presents, in the city aforesaid and the suburbs thereof, + where it shall seem to you best, let proclamation be made, openly and publicly, that all and every make proclamathe Masters and Wardens of all gilds and brotherhoods whatsoever within the said city and the suburbs thereof, ‡ shall send up returns to us and our council, in our Chancery, fully, plainly, and openly, in writing, before the feast of the Purification of hefore the 2nd day of February, the blessed Virgin Mary now next, wheresoever it may be. as

The Sheriffs of London [and of every shire in England] shall, by authority of the Parliament that lately met at Cambridge,

tion, calling on the Masters and Wardens of all the Social Gilds to send up returns

A.D. 1389,§

* CCCIX. I. Condition, bad. Latin.

+ In the Writs issued to the Sheriffs of Shires, the words used, instead of "in the city aforesaid and the suburbs thereof," are as follows :--- "in your full shire-mote, and also in all cities, boroughs, market towns, and other places in your bailiwick, as well within liberties as without." See the Return of the places where the proclamation was made in the county of Worcester, after p. 131.

1 In the writs for Shires, the words are,-" within your said bailiwick."

§ To prevent mistake, I here give the date of the year according to the modern system of beginning the year with 1st January. Where dates

THE WRIT FOR RETURNS

as to the begin- ning and gover- nance of their gilds ;	to the manner and form and authority of the foundation and beginning and continuance and governance of the gilds and brotherhoods aforesaid : And as to the manner and form of the
and as to the oaths taken and meetings held ;	oaths, gatherings, feasts, and general meetings* of the bretheren and sisteren; and of all other such things touching these gilds and as to all liberties, ordi- nances, and usages; and moreover, as to all lands and goods of the gilds,	and brotherhoods: Also as to the liberties, privileges, statutes, ordinances, usages, and customs of the same gilds and brother- hoods: And moreover, as to all lands, tenements, rents, and possessions, whether held in mortmain or not, and as to all goods and chattels whatsoever, to the aforesaid gilds and brother- hoods in any wise belonging or in expectancy, and in whose hands soever such lands, tenements, rents, possessions, goods, or chattels may now be for the use of such gilds and brotherhoods :
and as to the value of these;	And as to the true annual value of the said lands, tenements, rents, and possessions, and the true worth of the said goods and
and every other particular touch- ing the gilds ;	chattels: Also as to the whole manner and form of all and every the premisses, and of all other matters and things in any way upon pain of forfeiture.	concerning or touching the said gilds and brotherhoods: Upon pain of the forfeiture and perpetual loss of all the lands, tenements, rents, possessions, goods, and chattels aforesaid, to us and our
If they have any charters or letters patent, they must send copies of these with their returns.	heirs. And that the said Masters and Wardens shall bring and lay before us and our said council, before the said feast of the Purification, the charters and letters patent, if they have any,† granted by us or any of our forefathers, in any way touching or concerning the aforesaid gilds and brotherhoods, upon pain of the are elsewhere given, from original documents, according to the old system of carrying on the old year up to and ending on the 24th March. I have added the 9 within brackets, thus "1388[9]."

* The distinction between the "gatherings" (congregationes) and "general meetings" (assemblias) is seen at a glance in most of the ordinances. The gild-brethren were bound to gather together, at unfixed times, on the summons of the dean, for special purposes: but, besides these gatherings upon special summons, general meetings of the gilds were held on fixed days in every year, for election of officers, holding their feasts, &c.

+ These words ("si quas habent" in original) are alone conclusive upon what is, upon other grounds, shown in the Introduction ; namely, that no license nor charter of the Crown was necessary to the beginning of any of the social gilds. Any gild might, or it might not, have such charters.

revocation and perpetual annulling of the charters and letters aforesaid, and of all the liberties, immunities, privileges, and grants contained in the charters and letters aforesaid. And And they must that they shall be ready to do and undertake what shall be may be required under the further ordered and appointed in the premisses by us and our authority of Parliament said council, by virtue of the authority given us by Parliament. Make known to us and our said council, in our said Chancery. The Sheriffs must together with this writ returned, the days and places of the ment of when, making of the proclamation, and the names of those who make whom, the proclait, under your seals, plainly and clearly, before the Octaves of Saint Hillary now next. And herein fail not at your peril. Witness myself at Westminster, on the first day of November. Dated 1st Novemin the twelfth year of our reign.

fulfil what else

send up a statewhere, and by mation has been made.

her A p 1388

WYCHE.

[On the original writ, returned by the Sheriffs as above said, is the following indorsement :---]

We. Adam Karlille and Thomas Austyn, Sheriffs of London, When, where, make known to you that, by virtue of this writ, we did, on clamation was Monday next before the feast of St. Edward the King, in the and the suburbs. twelfth year of the reign of King Richard the Second, as soon as this writ was seen, cause proclamation to be openly and publicly made in the city of London and in the suburbs thereof, where it seemed to us best, of all and every the things set forth in the writ, and all the matters therein contained, according to the form of the writ and as is therein commanded : namely, in Fleet Street in the Fleet Street in the suburbs of London ;* also, at the Standard in Westcheap, London; also, at the Ledenhall upon Cornhill, London : also, at the Church of St. Magnus in Bridge Street, London: also, at the Church of St. Martin in the Vintry, London; also, in the town of Southwark; by William Averey, Clerk, and William Popiltone, Sergeaunt.

* The present ward of Farringdon Without, in which Fleet Street lies, was not made into a separate Ward until five years after the issue of this Writ. Having, before, been a mere "suburb," it became, in 17 R. II., a separate Ward, choosing, thenceforth, its own Alderman. See Rolls of Parliament, 17 R. II. N°. 27.

and by whom, promade in London suburbs ; The Standard in Westcheap; The Ledenhall, Cornhill ; St. Magnus Church, Bridge Street; St. Martin's Church, Vintry; Southwark.

9

(b) THE WRIT FOR RETURNS FROM GILDS OF CRAFTS.*

Richard, by the grace of God, King of England and France

The Sheriffs of London [and of every Shire in England] shall, by authority of the Parliament that lately met at Cambridge, make proclamation, calling on the Masters, Wardens, and Overlookers of all Gilds of Crafts holding any charters or letters patent, to send up, before the 2nd day of February, A.D. 1389, copies of such charters and letters, upon penalty of forfeiture.

And they must fulfil what else may be required under the autho rity of Parliament.

The Sheriffs must send up a statement of when, where, and by whom, the proclamation has been made.

Dated 1st November, A.D. 1388.

and Lord of Ireland, to the Mayor and Sheriffs of London, greeting. For certain good and reasonable causes brought and made known before us and our council in our last Parliament, held at Cambridge, We, strictly enjoining, command you that you do at once, on sight of these presents, in the city aforesaid and the suburbs thereof, where it shall seem to you best, let proclamation be made, openly and publicly, that all Masters and Wardens and Overlookers of all the Mysteries and Crafts in the city aforesaid and the suburbs thereof, who hold any charters or letters patent, granted by us or any of our forefathers, touching or concerning in any wise such mysteries and crafts,† shall bring and lay those charters and letters before us and our council, in our Chancery, before the feast of the Purification of the blessed Virgin Mary now next, wheresoever it may be, upon pain of the forfeiture and loss and perpetual annulling of the charters and letters aforesaid, and of all liberties, immunities, privileges, and grants in the said charters and letters contained. And that they shall be ready to do and undertake what shall be further ordered and appointed in the premisses by us and our said council, by virtue of the authority given us by Parliament. Make known to us and our said council, in our said Chancery, together with this writ returned, the days and places of the making of the proclamation, and the names of those who make it, under your seals, plainly and clearly, before the Octaves of Saint Hillary now next. And herein fail not at your peril. Witness myself at Westminster, on the first day of November, in the twelfth year of our reign.

Wyche,

* CCCIX. 2. Condition, bad. Latin.

† These words show that, in the case of the gilds of crafts, as has been seen to be so in that of the social gilds, no license nor charter of the Crown was necessary to their foundation. See the note † on p. 128. [The original of this writ bears an indorsement as to the making of the proclamations, in the same words as have already been given from the indorsement on the other writ. The manner of proclamation in the shires was very different from that in cities, as will be understood from the words used in the writs to the Sheriffs of shires.* How such proclamations were made, will be fully illustrated by the following example :--]

INDORSEMENT AS TO PROCLAMATIONS MADE OF THE TWO WRITS BY THE SHERIFF OF WORCESTERSHIRE. †

William Barewelle, Sheriff.

I have had all and every thing contained in this writ pro- When, where, and Ly whom, proclaclaimed, according to the tenor of the same writ, as is therein mation was made by the Sheriff of commanded: namely, at Worcester [city], on the Saturday next Worcestershire. City of Worcester; after the feast of the Conception of the Blessed Mary last past, by John Stalward; and at Evesham, on the Monday next fol- Evesham; lowing, by William Ombresley; and at Pershore, on the Tuesday Pershore; then next following, by William Shrouesbury; and at Shipston, shipston; on the Wednesday next before the feast of St. Thomas Apostle, by Richard Battenhall; and at Kidderminster, on the Thursday Kidderminster; next before the feast of St. Thomas Apostle, by William Shope; and at [Droit] Wich, ‡ on the Friday next before the feast of Droitwich; St. Thomas Apostle, by William Shope; and at Dudley, on the Dudley; Saturday next before the feast of St. Thomas Apostle, by the said William Shope ; and at Tenbury, on the Tuesday next after Tenbury; the feast of St. Thomas Apostle, by Nicholas Warrewyke; and at Worcester, in the full Shire-mote held there on the Wednesday The full Shiremote of Worces next before Christmas day, by the said William Shrouesbury; tershire; and at Upton-on-Severn, on the Thursday which was the eve of Upton-on-Severn. Christmas day last past, by John Wyggemore.

^{*} See notes before, p. 127. + CCCIX. 101. Condition, bad. Latin. ‡ It is strange that a man so careful as Prynne should interpret this "Wyche" as meaning Nantwich. (See the index to the fourth volume of his "Parliamentary Writs.") There can be no doubt whatever that it means Droitwich. Nantwich is in Cheshire.

NOTE.-The Writs of which the foregoing are translations, remain recorded in two original shapes. Both of them are entered on the Close Rolls.* with the statement added to each, that the Writ so entered was sent to every Sheriff throughout England. And one, and in some cases both, of the original Writs thus sent out, are still extant for a few places, besides London and Worcestershire. Those place are, Bristol (social), Cambridgeshire (crafts), Cornwall (both), Derby (social), Lincolnshire (social), Northamptonshire (both), Rutland (both), Southamptonshire (both), Surrey and Sussex [as one shire +] (both), Wiltshire (both), Worcestershire (both), and Yorkshire (both). Most of them are in bad condition. The fewness of the Writs that thus remain to us, tells the same tale of loss as does the fewness of the Returns that remain to us out of all that were in fact sent up from the Gilds. The number of those Returns that now remain, may be safely taken to stand in about the same proportion to the number of Returns that were originally sent up, as the number of the Writs that now remain stands to the number of Writs which we absolutely know were originally sent out to every Sheriff in England.

It is well worth attention, that not only do the terms of both these Writs distinctly affirm, twice over, that they are issued only by authority of Parliament, but there is incidental proof that this fact was thoroughly understood by those to whom they were sent. The Sheriff's Returns to the Wiltshire Writs, setting forth the places and times of the proclamations, were made on separate pieces of parchment [?], though tacked to the original Writs. One of these Returns is thus indorsed :--"12 R. 2, apud Westmonasterium: 1 November: de Proclamacione facienda, auctoritate Parliamenti, de Gildis et ffraternitatibus, eorum terris et Tenementis, &c."

Most of the Sheriffs' Returns as to the proclamations made, are indorsed upon the back of the original Writ; but some are, as in the case of Wiltshire, written on a separate slip of parchment [?], which is tacked to the original Writ.

In going carefully through these original Writs, I found a remarkable fact, before unknown; namely, that several of them, and also some of the separate Sheriffs' Returns, are written upon linen paper. Paper was, it is well known, made and used before this time; but it was not known, before I observed these facts, that it was ever used in England for writs issued out of the Chancery; nor has the kind of paper which I thus found, been ever before described (except by myself), or been

* Close Rolls, 12 R. II. m. 32, in dorso.

+ Surrey and Sussex were generally treated, till quite a modern time, as one shire. See the description of John Evelyn's father as sheriff, at the beginning of Evelyn's Diary. even known to have existed. It is of the colour and stoutness, and has the general appearance and touch, of parchment; but the wire marks of the linen fabric that forms its basis are plainly to be seen on a careful examination.* It is, however, so like parchment that an ordinary handling of it would not lead to the suspicion that it is not parchment. like the rest among which it is found. No other instance of the use of this paper for official, or indeed for any, purposes, is at present known. None of it is found used in any of the Returns that were sent up. in compliance with these Writs, by the Gilds themselves; and I have been assured, by those habitually familiar with our old records. that they have never met with examples of this remarkable paper.† It seems probable that some ingenious person hit upon this substitute for parchment, to meet some emergency, and made a small quantity, but that the process was too costly to be continued after the emergency had heen met. There is not, however, in the history of paper-making, a more curious, nor, at present, a more unknown chapter, than the paper which my searches among the records of the English Gilds have thus brought to light.[†]

A curious incidental proof of the neglect with which the bundles of records so largely used in this volume have been treated through five centuries,—proving indeed that they can never have been read through at all by any one, since the Returns were made, until I undertook the task,—is found in the fact that, among the Writs above named, there is one touching, at first sight, a very different subject, and which certainly ought to be in a very different place. It is a Writ for the recovery, from

* These wire marks are wholly different from the lines often found on parchment, which are made in the course of the tooling it undergoes to fit it for being written on.

+ This does not, however, prove that it does not exist; as it is only in a good and oblique light, and on very careful handling, that the wire marks can be well seen. Search should be made in and between September and November 1388, for I think the original of the Writ given below, as to the Wardon share of expenses of the knights of the shire, is also made of the same paper. It is certain that attempts were made, not far from this time, to manufacture artificial parchment. See Mr. Way's note to the word "Sabrace," in Promptorium parvulorum (Camden Society), p. 440.

[‡] See before, p. 44, note. I have tried some experiments as to how such a paper as this might be made; and I have succeeded in producing several specimens closely resembling it, and much more like parchment, and much easier to write on, than what is now made and sold as artificial parchment. The facts as to the before unknown paper thus found by me at the Public Record Office, were made generally known at the beginning of 1865, upon the suggestion of one who was better entitled than any other uan in England to express an opinion on such a subject.

one Township in one Hundred in Northamptonshire, of its rateable share towards the expenses of the knights of the shire in Parliament. The matter is not, however, without a significant relation to the subject of English Gilds; the fundamental idea of Parliamentary representation being, that every Constituency, like every Gild, has an associated interest, coupled with an associated obligation. As the subject is, in itself, little understood, while it is of high constitutional importance, and as this Writ escaped even the researches of the lynx-eyed Prynne himself, who would have thoroughly rejoiced to have printed it had he found it, it is due to the Parliamentary History of England that I should give here what I have thus found so strangely interpolated among the fragmentary remains of the Returns sent up by the old Gilds.*

WRIT FOR LEVYING UPON ONE TOWNSHIP IN A SHIRE ITS SHARE OF THE EXPENSES OF MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT.⁺

The usual writ was issued, on 4th June, A.D. 1388.

Richard, by the grace of God, King of England and France and Lord of Ireland, to the Sheriff of Northampton, greeting. Whereas,

* From the earliest beginnings of Parliamentary History in England, the expenses of members were defrayed by the organic commonalties that sent them. What is called the "Reform Act" of 1832, gives us the first time that the Statute Book was disfigured by a thing so repugnant both to Common Law and Statute Law as that a seat in Parliament should be a matter of sale and purchase, and therefore of personal ownership. See section 71 of that Act, and, further in the same direction, the Act 26 and 27 Vic. c. 20, sections 2-7. Compare with these the very different spirit of the Acts 34 and 35 H. VIII. c. 24, and 35 H. VIII. c. 11; which were made, as both of them declare on their front, simply in accordance with the old and universal practice. It would be interesting to know who now enjoys the estate which was settled, by the former of these two Acts, with the careful intention of providing for the Parliamentary payments due to the knights of the shire for Cambridge.

One of the most valuable and interesting of the many works written by that man of undaunted courage, unswerving integrity, and untiring industry, William Prynne, was the fourth volume of his Parliamentary Writs. In it he dwells on the great importance of keeping alive the practice of paying the expenses of members of Parliament; and he there answers, in long anticipation, all, and more than all, that has been said, in later times, against such a practice.

Though Prynne did not know of the Writ given above, he was well aware of the principle of law which it so admirably illustrates; namely, that "every village was, of right, particularly taxed towards knights expenses," (See Parl. Writs, vol. iv. p 381.)

+ CCCIX. 102. Condition, fair. Latin.

on the fourth day of June last past, we commanded you by our writ that you should cause to be paid, by the commonalty of the shire aforesaid, as well within liberty as without,-those cities and boroughs only being excepted * whence citizens and burgesses came to our Parliament which we caused to be summoned at Westminster on the morrow of the Purification of the blessed Mary last past-to Sir Egidius Mallorre, and John Wydevylle, Knights of the Shire, who came to the said Parliament for the commonalty of the said shire, forty-two pounds and sixteen shillings, for their expenses in coming to the said Parliament, in staying there, and in going back thence to their homes; as is recorded in the rolls of our Chancery: And now, on behalf of certain men of the Hundred of Wardon, much complaining, it But the township has been shown to us that the township of Wardon, which is within the Hundred aforesaid, and which ought to pay towards these expenses of the Knights like as the other townships in the same Hundred do, and which has, from time beyond the memory of man, so before, been accustomed to pay its right share of the expenses of the said has now refused Knights, has altogether refused to pay, to the manifest burthening of the other townships of the said Hundred, and the hindering of the settlement of the expenses aforesaid : And so they have besought us to remain unsettled find them redress. Now we, being unwilling that the other townships It being wrong of that Hundred should be burthened more than is accustomed, command you to enforce upon the said township of Wardon the payment of its share of these expenses of the Knights aforesaid, like as the make the township other townships of the same Hundred have done, and as it has been right share. accustomed from of old time to do, according to the quantity of the lands and tenements there, and their means. And if the township If it will not, then shall still refuse to do this, then cause Robert Brewode, Stephen men of the place Hikkes, John Bole, and John Bocher, good men of the said township of Wardon,⁺ to come before us in our Chancery, on the fifteenth day show the reason for payment of the expenses of the Knights of the Shire for the Parliament that was summoned to meet on 3rd February, A.D. 1388; the sum being 42.l. 16.s.

of Wardon, in the Hundred of Wardon. though it ought to pay its share, and has always done to pay; whereby other places get burthened, and the accounts that other places should be over. burthened the Sheriff must of Wardon pay its

the four chosen must be sent up to London, to why:

* Because they separately paid their own members.

+ There can be no doubt that the four "good men" thus named, were the "four" chosen, by the men of the place, to represent the township at the Hundred-mote, and for other purposes touching the common welfare of the place, during the year 1388. I have elsewhere shown that this was the old (and thoroughly effective) practice throughout England. See "The Parish" (second edition), pp. 16-19 (particularly p. 19), 121, 230. I add here another illustration, which will be found in Manwood's "Forest Laws" (ed. 1615), p. 252:-" It is to be noted that all the freeholders within the forest, as wel Spirituall as Temporal, must in any wise appeare before the Justice seat, primo die Itineris. And [also] of euerie towne, the Reue and foure men also with him, which is called prepositus et quatuor homines, &c." It will thus be seen that neither the Reeve nor the four 136 of Law.

to obey the judg-

Dated 17th September, A D. 1388.

PAYMENT OF MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT.

after Michaelmas day next, wheresoever it may be, to show cause why the said township of Wardon should not pay its share of these expenses of the Knights as the other townships of the said Hundred have done, and they will have and further to do and undertake what our Court shall adjudge in this ment of the Court behalf. And herein fail not at your peril. And have with you there this writ. Witness myself at Cambridge, the 17th day of September, in the twelfth year of our reign.*

BURTONE.

chosen men were necessarily "freeholders." Domesday book, the Inquisitiones Nonarum, and every other original authority, prove that the ' villani," or occupiers of any sort, took their active part in the local affairs. There has been so much misrepresentation put forth on this subject by superficial writers, that the truth cannot be too often brought to notice. See further hereon in the Note to the Costomary of Tettenhall Regis, at the end of Part III. of this volume.

* This Writ was thus issued for recovery of the expenses of the Parliament held in the early part of the same year (1388) in which the Parliament of Cambridge was itself held, though, owing to the date of his accession, the former fell in the eleventh, and the latter in the twelfth, year of Richard II. The year 1388 thus happened to be one of the many years when the "offener if need be" was put in practice, -- according to the old law of Edward III., that a Parliament shall be held "every year once, and oftener if need be." Two Parliaments were held within that year, with, as was always then the case, a fresh election to each. Sir Egidius Mallorre and John Wydevylle are named in Prynne's Parl. Writs, vol. iii. p. 122, as members of the first Parliament of 1388, but neither of them was sent to the second Parliament of that year John Harowedon and John Mulsho were returned, in their stead, as members of the latter. Prynne found, and has printed, the records of the Writs issued for payment of the expenses of both these pairs of members (see Parl. Writs, vol. iv. pp. 397, 403), though he did not find the Writ which I have translated above.

II.

YORK.

(a) GILD OF THE LORD'S PRAYER.*

A^S to the beginning of the said gild, be it known that, once A play of the on a time, a play setting forth the set is a set of the setting for the on a time, a play, setting forth the goodness of the Lord's Lord's Prayer in the played in Prayer, was played in the city of York ; in which play all manner of vices and sins were held up to scorn, and the virtues were held up to praise. This play met with so much favour which much that many said :-- "Would that this play could be kept up in this city, for the health of souls and for the comfort of the citizens and neighbours." Hence, the keeping up of that play in and so this gild times to come, for the health and amendment of the souls as keep up the play. well of the upholders as of the hearers † of it, became the whole and sole cause of the beginning and fellowship of the bretheren of this brotherhood. And so the main charge of the gild is, to keep Therefore, its up this play, to the glory of God, the maker of the said prayer, heep up the play. and for the holding up of sins and vices to scorn. And because How only men those who remain in their sins are unable to call God their can truly call God their father. father, therefore the bretheren of the gild are, first of all, bound to shun company and businesses that are unworthy, and to keep Shun bad company themselves to good and worthy businesses. And they are bound and heep to good works, to pray for the bretheren and sisteren of the gild, both alive

Lord's Prayer was York.

eased the people:

was founded to

main charge is to

* CCCVIII, 109. Condition, fair. Latin.

+ "Audientium" in the original. This was therefore a spoken play, and not, as with the gild next following, a dumb show of set pieces in an array of pageants. In each case, however, it is equally clear that the performance, or show, was made whilst passing along the streets.

and dead, that the living shall be able so to keep the gild that Burial services shall be held.

The gild will not help any man who rushes rashly into law or quarrel.

Professions, without works, are vain ;

therefore, bretheren shall be helped, in case of robbery, fire, false imprisonment, or other mischance.

Lights shall be found.

A table shall be kept, showing the use of the Lord's Prayer.

Whenever the play is played, the gild shall ride with it through the streets, clad in livery:

and some of them shall keep order to the last.

they may deserve to win God's fatherhood, and that the dead may have their torments lightened. Also, they are bound to come to the burial services of the dead bretheren and sisteren of the gild. And if any one does not leave enough to meet the cost of such services, the rest of the bretheren shall bear that cost. And if any brother dies and is buried away from the city, the bretheren shall hold services for him within the city of York. Also it is forbidden that any brother of the gild shall, in the belief that he will have help from his bretheren, be forward in getting into lawsuit or quarrel, or in upholding any wrongful cause whatever, upon pain of losing all help and friendship, or any relief, from the gild. And because vain is the gathering of the faithful without some work of kindliness is done, therefore the bretheren have made this ordinance :--- That if haply it befall that any of the bretheren be robbed, or his goods or chattels perchance be burned, or he be imprisoned for any wrongful cause, or be brought to want through any visitation of God, the other bretheren shall, for kindness' sake, help him according to his need, under the guidance of the wardens of the gild, so that he may not haply perish through lack of help. Also, they are bound to find one candle-bearer, with seven lights, in token of the seven supplications in the Lord's Prayer; which candlebearer shall hang in the cathedral church of York, and be lighted on Sundays and feast days, to the glory and honour of God Almighty, the maker of that prayer, of St. Peter the glorious confessor, of St. William, and of all saints. Also they are bound to make, and as often as need be to renew, a table showing the whole meaning and use of the Lord's Prayer, and to keep this hanging against a pillar in the said cathedral church near to the aforesaid candle-bearer. Also they are bound, as often as the said play of the Lord's Prayer is played in the city of York, to ride with the players thereof through the chief streets of the city of York; and, the more becomingly to mark themselves while thus riding, they must all be clad in one suit. And, to ensure good order during the said play, some of the bretheren are bound to ride or to walk with the players until the play is wholly ended.

the gild during the last year. Also it is ordained, that no one his will to live rightly, and so to deal towards the gild and its affairs that he may be at one with the wardens. And because might not be wise enough to make, at once, all needful ordinances, therefore, at the end of the ordinances then made, they added of this gild, may become wiser than we now are, none of us nor our successors shall be deemed a rebel, or as standing out against our wishes or against those of any of our successors, if haply we put forth, or there shall be put forth at any time hereafter, any new ordinance that will be for the greater glory of God or the theren and sisteren of the gild, alive and dead, and for that of all the good-doers to the gild. Moreover, the bretheren are wont special prayers for the welfare of our lord the King and for the good governance of the kingdom of England, and for all the bretheren and sisteren of this gild, present and absent, alive and dead, and for all the good-docrs to the gild or to the gild-bretheren; and also, once in the year, to have a general service only the properties needed in the playing of the before-named

And once in the year a feast shall be held, and fresh wardens A feast shall be had and fresh shall be chosen by the gild, and a true account shall be given to officers chosen, and an account the newly chosen wardens of all that has been done on behalf of rendered.

shall be let come into this gild, until after he shall have been New-comers shall be pledged to a questioned by the wardens of the gild as to whether he has bent right life.

the founders of the said gild well knew that they themselves The founders were too wise to pretend to foresee everything:

this c'ause:----"Whensoever, and as often soever, as it may per- so they ordained that new orchance happen that we or our successors, wardens and bretheren dinances would be no treason.

welfare of this gild." Under which saving clause other wardens This wise care has been acted on of the gild have since added, that a chaplain shall, once a year, Divine service celebrate divine service before the gild, for the good of the bre- specially, to meet together at the end of every six weeks, and to put up and also once every six weeks.

for the dead bretheren and sisteren. There do not belong to the The gild has no lands; all it has gild any rents of land, nor any tenements, nor any goods save are the play-properties, play; which properties are of little or no worth for any other purpose than the said play. And the gild has one wooden chest, and a chest to keep them in. in which the said properties are kept.

[It is added that,] as the seals of the wardens of the gild will be unknown to many, they have asked that the seal of the Vicar-General of the Archbishop of York shall be put to this return; which has accordingly been done, in witness to the truth of the return, on the 21st January, 1388 [9].

The truth of the return is officially attested.

[The people of York seem to have been fond of plays and pageants. Though nothing more is found touching any of these in the Returns made by the gilds in 1389, there is, in the British Museum (Lansdowne MSS. 403), a volume containing the ordinances of a very famous gild of that city, which long kept up an extraordinary annual show of pageants.* It seems to have been founded by the priests of York; and these ordinances, instead of being written in the unadorned simplicity of those contained in Part I. of this work, and of most of the others that were sent up with them, show themselves to have been drawn up by some learned ecclesiastic, more anxious for the display of his rhetorical powers than to bring himself to the level of men of common sense. They begin with a tedious scholastic disquisition upon the creation of man, the fall, what thence followed, the mystery of Christ as appearing in the flesh and in the eucharist, subtle illustrations of the unity of Christ's body and of the bretheren, and the seven rules of charity upon which it is declared that the Gild is founded. Then follow the ordinances themselves; the marked meagreness of which shows that, though the priest who wrote them might be equal to all manner of scholastic subtleties, he was not able to bring himself to the level of the ordinary common sense and good feeling of the laity in framing a body of gild-ordinances. The following is the substance of these ordinances :---]

* This MS. fills a parchment volume, eleven and a quarter inches long, by seven and a quarter wide, containing 154 leaves. Besides what follows. it contains ten lists of jewels, &c., belonging to the gild, and one list giving a "Memod bt thes er be personelles off Iowelles bt standethe voon be Schryne off corporis Christi." There are also a few other unimportant documents. The ordinances are in Latin. It is clear that several copies of these ordinances, &c., were formerly in existence; for Drake names one in his History of York (p. 246), which is certainly not the one that is now in the British Museum.

(b) GILD OF CORPUS CHRISTI.

The brotherhood was begun A.D. 1408.

The gild was begun A.D. 1403.

The first ordinance is, that on the feast of Corpus Christi, all the priests in their surplices, and the masters carrying white Every year, there shall be a prowands, shall go in stately procession, to the glory of God and of cession. the city of York.

The second ordinance is, that six priests, bretheren of the Six priests shall be vearly chosen fraternity, shall be yearly chosen [as Masters]. Whoever refuses. for masters. shall pay xl.d. to the brotherhood. The six priests thus chosen shall have the governance of the whole gild and of all that is needful for it.

The third ordinance is, that those wishing to enter the New-comers shall not take any oath . brotherhood shall be received by the six masters. They shall but they shall not be bound by any kind of oath, but shall of their own will sciences charged come into the brotherhood, without any bond other than the bond of charity; charging, however, their consciences that, according to their means and power, they shall so do that their coming into the gild may enable the charges of the gild, and its worthy works, to be the better borne and kept up.

The fourth ordinance enjoins upon the priests the saying of Services for the living and the daily pravers, and the performance of services after the death of dead. any brother.

The fifth ordinance requires that the lay bretheren of the gild Laymen shall pay; and may shall make offerings for the souls of the dead. But it adds that, pray; but they shall have no although laymen may come to the prayers, and be received into the gild, they shall not be let take any share in the councils or in the governance of the gild. No lay folks shall be admitted to the gild, save only those belonging to some honest craft; but all, as well clerks as lay folks, and of both sexes, will be received, if of good fame and conversation.

The sixth ordinance fixes the regular payments to be made Payments to be by the bretheren and sisteren; and requires that all shall, under penalty of a fine, come when summoned. It also enjoins have their conto make payments to the gild.

141

share in the management of the gild.

the holding of certain services, and that payments shall be made by the gild to those who officiate thereat.

Lights shall be borne.

No children nor servants allowed. Old masters shall help the new ones, and an account shall be given before a select few. The seventh ordinance treats of lights that are to be borne at times named, and of the annual payments that are to be made for these. It goes on to forbid the coming of children or servants to the meetings of the gild. The six masters of the past year are told to give what help they can to the newly chosen masters of each new year, with a special charge that they shall let them know the dwellings of the bretheren and sisteren from whom they are to get payments. Twopence a day, or his food, shall be given to the collector; for (it is wisely said) "the laborer is worthy of his hire or his food." And it is ordained that the six masters for the time being shall annually, in the presence of their six fore-runners, and of six or eight other priests, and not more, who have before been masters, give an account of the goods of the gild to those who are chosen to follow them.

NOTE.-Though the character of these ordinances could not have drawn many to join the gild, the way in which a procession of pageants was got up by the many crafts of York, to join with the procession of the priests, gave to the gild an importance which it could not otherwise have reached. The MS. in the British Museum shows that an extraordinary number, of both sexes, did join it. No less than 270 pages of the folio volume are filled with the names of the bretheren and sisteren. There are, on an average, fifty-five names on each page, thus making a total recorded number of bretheren and sisteren of not less than 14,850. That this gild should have become so popular, can only be explained by two things: first, the love of show and pageant which it gratified; second, a departure from the very narrow spirit of the original ordinances. That the latter underwent changes, is proved by a MS. in the Bodleian Library, which informs us that, when it was written (which was probably in the last years of Henry VIII. or first of Edward VI.), the gild had "a master and six priests, called the keepers of the said gild. Which master and keepers be yerely removeable with the octabes of the feast of Corpus Christi; and have for themselves no allowance nor fees. [This is not true.] Nevertheless, they are bound to keep a solempne procession, the sacrament being in a shryne born in the same through the city of York, yerely, the Fryday after Corpus Christi day; and, the day after, to have a solempne mass and dirige, to pray for the prosperity of brothers and sisters lyving and the souls departed; and to keep yerely ten poor folks, having, every of them, towards their lyvinge, by yere, iij.l. vi.s. viii.d. And further they do find eight beds for poor people being strangers, and one poor woman to keep the said beds, by the yere, xij s. iv.d."*

A memorandum left by an old town-clerk of York \dagger shows that the procession which fills so humble a place in the "ordinances," was taken up with so much spirit by the lay craftsmen of York that, in 1415, no less than ninety-six separate crafts joined in it, and no less than fifty-four distinct pageants were prepared and presented in the procession by these crafts, while ten crafts made the show the more glorious by bearing a vast number of blazing torches. Of the fifty-four pageants thus carried through the streets of York, eleven had their subjects taken from the Old Testament; all the rest were taken from the New Testament.

[That this gild was held in high esteem, is proved by the following very curious deed, of which a copy is found in the before-named MS. in the British Museum. While this deed assures us of the alteration made in the governing body, as found from the MS. in the Bodleian Library, it does not entrust to the priests themselves, although bretheren of the gild, the performance of the services named, but the whole gild is made the Trustee for assuring the performance of those services for ever; an assurance which the lapse of a few years showed to have been but another illustration of the vanity of the closest tied settlements that human ingenuity can contrive : -7

(c) AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE PRIOR OF THORNHOLM AND THE GILD OF CORPUS CHRISTI.

This Indentur tripartite, ‡ made the twenty dey of Aprile, ²⁰ April, A.D. the yere of our lorde godd a thowsaunde fyve hundreth and fourteyn, betwix Sir Robert Lelegraue, Maister of the Fraternyte

- * Quoted in Drake's "History of York," p. 246.
- + Also quoted by Drake, Appendix, pp. xxx-xxxij.

[‡] This word is here used in a sense quite different from that in which it is now used. Instead of meaning that there were three persons, or bodies, as parties to the indenture, it means that three copies of the indenture itself were made on one skin of parchment, and then separated by the indenting knife. and Gilde of Corpus Christi, within the City of york foundett, and the brethern of the same, vppon the oon party, and Thomas

Tanfelde, prior of the house or priory of our lady of Thorneholm in the County of Lyncoln, vppon the other party; Witnessyth, that it is Accorded, Accovenanted, and fully Aggreid, betwix the said parties, for a yerely obite to be made within the Chappelle [of Seynt Thomas of Canturbury]* without Mikkillithbarr, in the Suburbes of the City of yorke, for euermore, in maner and forme folowyng. And for the perpetualle contynuance yerof,

The Prior pays money to the gild for certain services in perpetuity.

While he lives, the prior will bear the charge of these services.

paying the master and keepers of the gild, the chapelpriest, the bedel, the cost of bread and ale, the bell man of York, &c.

the seyd Thomas hath paid, the day of makyng hereof, vnto the seid Maister and brethern, a certen somme of money towardes the supportacion and help of the seid Gilde. Firste, the seid Thomas Tanfelde covenantes and grauntes, by thies presentes, for to cause a yerely obite to be soigne within the Chappelle of Seynt Thomas aforeseid, by the Maister and kepers of the Fraternyte and Gilde aforeseid, and by the preist of the seid Chappelle for tyme beyng, for the saules of Iohn Tanfelde and Agnes hys wyfe, Fader and moder vnto the seid Thomas, hys kynfalkes, benefactour;, and alle crysten saules, vppon wedensday in the secund weik of lent, or within Eghte daye next afore or aftyr the same day, as best may falle, euere yere duryng the naturall lyffe of the seid Thomas. For the whiche obite, the seid Thomas covenantes and grauntes, by thie3 presentes, for to pay or cause to be paid yerely duryng hys seid lyff, the seid day of obite, vnto the Maisster of the seid Gilde, four pens; And to every of the sex kepers of the same Gilde, tuppens; And to the preist of the seid Chappelle, foure pens; And to the beddell of the seid Gilde, Tuppens; And for brede to be distributed emonges pure folkes of the seid Chappelle, foure pens; And for brede and ale to be expend emonges the Maister, kepers, and preist afore-seid, atte seid deregy, foure pens; And to the belman of the City of yorke pronownsyng the seid obite, foure pens; And for a hedmesse penny, a penny; And vnto the Curate of Seynt

Michaelle kyrke, att ouse-bryg-End within the City of yorke, prayng for the saules of the seid Iohn Tanfeld and Agnes hys wvff verely vppon Sondays by hys bederolle in the pulpitt, and for sayng a messe of Requiem for the saules abouenamed in the seid kirke atte seid day of obite, Eght pens; And to the seid Curate, and kirke-wardeyns of the seid kyrke for tyme beyng, for to be distributed in Almosse emonges pure folkes of the seid pariche beyng atte seid yerely obite and Messe, thyrteyn pens. And, aftir the decesse of the seid Thomas Tanfelde, the seid After the prior's death, the gild Maister and brethern covenantes and grauntes by thie; presentes, undertakes the that the Maister and sex kepers, and the preist of the seid Chap- all the same paypelle for tyme beyng, shalle syng ye seid yerely obite within the seid Chappelle, for the saules of the seid Thomas Tanfeld, John Tanfeld and Agnes hys wyfe, there kynsfolkes, benefactour, and for alle crysten saules, vppon weddensday in the secunde weik of lent, or within eight days next afore or aftir the seid weddensday, as best may falle, yerely for euermore, atte custages and charges of the seid Maister and brethern of the seid Gilde and yer successours, to be made for euermore in maner and forme foloyng:-That is to say, the seid Maister and brethern covenantes and grauntes, and by thie; presentes, for to pay or cause to be pavd yerely for euermore, atte seid day of obite, vnto the Maister of the seid Gilde for tyme beyng, iiij.d.; and to euere of hys sex kepers, ij.d.; And to the preist of the seid Chappelle, iiij.d.; And to the beddelle of the seid Gilde, ij.d.; And for brede to be distributed emonges pure folkes of the seid Chappelle, iiii.d.: And for brede and ale to be expend emonges the Maister, kepers, and preist aforeseid, atte seid deregy, iiij.d.; And to the belman of the City of yorke, pronownsyng the seid obite, iiij.d.; And a hedmasse penny; And to the Curate of Saynt Michaelle kyrke, atte ousebryg-end within the City of yorke, prayng for the saules of the seid Thomas Tanfeld, John Tanfeld and Agnes, hys Fader and moder, openly by name, vppon sondays att Messe in the pulpitt by hys bederolle, And also for sayng a Messe of Requiem for ye saules afore-sayd, the seid day of obite, within the seid kyrke of Seynt Michaelle, Eight pens; And to the seid

^{*} A line is drawn in the MS. through the words here put within brackets; but it must have been done through carelessness, as the same chapel is named again below, with the word "aforesaid" after it.

The gild binds itself to fulfil its undertakings, or to pay a penalty for every neglect.

pariche beyng yerely atte seid obite and Messe, xiij.d. Vnto the which obite sothly yerely, and to alle and syngler covenantes and grauntes and paymentes yerely for euermore aftir the decesse of ye seid Thomas, welle truly and faythfully to be observed, kept, and fullfillyd, by the seid Maister and brethern and yer successours as is afore-seid, the seid Maister and brethern byndes them-self and yer successour; by thie; presentes, vnto the seid Thomas and his executour, and vnto the seid Curate and kirkewardeyns and yer successourz, in x.s. of laufull englyshe money, in the name of a payn forfett, and to be payd to the vse and proffitt of the kyrk wark of Seynt Michaelle aforesaid, as aft tymes as the seid Maister and kepers and yer successour; shalbe remyssyve, negligent, and forgitt to syng the seid yerely obite, atte seid day and place hereaftir, And as oft tymes as the seid Maister and brethern and yer successour; pay not all and syngyller somme, and particuler paymentes afore-seid by yem aboue covenanted and graunted. In witness hereof, vnto twoo parties of thes indentour; triparted, remanyng with the seid Thomas Tanfelde and the seid Curate and kirke-wardeyns, the seid Maister and brethern hath putt ver common seale; And vnto the thirde partye of thie₃ seid Indentour₃, remanyng with the seid Maister and brethern, ye seid Thomas hase putt-to hys seale. Yevyn atte halle of the seid Gilde, the day and yere aboue seid.

GILD OF ST. JOHN BAPTIST, YORK.

Curate and kyrke-wardeyns of the seid kyrke for tyme beyng, for to be distributed in Almos emonges pure folkes of the seid

(d) GILD OF ST. JOHN BAPTIST.*

Brotherly love to be cherished. Help shall be given to those fallen mto want.

Yearly service by a chaplain.

None shall use the gild's name to cover any wrongdoing.

The first charge of this gild is, to cherish brotherly love. And if any brother falls into want, so that he cannot maintain himself, he shall have, for kindness' sake, sevenpence every week from the gild. Service shall, once a year, be celebrated by a chaplain, for all the brethren, living and dead. No brother shall be so bold as to do wrong to any one, thinking that the gild will back him up. If he does, he shall be put out of the gild for ever. Every brother binds himself that, if he is wroth with How quarrela brother, without reasonable cause, he shall pay, the first time, a pound of wax; the second time, two pounds of wax; and, if he forgets himself yet a third time, he shall do what the wardens of the gild, with twelve of the brethren, shall ordain, or be put out of the gild. The affairs of the gild shall not be told to any one, unless for the good of the gild. The gild has no goods told. other than what are raised by yearly payments. Dated at York, the 22nd day of January, A.D. 1388 [9].

* CCCVIII. 67. Condition, fair. Latin.

[There is no other Return from any gild in the City of York, among what remain of the Returns sent up in January, 1389.]

makers shall be dealt with.

> The wardens and twelve breti ren shall be the last appeal.

The affairs of the gild shall not be The gild has no goodsbeyond yearly payments.

III.

BEVERLEY.

(a) GILD OF ST. ELENE.* This Gild was founded, by persons named in the return, on chosen every year. At the year's end, the alderman and stewards, and the bretheren and sisteren of the gild, meet together, on the

And an old man goes before this youth, carrying a cross, and another old man carrying a shovel, in token of the finding of the Holy Cross.⁺ The sisteren of the gild follow after, two and two;

and then the bretheren, two and two; and then the two stewards; and after all follows the alderman. And so, all fairly clad, they go in procession, with much music, to the church of the Friars Minors of Beverley; and there, at the altar of St. Elene, solemn penny. The mass ended, and all prayers said, they go home;

May 3rd, A.D. 1378. An alderman and two stewards are

The gild was begun A.D. 1378.

Officers chosen yearly. Meeting of the gild every year.

A youth is dressed feast of St. Elene. And then a fair youth, the fairest they can up like St. Elene. find, is picked out, and is clad as a queen, like to St. Elene.

An old man bearing a cross, and another bearing a shovel, go before him. Then come the sisteren; then the bretheren; followed by the stewards and the alderman. The procession goes, with music. to church. mass is celebrated, and every one of the gild makes offering of a Mass is celebrated.

and, after dinner, all the gild meet in a room within the hall of After dinner, they all go to the gildand drink.

Then they choose an alderman and two stewards for the next year.

hall, and there eat the gild; and there they eat bread and cheese, and drink as much ale as is good for them. Afterwards, they choose, by unanimous assent, out of the best men of the gild, an alderman and two stewards for the next year; and to these must be handed over all the goods of the gild. The alderman and stewards are bound to maintain two, three, or four bedridden poor folks while

Bedridden poor

* CCCVIII. 40. Condition, good. Latin.

+ As to the story of the finding of the Holy Cross, see the Note upon the Gild of the Holy Cross of Stratford-upon-Avon, further on.

GILD OF ST. MARY, BEVERLEY.

they live; and, when these die, they must bury them, and choose must be mainothers in their place, and in like manner maintain them. Three wax lights are kept burning every Sunday and feast day, in Lights, and services for the dead honour of St. Elene; and at the morning mass of Christmas day, thirteen wax lights are burnt. There are services for the dead, and offerings. Any money in hand at the end of the year, Application of early surplus is spent in repairing the chapel of the gild, and in gifts to the funds. poor.

(b) GILD OF St. MARY.*

This gild was founded, by persons named in the return, on The gild was begun A.D. 1355. January 25th, A.D. 1355.

There shall be an alderman and two stewards of the gild, who Officers of the shall manage its affairs according to what the bretheren and sisteren shall have agreed. The bretheren and sisteren shall each Payments on entry. pay, on entry, towards the expenses of the gild, five shillings, and one pound of wax, or more. Every year, on the feast of the Yearly meeting. Purification of the blessed Mary, all the bretheren and sisteren shall meet together in a fit and appointed place, away from the church; and there, one of the gild shall be clad in comely A pageant shall be prepared. fashion as a queen, like to the glorious Virgin Mary, having what may seem a son in her arms; and two others shall be clad like to Joseph and Simcon; and two shall go as angels, carrying a candle-bearer, on which shall be twenty-four thick wax lights. With these and other great lights borne before them, and with which shall go in procession to the much music and gladness, the pageant Virgin with her son, and church, with music and gla I-Joseph and Simeon, shall go in procession to the church. And ness. all the sisteren of the gild shall follow the Virgin; and afterwards all the bretheren; and each of them shall carry a wax light weighing half a pound. And they shall go two and two, slowly pacing to the church; and when they have got there, the pageant Virgin shall offer her son to Simeon at the high altar: and all the sisteren and bretheren shall offer their wax lights. together with a penny each. All this having been solemnly done.

* CCCVIII. 104. Condition, fair; but a large piece destroyed. Latin.

Any one not coming shall be fined.

After dinner all shall meet and enjoy themselves and afterwards shall choose fresh officers.

Services for the dead. Poor, ailing, weak, and needy bretheren, shall be visited and helped.

they shall go home again with gladness. And any brother or sister who does not come, unless good cause for staying away be shown, shall pay half a pound of wax to the gild. On the same day, after dinner, the bretheren and sisteren shall meet together, and shall eat bread and cheese and drink ale, rejoicing in the Lord, in praise of the glorious Virgin Mary; and they shall then and there choose, with the assent of the elder part of the bretheren and sisteren of the gild, an alderman and stewards for the next year, who shall at once undertake the affairs of the gild. Prayers and offerings shall be given for the dead. The alderman and stewards of the gild shall visit those bretheren and sisteren who are poor, ailing, or weak, and who have not enough of their own to live upon; and they shall give to these as they think right out of the gild stock, as has been agreed; namely, to each one so being poor, ailing, or weak, eightpence, sixpence, or at least fourpence, every week, to help their needs. And if any of those poor bretheren dies, or any other of the gild who is not well off, he shall be buried at the cost of the gild, and have all becoming services.

Poor bretheren shall be buried at the cost of the gild.

(c) THE GREAT GILD OF ST. JOHN OF BEVERLEY OF THE HANSHOUSE.*

[This is one of the very few of the returns remaining in the Record Office, of those that were made under the Writ (b), from Gilds of Crafts. It gives us, therefore, no ordinances : nothing but a few, though highly interesting, Charters. The earliest of these is the following :-+1

* CCCVIII. 108. Condition, partly fair; partly bad. Latin.

+ The absence of any ordinances, in the returns made by this and the like Gilds, is much to be regretted. The ordinances of the Gilds of Crafts would be of quite as much interest as those of the Social Gilds. I have recovered, from the heretofore unknown archives of the city of Exeter, the original ordinances of three Craft-Gilds, which will be found under the head of "Exeter," further on in this Part II. Of the returns made under the Writ (b) [before, p. 130], a more complete and characteristic example, or one more historically valuable, could not be given than the present return from Beverley.

ishop Thurstan.

to the men of

Thurstan,* by the grace of God Archbishop of York, to all Charter of Archthe faithful in Christ, as well now as hereafter, Greeting; and God's blessing and his own.

Be it known to you that I have given and granted, and, with Grant of liberties the advice of the Chapter of York and Beverley and of my Beverley, the same as are held barons, have by my charter confirmed, to the men of Beverley, by the men of York. all liberties, with the same laws that the men of York have in their city. Moreover, be it not unknown to you that the Lord King Herry has empowered lum to Henry our king [Henry I.] has, with a good will, granted to us make this charter. the power of making this [charter]; and has, by his own charter, confirmed our statutes and our laws, after the manner of the laws of the burgesses of York, saving what behaves to God and St. John and myself and the canons; that so he might uphold and enlarge the honour of the alms-deeds of his predecessors. With all these free customs, I will that my burgesses of Beverley shall The burgesses hall have their have their "Hanshus;" which I give and grant to them in Hanshouse. order that therein their common business may be done, + in honour of God and St. John and the canons, and for the amendment of the whole town, with the same freedom that the men of York have in their "Hanshus." I also grant to them toll for Right of toll is granted to them. ever, for xviij. marks a year; saving on the three feasts on save on three feast, and the canons, namely, on the feast be toll-free. which toll belongs to us and the canons, namely, on the feast of St. John the Confessor in May, and the feast of the Translation of St. John, and the Nativity of St. John Baptist. On these three

* A copy of Thurstan's charter, a translation of which now follows, is given in the enlarged edition of Rymer's Feedera (1816, vol. i. p. 10), and another in Poulson's "Beverlac," vol. i. p. 51. The compilers of those works were, however, none of them aware of the existence of the MS. which I am now using. There are many variances between their copies of Thurstan's charter and that which is translated above. Both profess to copy from a MS. in the Tower. But the original charter could only be in right custody among the archives of Beverley. In the absence of the original charter in such right custody, the MS. which I now use would be the only legal evidence of its contents, having been made under order of Parliament, and by the men of Beverley themselves, and being now found in the proper custody. I therefore follow its terms throughout.

+ The phrase in the original is, "ut ibi sua statuta pertractent;" the sense of which is better expressed by the physics given above than it would he by any more literal translation.

feasts I have made all the burgesses of Beverley free and quit of every toll. This charter also bears witness, that I have granted to the same burgesses free right of coming in and going out; namely, within the town and beyond the town, in plain and

They shall have every right of way, in town and out of town.

They shall be as free of toll throughout Yorkshire as the men of York are.

Every gainsayer of this charter shall be accursed.

Witnesses.

wood and marsh, in ways and paths and other easements,--save in meadows and corn-fields,-as good, free, and large as any one can grant and confirm. And know ye, that they shall be free and quit of any toll through the whole shire of York, like as the men of York are. And I will that whosoever gainsays* this shall be accursed, as the manner of cursing is in the church of St. John, and as shall be adjudged in the church of St. John. These are the witnesses : -- Geoffry Mirdoc, Nigel ffossard, Arnald + Perci, Walter Spec, Eustace son of John, Thomas the provost §, Turstin the archdeacon, Herbert the canon ||, William the son of Tole, William of Bajus ;- before the household, both clergy and laity, of the Archbishop in York¶.

Charter of Archbishop William.

[This charter is followed by another, granted by Archbishop William, the successor of Thurstan, confirming, though in different words, the substance of the former charter, and granting free burgage to the town and burgesses, and that they shall have a Gild Merchant and the right of holding pleas among themselves, the same as the men of York have among themselves.

Grant of Gild. Merchant, and right of holding pleas in Beverley.

Then follows a confirmation of these two charters, by Pope Lucius III., in the following words :--]

* In my MS, the word is "despicerit;" in Rymer it is "disfecerit;" in Poulson it is "dissecerit," which is probably only a misprint for the same word as Rymer gives.

† ''Alan de," in Rymer.	‡ '' Tom," in Rymer.
§ See the Note + before, p. 135.	"Herbert can," in Rymer.

¶ Thurstan was chosen Archbishop of York on August 14th, A.D. 1114. It is said, in the "Chronological Index" to Rymer, that this charter was granted A.D. 1132; but no authority is given for fixing on that particular year.

 There were two bishops of Rome in the two lfth century of this name. Lucius II. was chosen on March 12th, 1144, and died February 25th, 1145. Lucius III. was chosen September 1st, 1181, and died November 24th, 1185. The Lucius who made this charter must have been Lucius III.; for Henry, "rex Anglorum," is spoken of as if then living, and this can only have been Henry II., whose reign began in 1154, and ended in 1189.

Lucius, Bishop, servant of the servants of God, to his beloved Pope Lucius III., children the men of Beverley, Greeting and Apostolic Benediction. The charge which we have undertaken moves us to listen, and listens to right readily to yield, to the right wishes of those who ask ; and our well-known kindness urges us to do so. And because we make the Redeemer of all men propitious to us when we give careful heed to the just demands of the faithful in Christ, therefore, beloved children in the Lord, giving ready assent to what you and confirms the liberties granted ask, Your Liberties, and the free customs which Thurstan and by Archbishoj s hurstan and William of happy memory, Archbishops of York, are known to William, have piously and lawfully granted to you, as is found in authentic writings made by them, which have been confirmed by our already confirmed by Henry II., dearest son in Christ, Henry, the illustrious king of the English, King of the English." We do, by our apostolic authority, confirm ; and, by help of this present writing, we do strengthen : decreeing that no man shall disregard this our confirmation, or be so rashly bold as do aught against it. And if any one dares to do this, let him know that he will bring down on himself the wrath of Almighty God, and of the blessed Peter and Paul, Apostles. Dated, xiij. kalends of September [20th August; no year is given].

[This confirmation by Pope Lucius III. is followed by a very Inspeximus long charter of Richard II., dated January 30th, A.D. 1379. It Richard II.; is what is called an inspeximus charter, and is of curious historical interest, inasmuch as it sets forth (as having been 'inspected') charters of Edward the Third, Edward the Second, John, Edward the First, Henry the Third, Richard I., Henry the Second, and Henry the First, with the names of the witnesses to several H. I., in. III., and II. I.; of them; many of the latter being names illustrious in the history of England. These charters confirmed the liberties granted by the charters of Archbishops Thurstan and William, and also, in express terms, the rights of the Gild-Merchant to toll, Hans-The object of the charter of Richard II. is, to and confirming the house, etc. hole of them. re-affirm all the charters which it states to have been thus 'inspected *.']

* No mention is made, in Poulson's "Beverlac," of the confirmation by Pope Lucius ; nor are the Letters Patent of Richard II. set forth in that elaborate and interesting work.

reciting charters of Kings Ed. 111., Ed. 11., John,

(d) GILD OF CORPUS CHRISTI.*

In Beverley, as in York, there was a gild of Corpus Christi:

The gild was founded to hold a yearly procession.

The celebration of Corpus Christi was begun in the latter part of the thirteenth century.

Help to those in want. Quarrels must be settled by the gild. the main object of which was there, as in York, to have a yearly procession of pageants † It was, like that of York, made up of both clergy and laity. The ordinances begin by stating that the "solemnity and service" of Corpus Christi were begun, as a new thing, by command of Pope Urban iiij. and John xxij. * The ordinances are of a much more common-sense and liberal character than those of the Gild of Corpus Christi of York. Help is to be given to bretheren falling into want. In case of quarrel between any bretheren, the rest of the gild must use their endeavours to restore a good understanding between the quarrellers.

* CCCVIII, 110. Condition, fair ; but a large piece destroyed. Latin.

+ See some account of these in Poulson's "Beverlac," pp. 268-275.

± It is usually stated that Urban, alone, founded this celebration. He was Pope from August 1261 to October 1264. John was Pope from August 1316 to December 1334.

IV.

KINGSTON-UPON-HULL

[In the bundles of returns as to English Gilds now remaining in the Public Record Office, there are three from Kingstonupon-Hull. All the three have one characteristic, which marks them out from most of these returns. Instead of giving a copy of ordinances, with the other particulars asked for by the writ, each of the three gives the copy of an original charter, or deed of foundation, by which the gild was endowed, and in which certain ordinances were set forth by the founders. Each of the three, though all are alike in this respect, differs widely from the others in details. All are long. A full summary of the most complete of them shall therefore be here given. A shorter outline of the others will be enough to show the differences that existed, in the same place, in the views taken by the independent and self-reliant men who founded these gilds.]

(a) GILD OF THE BLESSED VIRGIN MARY.*

This gild was founded on Sunday, the 23rd July, A.D. 1357. The gild was begun The names of the twenty-two founders are given ; of whom there It was founded by are ten men and twelve women, nine of the latter being wives of founders, and three not so.† The founders charge their estates Yearly payments with the yearly payment to the gild, from each married couple, and from each single man and woman, of two shillings and two-

A D. 1357

* CCCVIII. 105. Condition, fair. Latin.

+ It will be seen, by the closing paragraph of this deed, that after it had been prepared, but before it was formally sealed, the wife of another of the founders joined the gild, thus making thirteen women, ten of them being wives, among the founders.

pence in silver, to be paid quarterly; and if any such payment is in arrear (which God forbid), the warden of the gild is em-

Arrears may be distramed for.

New-comers shall pay the same.

One payment is enough for man and wife, the survivor being bound to continue Defaulters living outside the town shall be fined ; and, at the last. be put out of the જાોતે.

Liability of sureties.

If a debtor misbehaves, he shall pay double.

powered to distrain upon the goods of the defaulter. When, with the assent of the whole gild, any fresh man and wife enter the gild, they shall together pay two shillings and twopence yearly during their lives, and afterwards the survivor shall pay the same sum. If an unmarried man or an unmarried woman enters the gild, each shall be bound to make the same yearly payment. If any brother or sister afterwards marries, the gild will take one payment of two shillings and twopence for man and wife together, upon the condition that the charge remains upon whichever of the two shall survive the other. Any brother or sister living outside the town, and not making payment on a day certain, fixed by himself, shall be fined one pound of wax the first time, and two pounds of wax the second time; and whoever is thus in default a third time, shall be put out of the gild, and outlawed, unless special grace be given. If any one of the gild becomes surety for another of the gild, that any debt due to the gild shall be paid on a day certain, and the debt is not paid, and the debtor has no goods, the sum shall be levied upon the surety. without any plea or delay. If any debtor or his surety is abusive, either in word or deed, and refuses payment when the wardens seek this, then double the amount of the debt shall be levied, unless grace be given.

An alderman. steward, and two help-men shall act in the name of the gild.

When an alderman and steward have been chosen, they shall take two of the more discreet men of the gild to help them; and all the gild shall abide by what the alderman and steward and their two help-men may do in the name of the gild.

Help shall be given to those in need, and able to work, to enable them to follow their callings.

If it befall that any of the gild, either a brother or an unmarried sister, being young and able to work, has, through mishap, become so poor that help is much needed, there shall be paid to him, out of the goods of the gild, as a free grant for one year, ten shillings, to enable him to follow his own calling in such manner as he thinks best.* And if, owing to weakness or any other cause that may be excused, he is not able to earn back the ten shillings during the first year, he shall be let keep the money for another year. If at the end of the two years he is not able to earn back the ten shillings, nor to make increase thereupon, nor to live on his own, he may keep the money for vet another year, in order that he may make a profit out of it. If at the end of the third year he is unable to earn back, beyond what is his own, the ten shillings with an increase, then the money shall be wholly released to him.

* The original words of this phrase are, "ad mercandisandum ad opus suum proprium, prout sibi melius viderit expedire."

If it happen that any of the gild becomes infirm, bowed, blind, dumb, deaf, maimed, or sick, whether with some lasting or only temporary sickness, and whether in old age or in youth, or be so borne down by any other mishap that he has not the means of living, then, for kindness' sake, and for the souls' sake of the founders, it is ordained that each shall have, out of the goods of the gild, at the hands of the wardens, sevenpence every week; and every one so being infirm, bowed, blind, dumb, deaf, maimed, or sick, shall have that sevenpence every week as long as he lives. If any of these poor and infirm folks should get so low The yearly payin the world that he cannot pay the before-named yearly charge of two shillings and twopence, and has no goods on which it may help thus given. be levied, then part of the weekly payment of sevenpence shall be set aside, so that the quarterly payments towards the two shillings and twopence shall be fully made, and so that on no account shall that yearly payment be released. But if any brother or sister of the gild wishes, at any time, to make a be released from pilgrimage to the Holy Land, then, in order that all the gild away. may share in his pilgrimage, he shall be fully released from his yearly payment until his return.

Whoever is afflicted shall have help from the gild during life.

each, shall be taken out of the

A pilgrim to the Holy Land shall payments while

All the bretheren and sisteren shall meet in the chapel of the The gild shall meet at times Virgin Mary on Assumption day, to make offerings. Whoever stated. does not come, unless for reasonable cause, shall pay a pound of wax. And, under the same penalty for absence, all the bretheren and sisteren shall come to the burial and other services, on the death of any brother or sister.

If any brother or sister be rebel or foul-mouthed at any Punishment for misbehaviour at any meeting. Punishment for trying to defraud the gild.

Any one guilty of felony shall be put out of the gild.

Any one bringing discredit on the gild shall be put out.

None so put out shall have any claim on the gild.

meeting of the gild, he shall pay a pound of wax. If any of the gild cheats the wardens as to any matter of payment due, or profits made, or fine, and it is proved, and yet he stands it out, he shall pay two pounds of wax, unless he have grace. Moreover, if any brother or sister be found charged under any articles* touching felony, such as robbery, man-killing, houseburning, assault, plunder, rape, prison-breach, counterfeiting money, forswearing the realm, conspiracy, treason, harbouring thieves, outlawry, sorcery, heresy, or any other felony touching life or limb (which God forbid), then it is ordained that every such brother and sister be, without any delay, altogether put out from this gild. And also, if any man or woman t of the gild shall ever be found to be a blackguard, ‡ lover of law-suits, libeller, bully, night-walker, destroyer of goods, liar, harlot, excommunicate, or guilty of any other crime injurious to the good name of the gild and the bretheren thereof, he shall, unless sooner punished by the law, be put out of the gild. And if any of these evil-doers, or their heirs or executors, or any other in their name, make claim to any share of the goods and chattels of the gild, or demand a division thereof, it is ordained that every such claim will be wholly void and of none effect, and that no claim of the kind can be maintained before any judge, ecclesiastical or civil.

Quarrels shall be settled by the gild. If any of the bretheren or sisteren quarrels with any other

* This refers to the Articles of Inquiry which at that time were regularly and frequently made in every Court Leet, Sheriff's Tourn, &c. I have elsewhere published many examples of the use of these Articles of Inquiry. See "The Parish" (second edition), pp. 19, 23, 105, 367-372, 463; "Local Self-Government," p. 298; "The Law of Nuisances" (fourth edition) pp. 5-11.

+ The usual phrase "frater vel soror" is here changed to "masculus vel femella,"-as if the founders of the gild found it painful even to contemplate the possibility that any who had once been called by the more endcaring name of brother or sister of the gild, should do such bad things.

[‡] The original is "malefactor," i.e. bad-doer. I do not think it was used in its modern very limited sense; and "blackguard" no doubt comes nearest to what was meant. The context shows this.

(which God forbid), it is ordained that, inasmuch as the gild was founded to cherish kindness and love, the alderman, steward, The alderman, and two help-men, shall deal with the matter, and shall earnestly men, shall (under strive to make the quarrellers agree together, without any suit try to settle every or delay, and so that no damage, either to body or goods, shall in any wise happen through the quarrel; under penalty of four pounds of wax, to be paid equally by the alderman, steward, and help-men, or some of them, unless they have grace. And if the quarrellers will not obey the summons of these four officers, Penalty on the nor settle their quarrel in a reasonable manner, then the one fault, it he will who is found most in fault shall pay four pounds of wax, unless he have grace. Moreover, if the alderman, steward, and two help-men are unable to agree in a matter of this sort, or in any The whole gild other matter touching the welfare of the gild, then all and every officers do not of the gild shall be summoned and meet, and the matter in any other matter. difference shall be discussed before them, and be referred to them for settlement.

steward, and helppenalty for neglect) quarreller most in shall decide, if the agree on this or

If the wife of any brother dies in her husband's lifetime, No payment shall be made on the and the same brother afterwards marries again, as is natural and admission of a econd wife to the often done,* the second wife shall become a sister of the gild gild. without any fine or payment.

Whenever any fresh brother or sister wishes to come into the The ordinances gild, it is ordained that, before being received, all the ordinances to every fresh here set down shall be read over, openly and plainly, so that, should it happen that any one afterwards fails in aught, or incurs any penalties, none may be able to say that anything has been done to which assent was not given on the first day of coming into the gild,-which was done wholly of the free will of the in-comer.

shall be read over comer, so that ignorance may not e pretended.

An oath shall be taken, by every one coming into the gild, to An oath shall be tal en. observe all the ordinances.

All the men of the gild, for themselves and their wives, and Seals put to the all the unmarried women for themselves, have set their seals to the deed; and the seal of the Dean of Herthill is added, to attest these. [It is added that] afterwards, on the same day, Juliana, the wife of William of Brentyngham (one of the founders of the gild), joined the gild, and was duly sworn.

* The original of this odd phrase is,-" ut est moris naturaliter."

The gild has in hand xix.lib.

(b) GILD OF CORPUS CHRISTI.*

The gild was begun A D 1358. It was founded by men and women

This gild was founded on Thursday, the last day of May, A.D. 1358. The names of the forty-three founders are given, eighteen of whom are women, and the rest men. The estates of the Payments shall be founders are charged with payments, as in the case of the lastnamed gild, but in a different manner. These founders charge themselves with the payment of ten shillings a year for five years, by two payments in each year; and, after the end of the five years, with the payment of one penny and one farthing each week. Instead of a power of distraining for arrears being given, defaulters are to be put out of the gild. Every new-comer into the gild shall pay five farthings a week through his whole life. There are clauses as to the liability of sureties, and as to the doubling of debts in case of resistance by word or deed, nearly the same as in the last-named gild.

An alderman, chamberlam, and eight help-men shall act in the name of the gild.

The alderman and chamberlain (as the steward is here called) shall take eight discreet men to help them, and the gild shall abide by what these do in the name of the gild.

All shall meet on the festival of Corpus Christi to make offerings, under the usual penalty for absence. Any one misbehaving at any meeting of the gild shall be fined.

Meeting of the gild,

Help shall be given to enable bretheren to follow their callings.

If it befall that any brother or sister become, by mishap, so poor that help is needed, twenty shillings shall be granted to him for one year, to enable him to follow his calling. And if he cannot earn the twenty shillings in that year, he shall keep the money for another year. And if then he cannot earn it, with increase, nor make his living, he shall have it for another year, so that he may make a profit out of it. And if, through no fault of his own, he can get no increase even in the third year, then the money shall be released to him.

* CCCVIII. 105. Condition, fair; but a piece destroyed. Latin.

GILD OF ST. JOHN BAPTIST, HULL.

A clause follows as to giving help to the infirm, bowed, blind, Help shall be given to the dumb, deaf, maimed, and sick, nearly the same as in the last- afflicted. named gild : but the weekly dole is to be fourteen pence. A deduction is here, as in that case, to be made from the dole, to meet the yearly payments due from each of the gild.

Every brother and sister shall, under penalty, come to the Burials shall be burial of any brother or sister who has died.*

There is a clause as to the ordinances being read over to new- The ordinances shall be read over comers, nearly the same as in the last-named gild.

to new-comers. deed, and wit-

The seals of the founders are set to the deed. The names of Seals put to the several witnesses are added: the first among whom are the nesses thereto. mayor of Kingston-upon-Hull, and the bailiff of the same place.

[It seems that this gild assumed the power of adding to the ordinances set forth by the founders; for it is added in this Return, after the copy of the foundation deed :---]

That all the bretheren and sisteren shall meet on the anni- Another meeting of the gild. versary of the gild, or pay a pound of wax.

Moreover it is ordained, that no money belonging to the gild No risks beyond shall ever be risked in trading beyond sea, unless by special grace, and then two surcties must be given.

And it is ordained, that when the son or daughter of any Sons and daughters of bretheren bretheren of the gild would come into the gild, they shall be admitted without honourably received, without any payment; but they must bind shall pay heavily. themselves to fulfil the ordinances of the gild. None, save the children of gildsmen, shall come into the gild without paying three pounds of silver, unless it be by special grace.

(c) GILD OF ST. JOHN BAPTIST.[†]

The date of the foundation is destroyed, and so are the names of some of the founders. Twenty-one founders' names remain.

† CCCVIII. 107. Condition, fair; but a piece destroyed. Latin.

11

ayment : others

^{*} It is remarkable that this applies only to the burial (sepulturam). Nothing whatever is said, as is usual, about services for the soul, &c.

Each charges his estate with the payment of two shillings yearly Yearly payments shall be made. to the gild, payable quarterly. If any payment shall be eight days in arrear, the alderman may levy double the amount. Two shillings a year shall be the payment for man and wife together, the survivor paying the same. A single man or woman shall pay the same. Sureties shall be liable, as in both the foregoing gilds; and debts shall be doubled in case of refusal to pay.

An alderman and two help-men shall act in the name of the gild.

of the gild to help him; and all the gild shall abide by what these three do in the name of the gild. Punishment for attempts to defraud the gild.

If any one of the gild cheats the alderman as to any matter of payment due or profit made, or is otherwise rebellious, he shall pay two pounds of wax.

When the alderman is chosen, he shall take two discreet men

Meeting of the gild. Penalty on misbehaviour.

All shall meet together on the feast of the nativity of St. John Baptist, to make offerings, etc., under penalty. Any one misbehaving at any meeting of the gild, shall be fined.

Help shall be given to the afflicted.

This gild has a provision much the same as the two others, as to help to be given to the infirm, bowed, blind, dumb, deaf, maimed, and sick. But in this case each one of the gild is required to pay a weekly sum; in addition to which, five shillings are to be given to each of the afflicted at the feast of St. Martin in winter, to get a garment. A deduction must, if necessary, be made, as in the other gilds, to cover the yearly payments.

Burials and hurial services shall be attended.

All must come to the burial of any brother or sister, and also to the other services for the dead, under penalty. When any man marries a sister of the gild, and afterwards

Entrance fee of any marrying one of the gild ; tices.

wishes to come into the gild, he must pay six shillings and eightand of others. pence. Every one else must pay thirteen shillings and fourpence.

If any brother take any apprentice, the apprentice must pay, Fees for apprenor his master for him, twelve pence and one pound of wax.

The ordinances shall be read over to new.comers.

There is a clause as to the reading over of the ordinances to every fresh comer, to the same effect as in the two other gilds.

The seals of the founders are set to the deed, and witnesses Seals put to the deed, and wit are named, among whom the mayor and the bailiff of Kingstonnesses thereto. upon-Hull stand first.

The gild has in hand xx.lib. Goods of the gild.

V.

LANCASTER.

GILD OF THE HOLY TRINITY AND ST. LEONARD.*

These ordinances were made on the feast of St. Leonard The gild was begun A.D. 1377. A.D. 1377.

Whoever is admitted to the gild shall make oath to keep Oath to keep the ordinances these ordinances.

No one of the gild shall do anything to the loss or hurt of No oneshall wrong another, nor shall allow it to be done so far as he can hinder it. the laws and customs of the town of Lancaster being always saved.

No one of the gild shall wrong the wife or daughter or sister No wife, daughter, nor sister shall be of another, nor shall allow her to be wronged so far as he can wronged. hinder it.

No one of the gild shall take into his house any one known No adulterer shall be harboured, or to be an adulterer, nor shall himself live in adultery; and if it shall be let remain in the gild. be shown that he has done either, and after two warnings he will not amend, he shall be altogether put out of the gild.

No one of the gild shall entice others to become adulterers, No one playing the pander shall nor shall take up the unsafe calling of "Baudestrotes;" and if be let remain in the gild. he does, and after two warnings he will not give it up, he shall be put out of the gild.

If any of the gild die within Lancaster, all the bretheren then All the gild shall in the town shall come to placebo and dirige, if summoned by services, the "Belman." or pay ii.d.

All shall go or send to the mass held for a dead brother or sister, and offer ob., under the same penalty.

* CCCVIII. 84. Condition, bad. Latin.

163

and shall say prayers for the souls

Every one of the bretheren shall say, for the soul of the dead, as quickly as he can, lx. Pater-nosters, with as many Hail-Marys. And the anniversary of every brother shall be duly kept.

Burials of those dying outside the town.

If any of the gild dies outside the town of Lancaster, within a space of xx. miles, xij. bretheren shall wend and seek the body, at the cost of the gild. And if the brother or sister so dying wished to be buried where he died, the said xij. shall see that he has fitting burial there, at the cost of the gild.

Lights at burial services

Each brother and sister so dying shall have, at the mass on the day of burial, six torches and xviij. wax lights; and at other services, two torches and iiij. wax lights.

Quarterly meet-ings of the gild.

All the bretheren and unmarried sisteren of the gild shall meet four times a year, on four Sundays which are named. Each shall then pay xinj.d., towards finding two chaplains to celebrate divine service in the town, for the welfare of the King and the Queen, and the Lord Duke of Lancaster, and the whole realm, and all the dead bretheren and sisteren of the gild. Whoever does not come to these meetings, and does not pay the money within three weeks afterwards, shall pay half a pound of wax, which shall be doubled if there be a further arrear of three weeks.

Twelve men shall be chosen, to manage the affairs of the gild.

It is ordained that xij. good and discreet men of the gild shall be chosen; who shall have the power of admitting fresh bretheren and sisteren; shall arrange with each of these what shall be paid on entry; shall deal with what other matters touch the good name, profit, and well-being of the gild; and shall appoint the places and times of meetings :- and these xij. shall be chosen afresh every year, if it be thought fit.

Collectors shall be chosen, who shall render an account to the twelve.

Collectors shall be chosen, to gather in all dues. They shall render an account to the aforesaid xij., or the greater part of them, so that the xij. may, every quarter, let the gild know how its affairs stand.

[No Return is found among these bundles from any other gild in Lancashire.]

VI.

CHESTERFIELD.

(a) GILD OF THE BLESSED MARY.*

This gild was begun on the day of the circumcision of our The gild was begun A.D. 1218. Lord, A.D. 1218, to hold certain services, and the better to assure the liberties of the town.

First, all shall swear to uphold the due rights of the church. † Also, they shall swear to take care for the rights of the lord upheld. of the place.

The rights of the church shall be Also, those of the lord

Also, they shall swear to guard all their liberties, within town The liberties of the town shall be and without town, and to give trusty help thereto whenever it guarded and helped. may be needed.

A chaplain shall celebrate services on days named, and shall A chaplain shall celebrate certain be paid what the Alderman, Steward, and Dean think right.[±] services.

> made by the bretheren.

Each brother shall bequeath, in his Will, towards masses for Bequests shall be the souls of the bretheren, twelve pence out of every pound of his chattels; but he need not bequeath more than forty

* CCCVIII. 90-95. Condition, very bad, and several pieces destroyed. Latin. It unfortunately happens that, in several instances, the places where words have become destroyed occur in ordinances that are of special interest.

+ The cautious phrase of the original is, "omnia jura ecclesiastica ecclesia sue de jure debita." Indeed this body of ordinances is remarkable for the slightness and the coldness with which religious services, whenever named. are treated. Even in the services usual for the dead, much less care is shown than is usual. Very different from this is the warmth and the particularity with which the gild bretheren are required to stand fast in defence of the liberties of the town.

[‡] The word "major" is written here, and in one or two other places in this Return, instead of "alderman." To avoid confusion, I put "alderman" throughout.

shillings in all. If he have less than twenty shillings, let him do as he likes with it.

Rites in honour of the dead.

On the death of any brother, xiij. wax lights shall be found by the gild, to set round his body, and shall be kept burning until he is buried; and each brother shall either pay a penny at the time of burial, or else make offering afterwards for the soul, as the Alderman thinks best.

Help shall be given in case of loss by fire, murrian, robbery, &c., if not caused by the folly of the loser.

If, in the haps of life, heavy loss befalls any brother, whether by fire, by murrain, by robbery, or by any other mishap,-so that such loss come not through his own lust, or gluttony, or dice-play, or other folly,-each brother shall give him, in relief of his loss, at the first, twopence; and again, if he needs it, twopence more; and yet a third time, if necessary, ij.d.

Help shall be given to those who are disabled or in want.

If any brother, through age, or loss of limb, or leprosy, comes to so great want that he cannot support himself, the bretheren who are able shall, in turn, supply him with needful food, or shall find for him a house of religion where he may stay during life.

Anniversaries of deaths shall be kept.

The deaths of past Aldermen, and of Hugh of the Peek [either founder or benefactor], shall be yearly kept by the bretheren, even to the end of time.

Whoever has wronged another. by deed or word, and will not make amends, shall be put out of the gild

If any brother shall have wronged another in any way, by violence, either with malice aforethought or through ignorance, or by backbiting, or by foul words; or shall have sworn at his brother, or evil-spoken of him, or in any other manner wronged him; and if this shall be proved by two of the bretheren, and he is unwilling to make fitting amends for the wrong, on the friendly suggestion of his bretheren; then he who has been wronged may seek redress howsoever he likes; and the other. for his rash presumption, shall be put out of the gild, or punished in such other manner as the Alderman and his bretheren shall think well.

Every brother shall be helped in defending himself at law.

Every brother shall, in every strait and trouble, have the help of his bretheren towards defending himself, in due course of law, against any adversary whomsoever.

If any brother has undergone damage, or loss, or cost, for the common welfare of the gild, or the liberties of the town, the Whoever has had loss or cost for the bretheren are bound to make good to him all such damages, sake of the town, and shall, with others of the town, give him counsel and help.

shall have it made good to him, the town shall be whenever there is shall control the gild shall be put ferent folks, to and duly to re-

the dean shall

The Alderman, with the counsel and help of the bretheren, The liberties of shall uphold and defend all the liberties belonging to the actively upheld town*] against all disturbers or hinderers of those liberties; need. and xij. men, or as many as are wanted, must be chosen by him, or by the Steward of the gild when he himself has not leisure, and be sent before the justices, or elsewhere, upon the business of the town, whenever need shall be.

The Alderman shall look after the house as well as he is The alderman able; and the Dean shall take care [that summonses are duly] gild-house; and sent to the bretheren. The Dean shall also receive the fines, summon members, and collect and collect and hand them over to four scribes [?Stewards], who are bound moneys. to keep the goods of the gild, and to improve them as much as The goods of the they can; and they may keep them for a whole year, if they well into hands of difuse them. Afterwards, the goods shall be entrusted to others, make increase. as the gild thinks fit. All who hold the goods, shall swear that store the whole. they will duly restore them on a day named, and that they will use them for the profit of the gild.

the affairs of the out of the gild.

Whoever makes known the affairs of the gild, and it is proved Whoever discloses by two bretheren, shall be put out as perjured, and his example gld shall be put shall be held up to everlasting scorn.

Two meetings shall be had every All the bretheren shall meet twice a year, to look into and order the affairs of the gild, and to take an account of those who year. have in hand the goods of the gild.

The Dean and the Steward shall find wax lights when neces- Wax-lights shall be found, and sary, taking four or three bretheren to advise with them; and there shall be an account of them shall, once or twice a year, give an account of their expenses kept. over the lights.

shall be chosen.

Two bretheren shall be chosen to receive all rents and pay- Two accountants ments due to the gild, and to pay what is due from the gild. And the Alderman and the Dean and the Steward shall have a

* This is one of the many words destroyed in the original. But there cannot, from the context, be any doubt that the word now destroyed was "ville."

A rent-roll shall be kept, showing charges. Muniments of title shall be kept under seal.

roll, containing the names of those who pay yearly rents, and what and when each pays, and what has to be paid thereout to others. Charters, muniments, &c., shall be kept under the seal of the Alderman and the Dean, and under the common seal of the gild. The chaplain shall keep vestments and books, giving an The chaplain shall keep vestments, åc. inventory of them.

Offerings shall be made in Pentecost week.

Each brother shall, on Friday in Pentecost week, give j.d. towards alms, and another for wax, Payments on entry of new members.

Every incoming brother shall, on his entry, pay to the clerk j.d., and to the door-keeper j.d.

Fine for not coming to meetings of the gild.

When any brother is summoned to come to any meeting touching the affairs of the gild, and he does not come, being in town and not sick, he shall pay j.d. to the light.

[A very long list of the possessions of the gild follows, which shows that it must have been a wealthy one.]

(b) GILD OF THE SMITHS OF CHESTERFIELD.*

This gild long flourished ; but it has lately joined the Gild of the Holy Cross of the Merchants.

The Return states, in an opening paragraph, that this gild had, from the time of its foundation (the date of which is not stated), existed separately up till Lady Day, 1387; but that the bretheren, having then found their funds too small to fulfil all claims, joined the Gild of the Holy Cross of the Merchants of Chesterfield. [It would seem that their own ordinances were, nevertheless, upheld; for these now follow: -+

* CCCVIII. 111. Condition, very bad, and torn. This gild seems to have had no patron saint. Among the records of at least six hundred early English gilds that have come under my careful review, I have very rarely found this absence, save in some of the Gilds Merchant. Even existing London City Companies have such patron saints. Perhaps some local circumstances made the priests unpopular in Chesterfield. Certain it is that, while the ordinances of the Chesterfield gild last given treat priestly services with a slightness and coldness that are very unusual, the present gild does not even so much as invoke the patronage of any saint. It is simply the Gild of the Smiths [fabrorum].

+ A fragmentary waif from the lamentable destruction which these invaluable Rolls have undergone, remains attached to this Return. It is all that remains of the Return made by another gild, which was sent up sewed of Smiths of Chesterfield, worshipping before the greater cross in the nave of the church of All Saints there. The head men The gild has an are, an Elder Father, Dean, Steward, and four burgesses, by steward, and four whose oversight the gild is managed. Lights are to be found. and be burnt before the cross on days named.

GILD OF THE SMITHS OF CHESTERFIELD. This is the agreement of the masters and bretheren of the Gild

If any brother is sick, and needs help, he shall have a half- Help shall be penny daily from the common fund of the gild, until he has got well. If any of them fall into poverty, they shall go, singly, on given days, to the houses of the bretheren, where each shall be and entertainment courteously received, and there shall be given to him, as if he were the master of the house, whatever he wants of meat, drink, and clothing, and he shall have a halfpenny like those who are sick : and then he shall go home in the name of the Lord.*

On the death of a brother, xij. lights shall be kept burning Lights shall be round the body, until buried, and offerings shall be made. body of the dead. Round the body of a stranger, or of the son of a brother, dving in the house of a brother, iiij. lights shall be kept burning.

wrongfully imprisoned, shall be helped by the gild.

If it befall that any of the bretheren, by some hapless wheever is chance, and not through his own folly, is cast into prison, all together with this. Not one line is complete, nor is one ordinance l.ft. Only enough is left to let us know that it was the return made by the Gild of the Holv Cross of the Merchants of Chesterfield ; and to tell us, with a strange mockery, that the gild of which this relic alone remains, was "imperpetuum duraturam;" and that the bretheren were bound, for ever, "conservare, manutenere, et sustentare," its statutes and ordinances.

* This curious ordinance is made somewhat obscure by the double mischance of part of the parchment being destroyed, and some of the words having become wholly illegible. There is no doubt, however, that what I have given is substantially the sense of it. A return from Dronfield, in tle same county, much resembles the present Return on the point of this ordinance. In that case it is ordained that, if any one falls into want by mischance, not being his own fault, he shall have a halfpenny a day from the gild, "or he may take meals [comederet] with some brother or sister of the gild." In another case, of a gild at Grantham in Lincolnshire, it is ordained that, on the day of the gild-feast, each couple, "videlicet sponsus et sponsa," and each unmarried man, shall feed one poor person. It is added that, on the same day, there shall be given to the friars minors of the town who have gone in procession with them, fourteen loaves, eight gallons of ale, and half a kid or sheep.

elder father. dean.

given to the sick,

to the poor.

overseers.

his bretheren are bound to do what they can to get him freed, and to defend him.

The bretheren shall bequeath something to the gild.

If any sick brother makes a Will, having first bequeathed his soul to God, his body to burial, and the altar-gifts to the priests, he shall then not forget to bequeath something to the gild, according to his means.

When any one has borrowed any money from the gild, either a given day, and he does not repay it, though three times warned, he shall be put under suspension, denunciation, and excommunication,-all contradiction, cavil, and appeal aside,-until he shall have wholly paid it. If he has been sick, the claim of the gild must be the first to be satisfied. And if he dies intestate, his goods shall be held bound to the gild, to pay what is owing to it, and shall not be touched or sequestrated until full pay-

Moneys borrowed must be paid on the day appointed. to traffic with or for his own use, under promise to repay it on

The goods of intestates shall be held liable for moneys due to the gild.

Rebellious bretheren shall be heavily punished. ment has been made to the gild. Should it happen (which God forbid) that any brother is contumacious; or sets himself against the bretheren; or gainsays any of these ordinances ; or, being summoned to a feast, will not come; or does not obey the Elder Father when he ought, nor show him due respect; or does not abide by what has been ordained by the Elder Father and greater part of the gild ;--he shall pay a pound of wax and half a mark. Moreover, he shall be put under suspension, denunciation, and excommunication, without any contradiction, cavil, or appeal.

Debtors and wrong-doers shall keep altogether aloof from the gild.

Any one proved to be in debt, or a wrong-doer, shall be deemed excommunicate, and shall not presume to come to the meetings of the bretheren; and his company shall be shunned by all, so that no brother shall dare to talk with him, unless to chide him, until he has fully satisfied the Elder Father and the bretheren, as well touching any penalty as touching the debt or wrong-doing.

Oath made to keep these ordinances.

Lands and tenements of the gild.

[Copies follow of eight grants of land to the gild; the yearly

To keep and faithfully perform these constitutions, all the bretheren have bound themselves by touch of relics.

The clear sum of the whole	xxxij. s .	Yearly income therefrom.
Out of which [has to be paid], for chief rents, etc.And for obits for the souls of several brothers, etc.And for xxviij. pounds of wax, for making and keeping up the wax lights, the price of the wax	v.s. iiij.d. x.s. vj.d.	Payments to be yearly made being vij.d. a pound	x vj .s. iiij.d.
And for repair of houses, generally, by estimation	X. 8 .
In all	xlij.s. ij.d.*

* The difference thus shown between income and outgoes might seem to have made the continuance of the gild impossible for any time. But it must be remembered that this income is what comes from real estate, and that it does not include the moneys coming in from any other sources, such as bequests, fines, &c. Still, this gild seems to have made no provision, such as was usually made by other gilds, for regular payments by members or new-comers, and so its annual income would not be large. Hence, no doubt, arose the necessity for it to join the Gild of the Merchants. See before, p. 168.

VII.

LINCOLN.

(a) GILD OF ST. BENEDICT.*

This gild was founded in honour of God Almighty, and of the blessed Virgin Mary, and of our Lord Jhesu Christ, in the parish of St. Benedict.⁺

A great wax light shall be found

One great wax light shall be found, and lighted on the feast of the Purification, and at other special times.

As many poor shall be fed as there are members of the gild.

Every year, at the said feast of the Purification, they shall feed as many poor as there are bretheren and sisteren in the gild, with bread and ale and one dish of flesh or fish, at the cost of the gild.

Pilgrims to the Pilgrims to the Holy Land, to St. James's, or to Rome, shall be helped.

If any brother or sister wishes to go on pilgrimage to the Holy Land, every brother and sister shall give him one penny; if to St. James's or to Rome, each shall give a halfpenny, unless he likes to give more; and the pilgrim shall be accompanied outside the gates of the city. And when he returns, and has let his fellows know it, they shall go out and meet him, and go with him to the mother church.

Services on deaths within the city.

When any brother or sister dies within the city, the Graceman and Wardens shall go to the body, and the Dean shall bring four wax lights, which shall burn there until the service is done; and on the morrow, when the body is buried, the Graceman shall offer a penny, and each Warden a halfpenny, of the goods of the oild. Besides this, every brother and sister shall give a half- Bread shall be riven to the poor. penny to buy bread, to be given to the poor for the soul of the dead, while the priest celebrates mass. Whoever fails in this offering, shall, next day, pay one penny, or a pound of wax at the next morn-speech.

* CCCVIII, 75. Condition, bad and torn. Latin.

+ The form of what may be called the dedication of this gild differs, very strikingly, from that of most other gilds. In almost every other case, God the Father Almighty would seem to have been forgotten. No doubt what must strike every reader as so strange an oversight, was not intentionally so, but grew out of the habit and form of prayers of intercession.

When any brother or sister dies outside the city, on pilgrimage Services on deaths utside the city or otherwise, and the death is made surely known to the bretheren, they shall do, for his soul's sake, the same as they would have done had he died in the city, and this in his own parish.

When any brother or sister falls into poverty, and seeks the Help shall be given to poor help of the gild, there shall be advanced to him, out of the goods bretheren. of the gild, in the first year, yi.d.; in the second year, yi.d.; and in the third year, if he is still in want, vi.d. If he becomes able to repay those xviii.d., let him; if not, let him keep them as a free gift.*

Every year, at the feast of the gild, they shall have, on each At the feast, day of the feast, three flagons, with prayers, and six tankards : and the tankards, filled with ale, shall be given to the poor who most need it.

when the ale is poured out pravers shall be said, and tankards of ale shall be given to the poor.

* I cannot but think that the copyist has made a mistake here. Compared with allowances in other cases, sixpence a year is simply absurd. It is often not very easy to know whether the letter is 's' or 'd' after the figure, and I think that it was, in this case, originally written 's' (six shillings, not six pence), and that, in the overhaste of copying, the 's' was read, and so written down, as if it was 'd.'

+ There is much difficulty in knowing exactly what is meant by the different vessels named. What I here translate "tankards" is "ciphos" in the original. From the use of this word in many places, there is no doubt that it meant a great drinking vessel, and it is our guide to the meaning of the other words. In Madox's Formulare Anglicanum (p. 432, &c.), we find Ralph de Nevill, in 1424, bequeathing many costly drinking vessels. Among the rest are, "optimum ciphum meum auri;" "duas Ollas argenteas deauratas, et iiij. Ollas argenteas albas ;" "j. Ewer argenteum ;" "j. ollam potteller argenti;" and a great many other gold, silver, and silver-gilt vessels. In the ordinances of the Gild of St. Michael on the Hill (Lincoln) (after, p. 178), I find mention made of "four of the tankards (ciphos) which are called 'fullas.'" Are "olla" and "fulla" the same thing ? I translate Payments by newcomers.

- Whoever wishes to enter the gild shall pay six shillings and eightpence; namely, three and fourpence on his admission, and at the next year's feast three and fourpence.

Every year, on the Sunday next after the feast of St. Michael,

Mornspeeches shall be held;

and accounts shall then be given by all who have had any goods of the gild on loan.

the bretheren and sisteren shall hold a mornspeech in the church of St. Benedict; and every one who has any money of the gild in hand, shall then give half the increase that has been made out of that money. And on the Sunday next after the feast of Epiphany, they shall hold a mornspeech in the same church, to arrange about the feast that is to be held on the day of the Purification. At that feast, every one who has any money of the gild in hand, shall put it, and the other half of the increase thereof, upon the treasury in the room where the feast is held. And whoever fails to come to this mornspeech, having been summoned by the Dean, shall pay half a pound of wax.

Officers chosen, and not serving, shall pay a fine. Whoever is chosen Graceman, and will not serve, shall pay two pounds of wax. Whoever is chosen Warden, and will not serve, shall pay one pound of wax. Whoever is chosen Dean, and will not serve, shall pay half a pound of wax.

Another mornspeech. Every year, on the Sunday next after the feast, the bretheren and sisteren shall hold another mornspeech in the same church, to which all shall come who have any money of the gild; and those who have not paid in before, shall do so there; and then they shall take such order as to the money as may seem most for the good of the gild. On the morrow, a mass shall be said for the souls of the dead bretheren and sisteren, and the Graceman shall offer a penny, and each of the Wardens a halfpenny, out of the gild fund.

Penalty if one wrongs another. Any brother or sister of the gild who wrongs another by "fullas" by the word "flagons." Again, in the ordinances of a Grantham gild, I find "tres ciphos vocatos masers;" evidently costly things, for the price is put down as xl.s., while "tria cornua de quibus predicti fratres et sorores, die convivii sui, bibere solent," are priced at xx.s.; and in another Grantham gild, "una debilis mazera" is put down as worth vij.s. A "maser" or "mazer" is supposed to be a cup of maple wood, richly mounted. See Rotuli de Liberate, Preface, p. x.; also the note on the word "Masere" in Mr. Way's edition of the Promptorium, p. 328. word or deed, in sight of the Graceman, or out of his sight but in the house of feasting, while the feast lasts, shall pay two pounds of wax.

If any one is summoned by the Dean on the business of the Penalty for not coming to meetgild, and does not come, he shall pay a pound of wax, unless he ings. has a fair excuse.

(b) GILD OF THE RESURRECTION OF OUR LORD.*

This gild was founded at Easter, A.D. 1374.

Every brother and sister, at entrance, shall pay fourpence to the ale,[†] and one penny [to the wax]; and also, every year,

The gild was begun A.D. 1374. Payments on entrance.

* CCCX. 206. Condition, very bad indeed. Latin. The roll which contains this Return is, beyond comparison, the most interesting that is found in any of these bundles. It is a sheet of vellum, two feet five inches long, and eighteen and a quarter inches wide; the Return itself filling a space of two feet long by thirteen and a half inches wide, with three lines in supplement. It is impossible to look at it without the suggestion arising that it was not written, but impressed with letter stamps. I have compared it with the facsimile of the Codex Argenteus of the Gospels of Ulphilas, given in Dr. Bosworth's valuable edition of the Gothic and Anglo-Saxon, &c. Gospels. [The difference of date, both being earlier than the received date of printing, does not touch the matter.] The size of the letters is much the same; but this Return assuredly seems much more like an impressed, and not written, document, than does the Codex Argenteus. The objections named in Dr. Bosworth's preface (p. v.) are not, I think, sound. Different stamps, cut (not cast) for the same letter, would be certain to differ somewhat; while it is very well known that, long after printing became common, contractions were used in print. I have hundreds of proofs of this in my own library.

In this case, the impression of the letters is deep, insomuch that they can be felt, blindfold, with the finger. The ink has not, as in other cases, eaten away the vellum, and made it transparent; but, nevertheless, where all trace of ink is gone, the letters remain clear, because stamped in the vellum. It is curious that it was obviously intended to illuminate the first letter of every paragraph. A large space is left for that letter, in every case. But time pressed, and so the Return was sent up with the initial letter of every paragraph wanting.

⁺ The words of the original are "ad ciphos." There cannot be a doubt that these words were here used, as "pocula" was much earlier, in the sense of the contents of the cups. The ordinances in Part I. often speak of payments to "the ale." I therefore translate "ad ciphos" by those words here and elsewhere, when used in this sense. See p. 173, note ⁺. thirteen pence, by four separate payments in the year. And whoever is in arrear shall pay a pound of wax.

Lights shall be kept burning from Good Friday till Easter Sunday. Twenty round wax lights shall be kept burning round the body of our Lord lying in the sepulchre, from Easter eve till the time of resurrection on Easter Day, each wax light weighing a pound and a half.

A hearse-frame, with lights, angels, and banners, shall be put over the hody of every dead brother:

and other services

be done.

When a brother or sister dies, a hearse shall be put about the body, with thirteen square wax lights burning in four stands, at placebo and dirige and mass; and there shall be four angels, and four banners of the Passion with a white border, and scutcheons of the same powdered with [?gold]. And offerings shall be made; and as many masses shall be said for the soul of the dead as there are bretheren and sisteren in the gild.*

Help to poor bretheren. If any brother or sister comes to want, from whatsoever cause, so that it be not through his own fault, by wasting his goods in unlawful uses, every brother and sister shall, if help is sought from the gild, yearly pay twopence to whoever is thus impoverished.

Officers chosen, and not serving, shall pay a fine. Every brother shall swear to keep all these ordinances. Whoever is chosen Graceman, and will not serve, shall pay half a stone of wax. Whoever is chosen Warden, and will not serve, shall pay two pounds of wax. Whoever is chosen Dean, and will not serve, shall pay one pound of wax.

Holders of loans must come up every year.

Whoever has in hand any goods of the gild, shall bring them before the Graceman and his fellows on Easter Tuesday, under penalty of a stone of wax.

Mass and offerings for the dead.

On the Wednesday in Easter week, there shall be a mass for those of the gild both living and dead; and offerings shall be made by the Graceman and Wardens.

While the bretheren and sisteren are sitting at table, the

* I cannot recall, in any of these ordinances, any description of the funeral rites of the members of a gild so full as this. As the "hearse" here named was a very different thing from what is now so called, I will refer the reader to the description of the hearse given by Canon Rock in "The Church of our Fathers," vol. ii. p. 495, &c. See also the note to the word "Heerce" in Mr. Way's edition of the Promptorium, p. 236. ordinances shall be read over, so that they may be well understood, and that no one may, at any time, be able to say that he has broken, unwittingly, any of the articles which all have ordinances.

LINCOLN.

After dinner, four candles shall be lighted, and grace shall be said, together with the antiphone Regina celi letare, and the Lord's Prayer; and the names of all the dead bretheren and sisteren shall be read over, and the De Profundis shall be said for their souls.

If any brother or sister wishes to make pilgrimage to Rome, rigrims that be St. James of Galacia*, or the Holy Land, he shall forewarn the gild; and all the bretheren and sisteren shall go with him to the city gate, and each shall give him a halfpenny at least.

If any one dies out of Lincoln, either on the sea or beyond beaths out of sea, the same services shall be had, on the death being known, as if he had died in Lincoln.

If any brother or sister dies without leaving means of his own Burials of the out of which to give him fit burial, he shall be buried, at the cost of the gild, in the same manner as any other of the gild would be.

No brother of the gild shall have the use of any goods or Surety for goods of the gild, unless he finds a good surety, who will be answerable, in any event, for the goods.

When any brother or sister dies in Lincoln, two torches shall Torch lightsbefore be kept burning about the body until it has been carried into the church. The torches shall then be put out. Afterwards, the mass being ended, the torches shall be lighted again, and shall be kept burning till the body is buried.

If any brother or sister rebels against any of these articles, or will not be ruled by the Graceman and Wardens, he may be put against the gild out of the gild by the judgment of the bretheren. If he ought not, in their judgment, to be thus punished, he must be cleared in such manner as the Dean of Lincoln thinks fit.

* So in original: but what is meant is Galicia in Spain, within which is the famous shrine of St. James of Compostella.

12

(c) GILD OF ST. MICHAEL ON THE HILL.*

The gild was founded on Easter-eve, A.D. 1350.+

The gild was begun A.D 1350. On the death of a brother, "soulcandles" shall be burned, and the banner of the gild shall be taken to his house, and borne thence to church.

On the death of a brother or sister within the city, not only shall the Dean bring the four wax lights which are called "soulcandels," and fulfil all other usual ceremonies, but the banner of the gild shall be brought to the house of the dead, and there openly shown, that men may know that the dead was a brother or sister of the gild; and this banner shall be carried, with a great torch burning, from the house of the dead, before the body, to the church.

There shall be a gild-feast.

At the end, the ordinances shall be read and expounded : and flagons of ale shall be given to the poor.

On the eve of the feast of Corpus Christi, and on the eve of the day following, all the bretheren and sisteren shall come together, as is the custom, to the gild feast. At the close of the feast, four wax lights having been kindled, and four of the tankards which are called flagons having been filled with ale, a clerk shall read and explain these ordinances, and afterwards the [ale in the] flagons shall be given to the poor.

Absentees may rejoin the gild on

If any brother or sister goes away from Lincoln for a year, making payments. not being on pilgrimage, and afterwards seeks to rejoin the gild, he must pay twelve pence : if away for two years, he must pay two shillings, unless he have grace.

The gild was founded by common and middling sort of folks ; and such may join it.

Whoever seeks to be received into the gild, being of the same rank as the bretheren and sisteren who founded it, namely, of the rank of common and middling folks, shall be charged to be faithful to the gild, and shall bear his share of its burdens.

* CCCX. 271. Condition, bad. Latin.

+ The ordinances of this gild are among the longest, if not actually the longest, that are found in the bundles of Returns made in 1389; and they are in many respects remarkable. As, however, there are several others from Lincoln, I hesitate to give the whole of these, though most interesting as a very complete body of ordinances. Space will only allow me to give a few of the more characteristic.

‡ The terms used in this and the next ordinance are so remarkable, that they must be given in the original Latin, lest I should be thought to be putting forth a democratic fiction. The words are :--- "Quilibet affectans in dictam fraternitatem recipi, qui est ejusdem status fratrum et sororum qui dictam fraternitatem primo inchoaverunt, videlicet, de statu communum et mediocrum virorum." In the ordinance next following, the

And whereas this gild was founded by folks of common and The gild having middling rank, it is ordained that no one of the rank of mayor common and midor bailiff shall become a brother of the gild, unless he is found to would rather not be of humble, good, and honest conversation, and is admitted folks as mayors and bailiffs among by the choice and common assent of the bretheren and sisteren them, At any rate, the latter of the gild. And none such shall meddle in any matter, unless selves forward, must not put them. specially summoned; nor shall such a one take on himself any office in the gild. He shall, on his admission, be sworn before the bretheren and sisteren, to maintain and to keep the ordinances of the gild. And no one shall have any claim to office in this gild on account of the honour and dignity of his personal rank.

If any brother or sister of the gild has fallen into such an ill Help to poor bretheren shall be state that he is unable to earn his living, and has not the means daily given in turn. by the gildof supporting himself, he shall have, day by day, a penny from bretheren. the bretheren and sisteren of the gild, in the order in which their names stand on the register of their admission to the gild; each brother or sister giving the penny, in turn, out of his own means.

(d) GILD OF THE FULLERS OF LINCOLN.*

The gild was founded on the Sunday before the feast of the Thegild was apostles Philip and James, A.D. 1297, by all the bretheren and sisteren of the fullers in Lincoln.

A wax light shall be kept burning before the Holy Cross, on A wax light shall the days when they go in procession in honour of the holy cross.

be burnt.

egun A.D. 1297.

words are :--- "Quod cum fraternitas predicta fuit a principio ejusdem ordinata et incepta ex viris communibus et mediocribus,"---therefore they are jealous of receiving such great people as mayors and bailiffs.

* CCCX. 72. Condition, good. Latin. This Gild of the Fullers, and the two that follow, are given here as examples of gilds which were neither wholly social gilds nor wholly craft-gilds. They clearly did not consider themselves to come within the terms of the writ for Returns from craft-gilds (see before, p. 130). The ordinances are not indeed such as the true craftgilds usually made. In each of the three cases, only two or three of the ordinances have anything to do with the members of the gild as craftsmen. But those two or three are found in each. These gilds are thus worth attention, as a sort of cross between the social gild and the craft-gild. Examples of the ordinances of true craft-gilds will be found under the heads of Worcester, Bristol, and Exeter : Reading must stand by itself.

been founded by

dling sort of folks have such grand

None of the craft shall work [i.e. full cloth by treading it with How the trough and the bar are the feet] in the trough; and none shall work at the wooden bar not to be used. with a woman, unless with the wife of a master or her handmaid.*

Half-holidays, &c. must be kept.

None of them shall work after dinner on Saturdays, nor on any days which they ought to keep as festivals according to the law of the church.

Outsiders may work in the trade on making a small payment.

If a stranger to the city comes in, he may, upon giving a penny to the wax, work among the bretheren and sisteren, and his name shall be written on their roll.

A payment shall If any one wishes to learn the craft, no one shall teach it be made before learning the trade. to him until he has given twopence to the wax.

No thief shall stay in the gild.

If any of the brotherhood is justly charged with theft, to the value of a penny, he shall be put out of the company.

On death of any, bread shall be given to the poor.

When any of the bretheren or sisteren dies, the rest shall give a halfpenny each, to buy bread to be given to the poor, for the soul's sake of the dead.

Any one going to Rome shall be helped, if he start on a holiday.

If any brother or sister is going on a pilgrimage to Sts. Peter and Paul, if it is a Sunday or other festival day, all the bretheren and sisteren shall go in company with him outside the city as far as the Queen's Cross, and each shall give him a halfpenny or more; and when he comes back, if, as before said, it is a Sunday or other festival day, and he has let them know of his coming, all the bretheren and sisteren shall meet at the same cross, and go with him to the monastery.

Penalty for not keeping the ordinances.

Any one not keeping any of these ordinances, shall pay half a pound of wax. [But see a later ordinance, on p. 182.]

* The original of this ordinance is, "Item providetur inter eos quod nullus eorum laboret in alveo. Et quod nullus ejusdem officii ad perticam cum muliere laboret, nisi cum uxore magistri vel ancilla sua commensali." The fuller's work seems at this time to have risen to beating the newlymade cloth, lying in a trough, with bars or poles [pertica]. Earlier than this, and even later in some places, the fulling was done by trampling the cloth with the feet. It was called "cloth-walking." A Worcester gild seems to have been hence called the Gild of "Weavers, Walkers, and Clothiers." The foregoing prohibition stops the workman from thus "cloth-walking" in the trough. But why is he not to work at the bar (to strike the cloth) in company with an ordinary woman, while he may do so with a master's wife or her handmaid ?

If any one by mishap comes to want, and asks help from the Help shall be given gild, sixpence a year shall be advanced to him out of the goods of the gild, for three years. When he gets in better case, he shall, if he can, repay the money advanced to him; but if he But the money must be repaid, becannot, then the debt shall be repaid to the gild out of what is fore death or after. collected [after his death] for his soul's sake, and what remains shall be faithfully applied for his soul's sake.*

When any brother or sister dies, the Dean shall put four wax Lights and offergs on death. lights round the body; and the Graceman shall offer a penny for a mass, and the Warden a halfpenny, out of the goods of the gild.

If any one is in arrear in the halfpence due for the soul, he Penalty for shall pay half a pound of wax to the gild.

seal of the Deanery of Lincoln.

In witness whereof, and to have the greater proof thereof in Witness by the time to come, the official seal of the Deanery of Christianity at Lincoln has, at the special request of the bretheren and sisteren of this gild, been put hereto. Given at Lincoln, on the Nones of September, A.D. 1337.†

Farther, it is ordained that the Graceman and the two Wardens New ordinances. of the gild shall each of them have, at the feast of the gild, two Allowances of ale gallons of ale, and the Dean one gallon.

The Dean shall have, for collecting the soul-pennies from the Allowance for collecting moneys. bretheren, on the first day, ij.d. out of the goods of the gild; but not on any day afterwards.

* I have already said that I consider the sixpence a year to be a copyist's mistake for six shillings (see before, p. 173). It is remarkable that, while this ordinance, and two others below, assume that soul-pence will be paid by the bretheren, there is not (as is usual) any ordinance directly requiring anything to be thus paid towards masses for the dead. Did the copyist accidentally pass it over? A former ordinance requires payments to be made towards buying bread for the poor; but these, however praiseworthy, were not offerings towards masses to be said for the soul.

+ The gild was begun, as the first clause shows, in 1297. The foregoing ordinances give us, therefore, an example of the practice of reviewing the ordinances from time to time. What follows shows that this was done more than once in the case of the present gild. See instances of the same thing before, pp. 57, 139, 161; and after, in the cases of Stamford, Ludlow, Stratford-upon-Avon, Cambridge, &c.

o those in want.

Officers chosen,	W
and not serving, shall be fined.	iiij.

Vhoever is chosen Graceman, and will not serve, shall pay pounds of wax; whoever is chosen Warden, and will not serve, shall pay two pounds of wax; and whoever is chosen Dean, and will not serve, shall pay one pound of wax.

New-comers shall Every new brother shall pay to the Dean a penny.

Whoever fails in aught touching these ordinances, shall pay a Penalty for not keeping the pound of wax. [See the earlier ordinance, at foot of p. 180.] ordinances.

(e) GILD OF THE TAILORS OF LINCOLN.*

The gild was founded A.D. 1328.

begun A.D 1328 A procession shall be had every year.

The gild was

All the bretheren and sisteren shall go in procession on the feast of Corpus Christi.

Payments on entrance.

No one shall enter the gild, as whole brother, until he has paid for his entry a quarter of barley, which must be paid between Michaelmas and Christmas. And if it is not then paid, he shall pay the price of the best malt, as sold in Lincoln market on Midsummer-day. And each shall pay xij.d. to the ale.[†]

Help to the poor.

If any one of the gild falls into poverty (which God forbid), and has not the means of support, he shall have, every week during his life, sevenpence out of the goods of the gild; out of which he must discharge such payments as become due to the gild.

Burials of the poor dying within the city.

If any one dies within the city, without leaving the means for burial, the gild shall find the means, according to the rank of him who is dead.

Pilgrimage to Jerusalem. St. James's, or Rome.

If any one wishes to make pilgrimage to the Holy Land of Jerusalem, each brother and sister shall give him a penny; and if to St. James's or Rome, a halfpenny; and they shall go with him outside the gates of the city of Lincoln; and, on his return, they shall meet him and go with him to his mother church.

Services for those dying outside the city.

If a brother or sister dies outside the city, on pilgrimage or elsewhere, and the bretheren are assured of his death, they shall do for his soul what would have been done if he had died in his own parish.

* CCCX. 170. Condition, fair. Latin.

+ "Pro ciphis" in the original. See the note + to p. 175.

bequeath v.s. or xl.d., or what he will, to the gild.

When one of the gild dies, he shall, according to his means, Bequests shall be made by the bretheren.

Every brother and sister coming into the gild shall pay to the Fee to the chapchaplain as the others do.

There shall be four mornspeeches held in every year, to take There shall be four general meetings order for the welfare of the gild : and whoever heeds not his every year. summons, shall pay two pounds of wax.

If any master [tailor] of the gild takes any one to live with Payment shall be made to the gild him as an apprentice, in order to learn the work of the tailor's when any master tailor takes an craft, the apprentice shall pay two shillings to the gild, or his apprentice. master for him, or else the master shall lose his gildship.

If any quarrel or strife arises between any bretheren or sisteren The gild shall of the gild (which God forbid), the bretheren and sisteren shall, quarrels as can be with the advice of the Graceman and Wardens, do their best to make peace between the parties, provided that the case is such as can be thus settled without a breach of the law. And who- Whoever will not abide by the judgever will not obey the judgment of the bretheren, shall lose his ment of the gild shall be put out. gildship, unless he thinks better of it within three days, and then he shall pay a stone of wax, unless he have grace.

arrange such settled without legal proceedings.

On feast days, the bretheren and sisteren shall have three flagons On feast-days, ale shall be given to and six tankards, with prayers; and the ale in the flagons shall be the poor. given to the poor who most need it. After the feast, a mass shall be said and offerings made for the souls of those who are dead.

Four wax lights shall be put round the body of any dead Burial rites. brother or sister, until burial, and the usual services and offerings shall follow.

If any master of the craft keeps any lad or sewer of another If one master master for one day after he has well known that the lad wrongly sewer who has left his master, and that they had not parted in a friendly and other master, he reasonable manner, he shall pay a stone of wax.

knowingly takes a wrongly left anshall be fined.

If any master of the craft employs any lad as a sewer, that Payment shall be sewer shall pay vj.d., or his master for him.

Each brother and sister of the gild shall every year give j.d. A dole shall be for charity, when the Dean of the gild demands it; and it shall every brother and be given in the place where the giver thinks it is most needed, bution in charity. together with a pottle of ale from the ale store of the gild.

made for every sewer employed by a master.

pay a fee.

184

Fines for not	Officers chosen, and not serving, shall pay fines.
serving offices. Witness by the scalof the Deanery of Lincoln.	In witness whereof, and at the special request of the gild, the seal of the Deanery of Christianity at Lincoln is hereto put.
Written in great	Written at Lincoln in very great haste.*
haste.	Here ends the roll of the Gild of the Tailors of Lincoln.
The end.	here ends the roll of the Ghd of the Tanors of Lincola.

The bretheren have no lands nor tenements, in mortmain or Goods of the gild. otherwise, nor any chattels of the gild except for fulfilling what has been set forth ; nor do they hold any feasts, save those before named for cherishing love and charity among themselves.

(f) GILD OF THE TYLERS OF LINCOLN.[‡]

The gild was begun A.D. 1346.

The gild of the Tylers of Lincoln, commonly called "Poyntours," § was founded A.D. 1346.

Admission of newcomers; and payments to be made by them.

Every incomer shall make himself known to the Graceman, but must be admitted by the common consent of the gild, and be sworn to keep the ordinances. And each shall give a quarter of barley, and pay ij.d. to the ale, and j.d. to the Dean.

"Saulecandels."

Four "saulecandels" shall be found, and used in the burial services

Feasts and prayers, and ale for the poor.

A feast shall be held on the festival of Corpus Christi: and, on each day of the feast, they shall have three flagons, and four or six tankards ; and ale shall be given to the poor ; and prayers shall be said over the flagons.

Help to pilgrims. Pilgrims shall be helped.

> * The original of this very curious photograph of a minute in January, 1380, is not in Latin, like the rest, but in the old French :--- "Escript a Nicol en tresaraunt hast."

+ This paragraph is written in another hand.

1 CCCX. 60. Condition, fair. Latin.

§ The phrase of the original is,-"tegulatores Lincolnie qui poyntours vulgariter nuncupantur." "To point" and "pointing" [e.g. a wall] are still used.

|| The original of this ordinance is worth recording :--- " Item ordinatum est, quod omnes fratres et sorores simul potabunt in festo corporis christi ; et quolibet die, dum bibunt, habebunt tres fullos, cum quatuor ciphis yel cum sex; et illa cerevisia dabitur pauperibus, intuitu caritatis, secundum dispositionem Gracemanni et Custodum dicte gilde; et habebunt tres orationes cum tribus fullis, unius presbiteri sive clerici."

Burials shall be provided for, by the Graceman, the two Burials. Wardens, and the Dean.

If any brother does anything underhanded and with ill-will, One brother shall not unfair;v by which another will be wronged in working his craft, he shall meddle with the another. pay to the gild a pound of wax, without any room for grace.

No tyler nor "poyntour" shall stay in the city, unless he All men of this craft in Lincoln shall join this gild. enters the gild.

There are many returns from other parts of Lincolnshire. The following will serve as a good example of those from places of lesser importance.]

(4) GILD OF KYLLYNGHOLM, LINCOLNSHIRE.*

An ordinance was made by the bretheren and sisteren of the The gild was gild, on the Monday next after the Purification, A.D. 1310, that if a brother or a sister dies, four bretheren shall offer a penny, and each sister shall give a halfpenny loaf.

egun before a D. 1310, when these ordinances were made. Offerings on death.

If one loses a beast, If a brother or a sister is unlucky enough to lose a beast the others shall worth half a mark, every brother and every sister shall give a help him. halfpenny towards getting another beast.

If the house of any brother or sister is burnt by mishap, If one's house is burnt, the every brother and every sister shall give a halfpenny towards a others shall help new house.

Moreover, if the house of any brother or sister is broken into If one is robbed, he others shall by robbers, and goods carried off worth half a mark, every help him. brother and every sister shall give a halfpenny to help him.

guest, and he canshall have a gallon not allow anv

If any brother or any sister has a friend at his house, for If one has a love of whom he does not wish to go to the gild; and if there not buy ale, he is no retail tavern in the soke where he dwells; he may send of the gild's best for a gallon of the best ale to the Bailiff of the gild; and the Bailiff shall give it to him. But if it is found by his bretheren But the gild will that he had no guest, but stayed at home through idleness, he tricks. shall be in the "Gildwyt" of half a bushel of barley.

* CCCX. 161. Condition, good. Old French.

+ Among some curious ordinances of a Grimsby gild, quoted for other purposes in the Introduction, the open handedness of the gild is shown in Whoever is chosen Provost must serve, or must pay.

If any brother or any sister is chosen to be Provost for a year, by the four Provosts of the past year, and will not serve, he must be in the "Gildwyt" of half a bushel of barley, and be quit as soon as the others have been chosen.

an ordinance, declaring that any brother who has money of the gild in his hands may bring a guest to the gild-feasts, provided that the guest be a creditable person, and that he and his friend come in good time. If they are after "prime," they will get no ale. The old ordinances of the gild of Stratford-upon-Avon, which will be found on a later page, also show that, upon proper introduction, guests not belonging to the gild were made welcome at the gild feasts.

VIII.

STAMFORD.

GILD OF ST. KATHERINE.*

Stamford. Constituciones Gilde Ste Katerine Ville Stam- These ordinances were established ford, edite et stabilite in parochia Sti Pauli ibidem, anno A.D. 1494. Domini millesimo quatercentesimo nonagesimo quarto, et anno Regni Regis Henrici septimi post conquestum Anglie decimo.

Acta Gilde. Thies ben the ordinaunces, Actes, and Statutes, These ordinances, made in old time, made, and of auncient tyme assigned and ordeyned, by the were re-affirmed in the year above founders of the Gylde of the holye and blyssed Vyrgyne and written. martyr Seynt Katryn, in Stamford ; nowe renewed, and affermed and confermed, by the assente and consente and agrement off all the Bredern off the same gilde, in the yere aboue wreten.

De ffundacione. ffirst, in the name, honor, and glorye off the The foundation of Blyssed Trynyte, and of the gloryouse Virgyn and moder oure to abide for ever. Lady Seynt marye, and all the companye of heuen, and in espe-

the gild, which is

* I am indebted to the personal hand of the Librarian of Gonville and Caius College, Cambridge, for a copy of the very interesting ordinances here printed. There is every reason to believe that, among the MS. treasures in the Libraries of Oxford and Cambridge, there lie hidden many original ordinances of old gilds. What now follows, and some others which I have been enabled to give in later pages, will, I hope, arouse those who have the immediate opportunity, to make search for such interesting relics of the life of our forefathers.

ciall of the blessed corseynt and holy Virgyne and Martir Seynt Kateryn, in the Chapell ouer the parissh Churche durre of Seynt Poules in Stamford, it is sette, founded, ordeyned, and also stablysshed, a Gilde off the holye Virgyne and martyr Seynt Kateryn, which shall neuer ffrom that Chaple be alvened, ne done awaye frome thens in noo manner wise, but euer there to abyde, endure, and be maynteyned withoute ende.

Services shall be attended by all the bretheren, on St. Katherine's eve, and on St. Katherine's day.

De annuo servicio. Item, it is ordeyned and assigned and also inacted, that the Alderman of the seid Gilde shalbe at Sevnt Kateryn-is Chapell aforeseid, wt all his Bredern, on Sevnt Katryn-is euen, at euensong; and on ye daie, at Mateyns, masse, and later euensonge, holye to-gedre. And noo man then be absent wt-oute a resonable and sufficiaunt excuse, vppon payne of every Broder absente a li. of wax, to be paied to the Gilde. And that the Stuarde off the Gilde for the tyme beyng shall truly countrolle them yt ben absente; and, at the next tyme off assemble. to presente the names of theym and every of theym so absente vppoun the same peyne.

All shall meet in the hall of the gild, shall ask every new-comer as to his willingness.

De admissione ffratrum et sororum. Item, it is ordeyned that when the said ffirst euensong is doone, the Alderman and his Bredern shall assemble in their Halle, and dryncke; and there haue a curteys Communycacion for the weele of the seid Gilde. And then shal be called forth all thoo that shal be admytted Bredern or Sustern off the Gilde; and the Alderman shall exand the Alderman amyne theym in this wise :--- "Sir, or Syre, be ye willyng to be Bredern among us in this Gilde, and will desire and axe it in the Worshippe off Allmyghty god, our blissed lady Seynt marye, and of the holye Virgyn and Martyr Seynt Kateryn, in whoos name this Gilde is founded, and in the wey of Charyte ?" And by their owne Wille they shall answer, "ye," or "nave." Then the Alderman shall commaunde the Clerke to gyff this othe to them in fforme and manner folowyng :-

De ffidelitate facienda. "This here ye, Alderman --- I shall New-comers shall trewe man be to god almighty, to oure lady Seynt mary, and to take an oath of fealty to God, that holy Virgyn and martir Seynt Kateryn, in whos honoure Saints Mary and Katherine, and and worshippe this Gilde is founded; and shal be obedyent to the gild ; the Alderman of this Gilde, and to his successoures, and come to hym and to his Bredern whan I have warnyng, and not absente my selffe withoute cause resonable. I shalbe redy at and shall also swear to pay scot scott and lotte, and all my duties truly pay and doo; the ordyn- and bear lot; and to keep the auncis, constituciouns, and rules, wt the Councell off the same Gilde, ordinances of the kepe, obeye, and performe, and to my power maynteyn, to my lyuys ende; so helpe me god and holydome, and by this boke :"---And then kys the Boke, and be louynglye receyued wt all the Then they shall be lovingly received;

STAMFORD.

Bredern; and then drynke aboute; and, affter that, departe for drink a bout; and that nyghte.

De maneloquio. Item, it is ordeyned and stablyshed for euer, A meeting shall that every yere, on Seynt Leonardes daye, or ells the Sonday next affter, the Aldermann and his Brederne shall assemble and mete in the Chapell of Seynt Katryn, at oone affter noone, and there have their yerelye speche, and prouyde and ordeyn for the worshippe, profite, and all thynges necessarye at that tyme for the welfare off the same Gildye; at which tyme noo Broder shalbe absente wtoute a lawffull excuse, vppoun payn off j.li. off wax.

De generali convivio. Also it is ordeyned, that vpoun the Son- There shall be a day next affter Seynt Kateryne-is day most commenly to be hadde, the gild-hall once the seid Alderman and his Brederne and Susters shall come to their Gilde-Halle togedre, when the more Belle at Powles Chirch is knelled; and theyr dyne togedre, and take such as shall be there prouvded by the Stuarde off the Gilde ffor the tyme beyng. Att the which dyner, a man and his Wyff shall pay iiij.d., and env other single persone,-both preste, man, and woman,shall paye ij.d. And what persone be absente ffrom the seyd dyner, wtoute a resonable excuse, shall paie a li. wax, and for his dyner besyde, yff he hadde lawffull warnyng to be ther.

De compoto faciendo. Also it is ordeyned, that anone, after Anon, afterdinner, be held at 1 P.M. on St. Leonard's day, or the next Sunday, to deal with the affairs of the gild.

rand dinner in so go home.

an account shall be given by every officer.

the dyner is doone, every olde officer shall come ynne before the Alderman and the Clerke, and ther make a dewe accompte afore theym all presente, every officer of such as perteyneth to his office ; and noon officer absente hym-selff, vppoun payne off j.li. wax, to be paidd wtoute pardoun.

Any who are chosen to office, shall be fined if they do not serve.

De officio non relinquendo. Also it is ordeyned, that noo Broder of this Gilde shall refuse, at any tyme, any Office perteyning to the seid Gilde, whan he is chosene therto vppoun the ffest daye which is the eleccion daye, vppoun payn of j.li. wax.

Gildsmen must be of good repute, and must make due payments on entry.

De admissione fratrum. Also it is ordeyned, that noo mann ne persoun shalbe admitted unto this Gilde but if a bee founde of goode name and fame, of good conuersacon, and honeste in his demeanor, and of goode rule; and shall paie for his entry into the Gilde vi.s. viij.d., to be paidd in iiij. yere affter the ffirst yere, every yere xx.d.; and every yere after the ffirst yere, to paye [In the margin is written, in a later for the mayntenyng off the wax and lights, iiij.d. a mann and his Wyff, and every soole person, preeste and other, ij.d.

Peals of bel's shall be rung at and after the prayers for the souls of the dead; and the ringers shall have bread, cheese, and ale.

hand, the word

"Waxshote."]

De generali obit. Also it is ordeyned, that the same daye whan the generall ffeste is holden, at affter noone, in the seid chirch off Seynt Poules, shalbe doone and said a placebo and dirige for all the sowles of the Bredern and Susters that ben paste in this Gilde ; and ther to ryng iij. peeles ; wt masse of Requiem on the next morowe, wt as many peeles. Att the which masse, the Alderman off the Gilde, or his depute, shall offre ij.d. And at the said dirige, the Stuarde off the Gilde shall see that they that seve the seid dirige shalhaue brede, chese, and dryncke; and the ryngers also: and he shall gyff the Clerke, for his rynging, ij.d.; and the Bellmann, for goyng aboute the toun, j.d., and brede, chese, and dryncke.

De speciali obit. Also it is ordeyned, that when any Broder or Services and ringings on the death of gildsmen. Suster of this Gilde is decessed oute off this worlde, then, withyn the xxx. dayes of that Broder or Suster, in the Chirch of Sevnt Poules, ye Steward of this Gilde shall doo Rynge for hym, and do to say a placebo and dirige, wt a masse on ye morowe of Requiem, as ye commoun use is. Att the which masse, the Alderman of ve Gilde, or his depute, shall offre ij.d. for the same soule ; and to ve Clerke, for Rynging, ij.d.; and to the Belman, for goyng aboute ve Towr*, j.d. The seid dirige to be holden on ye ffryday and it may be, and the masse on the morowe. All this to be doon on ve Coste and charge of the seid Gylde.

STAMFORD.

NOTE.-This is one of the cases in which the internal evidence shows that the substance of the ordinances is older than the date given. At the outset they are spoken of as "ordinaunces, actes, and statutes, made, and of ancient tyme assigned and ordeyned, by the ffounders of the gylde,"-and as being "nowe renewed and affermed." The original ordinances were probably in Latin; and I have no doubt that what we here have, are the early translation of a lost original, with some later additions and alterations.

Two things are of special interest in these ordinances. One of these is the speech of the Alderman to new-comers, with the oath of fealty that follows. The latter carries the student of English history back to the twelfth century. It belongs to the time, often so much distorted in what passes by the much abused name of "History," when men entered into mutual bonds together, neither of them thinking of sacrificing his own independence, but each aware that the bond was one for mutual help. The spirit of this will best be shown by quoting the words of the elder Glanville; who, writing in the time of Henry II., says :--- " Mutua quidem debet esse dominii et homagii fidelitatis connexio; ita quod, quantum homo debet domino ex homagio, tantum illı debet dominus ex dominio, præter solam reverentiam."*

The other thing which is of special, if indeed it is not of unique, interest in these ordinances, is contained in the last two of them ; both of which order ringing, and the former of them the ringing of "peeles," in memory of the dead. This does not mean, in either case, what is known as the "Passing Bell." I have not met with any such order or custom in the ordinances of any other gild of so early a date. After the Reformation, peals of bells sometimes took the place of the obits and other services by which bretheren and benefactors were, in the older time, kept before the gild in hallowed memory. Illustrations of commemoration by the ringing of "peals," will be found on a later page, in the ordinances of the gild of Ringers of Bristol.*

* Glanville, De Legibus, lib. ix. cap. 4. Odd mistakes have been made, through some, even well informed, writers not being aware that there were two Glanvilles, both lawyers, and both of high authority. The elder was Chief Justiciary in the time of Henry the Second. The later prepared some most valuable and interesting Reports of Cases examined and adjudged on by the "Committee of Privileges and Elections" (H. of C.), of which he was Chairman, in 21 and 22 James I., as to the Common Law rights of Par liamentary franchise, &c. This work ought to be better known than it is.

* (sic.)

BULL-RUNNING IN STAMFORD.

The former of the two parts of these ordinances thus specially named, I believe to be of very much older date than the A.D. 1494 of the preamble; while the clauses as to the "peeles," "the ringers," and "doo rynge for hym," seem to have been added not far from when, perhaps when, these ordinances, "of auntient tyme assigned and ordeyned," were "renewed and affermed " in that year. Attention has been several times called to a state of things nearly like that here found, in ordinances recorded as in use by a gild at a given time. For the study of the ordinances of the old gilds to be historically true, and really instructive, the fact must never be lost sight of, that all parts of them were not necessarily, and often can be shown not to have been. made at the same time, still less at the date found recorded on the MS. itself. But they must have been of that date, or earlier.

BULL-RUNNING IN STAMFORD. [Among the Returns made from gilds in 1389, there are four from Stamford. But the ordinances contained in all these are The Gild of St. Martin has every year a bull; hunts it ; sells it ; and then feasts.

The old custom of the gild was kept up in the seventeenth century,

short, and of very much less interest than those of the Gild of St. Katherine. A part of one of them is, however, worth putting on record. In the Return made by the Gild of St. Martin, it is stated that, on the feast of St. Martin (11th November), this gild, by custom beyond reach of memory, has a bull: which bull is hunted [not baited] by dogs, and then sold; whereupon the bretheren and sisteren sit down to feast. Some light is thrown on this strange custom by what is said in Strutt's "Sports and Pastimes" (Book III. ch. 7, § xvii.), as to "Bullrunning at Stamford." This gild is not there named ; but the day, and the description of the bull-running, seem to show that what was kept up in 1646 was the relic of what was stated, in 1389, to have been the custom of this gild from time beyond reach of memory.]

* In the Promptorium Parvulorum, we find "A-pele of belle ryngynge (a pele of bellis)." See Mr. Way's edition, p. 13.

IX.

LUDLOW.

GILD OF THE PALMERS.*

The names are given of twenty-seven men, described as The founders, and Burgesses of Ludlow, who appear to have founded and en-others of the gild, held a meeting, in dowed this gild. It is then stated that a number of men and women, who seem to have since joined the gild, met in the church of St. Lawrence, on the morrow of Pentecost, A.D. 1284. and agreed that the gild should be called the "Gild of the They agreed on a Palmers." It was also then ordered that three chaplains should for services; and celebrate three services; one for the living, another for the dinances. dead, and the third in honour of the Holy Cross. It was afterwards (as a distinct thing) agreed that the following should be the ordinances of the gild :---+

А.D. 1284.

name; provided made these or-

When it happens that any of the bretheren or sisteren of the Help shall be given in case of gild shall have been brought to such want, through theft, fire, theft, fire, shipshipwreck, fall of a house, or any other mishap, that they have not enough to live on; then once, twice, and thrice, but not a fourth time, as much help shall be given to them, out of the goods of the gild, as the Rector and Stewards, having regard to the deserts of each, and to the means of the gild, shall order; so To be one of this that whoever bears the name of this gild, shall be up-raised assurance of help in trouble. again, through the ordinances, goods, and help of his bretheren.

gild, shall be an

If it befall that any brother or sister be cast into prison within If man or goods the kingdom of England, or that a man or his goods be in any taken, no pains

* CCCVIII. 136, 137. Condition, very bad. Latin.

+ See the note to the last clause of this Return.

way unrightly seized (which God forbid), our Rector and shall be spared to free both; Stewards shall, without delay, use every means in their power to get him and his goods freed. This they shall do at his own cost, if he can bear the charge ; but, if he has not enough, the common and at the cost of the gild, if necesfund of the gild shall be taken in aid, so as to enable them sary. faithfully and happily to do what ought to be done under this ordinance.

In case of sickness, help shall be given till well again.

In case of incurable disorder, help shall be given with an open hand.

If any of our poorer bretheren or sisteren fall into grievous sickness, they shall be helped, both as to their bodily needs and other wants, out of the common fund of the gild, until their health is renewed as it was before. But if any one becomes a leper, or blind, or maimed in limb, or smitten with any other incurable disorder (which God forbid), we wish that the goods of the gild shall be largely bestowed on him.

Dowries shall be given to girls about either to marry or to go into a religious house.

If any good girl of the gild, of marriageable age, cannot have the means found by her father, either to go into a religious house or to marry, whichever she wishes to do; friendly and right help shall be given her, out of our means and our common chest, towards enabling her to do whichever of the two she wishes.

Services for the dead shall be attended.

Services for the dead shall be duly attended by all the bretheren and sisteren.

No ghosts nor sprites allowed to he called up a-nights in Ludlow.

Such things are a scandal to the Church.

Women shall not keep night-watches.

If any man wishes, as is common, to keep night-watches with the dead, this will be allowed, on the condition that he neither calls up ghosts, nor makes any mockeries of the body or its good name, nor does any other scandal of the kind; lest, by such scandals, the discipline of the church may be brought into contempt, and the great judge may be provoked to heavier vengeance, who ought rather, by reason of the sins of the people, to be asked for love and mercy. And never shall any woman, unless of the household of the dead, keep such a night-watch.*

* The beginning of this ordinance will hardly be thought true unless the original is given. This is as follows :-- "Si vero masculus quisquam voluerit, ut est moris, ejusdem defuncti vel defuncte nocturnis vigiliis interesse, hoc fieri permittatur, dumtamen nec monstra larvarum inducere, nec corporis vel fame sue ludibria, nec ludos alios inhonestos, presumat aliqualiter attemptare." These remarkable words imply two things; first, that ghosts and other sprites can be called up after death;

Five or seven men of the gild shall, every year, choose a The rector and stewards of the Rector and Stewards of the gild, who shall manage its affairs. gild -hall be chosen by picked men.

The common seal of the gild is put to these ordinances.

Which ordinances, and also divers rents in Ludlow, granted before the passing of the statute as to not putting lands or tenements into mortmain,* the Lord Edward, lately king of England, grandfather of the now king, confirmed by his letters patent.

Then follow copies of (1) Letters Patent, dated at Kenylworth, Letters Patent, conies of which November 17, 3 E. III., confirming all that the gild has done, and are given on the return. speaking of it as a gild of old time, and recognizing its common seal; (2) Letters Patent, dated at Kenylworth, November 18, 3 E. III., giving license in mortmain for lands to the amount of £20 a year; (3) Letters Patent, dated at Westminster, June 20, 18 E. III., giving a further license in mortmain ; (4) Letters second, that this may be hindered by the strength of human law,-which this gild-ordinance, in so far, of course has. Those familiar with our Old Northern literature, will be well aware how often the forms of the dead were believed to be seen on earth again. And there is an instance, in the old Sagas, where not only did shade after shade revisit the pale glimpses of the moon, to the long and fearful disquiet of a neighbourhood, but where their often-comings could only be stopped by formal process at law; by the use of which they were, however, at last driven away. The strange tale of what once befel at Froda in Iceland, will be found in the Eyrbyggia-Saga, cap. 53-56 (ed. Havnia, 1787, pp. 270-280). [Sir Walter Scott gave an abstract of this Saga at the end of Weber and Jamieson's Illustrations of Northern Antiquities (1814).] The date of that Saga is not more than about twenty years (1264) earlier than that of this Ordinance (1284). Far apart as are Ice'and and Ludlow, I know of nothing so closely illustrative of the above ordinance as is the strange tale thus told in the Eyrbyggia Saga.

* This statute was the "Statute of Mortmain," passed 7 Edward I., A.D. 1279. The foregoing ordinances were made in 1284. It follows, that the foundation and endowment of the gild were some years older; and that these ordinances, though themselves of such high antiquity, were a revisal of still earlier ordinances. The Letters Patent of 3 Edward III. show that this was so, for they speak of the gild as existing "ab antiquo." The opening clause of this Return itself shows that the gild was one that had then already much increased; for, after naming the founders, it is added :-"Vocatis, ad hoc, viris et mulieribus qui de jure fuerant evocandi." The gild probably was only called by a saint's name before 1284, as the order was then made that it should be called the "Gild of the Palmers."

The common seal

made before A.D

1279, confirmed.

of the gild.

Endowments

Patent, dated at Westminster, April 20, 31 E. III., giving a further license in mortmain; and (5) Letters Patent, dated at Westminster, February 6, 1 R. II., reciting the first of the Letters Patent here named, and confirming them.

[The foregoing ordinances were put into this shape more than two hundred and fifty years before the time of the iniquitous plunder of English gilds in the reign of Edward VI.; and it has been already seen that the gilds often made, from time to time, additions to their ordinances, so as to enlarge their own usefulness. It will therefore be interesting to add here the statement made, as to this old Gild of the Palmers of Ludlow, by the Commissioners who were appointed A.D. 1546, to report upon the gilds and other then existing bodies whose property was about to be given up to plunder, in order to satisfy the rapacious cravings of hungry Court parasites.* All these reports were of course made as unfavourable as possible to the gilds, so as to gloss over, as well as could be done, the iniquity of the whole affair; but it will be seen that this Gild of the Palmers had, among other things, established a school, with (for that time) a well-salaried schoolmaster. I give the full title of the report, as it helps not only to explain the matters reported on as to this gild, but to illustrate the disgraceful history of the statutory plunder and death of English gilds :---]

REPORT OF THE COMMISSIONERS OF 37 HENRY VIII. AS TO THE GILD OF THE PALMERS OF LUDLOW.[†]

The Countes of Salop, wyth the Towne of Salop, [and] Staff [ord].

Things to be reported upon. Herafter ensueth a brefe Certificat or Declaracon of all such and so many Chauntreys, Hospitalles, Colledges, ffrechapelles, ffraternyties, Brotherhedes, Guyldes, and Stypendary preestes, havyng perpetuytie for euer, as ben wythin the sayd Counties of Salop and Staff. and the Towne of Salop; and to what intentes, purposes, and deades of Charite the same were ffounded, ordeyned, and made. And how the Revenue; and proffuytes of the posses-

* The particulars of this iniquitous affair will be found stated in the Introduction.

+ Certificates of Colleges, Salop and Stafford ; No. 40. (In the Public Record Office.)

LUDLOW.

siones of the same ben vsed, expendyd, and imployd; and whych of them ben parysh Churches, or how nyght' set to the i (s.c.) parysh Church wthin whych parysh they ben set; wyth a bref Reaport of the value of all the landes and possessiones now belongyng, or that dyd belong, to the same, any tyme sythence the iiijth daye of februare in the xxxvijth yere of the kinges most noble Regne; wyth the yerely Resolutes and deduccions goyng out of the same. And how many such the sayd promocions have ben dyssolued, purchaced, or by any other meane opteynyd, by any person or persones, the kinges Maiestie subiectes, of yer owne auctoritie, wythout hys highnes special lycence; wyth the yerely value therof, and the Resolutes and deducions goyng owt of the same. And what goodes, catalles, Jewels, plate, ornamentes, or other stuff, do merely belong or apperteyne to all the sayd promocions. Whych certyfycat or Names of the Commissioners. declaracon is made by yo Reuerend father in god Richard Bysshop of Coventrey and Lych., Sr Phylyp Draycot knyght, Edward Lyttleton Squyer, Anthony Borchier gent., and Wyllam Sheldon gent., theyrunto amongest other thynges appoynted by the kinges Maiesties Comyssyon, vnder hys Highnes gret Seale of Inglond, to them or thre of them dyrected, datyd at Westmr, the xiiijth daye of ffebruary in the xxxvijth yere of hys most noble Regn; as by diuerse bookes and Quayres towchyng the premysses whervponthysbref Declaracon is made and compiled, more playnely and at large is conteyned. And as hereafter brefly foloweth :---

That is to saye :---

[Among others]

THE TOWNE OF LUDLOW.

The Palmeres Guyld wthin the paryshe Churche of Saynt Laurence.

ffounded by the most valiant and victorius kinge, of ffamus Alleged foundamemorie, kinge Edward, graundfather to Richard the second.*

* This is a mistake. The gild was founded, as has been shown above, at least as early as the time of Edward I. And it was not founded by any king, but by the independent self-help of the good folks of Ludlow. These Certificates are valuable as recording the evidence of hostile witnesses as to the condition of the gilds at the time they were made; but they are utterly worthless for any historical statements which they contain as to the and afterward aftemented* by Richard the second, and also by now or most soueravnt lorde king Henry the viijth, to and for the findynde of a warden, vij. preestes, iiijor singvng men. twoo Deacones, syx Queristeres, to sing diuine service w^t in the paryshe nce of

GILD OF THE PALMERS.

Established officers of the gild.

How the income of the gild is speut.

Church of saynt Laurence. And also for the me	yntenaunce of a Scolemaster of Gramer, and xxxij. pore Almes people.
The Revenue3 ben yerly imployed for :	ì
The Salaries, Stipendes, or ffees of the predicted persons, w th other Officers, accordyng to ther seuerall assingmentes; viz., to the sayd vij. preestes, xxxviij.li. xiij s.iiij.d.; twoo singing men, parcelle of iiijo1, after the ffundacion, vj li. xiij.s. iiij.d.; twoo Deacones, xl.s. viij.d.; vj. queresteres, xxxiiij.s.;
the scolemaster of gramer, x.li.; The pore Almes people, xxvij.s.; to one wch ringith the Almes bell, ij.s.; the porter of the sayd Guild, xliiij.s. iiij.d.
In all, by yere,lxij.li. xiiij.s. viij.d.
Diuerse Obbettes, xiiij.li. v.s. vj.d. ; haloyd bred, xij.s. iij.d.; diuerse lightes, xxviij.s.; money geven to pore people, viij.s. ij.d.; The Reward to the warden, ouerseer of ye workes and reparacions,	cxxij. li . vij.s. xj.d. ob.
xlvj.s. viij.d.; The Collector of the possessiones, c.s. In all, by yere, xxiiij.li. vij.d.
Rentes Resolutes, ix. li . xj.s. v.d. ob.
Decayes, and defautes xix.li. xix.s. iij.d. ob.
Whatsoeuer remayneth, to be bestowed in Re-paracions and other expences and char vj.li. xxiij.d. ob.
ges, at the discresson of the warden for the tyme being, \ldots Butye Reparacions (the revenue; of the premisses lieng for ye gretest part in howses) do yerly mych exced this sume, as they afferm.

foundation of any gild. These are generally wrong. This will be strikingly seen in the case of the Gild of the Holy Cross of Birmingham.

* So in the original; but clearly a mistake for "augmented."

LUDLOW.

The savd Guyld is wythin the parysh church of savnt Lau- 1800 people in this parish parrence, wthin wch paryshe ben M.D.CCC housling peple, or ther- take of the Lord's Supper. aboutes: but ye Ministers of the Guyld be not chardgeable towardes the Cure. The possessiones of the Guyld, with the decaves, ben yerly The income of the gild, and the Wherof in :--- iiij.vij.li.* xvij.s. ij.d. ob. And so Rem., by ye

And the Mansion howse, wherin the said Ministers do dwell, besides the Manwth the Almeshouse wch the foresayd pore people doo inhabit, Alms-houses. wth the appurtenaunces, is worth by vere, to be letten, xx.s.,--before not valued.

$$Plate \begin{cases} Gylt, \dots, iiij.xiij.oz. iij.q^{rs}, \\ Parcel-gylt, \dots, lvj.oz. j.q^{r}, di. \\ Whyte, \dots, xxxij.oz. \end{cases} \begin{cases} x_{x} \\ c.iiij.ij.oz. di. q^{r}. \end{cases}$$

Certen other plate, being set and fastened to tre, glas, and stone, and other goodes or ornamentes, wth diverse vtensylles, appere in an Inventory redy to be shewed, --not valued.⁺

* This figure, and those in same style which follow it, are here printed as they are written. The "xx" above the first Roman figures means a score. Thus we get four score and seven, = 87; four score and thirteen, = 93; one hundred, four score, and two. = 182.

+ I have printed this report as above for the sake of clearness. In the original, while every word and figure will be found as here given, it is written in the bracketted manner which long remained in fashion; and of which I can cite no better example than the "Synopses" that are found in the original edition of Burton's "Anatomy of Melancholy."

sion house and

X.

WORCESTER.

(a) GILD OF ST. NICHOLAS.

[WHILE both the Writs sent out to the Sheriff of Worcestershire still remain in the Public Record Office, as they were sent up to the Chancery by Sheriff Barewelle in the first days of A.D. 1389,* not one of the Returns which must have been sent up from Worcestershire, within a few days afterwards, is to be found in any of the bundles of those Returns that now remain. And it is a remarkable illustration of the success which (notwithstanding several phrases of moralists) high-handed and unscrupulous force so often has in killing out even the traditions of freedom and free institutions, that the historian of the city of Worcester does not seem to have been so much as aware of the existence, in that ancient and famous city, of any old gild whatever.⁺ That such gilds existed there, as elsewhere, cannot be doubted : and a few years ago the original matrix of a seal was found, which throws some light upon the subject.[‡]

+ In Green's History of Worcester, a list is given of certain "Mysteries, Crafts, Trades, and Companies, incorporated at Worcester;" but all of them are modern, as compared with the sense in which the early English gilds are treated of in this book. It is, however, certain that there were several old craft-gilds in that city. See article xxij. of the Ordinances of Worcester, in Part III. of this volume.

[‡] I am indebted to the Town Clerk of Worcester for an impression taken from this seal. To the same gentleman, and to the Corporation of Worcester through his courteous means, I am indebted for being able to give, in this volume, not only the particulars of the Carpenters' Gild which presently follows, but the highly interesting "Ordinances of Worcester" which will be found in Part III. of this volume, and the account of other documents there also given. Though found far away from Worcester, in the distant shire of Hertford, it was found in so fine a state of preservation that no doubt can exist as to its true home. In shape it is oval, pointed at the two ends of the longest diameter. It bears. as its main charge, the figure of what must be taken to be St. Nicholas, bearing a pastoral staff, under a canopy of Gothic architecture. Below is a kneeling figure. Around the seal is the following legend :--- that is, "The seal of the Gild of Saint Nicholas, Worcester."* In the absence of any return from such a gild among what were sent up in A.D. 1389, and in the absence of any mention of such a gild by the historian of Worcester, I have searched the original records of the reports made, in the times of Henry VIII. and Edward VI., by the King's Commissioners; and the interesting facts contained in the two separate extracts that follow, are the result. These reports show that this Gild of St. Nicholast was an important one, though all trace or tradition of it has now died out :--]

Sızıllü: coe': fci': nichi: lbizorn'

* A wood-cut of this seal will be found on p 207. It is curious that, while there is the proper contraction mark over the "u" in "sigillum," there is no contraction mark where it ought to be in any of the other words: only a general one at the end of the second, third, and fifth. The second word, which is the contracted form for "comune," must be read here as a noun, and not as an adjective. In the Latin ordinances, the word "comuna" is often used for "gild."

⁺ When a gild was either the single one, or the most important, in a place or parish, it was usually called by the name of that place or parish, although, as in this case, it had a special dedication or patron saint. Several examples of this will be found in both the first and second parts of this volume. See, for instance, pp. 114, 119, 172, 185, &c. &c. Though there were several gilds in Cambridge, the one first given in these pages bears the title, indorsed on the original Return, of "Gild of Cambridge." See also the cases of Stratford-upon-Avon and Birmingham.

^{*} See before, pp. 131, 132.

Things to be re-ported upon.

(1) REPORT OF THE COMMISSIONERS OF 37 HENRY VIII., AS

Continuatur quousque the pore: for the Schole may cease, Continue doles to for ther is one other in the towne, of the kinges fundacoun; and this is no Schole of any purpos, as it is credebly saide.*

[At the side of the foregoing is written, in the original, but in the poor ; but shut up the school.

(2) REPORT OF THE COMMISSIONFRS OF 2 EDWARD VI., AS TO THE GILD OF ST. NICHOLAS.⁺

The Countie of Worcettour.

The Certyfycath of the Suruey of alle the late Collagys. Chauntryes, ffree chappelles, ffraternityes, brotherdes, and Guyldes, with the valewe of all the landes and tenementes Things to be reported upon. belongyng to the same; and also of alle the landes gyven for the fynding of any stipendary priste, or for the mayntenaunce of any Obyttes, lyghtes, and lampes, Now in ye kinges Maiesties handes by the late acte of parliament; with the names of the townes and parishes, Maisters, gouernours, Incumbentes, and such other persons, whose lyuynges the kynges Maiestie is entutled vnto by v^e said late acte bering date the xiiijth daye of ffebruary Anno Regni nuper Regis henrici octaui xxxvijo; with the yerely deduccouns given out of any the premisses for the mayntennce¹ of any scole, or Relyf of the pore, within the said

1 (sic.)

TO THE GILD OF ST. NICHOLAS.* The County of Worcester. A breif declaracoun of alle and singler the late Colleages, Chaunteries, ffree chappelles, ffraternities, brotherhoodes, and Guyldes, with other lyke promocouns within the said Countie, gyven to the kynges Maiestie by Acte of parleament lately in that behalf prouided; with ye Namys of the Incumbentes, Maisters, Gouernors, and other Mynysters, with there yerely stypendes or wagys, the Tenth deducted : with alle Scoolemasters, Prechers, and bedmen, havying any yerely relyef out of the premisses, as hereafter doth ensue.

viz.:---

[Among others]

THE CYTIE OF WORCESTER.

The Parishe of saynt Nicholas.

The Guyld of the holy Trynyte within the said parishe and Cytie.

Memorand: there is a house called the Trynitie halle, with Property of the gild;

and how the income is spent

certen landes and tenementes belongvng to the said Guylde, to the clere yerely value of xiij.li. xvij.s. x.d.; whych hath byn always employed, as hit was presented before the kynges Maiestyes Commyssioners there, to the mayntenaunce of one scolemaster ther, to teche freely gramer, vili. xiii.s. iiii.d.: And to divers pore people, inhabyting in xxiiii, cotages or Alms houses adjoynyng to the Trynite hall there, cvii.s. iii.d. as aforesaid. And so remaineth of the said some but xxxvij.s. ij.d.; wch some, the presenters did afferme to be not sufficient for the yerely repayryng of the said halle, cotages, and Almeshouses.

Salary of the schoolmaster.

Memorand, that John Olyver, Clerke, is now scolemaster there, and hath yerely tenn markes for his wagis.

* Certificates of Colleges, Worcester, No. 61. (In the Public Record Office.)

* This was thus put in order to gloss over the intended seizure of the property of this gild. The school founded by Henry VIII. out of some fragments of the previous ecclesia-tical plunder, was one for forty scholars only (see Green's Worcester, vol. ii. p. 81). But the school of the Gild of St. Nicholas taught more than a hundred scholars, as will be seen by the record next quoted. And the fact that, so many years after the foundation of Henry VIII.'s school, the gild school was so largely attended, is the best proof how untrue was the statement that the latter was "no schole of any purpos." But the teaching of the youth of Worcester was of course a matter of too small importance to be allowed to interfere with the designs of those needy men who were bent on seizing the property of the gilds to their own uses. And, though delayed for a short time, the plunder of this gild seems to have been entire. So far as I can learn, not a trace or tradition of this great school of the Gild of St. Nicholas has remained.

+ Certificates of Colleges, Worcester, No. (o. (In the Public Record Office.)

shere; by vertue of the kynges highnes Comyssion, beryng date the xiiii dave of ffebruary, in ye seconde yere of ye reigne of or moste dreade soueraigne lorde Edwarde the sixth, by the grace of god of Englande, ffrance, and Irelonde kyng, defendor of the fayth, and in earth of the churche of Englande and Irelonde supreme hedd, to Sir John Pakynton knyght, Sir Robert Acton knyght, John Skewdamour Esquyer, William Sheldon Esquyer, George Willoughby, William Grene, Willyam Crouche, and John Bowrne, directed.*

[Among others]

The paryshe of seynt Nicholas, within the Citie of Worcettor; The names of alle the Townes and wherin be, of houselyng people, the nomber of six hundreth. Parishes, &c. The Guylde or fraternytic of the Trynytic, in the paryshe of The names of alle the Colleges, &c. Saynt Nicholas aforesaid. John Olyuer, bacheler of arte, Incumbent there; of the age The names of alle Incumbentes. of thyrtie yeres, welle learnyd, and of honeste conuersacoun. declaring their agis, learnyng, The yerely valewe of alle the landes and and qualyties. The yearly valewe tenementes belongyng to ye said of alle the landes xiij.li. xvij.s. vij.d. belonging to the guylde, as apperythe by the partisaid Colleges and othere the said promocouns, culer of the same, with the verely reprises, landes Whereof,--solde, and the clere yerely In repryses yerely owt of the same, xxvj.s. vj.d. valewe. Landes solde, None. And so remⁿ. clere, xij.li. xj.s. j.d. Plate, xviij. ounz. The valewe of alle the goodes, Inells, Goodes, presid at xj.li. plate, &c. Prechers. None. The Somes of money yerely A Scoole, as in the Memorand. vnder-wrytten apperyth. gyven out of the premysses for the To the poore, owt of the clere yerely mayntenaunce of any prechers, cvij.s. iiij.d. valewe, scole masters, or for the relyf of the

Memorand: hit was presented by John Callowe, Maister of the said Guylde, Thomas Wylde and Richarde Dedycote, Facts as to the baylyfes of the said Citie, Robert Yowlle, alderman of the same Citie, Thomas Parton, citezen, Thomas Johnson and Richard Hasylcocke, Stewardes or Wardens of the said Guylde, that there hath byn, tyme owt of mynde, a ffree scole kept within the said Citie, in a grete halle belongyng to the said Guylde, called the Trynite halle; the scolemaster wherof for the tyme beyng hath hade yerely, for his stypend, ten poundes; whereof was paid, owt of the reveneus of the said landes, by the Master and Stewardes of the said Guylde for the tyme beyng, vj.li. xiij.s. iiij.d.; And the resydewe of the said stypend was collected and gathered of the deuocioun and benyuolence of the brothers and systers of the said Guylde. And further hit was why it was suspresented, that, by the space of foure or fyve yeres or more last past, or there-aboutes, the walls of the said Citie, and one great stone brydge with ten Arches within the same Citie, called Syuerne brigge, and the said tenementes, howsis, and cotagis, belongyng to the said Guylde, were ruynous and in greate decaye. By reason wherof they loste the kepyng of the said Scolemaster by the said space of foure or fyve yeres or more; and imployed and bestowed the said money, that dyd vse to fynde the said Scolemaster, to the necessary reparacouns of the said walles, brigges, howses, tenementes, and cotages. And, the same being repayred, they, before the ffeaste of seynt Michelle and that it was restored again. tharchaungelle last past, prouvded and haue founde an honest with more than 00 scholars. lernvd Scolemaster within the said halle, in lyke maner as they before tyme dyd; that is to sey, one John Olyuer, bacheler of Arte; who hathe there, at this present tyme, a-boue the number off a hundred Scolers.

* The original of what follows is arranged in several columns, with a heading to each, which is repeated on every page. To save space, I have here put the contents of each column in a separate paragraph, and have put in the margin as much of the original heading to each column as is enough to explain its purpose.

WORCESTER.

205

NOTE.—In the Appendix to Nash's Worcestershire, is given a copy of a paper which professes to be drawn up from records, copies of the originals of which have been here laid before the reader. In the absence of originals, errors are likely; but that, with those originals before him, any man should write the following strange travestie, is an instructive example of how what is called "History" is written. The Certificates of Colleges do name a Chantry of Holy Trinity; but this pended :

204

Names of the Commissioners

poore.

is quite distinct from the Gild : of which latter it is that this account professes to be written. And what follows is specific as to the "Trinity Hall," which both the Reports before cited distinctly admit to have belonged to the Gild, and not to the Chantry.* The facts as to the transmission of the Hall are probably correct.

"MR. HABINDON'S ACCOUNT OF TRINITY GYLD.+

"The chantry [d] of the chapel of the Holy Trinity, in the parish of St. Nicholas, within the city of Worcester, was founded by Richard Norton and others, by virtue of the king's letters, 18 Feb. 45 Edw. III., to find a priest to sing mass perpetually for the soul of the founder Richard, and all christian souls ; as by the same license, shewed before the commissioners, may appear; and was so used. The said Gyld or Brotherhood was established and confirmed by King Henry IV., 1404, to the laud of God and honour of the Holy Trinity, in the church or chapel of the Trinity there, by his letters patent; having authority by the same to stablish a certain perpetual chantry of three priests or chaplains, to sing mass perpetually for the said king; as by a copy of the said letters patent, shewed before the commissioners, may appear. The said service, founded partly by the bequeaste of several

* That the case may be wholly free from doubt, I give what is said as to this Chantry in the Report of 2 Edward VI. (There is a ludicrous blunder in the Report hereon of 37 Hen. VIII. ; which it is not worth while, however, to take up space by correcting.] The following is the entire Report, in the Certificates of 2 Edward VI., touching the Chantry :--

- The Chauntery of the Trynytie, in the said parishe, founded for too contynewe foreuer.
- Rycharde Stone, Incumbente, of the age of fyftie six yeares, lernyd, and of honest conversacoun.
- The yerely valewe of the same Chaunterie, as apperyth by the particulers therof x.li. vj.s. iiij d.
- Whereof.reas veraly out of the same

In repryses yerely owt of the same	viij.s. viij d.
Landes solde
And so rem ^u clere	ix.li.xvij.s.viij.d.
Plate	None.
Goodes presid at	None.
Prechers	None.
Scoole	None.
To the poore	Nil.

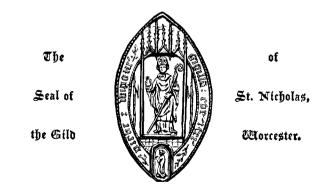

+ Nash's Worcestershire, Vol. II. App. cxxxviii.

"[d] Taken from the account delivered in to the king's commissioners at the Dissolution."

WORCESTER.

nersons, partly purchased by devout persons for and towards the sustentation of one priest, not only to say mass within the said chapel. but also to help the parson and curate in time of need in the parish church, because it doth abound of houseling people. The priest is removable. The value of the revenues, according to the book of First Fruits and Tenths, is £11. 3. 7 per annum. The yearly value. according to the present survey, £10. 2; out of which are deductions. This chantry, with divers houses and lands, both within the city of Worcester and without, belonging thereto, came to the king's hands by act of parliament tempore Edward VI.; which was granted by his majesty, 5 July 2 Edw. VI., to Sir Edward Warriner, knt., and Richard Catplin, gent., who in like sort granted the same, 24 Novemb, 2 Edw. VI., to John Keyme and Richard Keyme.

" Both these grants passing after through several hands, the Trinity Hall, with most of the lands and houses appertaining thereto, came to Robert Yowle, Thomas Wylde, John Rowland alias Steyner, Hugh Ashley, William Langley, and William Welbin. Mr Robert Yowle, as worthy and charitable a citizen as his time produced, surviving some of these feofees, gave, as far as in him lay, the Trinity Hall to the Weavers, Walkers, and Clothiers of the City of Worcester. Mr. John Rowland alias Steyner, married the daughter and heir of Mr. Robert Yowle; who, outliving his father-in-law Mr. Yowle, and all the other feoffees, Mr. Robert Rowland alias Steyner, his heir by Mr. Yowle's daughter, and true heir of their bounty and hospitality and other good deeds, 17 Sept. 9 Jacob R. gave, to the corporation of Weavers, Walkers, and Clothiers of Worcester, the Trinity Hall which his grandfather Mr. Towle before intended, and to his power then performed."

(b) GILD OF THE JOINERS AND CARPENTERS.

[In the possession of the Corporation of Worcester are two volumes, containing the "Orders and Bylawes made and ordeyned" by this gild, or company. It is recited, in several places, that this was an ancient company; and more than one charter seems to have been granted to it. The ordinances, however, in the form in which they are found in these books, though no doubt they were taken from much older ordinances, and though of the same general type as the old ordinances of craft-gilds, are stated to have been agreed to in the seventeenth century. I therefore print here no more than a kalendar of the substance of them, the original of which is contained in one of the two volumes. This will give a useful illustration of the style of ordinances which were actually in use during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, and will enable sufficient comparison to be made with the older ordinances.]

Ordinances of the gild, as settled A.D. 1692.

No. 1. Penalty of 3.s. 4.d. for a Freeman of the Company not being present at the Election and swearing of the Master and Wardens, having had reasonable notice, and no just excuse for his absence.

2. Penalty of 40.s. for a Freeman of the Company and assistants, chosen Master, Refuseing that office.

3. Penalty of 20.s. for a Freeman of the Company, chosen a Warden, Refuseing that office.

4. Master, within 10 Days after Election and swearing of another, to deliver in his Account to the Master, Wardens, and Assistants. And to pay the Ballance, and deliver papers, &c. to the new Master, under the penalty of \pounds_5 .

5. Penalty of 20.s., or less, for a Freeman of the Company misbehaving to the Master, Wardens, or Assistants.

6. Where Companys Effects to be kept.

7. Penalty, not exceeding £5, for makeing deceitful Work.— Disfranchisem^t, if Penalty not p^d within 2 months after assessed. 8. Penalty of $\pounds 5$ for takeing an apprentice for less than 7 years.—How to be bound.

9. Penalty for takeing a child, or young Man, to teach him the trade, without binding him apprentice.

10. Penalty of £5 for takeing an apprentice, to sell him again to ano^r of the same trade.*—Who may keep 2 apprentices at same time.—Who may keep only one.—Within what time, before the Expiration of such apprenticeship, the Mas^r or M^{rs} may take ano^r apprentice.

11. How an apprentice to be dealt with, for absenting from his service ;—and penalty of 40.8. by the Master for takeing such apprentice again, without first presenting him to the Master, Wardens, and Assistants.

12. Who shall not be free of the Company for less than $\pounds 20$. —Who shall be set to work by a Freeman of the Company ; and penalty of 20.8. for offending.

13. Penalty of 20.s. for Inveigleing away a Journeyman or Servant from a Freeman of the Company.

14. Penalty of 40.s. a month for useing the Trade of a Joiner or Carpenter, not having served a seven years apprenticeship and been free of the Company, except he work as a Servant or Journeyman with a Freeman of the Company.

15. Penalty of 5.s. for a Freeman's not entering his Journeyman's Name in the Company's Book, and paying 1.s. for such Entry.—And one shilling a Quarter so long as such Journey man continues to serve in the Trade.

16. Penalty of 3.s. 4.d. for a Freeman of the Company being absent at a meeting, without reasonable Excuse, to be allowed by the majority of the Master, Wardens, and assistants.

17. A Freeman of the Company convicted of Felony, to be

^{*} Of course this does not mean, as its literal sense would imply, to sell the body of the apprentice; but, to sell the master's interest in the Articles of Apprenticeship; the value of which would depend upon when the apprentice has reached so much skill as to make his services more or less valuable to a master.

disfranchised, and excluded the Company; and an order for that Purpose to be entered in the Company's Book.

18. A Freeman of the Company buying Timber or boards, come to Worcester to be sold fit for the Crafts, every Freeman of the Company to have not exceeding a 3^d share in it, on request, and paying ready money for it, after the rate same were bought. And on refusal to share same, to forfeit 20.8.*

19. How penaltys and Forfeitures to be recovered.

20. A Master of the Trades to pay 20.8. on his being so chosen. The charges of such meeting to be defrayed, equally, between such of the Company then present, save the Master for the last year, at the chooseing the new Master; [each] to pay, towards the Charges of such meeting, 6.s. 8.d.—And every person admitted a Freeman of the Company, at his admittance to pay 40.8.

2nd Sep^{tr} 1723. A confirmation of the Bye-laws, by Sir James Mountagu, Lord Chief Baron of the Exchequer, and Jeffery Gilbert, Esq^r, a Baron of s^d Court, Justices of the Oxford Circuit.

[One of the books contains the originals of two other ordinances, enforcing the foregoing, and dated 15th July, 1793. Both are sealed with the seal of the gild, and are "ratified and confirmed" by the signatures of Lord Kenyon and Sir Nash Grose, as Justices of Assize. Such signatures were made necessary by two Acts, passed in the times of Henry VI. and Henry VII. (15 H. VI. c. 6; 19 H. VII. c. 7), as is more fully shown in the Introduction to this volume.]

* The true meaning of this ordinance can hardly be understood without the full words of it; which are as follows :---"Item, It Is Ordered That if any ffreeman of the said Company Shall buy any parcell of Timber or Boards that Come to the said City of Worcester to be Sold, and fitt for the said Crafts or either of them. That then it Shall be lawfull for every ffreeman of the s^d Company to have a Share therein, not exceeding one

1 (cic.) Third part thereof, Upon request, and paying reading¹ money for the Same, after the rate of the said Timber and Boards were bought. And whosoever of the said Company refuseth to Share or divide Such Timber or Boards brought within the said City, Contrary to the Intent of this Article, Shall forfeit, for every Such Refusall, Twenty Shillings, to be paid to the said Master of the said Company for the time being, for the vse of the said Company."

XI.

STRATFORD-UPON-AVON.

GILD OF THE HOLY CROSS.

[IT is very remarkable that, although whatever concerns Stratford-upon-Avon has been made the subject of researches more frequent, probably, than have ever been made as to any other place of equal importance in England, the Ordinances which now follow have never before been made known to the public, and appear never to have come to the knowledge of any searcher. Mr. Thomas Fisher, very early in the present century, had full opportunities given him, of which he carefully availed himself, to examine the Records of this Gild; and he distinctly informs us that he examined documents which "carried back its history to the reign of Edward the First."* But he gives no hint whatever of having found any traces of the existence of the documents that now follow. Mr. Halliwell, in his " Descriptive Calendar of the Ancient MSS. and Records in possession of the Corporation of Stratford upon-Avon," + has gone over the same ground as Mr. Fisher went over nearly sixty years earlier. But neither does he appear to have found any trace of the documents now printed. I deem myself happy in being able to ^{* &}quot;Gentleman's Magazine," New Series, vol. iii. (1835), p. 162; and see ib. p. 375.

⁺ Printed (only seventy-five copies) in 1863, in a very large folio volume containing 467 pages. Unfortunately, the work has neither "Contents" nor "Index." But the documents which I now give would have been made prominent. if they had been known. I have searched the volume in vain for any copies or any description of either the Ordinances or Reports.

give, in this volume, documents which will not only be interesting to every one who looks on the birth-place and home of Shakspeare as a sort of National Shrine, but which also have a high intrinsic value of their own.

As anything touching the birth-place and home of Shakspeare arouses more than a common attention in the mind of every

(1.) THE ORIGINAL RETURN, IN LATIN.*

The original Return, made on 30th January. 1389

Nicholaus Samer et Walterus Golde, custodes gilde sancte Crucis de Stratford in Comitatu Warrewici, virtute cuiusdam proclamacionis facte apud Warrewicum per breve domini Regis, de modo et forma et auctoritate fundacionis, et omnium articulorum in dicto breve specificatorum dictam gildam concernencium, excellencie vestre Regie cum omni subjeccione legia et reuerencia premissa, certifica[n]t in hiis scriptis, penultimo die mensis Januarii Anno regni vestri duodecimo :---Videlicet, quo-ad auctoritatem fundacionis et incepcionis ac continuacionis gilde predicte, predicta gilda est, et incepta fuit, a tempore cuius contrarium memoria non existit. Et quod de dicta gilda sunt, et a toto tempore fuerunt, duo custodes gilde predicte: qui gubernare et recipere debent omnia proficua de tenementis et redditibus dicte gilde pertinentibus, reddendo inde compotum annuatim fratribus et sororibus ejusdem gilde; et ad supervidendum quod ordinaciones fratrum et sororum dicte gilde facte, fideliter in omnibus obseruentur : et qui custodes eligi debent, per fratres et sorores ejusdem gilde, pro tempore quo eisdem fratribus et sororibus placuerit duraturi. Et dicte ordinaciones inferius in scriptis continentur. Et qui quidem fratres et sorores dicte gilde habent, et eorum predecessores habuerunt a tempore cuius contrarium memoria non existit, vt de iure gilde predicte, diuersa tenementa et redditus; que particulariter specificantur in carta confirmacionis domini Edwardi Regis Angliæ, progenitoris domini Regis nunc, * CCCVIII. 143. Condition, fair, except along one side.

educated man of the English-speaking race, I depart, in this instance, from the course followed in all other cases, and print the Latin original side by side with my translation; and need now only add, that this original is of very high antiquity, and is expressed with a terse brevity not often found in ordinances of later date.]

(2.) TRANSLATION OF THE ORIGINAL RETURN.

Nicholas Samer and Walter Golde, Wardens of the Gild of The Wardens of the Holy Cross of Stratford in the county of Warwick, in Return, in obefulfilment of a proclamation made at Warwick under a writ of Sheriff's proclaour lord the King, do now make known to your royal excellency, with all loyalty and respect, the manner and form and source of the foundation of the gild, and all such matters and things touching the gild as are set forth in that writ; all which is set down in this writing, which was made on the last The return was day but one of the month of January, in the twelfth year of your reign :---That is to say; as to the source of the foundation and beginning and continuation of this gild, the gild has lasted, beyond the and its beginning was, from time whereunto the memory of man reacheth not. And there are, and always have been, two There are two Wardens of the gild, who are bound to manage and gather in all the profits of the houses and rents belonging to the gild, dec. rendering an account thereof every year to the bretheren and sisteren of the gild; and who ought to take care that the ordinances made by the bretheren and sisteren of the gild are faithfully kept in all things : and these Wardens must be These Wardens chosen by the bretheren and sisteren of the gild, and remain in office for such time as the bretheren and sisteren think fit. The time as the gild ordinances themselves are written below. The bretheren and sisteren of the gild have, and their forerunners have had from time where unto the memory of man reacheth not, many houses Many houses and and rents belonging as of right to the said gild; which are particularly set forth in the charter of confirmation lately granted to the bretheren and sisteren of the gild, and their charter of Edward III, he gild make a lience to the mation.

written on 30th January, A.D. 1389.The gild was begun at a time memory of man

Vardens, who manage and collect all rents, and render an account thereof yearly to the gld; and who must see that the ordinances are kept are chosen by the gild, and hold flice for so long thinks fit.

rents belong to the gild ; the holding of which has lately been confirmed by a fratribus et sororibus dicte gilde, et eorum successoribus, nuper facte; cuius quidem carte tenor continetur in quadam cedula huic certificacioni consuta.

> Hec sunt consuetudines fratrum et sororum gilde Sancte Crucis Stratfordie.

In primis, quilibet fratrum qui velit in eadem gilda permanere, dabit per annum quatuor denarios, ad quatuor anni terminos; scilicet, ad festum sancti Michaelis, vnum denarium; ad festum sancti Hillarii, vnum denarium; ad pascha, vnum denarium; ad festum sancti Johannis Baptiste, vnum denarium : ad vnum cereum faciendum et sustenendum ; qui quidem cereus, ad honorem domini nostri ihesu Christi et beate virginis et sancte crucis, perficietur; et ardebit singulis diebus per annum, ad quamlibet missam in ecclesia, coram beata Cruce; vt deus et beata virgo et Crux veneranda, omnes fratres et sorores in eadem gilda permanentes, ab omni malo custodiant et defendant. Et siguis fratrum vel sororum ad dictos terminos venire contempserit, erit in misericordia vnius denarii.

Prouisum est eciam inter fratres et sorores dicte gilde, quod siquis eorum moriatur, predictus cereus, vna cum octo minoribus, portabuntur de ecclesia ad domum defuncti; et ibi ardebunt coram corpore defuncti, quousque corpus ad ecclesiam portetur; et cerei portabuntur et ardebunt quousque corpus sepeliatur, et postea coram cruce ponentur. Item, onnes fratres prenominate gilde, corpus defuncti sequi debent versus ecclesiam, et pro anima eius orare quousque corpus sepeliatur. Et quis eorum hoc non fecerit, erit in misericordia ob.

Prouisum est eciam inter predictos fratres et sorores, quod siquis pauper homo in villa moriatur, vel siguis extraneus non habeat vnde lumen de catallis propriis coram corpore suo possit ad ardendum inuenire nec acquietare, predicti fratres et sorores, pro animarum suarum salute, quatuor cereos, et vnum lintheamem, et tapetum ad feretrum cooperiendum, ei, guicumgue fuerit, inuenient, quousque corpus sepeliatur.

successors, by the Lord Edward, King of England, forefather of the Lord the King that now is; a copy of which charter is given in the schedule stitched to this return.

> These are the ordinances of the bretheren and sisteren The ordinances. of the Gild of the Holy Cross of Stratford.

First: each of the bretheren who wishes to remain in the Every one must pay fourpence gild, shall give fourpence a year, payable at four times in the a year. vear ; namely, a penny on the feast of St Michael, a penny on the feast of St. Hillary, a penny at Easter, and a penny on the feast of St. John Baptist. Out of which payments, there shall be A wax shall be nade and kept up. made and kept up one wax; which shall be done in worshipful honor of our Lord Jesus Christ and of the blessed Virgin, and of the Holy Cross. And the wax shall be kept alight every day which shall be light in the throughout the year, at every mass in the church, before the church during nass, before the blessed Cross; so that God and the blessed Virgin and the holy Cross. much-to-be-reverenced Cross, may keep and guard all the bretheren and sisteren of the gild from every ill. And whoever Any one not payng his dues shall of the bretheren or sisteren neglects to come at the above named be fined times [when the payments are due], shall pay one penny.

It is also ordained by the bretheren and sisteren of the gild, that, when any of them dies, the wax before-named, together with eight smaller ones, shall be carried from the church to the house of him that is dead; and there they shall be kept alight before the body of the dead until it is carried to the church; afterwards set before the Cross. and the waxes shall be carried and kept alight until the body is buried, and afterwards shall be set before the Cross. Also, all the bretheren of the gild are bound to follow the body to church, and to pray for his soul until the body is buried. And whoever does not fulfil this, shall pay one halfpenny.

It is also ordained by the bretheren and sisteren, that if any If any poor man poor man in the town dies, or if any stranger has not means stranger of what of his own out of which to pay for a light to be kept burning before his body, the bretheren and sisteren shall, for their souls' health, whosoever he may be, find four waxes, and one sheet, and a hearse-cloth to lay over the coffin until the body is buried.

On the death of any gild-member, the aforesaid wax and eight smaller ones shall be kept alight before the body, as d carried to church, and

The bretheren shall follow every funeral.

Penalty for neglect. hes, or any rank soever, the gild shall find lights and what else is needed for decent bunal.

GILD OF THE HOLY CROSS.

Preterea prouisum est inter predictos fiatres et sorores, quod quilibet eorum per annum dabit duos denarios, ad quandam congregacionem inter eos faciendam semel in anno; videlicet, ad quandam potacionem* in septimana Pasche faciendam, in tali forma quod fraterna dileccio inter eos augeatur, et turpiloquia repellantur, set pax semper inter cos reformetur, et vera dileccio retineatur. Et quelibet soror dicte gilde, ad dictam potacionem, ciphum magnum secum portabit; et omnes ciphi ceruisia implebuntur; et postmodum ceruisia dabitur pauperibus. Similiter erit de fratribus; quod ciphi eorum eodem modo ceruisia implebuntur ; et dabitur pauperibus. Et antequam illa ceruisia pauperibus erogetur, vel antequam aliquis frater vel soror in domo vbi potacio dicta fiet potabit, omnes fratres et sorores ibidem congregati orationes suas facient, quod deus et beata virgo et Crux veneranda, ad cuius honorem talis facta est congregacio, eos ab omnibus malis et peccatis defendant. Item, siqua soror ciphum non tulerit, sicut prenotatum est, erit in misericordia ob. Item, siquis supradictorum fratrum vel sororum, post sonitum campani, litigauerit vel litigium fecerit, erit in misericordia ob.

Provisum est eciam, quod nullus in dicta fraternitate morabitur nisi idoneus homo fuerit.

Preterea prouisum est, quod siguis fratrum moriatur, quod hostiarii debent citare terciam partem fratrum; qui debent coram corpore vigilare, et pro anima orare, per noctem. Quod si neglixerint, post citacionem factam, quilibet qui non fecerit dabit ob. pro emenda.

Prouisum est per commune concilium tocius fraternitatis, quod duo fratres erunt Aldermen : et sex alii fratres erunt electi. qui regent totam fraternitatem cum predictis Aldermen; et quis

It is further ordained by the bretheren and sisteren, that each Every one shall of them shall give twopence a year, at a meeting which shall be pence, at a feast held once a year; namely, at a feast which shall be held in held in Easter Easter week, in such manner that brotherly love shall be pose of cherishing brotherly love and cherished among them, and evil-speaking be driven out ; that peace. peace shall always dwell among them, and true love be upheld.

And every sister of the gild shall bring with her to this feast a Every sister shall bring a tankard. great tankard; and all the tankards shall be filled with ale; fill it with ale and give this to the and afterwards the ale shall be given to the poor. So likewise poor; shall the bretheren do; and their tankards shall, in like manner, and every brother shall do the same be filled with ale, and this also shall be given to the poor. But, before that ale shall be given to the poor, and before any Bot, before the ale is given, and brother or sister shall touch the feast in the hall where it is before the feast is begun, pravers accustomed to be held, all the bretheren and sisteren there shall be said by the bretheren and gathered together shall put up their prayers, that God and the sisteren themblessed Virgin and the much-to be-reverenced Cross, in whose honour they have come together, will keep them from all ills and sins. And if any sister does not bring her tankard, as is above Neglectful sisteren shall be fined. said, she shall pay a halfpenny. Also, if any brother or sister Quarrellers, and stirreis up of shall, after the bell has sounded, quarrel, or stir up a quarrel, he quarrels, shall be fined. shall pay a halfpenny.

It is also ordained, that no one shall remain in this gild Only worthy men shall be allowed to unless he is a man of good behaviour. remain in the gild.

It is moreover ordained, that when one of the bretheren dies, Night-watches, with prayers, shall the officers shall summon a third part of the bretheren; who be kept round the body of the dead. shall watch near the body, and pray for his soul, through the night. Whoever, having been summoned, neglects to do this, Penalty on any shall pay a halfpenny.*

It is ordained by the Common Council of the whole gild that two of the bretheren shall be Aldermen; and six other help-men, to bretheren shall be chosen, who shall manage all the affairs of of the gild; the gild with the Aldermen; and whoever of them is absent on and whoever of

* Compare this ordinance with the very curious one near the end of the ordinances of the Gild of Palmers of Ludlow (before, p. 194). It will be observed that in this case, as in that, the night-watching is to be done by bretheren only, not sisteren. But here the night watching is imperative ; in the case of Ludlow it is only allowed, and under strict conditions.

one who, being summoned, does not come. There shall be two Aldermen, and six manage the affinrs hese does not vearly pay two-which shall be

week, for the pur-

^{*} I translate this word "potacio" as "feast" There can be no doubt that it is equivalent to the old English word "ale," which was long used with the sense of feast. Thus we have Whitsun-Ale, Church-Ale, &c. &c., and Bride-Ale, which is still in use in the form Bridal. See the subject fully considered, with many illustrations, in "The Parish" (second edition), at places under the word "Ales" in Index. And see an analogous case before, p. 175, note †.

eorum absens fuerit ad diem interlocucionum inter cos assignatam, erit in misericordia quatuor denariorum.

Siguis frater vel soror ducat hospitem, sine licencia senescalli, in misericordia ob. Item, siquis extraneus, vel nuncius, siue aliquis puer, intret, hostiariis nescientibus, in misericordia ob.* Item, siquis frater vel soror presumat capere scannum alterius, in misericordia ob.

Item, siquis frater vel soror per infortunium spoliatus fuerit, vel in paupertem ceciderit, dum se bene gesserit et honeste versus fratres et sorores, ipsi inuenient ei victum et vestitum et cetera necessaria.

[Stitched to this Return is a copy of letters patent, issued on the 12th November, in the fifth year of (as it seems) King Edward III., in which are enumerated a long list of grants made to the gild, by many people, of lands, houses, and rents; all which gifts it is declared that the King, "so far as in him lies," confirms to the bretheren and sisteren of the gild, and to their successors. These letters patent contain neither any license in mortmain, nor any "pardon" because of the lands, houses, and rents having been granted to the gild without such license in mortmain.† One or the other of these two would have been necessary, had the grants been made to the gild after the passing of the Statute of Mortmain.⁺ It follows, that all the possessions here enumerated, and they are very many, belonged to the gild earlier than the year 1279. What these letters patent did was, to protect the gild against any claim that might be set up, in the name of the Crown, as to any of the lands, houses, or rent-charges named therein. It was simply a precautionary measure.]

* This ordinance clearly implies that, with leave asked and given, guests, &c. would be welcomed.

1 See before, p. 195, note.

any day agreed among themselves for a meeting, shall pay attend meetings fixed for business. fourpence. shall be fined.

If any brother or sister brings with him a guest, without leave No guest nor of the steward, he shall pay a halfpenny. Also, if any stranger, or servant, or youth, comes in, without the knowledge of the officers, he shall pay a halfpenny. Also, if any brother or sister is bold No one shall take enough to take the seat of another, he shall 1 ay a halfpenny.

Also, if it happens that any brother or sister has been robbed. or has fallen into poverty, then, so long as he bears himself well and rightly towards the bretheren and sisteren of the gild, they shall find him in food and clothing and what else he needs.

stranger shall come to the feast without leave, under penalty.

another's seat at the feast, under penalty.

Help shall be given in case of robbery or poverty.

NOTE .- The foregoing ordinances, while bearing every mark of great antiquity, were not, as is clear from internal evidence, drawn up at one time, but were from time to time amended and added to, as has been already seen to have been done in the case of many other gilds. Thus it is said, in the Preamble of the Return, that there are two "Wardens" of the Gild; while, near the end, there is an ordinance as to two "Aldermen" and six help-men. Again, in the last ordinance but one, a "steward" (senescallus), nowhere else named, is found; and, in two other ordinances, "hostiarii" are named, which I translate, on account of the vagueness of the term, by the general word "officers." *

Mr. Thomas Fisher, after stating that the ancient records of the gild which he had been allowed to inspect and transcribe "carried back its history to the reign of Edward the First," adds :-- "at which time there appeared to have been a Gild of Holy Cross, a separate fraternity of our Lady, and another of St. John Baptist; which three distinct societies were afterwards incorporated into one gild." But he does not give us any information as to when this incorporation took place. The foregoing ordinances show that it had not taken place in the year 1389, when those ordinances were returned as what were at that time in use. But it appears to have taken place before the year 1442; for Mr. Fisher found, and in 1835 printed in the "Gentleman's Magazine," + "the constitucyons and ordinaunceys for the good gouernaunce and rewle of the Gilde of the Holy Cros, oure Lady, and Sevnt

* See a similar case of variance of titles in the case of Chesterfield. before, p. 165, note. And as to "help-men," see the Hull Gilds, before, pp. 156, 160, 162.

† See the references on p. 211, note.

⁺ See an instance of such "pardon" in the second part of my "Memorials of Old Birmingham" (Men and Names), p. 27. In the same work will be found several illustrations of the practice, common in old times, of granting certain "rents," i. e. rent charges, without granting the freehold. Hence the terms used in the foregoing ordinances.

John the Baptist, of Stratford-uppon-Auene, made and ordeynyd the Monday next after the fest of the translacion of Seynt Thomas the Martir, the yere reyne of Kynge Harry, the Sixte after the Conquest, the xxjti."* These constitutions and ordinances are entirely different from those printed above; more diffuse, made much more to serve the interests of priests, and having nothing answering to the picturesque passages that are found above, about the sisteren and the bretheren coming to the Gild-hall with their tankards, filling these with ale, and, after prayers said, giving the ale to the poor.† Neither do the ordinances of 1442 contain anything about the "night-watches," nor about the help to be given to those overtaken by the misfortune of robbery or poverty.

In a clause near the end of the ordinances of 1442, things there named are to be done "by the goode minde, wyll, and assent of the said Master and all his Aldremen, accordyng as hit is of old tyme ordeynyd :" but the ordinances of 1442 contain not the slightest hint, except in this very indirect way, at the ordinances now printed. It seems most strange that, as the ordinances of 1442 were put into shape not longer than fifty-three years-that is, within a life-time-after the making of the return containing the ordinances now printed, and which were then, and must have been for some time after, the ordinances in actual force, no trace of the latter should be found among what Mr. Nichols describes as the "Records of high antiquity, which belonged to the Bretheren of the Gild, and were preserved among the muniments of their successors, the Mayor and Corporation of Stratford, in a chest in the Gild Hall;" and which reached, Mr. Nichols tells us, "from before the reign of Henry the Third to that of Henry the Eighth." 1

* These are reprinted in Mr. Halliwell's volume, cited above.

+ It is particularly worthy of notice that the older ordinances, though enjoining every care for the decency of burials, and enjoining prayers (by the bretheren and sisteren themselves) before feasts, say nothing whatever about any priests, and make no provision for them. A large part of the ordinances of 1442 is, on the contrary, devoted to provisions for the support, board, lodging, and services of priests. Compare the Chesterfield Gilds, before, pp. 165, note, 168, note.

1 Preface to a volume of plates of old "Paintings in Fresco, discovered in 1804, on the walls of the Chapel of the Trinity, belonging to the Gild of the Holy Cross at Stratford-upon-Avon," by Thomas Fisher. Edited, and the plates described, by J. G. Nichols, and re-published, in 1838. Few copies of this work are complete in the number of plates, owing, no doubt, to the delays in publication (see the note on p. 163 of the "Gentleman's Magazine," as above cited). I am indebted to Mr Samuel Timmins, of Birmingham, for the loan of a copy of the work which is almost complete.

[The following documents seem to have been as little known to both Mr. Fisher and Mr. Halliwell as the ordinances printed above have been shown to be. They must be compared together. Their differences are striking and instructive.]

(3.) REPORT OF THE COMMISSIONERS OF 37 HENRY VIII., AS TO THE GILD OF STRATFORD-UPON-AVON.*

Gilda de Stratfford in Comitaty predicto.

[The yearly income, from rents, &c., is set down in detail; and amounts to]	l.li. xxiij.d.ob.	Income of the gild.
[The yearly outgoes are also set down in detail; and amount to] Et sic videtur in superplus	lj.li. xix.s. viij.d.ob. q ^r .	Outgoes of the gild.

The same yelde was founded by kyng Henry the iiijth, t by the name of a Mr., ij. proctors, an Alderman; and to erect as many prestes as the revennewes of the same wyll extend vnto. And there be, at thys present tyme, v. prestes ; whereof one, A The state of the Scolemaster of Gramer, and celebratyng dyvyne seruyce wtin A schoolmaster. a Chapelle stondyng in the myddes of the same, ffor the greate quyetnesse and Comffort of alle the parissyoners there; ffor that Why the chapel the parisshe Churche stondythe owte of the same towne, dystaunt ffrom the moste parte of the seyd parisshe halffe a myle and more; and in tyme of syknes, as the plage and suche lyke gild in A D. 1546.

as founded

And I am indebted to the same gentleman, always liberal in such matters, for the loan of a copy of Mr. Halliwell's "Calendar" of the Stratford records.

* Certificates of Colleges, Warwick, No. 31. (In the Public Record Office.) It is unnecessary to give the Titles of these Reports, examples of them having already been given under the heads of Ludlow and Worcester.

+ This heading gives another example of what was stated in a note to the Gild of St. Nicholas, Worcester ; namely, that a gild, though dedicated to a special saint or otherwise, is often called by the name of the place only. The same thing will be found in the case of the Gild of the Holy Cross of Birmingham.

‡ It will have been seen that this statement is, in all its parts, utterly untrue. See the note to the Ludlow Gild, before, pp. 197, 198.

dyssesses dothe Chaunce w^t in the seyde Towne, than alle suche infectyue persons, w^t many other ympotent and pore peaple, dothe to the seyd Chapelle resort ffor there dyuyne seruyce. And in the same Towne there ys a merkett, wekely kepte; and havyng in yt abowt $\dot{\mathbf{M}}$.D. houselyng peaple: to-gether w^t vij. lyttle hamlettes therto belonging, whiche hathe no other resort but only to the same Chapelle and parishe Churche. Also the goodes and ornamentes there-to belongyng here-aft^T dothe apere.

> [But no statement of the "goodes and ornamentes there-to belongyng, dothe apere," notwithstanding this promise.]

> NOTE.—The condition of things as to the Church and Chapels in and near to Stratford, will be better understood by adding the following extract, from the same Report of the Commissioners of 37 Henry VIII., as to

THE COLLEGE OF STRATFORD-UPON-AVON. The sevil College was founded by one John Stratfforde, sometyme

Archebysshoppe of Canterburve, ffor one Wardene, ffyve prestes, and iiijor querysters, to mayntayne dyvyne seruyce win the parisshe

Foundation of the College of the Church of Stratford-upon-Avon.

The members are resident; and the Warden is parson of the church.

The parson could not serve the cure without help. There are two outlying clapels in the parish; both of which are two miles away from the church.

The priest of one of these has the small tythes of the village;

the curate of the other is paid out of the college endowments.

Churche of Stratfforde. Whyche be there nowe Resydent; and the sevde Wardene vs parson of the same Churche, as in the ryght of the seyd College. And the same parisshe ys x. myles Compasse, and he hathe the Cure of M.D. houselyng peaple win the same parisshe; so that, w'owte the helpe of the sevd prestes, he ys not able to serue the sevd Cure. Also there vs. belongyng to the same Collegiate Churche, ii. Chapelles, the one caulyd Bysshopston, and the other Luddyngton, beyng members of the sevd Parisshe, and eche of them dystaunt ffrom the seyd Churche ij. myles. And the preste of the same Chapelle of Bysshopston, hathe the mynute tythes of the village of Bysshop[s]ton, for seruyng the Cure there, whiche ys not comprised, aboue, in the Revenuewe of the sevil College, nor yet win the deduccouns of the same. And the other Curate, of Luddyngton, ys payde by the Warden, as appervthe aboue in the deduccouions of the same College. Also there hathe beene nother londes, tenementes, or any possessions of the same College, solde sythene the tyme before limyted. And the Inventory of the goodes there-to belonging here-after dothe appere. [But it does not appear.]

Income of the college; and how it is spent.

The yearly income of this College is set down, in the same Report, as cxxvij.li. xviij.s. ix.d., the whole of which is expressly stated to be 223

(4.) Report of the Commissioners of 1 Edward VI., as to the Gild of Stratford-upon-Avon.*

Guilda de Stratforde-super-Avon in Comitatu predicto.

Terre et possessiones dicte guilde pertinentes, valen	t clare	Income of the per annum xliij.	li . xj.s.	gild.
Quatuor capellani ibidem habent, per litteras patentes, o	quilibet	Salaries of eorum, cvj.s. viij.d. Aliter non habent promociones. I	n toto,	chaplains.
per annumxxj. ii . vj.:	s. viijd.
Item, Clericus ibidem habet, per annum, iiij.s. Et O	liuerus	Salaries of the Baker, Custos horalogiæ ibidem, habet, per annum, xiij.s	. iiij.d.	gild-clerk, and of the clock-keeper.
In toto per annum xvij.	s. iiij.d.
Scolem ^r . M ^d .:-Appon the premisses ys one ffree Sc	choole;	Salary of the and one Willam Dalam, Scholem ^r theare, hathe yerel	ye, for	schoolmaster.
teaching theare, by patente	x. li .
Poore. There ys allso gyven yerelye to xxiiij. poor	e men,	Gifts to the poor.
bretherne of the said guilde, lxiij.s. iiij.d.; vz., x.s.	to be bestowed in Coles, and the rest gyven in readye money; 1	besydes	Coals, an alms-
one howse theare, called the Almes-howse; and besyde	s v. or	house, and gifts in money.
vj.li. yeven them of the good provision of the mr of th	e same guilde. And the same lij.s. iiij.d. to be payed them,	euerye quarter xiijs. iiij.d lxiij.s	-
[There is a marginal note as follows:]	Ū
Continuetur Schola quousque.		Let the school go on.

* Certificates of Colleges, Warwick, No. 57.

NOTE --- It was the chapel which is mentioned in the Report of the Commissioners of 37 Henry VIII., that led to the publication of Mr. Fisher's valuable work on Stratford-upon-Avon, which was begun in 1807; several paintings representing the history of the finding of the holv cross having been discovered on the walls of that chapel in 1804. The progress of the work was stopped through the heavy tax imposed on authors, in the shape of copies required to be gratuitously given to different institutions, under the Copyright Acts As re-published in 1838, it contains (when complete) seventeen coloured plates of the paintings within the chapel, five plates of seals, and thirty-one plates of records and extracts from records now in the possession of the Corporation of Stratford-upon-Avon.

The story of the finding of the holy cross, or "rood," was so popular in the middle ages, and gave name, in England, to so many gilds, that it will make the subject better understood if I add, here, an outline of that story. Some of the gilds made it a part of their business to give a representation, in pageant, of the finding of the holy rood on the day of their great yearly feast * I have sketched the following outline from a long poem, written in the English of the old Anglo-Saxon times, which is printed in the last Part (15) of the publications of the Ælfric Society.

THE LEGEND OF ST ELENE, AND THE FINDING OF THE HOLY ROOD

A D 233, the Huns attucked the Romans

In a dream Constantine sees the holy rood and is told to make it his heacon He does so, and smites the foe

Some Christians told him what the 100d-tree meant so he was baptized. and sent lus mother to find the holy rood itself She goes to Jeru salem . asks for information, and is refused

Two hundred and thirty-three years after Christ's birth, and six after Constantine became Cæsar of Rome, the Huns came down in mighty force against the Romans Constantine was affrighted, but. in a dream, the likeness of the holy-rood was shown to him, by one who told him that, with this for a beacon, he should overcome his foes. Then he had a rood-tree made, and borne as his standard before the Roman host; and the foe was smitten down. Constantine asked his wise men what this rood-tree meant; but they could not tell him. Some however, who had been baptized, told him the gospel story, and the meaning of the Cross. Thereupon he was himself baptized, and he besought his mother, Elene, to go into Jewry, and seek for the true holv-rood.

She went forth with many followers; and at length reached Jerusalem. She called together the Elders of the Hebrews, and spoke to them reproachfully. They did not understand what she meant, till one Judas told them that he was sure she wanted to find the holy-rood.

* See, for example, Beverley, before, p 148.

but he charged them not to let her know where it was hidden There- She threatens to hum all the starve upon the elders refused to tell anything to Elene, and she, filled with elders and so they holy wrath, threatened to burn them all up with fire. In this fearful give up Judas to straight, they gave up Judas to her. She besought him to tell what him in a pit to he knew. He would not: so she had him bound, and cast into a dry mit, and left him there to starve.

When Judas had borne this Christian kindness for seven days, his After seven days, Judas momises to courage was worn out, and he said that he would tell the truth Then Judas promise he was released; and he led the way to the hill of the Crucifixion He prayed for a mark by which he might be sure of the exact spot where Going to the hill the holy-rood lay; and straightway there rose up a smoke from the of Crucifixion, a miracle shows the earth. Gladly did Judas then dig. and, after digging twenty feet spot where the rood tree was deen he found three crosses. The three were taken to Elene, but buried Three crosses are she wished to know which of the three crosses was the true holy-rood dug up out of itself. Judas did not know: and all waited for a sign from heaven which the true rood tree is to make known the truth This was at length vouch afed, by the found by another raising up to life of a young man who was being carried out for burial: miracle. and who, after being touched in vain by the crosses of the two thieves, was at last touched by the holy-rood itself.

And now the Hell-devil grew mighty wiathful, and made a long The Hell devil speech, which is fully reported; but Judas answered him in a long and Judas have speech, which is also fully reported Then Constantine bade Elene to A church is built have a church built on the hill-side where the holy-rood had been found. And Judas was christened, and made bishop of Jerusalem, by found and the name of Cyriacus.

But Elene wished, furthermore, that the nails used in the crucifixion should be found ; and these, as the holy-rood itself had been, were the crucifixion made known by a fiery token arising from the earth, in answer to the found, new bishop's prayer Following the bishop's advice. Elene had the and were made nails made into a bit for the bridle of Constantine's horse, to be used bridle of Constanfor a charm of safety to him in war. Then Elene went back home times horse, as a charm of safety. again, bidding all men to keep, for evermore, the day of the finding of the holy-rood. And this was done in the month of May, six days before the beginning of summer *

* The third day of Miv was held sacred to the "Invention [i e. finding] of the Holy Cross " where the 100d tree was Judas is made Bishop of Jerusalem The nails used in into a bit for the was, two months later (20th July), confirmed by an inspeximus charter, under the new Great Seal.* This second charter is also set forth; and then follow the Ordinances.

licenses were not yet got. Probably the hitch arose through some of the middle lords; the license of every middle lord being quite as essential as the license of the Crown. The way in which these licenses are spoken of near the end of this Return, seems to point to these middle lords as giving trouble on this matter. See after, p. 231.

* The curious facts here stated as to the Great Seal are instructive. Superficial writers on English history often point to the frequent confirmations of Magna Charta, as showing that it was not much heeded. The facts are exactly the reverse. The Great Seal has always been held to carry unimpeachable authenticity. But every Great Seal bears the style of the reigning king. Parliament insisted on one king after another reaffirming the Great Charter, under oath and the Great Seal, in order that it might not be pretended that the obligations contained in it were personal only to any one king. The same idea is well illustrated, though in another shape, in the present case. The letters patent (or "charter") of 20th May were sealed with the Great Seal then in use. But, another Great Seal having come into use soon after, the Gild Merchant of Coventry took the wise precaution to have the same identical letters patent exemplified under the new Great Seal, so as to stop all quibble. This was a new Great Seal under the same king (not the only change of the sort in Ed. III.'s time), and not the Great Seal of a new king. But the principle is the same, and it is only brought out the more strongly by such an illustration.

These changes in the Great Seal of Ed. III. give rise to some puzzling questions. We learn from the Close Rolls (14 Ed. JII. p. 1, m. 33, d), under date of 21st February, that it was, on that day, made known to all the Sheriffs in England, that Ed. III. had taken the style of King of France, and that a new Great Seal would be therefore made, and would be thenceforth used; all which would be explained to the Parliament that was to meet on Wednesday next after Mid-lent Sunday (29th March, 1340). The same Close Roll, a little further on (m. 35, d), tells us that, on the 1st March following, the King gave into the hands of the Master of the Rolls a Great Seal then newly made [de novo fabricatum] for use in England, and which he had brought with him from abroad ; the Master of the Rolls at the same time giving up to the King the Great Seal that had been used while the King was in parts beyond sea. It is added, that the Master of the Rolls, on the same 1st March, opened the purse in which the new Great Seal was kept, and put it to use. [Eodim die aperiri, et brevia inde consignari, fecit.] This 1st March would, however, be four weeks earlier than the time when the promised explanation would be given to Parliament; and possibly the Parliament might demur to the new seal. The Rolls of Parliament show that much jealousy was felt at the King's having taken

XII.

COVENTRY.

(a) THE GILD MERCHANT.*

THIS Return begins by stating that the merchants of Coventry found themselves much troubled about their merchandise,

The merchants of Coventry, being far from the sea, got a charter ^from Ed. 111., m 1340, after inquiry by a jury;

in which charter

the Gild Merchant and its ordinances

are fully recognized.

through being so far from the sea; and therefore got a charter (letters patent) from Edward III. for the foundation of a Gild Merchant. This charter, dated 20th May, 14 Ed. III. (A.D. 1340), is set forth at full length. It recites that an inquiry had been held, under the Writ ad quod damnum; † and that it had been found, by the jury, that no harm would befal Coventry, or any oue, if a Gild Merchant were founded there, with bretheren and sisteren, and a Master, and the usual powers of a gild, including that of making ordinances. The charter goes on to declare that King Edward, "so far as in us lies," enables the men of Coventry to establish their Gild Merchant, and to make ordinances as they list.[‡] The inscription round the Great Seal having shortly afterwards been changed, the charter of 20th May

* CCCVIII. 87. Condition, fair, but destroyed in places. Old French. + The meaning and purpose of this Writ will be more fully seen under Birmingham (after, p 240).

[‡] As the gild could have been founded without any charter, there can be little doubt that this charter was got in the hope of smoothening the way towards the licenses of mortmain which were needed to enable the gild to hold lands; and which licenses would be more likely to be given when the gild was thus formally acknowledged. There seems, indeed, to have been some obstacle in the way of this gild as to getting these licenses; for this Return shows that, forty-eight years after the gild had been founded, the

COVENTRY.

The Ordinances

The Ordinances of the bretheren and sisteren of the Gild.

First: the bretheren and sisteren of the gild shall find as found, if the means of the gild allow it but su h means shall not be so applied until the poor of the gild have been provided for. and the other charges of the gild have been paid. The chaplains shail be chosen by the Master and the rest of the gild, and shall fulfil duties as many chaplains as the means of the gild can well afford; and Chaplains shall be shall enlarge or lessen the number of chaplains according to the more or less flourishing state of the gild ; saving to the bretheren and sisteren of the gild who are fallen into poverty the finding of their means of living, according as need may be, as is hereafter said; and also saving the reasonable costs and charges of the gild. And such chaplains, if the gild can keep them, shall be wise and fit men, of honest and chaste life, and shall be chosen by the Master, bretheren, and sisteren of the gild; and they shall read, pray, and chaunt, for the welfare of holy church, > the style of King of France ; for it was formally declared, in this very Parliament, and admitted under the Great Seal, that the Lords and Commons of England owed no allegiance to the King as King of France, but only as King of England. What then was the Great Seal actually in use in the May following? The Coventry Charter of 20th July expressly says that the Charter of 20th May was sealed with "the seal which we then used in England ' [sub sigillo quo tune utebamar in Anglia]; and, after setting forth the words of the Charter of that date, adds, that this charter is (on 20th July) exemplified "under the seal which we now use in England," [sub sigillo quo nunc utimur in Anglia]. It is therefore unquestionable that an authentic Great Seal was in use in England on 20th May, which was not the same as that which was in use on 20th July, though both were used in the name of King Ed. III. The question is, was the general use of the new Great Seal, bearing the new style of Ed. III. as King of France, delayed until July, notwithstanding the writ sent round to the Sheriff on 21st February and the Close Roll of 1st March; or, was the seal used in July a special Great Seal, used in the King's name, but, in the absence of the King, by the Duke of Cornwall (Edward the Black Prince)? The Duke had been declared, by the same Parliament of 1340, Warden of the kingdom during the absence of Ed. III. in France. Bearing in mind the facts, as to two seals, stated in the Close Rolls of 1st March, the latter is perhaps the true explanation of this puzzle of dates and seals. The Charter of May is tested by the King himself; that of July is tested by the Duke of Cornwall. Still, there is a difficulty in accepting this explanation, inasmuch as the above Return expressly tells us that the reason for getting the second Charter was, that the inscription (i.e the style of the King) round the seal had been changed :-- "Quele chartre feust apres renouellez par mesme laiel, par cause que lescripture de soun seal feust chaunger."

for our lord the King, the Queen, Archbishops, Bishops, and stated in this Ordinance. other prelates and clergy of the realm, for dukes and duchesses, earls and countesses, barons and baronesses, and all other good men, and for the commonalty of the realm of England, and for all the bretheren and sisteren of the gild, and for all the gooddoers to them. And if these chaplains, or any of them, mis- Any chaplain misbehaving, shall behave, they shall be removed, and other fit persons shall be be removed. put in their stead.

Also, if any man or woman of the gild, who has been helpful If any one of the to the gild according to his means, has, by mishap, and not by any fault of his own, fallen into poverty, the gild shall lend him him a free loan to a sum of money, to trade and make gains with, for one year, or two, as they think well, without taking anything for the loan. And if any man or woman of the gild becomes so feeble, through In case of sickness sickness or old-age, that he can neither work nor trade for him- gild shall mainself, he shall be maintained, at the cost of the gild, in such a manner as befits his need.*

No man nor woman who has been openly reputed or No one charged charged as guilty of any shameful crime, † shall be taken into the gild. And if any one, after he has been taken into the gild, falls into any such crime, he shall be put out from the gild.

Every year, on the feast of the Assumption of our Lady, there The gild shall meet every year, shall be a gathering of the Warden, bretheren, and sisteren, to to keep the feast of the Assumption. celebrate the feast; and to look over and examine the affairs of and to deal with the attairs of the the gild, and all that concerns them. gild.

Once every quarter there shall be a gathering of the Master, Once every quarter, the gild bretheren, sisteren, and chaplains, to pray and chaunt for the shall meet, and welfare of the noble King Edward, the Queen Isabella his mother, the queen Philippa his wife, our lord the Prince, son of our noble lord King Edward; for the welfare of all the bretheren

* The original of this generous clause is as follows :--- "Et si ascune homme ou femme de la dite fraternite soit si feble, par maladie ou veillesse. qil ne purra trauailler ne marchaunder, il serra troue, a les costages de la dite gilde, couenablement solonc ce que soun estat demaunde."

+ The words of the original are :- "Appertement allose ou esclaundre de ascun crime abhominable." See before, p. 158, and the note * there.

vild is overtaken by mishap, the gild shall advance trade with.

or old age, the tain the sufferer.

with crime shall be taken into the gild : and any gild-brother alling into crime. shall be put out of the gild.

ave prayers said

229

and sisteren of the gild ; for the souls of the dead ; for the souls of the bretheren and sisteren of the gild ; and for the souls of the good-doers to the gild, and of all Christians.

The name of the gild shall not be taken in vain, to back up any wrong or quarrel.

On the death of one of the gild, chaunts · hall be sung for his soul, by name and surname : surname shall be laid upon the altar.

No one of the gild shall raise a quarrel, or uphold any wrongdoer, in the name of the gild, or to the discredit of the gild, on pain of being put out from the gild for ever.

When any brother or sister of the gild dies, each of the chaplains shall chaunt for his soul, by his name [and surname of baptism], for a whole year next following; and the and the name and said name and surname of baptism shall be written on a written down, and tablet, and put on the altar, in the place where the chaplains chaunt.

If any one of the gild dies and is buried outside the city, the same services shall be had and done as if he had died within the city.

If any brother or sister of the gild dies and is buried outside the city, so soon as the Master knows it, he shall call together all the chaplains of the gild, the "clerks," and the other good men of the gild, and they shall fulfil watch, dirige, mass, and oblations, as if the body were present; and the "bedeman" shall pray for the soul of the dead, and for the souls of all Christians, at the cost of the gild.

When any one does not leave enough to pay for burnal, he shall be buried at the cost of the gild.

If any brother or sister of the gild, at the time of his death, is so poor that he leaves not enough wherewith to pay for his burial, he shall be honorably buried, as becomes a brother or sister of the gild, at the cost of the gild.

The foregoing ordinances shall last for ever; and have been kept hitherto

Which articles aforesaid, the Master, bretheren, and sisteren have ordained shall endure for ever, according to the purport thereof. And the gild has continued and been managed according to those ordinances.

All of the gild shall swear faithfully to keep the ordinances; and the Master shall swear to deal rightly with the goods of the gild, and every year to render an account before chosen auditors.

Moreover, the said Master and bretheren shall be sworn that they will, in good faith, uphold and put in force the articles afore-And the Master shall be sworn that he will well and said. loyally keep and expend the goods and chattels of the gild; and that he will render a true account thereof, at the end of every year, before auditors chosen by the bretheren.

The Master, bretheren, and sisteren of this gild have divers goods; that is to say, maser tankards,* vessels of pewter and The gild possesses valuable tankards brass, and napery, worth xx.li.; and gold and silver in the treaand other goods. as well as money in gold and silver. sury, to the sum of xx. marks.

And they have also chalices, vestments, liveries, and other It also possesses chalices, vestornaments of holy church, for the use of the chaplains in divine ments, &c., for the use of the service, worth xv. marks vj.s. viij.d. chaplains.

Also, certain well-wishers to the gild now hold certain lands, And a large annual rental. houses, and rents, worth xxxvij.li. xij.s. iiij.d. a year; which from lands, houses and rent charges. they wish to make over to the gild in mortmain, if they is held for its use awaiting the can get the license of our lord the King, and of the other getting of licenses of mortmain from [middle] lords of whom the said lands, houses, and rents are the king and the middle lords, so as to become held. vested in the gild

And the Master and bretheren of the gild, with the consent of Out of this annual rental, four those who now hold the lands, houses, and rents aforesaid, find chaplains are paid salaries ; the gild every year four chaplains; who have, for their yearly salary, finding the need-ful vessels and xxxij. marks; the bretheren and sisteren finding such vessels linen. and napery[†] as are needed, worth xl.s.

Out of the rest of the profits of the lands and houses afore- The gild also said, and out of the goods and chattels of the gild, they find means of living for thirty-one men and women, who are unable yearly charge. either to work or to gain their own living; and the charge of this amounts to xxxv.li. iij.s. a year.

Moreover, one of the houses before-named is kept as a They also keep a lodging house with lodging-house, t with thirteen beds, to lodge poor folks coming thirteen beds for poor travellers : through the land, on pilgrimage or any other work of charity, in honour of God and of all saints. And there is a Governor of with a governor. a woman to wash this house, and a woman to wash their feet, and whatever else their feet, and all else that is needed. is needed. The yearly cost hereof is x.li.

The bretheren and sisteren, on the feast of the Assumption of On their feast-day, our Lady, are clad, some of them in livery suits at their own sisteren are clad in livery; some in cost, and others in hoods at the common cost of the gild. And a full suit at their the poor whom they provide for, are every year clad in gowns in hoods at the cost of the gild. and hoods worth x.li. and more. Their almsmen

* See before, p. 174, note.

† "Vessel et Naprie."

comune herbegerie de tresse lites, pour herbeger les poueres venants," &c.

maintains thirtyone men and women, at a heavy the bretheren and own cost ; others

are clad in gowns

and hoods by the gild.

[This Return is indorsed : -- "Gilda Mercatoria de Coventre." There are three other Returns from Coventry, in the bundles of what remain of those that were sent up in January 1389. Two only of these are in fair condition ; and it will be enough, in their case, as in that of Hull,* to give a short outline of each, without setting forth the whole of the ordinances.]

(b) GILD OF CORPUS CHRISTI.⁺

License of mortmain, dated 26th May, A.D. 1348.

After a short preamble, an inspeximus charter of 4th April, 4 Richard II. (A.D. 1381), is set forth, which confirms a license of mortmain granted to the gild under date of 26th May, 22 Edw. III. (A.D. 1348).

The Ordinances.

The ordinances follow, as made, says the original, by the Master, bretheren, and sisteren of the gild.

A fresh Master shall be chosen every year; who shall swear loyalty to the King, to the city, and to the gild.

Every year there shall be a meeting to make choice of a Master of the gild; who shall be sworn to be good and loyal to our Lord the King, and to the Mayor and Bailiffs of the City of Coventry, and to this Gild.

A chaplain shall be found : and four times a year the gild A chaplain ; and commemoration shall commemorate the bretheren and sisteren who are dead, and all good-doers to the gild.

Help shall be given to those who have suffered through sudden losses.

of the dead.

If any of the bretheren or sisteren of the gild falls into poverty, through fire, water, robbery, or any other worldly mishap, not being brought about through his own folly, the Master of the gild and the bretheren and sisteren shall give help, according to the means of the gild, until better times come.

A livery suit shall be worn; and torches shall be carried in procession.

On the feast of Corpus Christi, all the bretheren and sisteren shall be clad in livery, at their own cost, and shall carry viij. torches around the body of Christ, when it is borne through the town of Coventry.

A yearly meeting shall be held at the Palace of the Bishop of Chester;

Every year, on the Sunday after the day of Corpus Christi, the bretheren and sisteren shall meet, after the hour of noon, at the Palace of the Bishop of Chester within the city of

> * See before, p. 155. + CCCVIII. 123. Condition, fair. Old French.

Coventry; and there the last year's Master shall show to the when accounts bretheren and sisteren how what they have given has been spent: and a new Master and the same day they shall choose another Master for the shall be chosen. coming year.

[Copies follow of three grants of land and houses to the gild, Grantstothe Gild, under the license of mortmain above named, with a statement of mortmain. under the license of the rents arising in each case.

Then come inventories of the goods of the gild. First are put Goods of the gild. the things used by the chaplains in religious services, and those used in processions. The house inventory follows, showing how well prepared this gild was for days of feasting :---]

. There are, for the altar of the gild, a missal ; a chesible, with Goods for church services, and for the alb and amyce, and two "cantr copes" of "blewe satyn," and processions. two amyces of the same colour ; an altar-cloth, with a frontel, for the great feast-days;* an altar-cloth, with a frontel, for holydays; + four "touwelles;" two "cruetes du peweter;" a "paxbrede;" a holder for torches; three torches for the body of Jesus Christ; three waxes; a cross, with a spear, and four banners, for the procession made on the day of Corpus Christi; eight torches for the same procession; a "palyoun" of cloth of gold ; two "corporalles ;" a cheseble of cloth of silk, with albe and amyce; an "apparel du blewecarde" for the altar; a chest to put these things in :--all which goods are worth x. marks.

And there are, for the array of the hall, four "bankers," Goods for the array of the gildeight "tables," six "pair trestelles," and thirteen "ffourmes :" hall; worth x.s. Also, for the "botellerie et panterie," six "bor- for the buttery clothes;" seven "towelles;" twelve "tankardes;" forty-six nd pantry : white cups; twelve salt-cellars of pewter: worth xiijs. iiij.d.; four coffers wherein to put these "hustylmentz," worth iij.s. iiij.d. Also, for the array of the kitchen, five brass "pottes;" five and for the "paelles," and a great stone mortar; seven dozens of "vesselles du peutre ;" a "brandhirne ;" and other "hustilment;" for the kitchen : worth iiij.li. x.s.

* "Double festes."

+ "Jours feriales."

(c) GILD OF THE HOLY TRINITY.*

License of mortmain, dated 23rd March, A.D. 1364.

After a long preamble, a license of mortmain is set out, bearing date 23rd March. 38 Edward III. (A.D. 1364), empowering the gild to hold lands and rents. The ordinances follow.

Two chaplains.

Commemoration of the dead.

There shall be two chaplains. The bretheren and sisteren shall every year keep the feast of the Holy Trinity; and shall also commemorate the dead bretheren and sisteren, and the good-doers to the gild.

Help shall be given to those who are old, or who have met with mishap.

If any brother or sister of the gild becomes so feeble, through old age or through any worldly mishap, that he has not, and cannot earn, the means of living, he shall have such help, at the cost of the gild, that he shall not need to beg his bread.

The sick shall be visited, and shall be helped.

If any one falls sick, the bretheren and sisteren and their chaplains shall visit him, so as to know how he is, and they shall give him such help as is needed.

The poor shall be buried at the cost of the gild.

If any one is poor, and dies in poverty, he shall be buried at the cost of the gild.

Lands of the gild.

Lands and houses, worth x. marks a year, are held for the gild under license of mortmain : and other lands, houses, and rents, worth xij. marks vj.s. viij.d. a year, are now waiting for a license.

One chaplain is bound to say mass every day in the cathedral church of our Lady, before the Holy Cross, in the morning before sunrise ; so that all people, rich and poor, may hear it,

Early mass shall be said, so that men may hear it before going to work.

gild.

and then go their way to the day's work. Almsmen of the The gild finds livelihood, every year, for two poor bretheren and one sister, who are unable to work for their living, at the yearly cost of iij.li. viij.s. vj.d.

Tacked to the foregoing, is a fragment of the Return made by a Gild of St. John Baptist. The fragment does not contain twelve words; and it is only by the indorsement, which still remains entire, that the name of the gild by which the Return was sent up, can be known. It is, however, remarkable that, in another bundle of these Returns (CCCIX.), there is found one from the Gild of St. John Baptist of Coventry. It is in ex- Disjointed fragtremely bad condition : torn, dirty, and far otherwise than inviting. As it is unlikely that two gilds of the same name should have existed in one place, it seems probable that the latter Return has got torn away from its proper place, and that it is really the continuation of the small fragment now found tacked to the Return from the Gild of the Holv Trinity.*

* CCCVIII. 88. Condition, fair. Old French.

It has been already seen, by an illustration given under the Trust put in the Gild of Corpus Christi, York, † and will again be seen by an gids. illustration given under one of the Exeter gilds, how confidently trust was put in the gilds, in order to assure the fulfilment of what private persons sought to have done after their own deaths. But an interesting illustration can be given, in the case of the Gild of the Holv Trinity of Coventry, of the same confidence placed in these gilds, and of what their chief officers were sometimes called on to fulfil, in matters of a very different kind.[±]

The document to be now used in illustration of this state of facts, is too long to be given at full length. So much is given as touches the Master of this Gild of the Holy Trinity. To explain the matter, it must be stated that Edward Birmingham.

* As it may be suggestive of other restorations of disjoined fragments. I leave this paragraph as it was written. Several years ago, I made a complete Kalendar of all the Returns in all these bundles, noting the particulars and condition of each Return, as found in its place. The above paragraph was founded upon a comparison of these notes, as thus made while going through the separate bundles. Since it was in type, I have compared, at the Public Record Office, the two pieces here spoken of ; and have found that they are, in fact, as above suggested, parts of one original Return. the torn edges of both exactly fitting together. On my showing the facts to the proper authorities, the parts have been joined together again, after a divorce of some centuries, and the entire Return, thus made intelligible. will be now found in Bundle CCCVIII., attached to the Return from the Gild of the Holy Trinity, as it was sent up in January 1380. A memorandum has been put on to the Return No. 127 in Bundle CCCIX., explaining the cause of the removal of the membranes 123 - 126 to their proper place in Bundle CCCVIII. + Before, p. 143.

[‡] The Masters of gilds were very often asked to become witnesses to charter deeds touching land. I have, among my own muniments of title to an old family estate, charter deeds to which the names of the Masters of both the old Birmingham gilds, with their official descriptions as such. are found among the witnesses.

moute of another gild-return from Coventry.

the last, in the direct line, of an ancient family,* who were Settlement made in favour of 8 daughter, A. D. 1522.

lords of Birmingham even before the incoming of William the Bastard, married, as his first wife, Margaret, daughter of Gerard Danett. She very soon died, leaving only one daughter, Anne. Edward Birmingham married, as a second wife, Elizabeth, daughter of "the ryght worshipfvll Sr Willm Lytleton, Knyght;" and thereupon he made a settlement in favour of his daughter Anne. This settlement is contained in a deed bearing date the 13th day of February, in the thirteenth year of Henry VIII. (A.D. 1522), between William Shelley, "Sergeaunt at the lawe," one of the trustees of the settlement made on the first marriage, † "onn the one partye," and "Edward Byrmyngham, of Byrmyngham in the countie of Warwyke, Esqer, onn the other partie." After recitals as to the former settlement, it is declared that the feoffees shall "stande and be seasyd of and in the sayd manor of Byrmyngham, and of and in all other landes and tenements, rentes, reuercions, seruices, and heredytamentes, whiche now be to the sayd Edward in possessyon or in vse win the sayd countye of Warr., as is aforesayd," to the uses following :---]

THE MASTER OF THE GILD OF HOLY TRINITY, COVENTRY, MADE RECEIVER AND KEEPER OF INCOME AND ACCUMULA-TIONS UNDER A FAMILY SETTLEMENT.

Lands in the Foreign of Bir-

That ys to say, of and in foure pastures lying in the foreine mingham vested in of Byrmyngham, called the Heybarnes, nowe in the teanure of

> * The head of a younger branch of the same family went over to Ireland in the earliest days of English presence there, and did great service. He was created Lord Birmingham of Athenry A.D. 1178. The Earldom of Louth was afterwards added to the honours of the family. These titles have only lately ceased to be held by the lineal successors of this branch. The family is still extant in Ireland, in direct descent from this old stock ; but no one seems, at present, to have taken steps to establish the claim to the ancient family titles. It is a costly thing to bring together all the proofs needed for establishing such ancient titles.

> + The other trustees were, "the Rygh[t noble] lorde Thomas, Marques Dorcett, Sr Edward Belknape, Sr Robert Wetton, Sr Edward Grevile. Sr Edward fferrers, Knyghtes; Gerard Danett, Edward Wetton, Esquyres; Rauffe Wryne, and Rychard Harres." In the present deed, Serjeant Shelley represented the whole of them.

Chapter House Miscellaneous Bag: Warwick, Bag I. No. 6. (In the

John Shyltone; a medowe called the lake medowe, wt a more feoffees, to secure the raising of hterto adioyning called lake medowe more, in Byrmyngham moneys for the daughter of aforsayd, nowe in the teanure of Humfre Holmann and Henry Edward Birning-Dysonn : whiche sayd londes, tenementes, medowes, and pastures, parcell of the sayd manor of Byrmyngham, the sayd Edward Byrmyngham couenantyth and grauntyth, by thes presentes, that they be of the clere yerlye value of eight poundes, xiij.s. iiij.d., ouer alle charges; and that the sayd feffies, and alle other persons that nowe be seasyd therof, shalle stande and be seasyd therof, and of every parcelle thereof, to the vse of Anne, doughter of the sayd Edward and Margarett late hys wyffe, tyll the somme of one hundrethe poundes be leuyed and payd of the yerely reuenues and profytes theref, ouer and aboue alle charges of the receying and kepyng of the sayd money. Whiche somme of a c.li. shalbe receyued, of the proffites of the Two collectors sayd landes, by thandes of Humfreye Symons and John Sheltone, profits of the lands, or by thandes of any of them. And as the sayd profites and reuenues shalbe so yerly receiued of the sayd landes, to be and pay the same into the hands of delyuered into thandes and custodye of the maister or maisters of the yelde of the trynitye of Couentrye, vntyll the sayd somme of one hundrethe poundes be payd and leuyed. And so to remayne, to thuse of Anne, doughter of the sayd Edward Byrmyngh^am and Margar^t hys fyrst wyffe, towarde the preferment and maryage of the sayd Anne. But yt ys couenanted and agreyd bytweene the sayd parties, that the sayd Humfrey Symons and John Sheltone, nor other heraft^r to be named or whatever in the appoynted for the receying of the sayd rentes and profites, shalle exceeds ten marks receyue yerly, of the profites of the sayd pastures, mores, and medowes, but only tenne markes, tylle the sayd hundrethe poundes, to Edward Birmouer and aboue the charges of the receying and keping of the same, be leuyed; and alle the resydue of the profittes, the sayd Edward Byrmyngh^am shalle haue to his owne vse. Alsoe yt vs Public Record Office.) The Master of a Coventry gild was fixed upon for this purpose, for the obvious reason that the Master of one of the Birmingham gilds might be thought likely to be swayed by the attachment felt, on the spot, for the Birmingham family. No one could raise such an objection to the Master of a Coventry gild.

shall gather in the

the Master of the Gild of the Trinity of Coventry.

profits so collected a year and the necessary charges. shall be paid over ingham.

If the collectors die, others shall be named.

If the Master of Coventry will not receive and keep the moneys, some other safe custody

If Anne Birmingham dies before marriage, the Master of the Gild (or other) shall pay over what he has in wife.

hand to Edward Birmingham, or to Elizabeth his must be found the Gild at agreyd bytwene the sayd partyes to thes indentures, that yff yt happene the sayd humfre Symons and John Sheltone, or anye of them, to decesse, that than the sayd Willm, and Marye Danett, widowe, grandemother to the sayd Anne, or one of theme, or the executors of eny of theme, or the executors of the executors of eny of theme, shalle name and appoynte two other persons to receyue the sayd tene markes, to thuse and intente afore specyfied. Also yt ys couen^anted and agreyd bytwene the sayd partyes, that yf the maister or maysters of the yeld of Couentrye aforsayd will not receyue and haue the custodye, yerlye, of the sayd tene markes, to thuse of the sayd Anne, thane the sayd money to be payd to such place or places, person or persons, as by the sayd Will^m Shelley and Marye Danett, or by there executors, or by the executors of one of theme, or by the executors of the executors of theme or eny of theme, shalbe thought most mete and convenyent for the salue custody therof. [After further provision made for Anne, under various contin-And yff yt happene the sayd Anne to dye before her maryage, and after the sayd some of c.li. or eny parcelle therof leuyed, that thane the sayd maister or maisters of the sayd yelde, or suche persone or persons as shall e appoynted to have the receyte of the sayd somme and sommes of money, yf the hole somme, or env parte or parcelle therof, thane be or remayne in ther handes, shalle redelyuer the sayd some of c.li., and every suche parte or parcelle thereof as shalbe leuyed and gatheryd at the tyme of the dethe of the sayd Anne, ouer and aboue the charges of the receying and kepyng of the same, vnto the handes of the sayd Edward Byrmyngham, or vnto the sayd Elizabethe nowe hys wyffe, yf she be longer lyuer.

XIII.

BIRMINGHAM.

(a) GILD OF THE HOLY CROSS.

[THE history of this gild is specially instructive. It has already been seen that there was a Gild Merchant in Beverley, which seems to have included the whole of the townsmen. In Winchester and in Worcester, as will be seen from documents printed in Part III. of this volume, there were Gilds Merchant, which seem also to have included the whole of the townsmen. In Coventry there was a Gild Merchant, the Return from which seems to assume that it was intended to be a general gild of the citizens, although, in point of fact, there were several other gilds in that city. In the case of Berwick-upon-Tweed, it will be found that a number of "Particular Gilds" were merged into one "General Gild" for all the town. But in none of these cases are we able to know the circumstances under which the gild was first brought into being; nor can we find whether it was (as has been heretofore alleged), a matter of course, and not merely an incident, that a gild which embraced a whole town should be called a "Gild-Merchant." In the case of the Gild of the Holy Cross of Birmingham, we are able to trace every step of its beginning, and to see that, while its establishment was the deliberate work of the whole town, and that it was thoroughly carried out for the good of the whole town, it was yet not a "Gild-Merchant."

The records from which the story of the foundation of this gild is learned, illustrate in a striking manner the true and practical constitutional principles which, long ages ago, found their home in England: of which the fundamental basis was, that, in a sound political society, the men who make it up must be trusted; and that the men of every neighbourhood must best understand their own affairs, and ought to be held bound to fulfil their duties to their neighbours.*

I now give translations of the two records which show the beginning of this gild. The first of these states some earlier facts, while setting on foot, by the Writ called the "Writ ad quod damnum," an inquiry, on the spot, by men of the neighbourhood. The second gives such authority as the very limited power of the Crown enabled it to give, for the endowment of the gild; and which proposed endowment it was that made a license of mortmain necessary.]

(1) WRIT FOR INQUIRY, TO BE MADE BY A JURY ON THE SPOT, TOUCHING THE PROPOSED FOUNDING OF THE GILD.⁺

Writ ad quod damnum, issued 10th July, A.D. 1392.

A former liceuse of mortmain is recited, under which chaplains were to be endowed. Richard, by the grace of God, King of England and France and Lord of Ireland, to our well beloved Thomas Raleghe, our Escheater in the County of Warwick, Greeting. Whereas, on the twenty-fifth day of October, in the sixth year of our reign, by our letters patent, we granted license to Thomas Sheldone, since dead, and to John Colleshulle, John Goldsmythe, and William atte Slowe, Burgesses of Bermyngeham, enabling them to give and assign certain lands, tenements, and rents, not held of us in chief, in Bermyngeham and Egebaston, worth twenty marks a year, to two chaplains, for the celebration of divine service in

* In our days, instead of the responsibility being felt by the men of every neighbourhood to fulfil all that the welfare of the neighbourhood requires, doctrinairism has superseded the constitutional life of the people by an array of costly "Commissioners" and "Inspectors," who assume to dictate to men everywhere what they are to do. Hence, the most modest statement of the simple but sound principles that form the basis of the English constitution, bewilders many. No greater misfortune can overtake a State than when, as now in England, the noblest branches of knowledge and study, and those most vital to a free people,—namely, the knowledge and the study of the Institutional Life and of the Constitutional History of the State,—are neither taught nor cared for in schools, colleges, or universities. The material for this knowledge and study is richer in England than anywhere else in the world. Some further illustrations of it will be found in Part III. of this volume, and in the Introduction.

+ Translated from the original, which is in the Public Record Office; but it is, oddly enough, there put among the Inquisitiones post mortem.

the church of St. Martin of Bermyngeham, to the honour of God, the blessed Mary his Mother, the Holy Cross, St. Thomas the Martyr, and St. Katherine; to be held by the said Chaplains and their successors for ever; as in our letters patent aforesaid is more fully set forth.* And now the Bailiffs and Commonalty of Bermyngeham have prayed us that, instead of those letters That license never patent, which have never, they say, taken effect, we will, for us t ok effect, and our heirs, grant license that they may make and found, in The Bailiffs and iommonalty of honour of the Holy Cross, a Gild and lasting brotherhood the town propose of bretheren and sisteren among themselves in the said town, instead, to found a gild to which shall belong as well the men and women of the said town of Bermyngeham as men and women of other towns and of the neighbourhood who are well disposed towards them : And that they may make and ordain a Master and Wardens of the with a Master and Wardens. said Gild and brotherhood, who shall have rule and governance over the same : And that they may make and found there a and chaplains. chantry, with chaplains to celebrate divine service in the church of St. Martin of Bermyngeham: And that they may do and find there other works of charity, for our welfare and that of the Queen, and for the bretheren and sisteren of the said Works of charity Gild and brotherhood, and for all good-doers to them, and for according to the Gild and brotherhood, and for all good-doers to them, and for according to the ordering and will their souls' sake and those of all Christians, according as the of the Bailing and Commonalty. ordering and will of the said Bailiffs and Commonalty shall appoint in that behalf: And moreover, that we will, for us and our heirs, grant license to the said John Colleshulle, John Goldsmythe, and William atte Slowe, that they may give

* The reason why the letters patent of 6 Richard II. never took effect, is not hard to find. Wyclif and Piers the Ploughman were then abroad in the land, in the immediate neighbourhood of Birmingham. A chapel had been built in Deritend (see after, p. 258), in which it is very remarkable that no provision was made for any chantry, or for any services for the dead. The original letters patent of 6 Richard II. contained the clause, always inserted in such cases, that the license could not be availed of until the scheme had been approved after full and open inquiry made by the men of the neighbourhood. This seems to have been found hopeless, so long as the endowment was intended to be limited to formal church services. It redounds much to the bonour of the endowers, that they constitued to merge their original scheme in the larger work of a gild of the whole town. A license of mortmain is prayed, in aid of these purposes.

But it must be known whether this can be done without harm to any one: also, of whom the lands are held, and their value, and who are the middle lords; and what other lands the givers have :

and whether, atter the gift, the givers will have enough left to bear all the charges incident to both the land given and what will be left;

and assign, to the said Master and Wardens, eighteen messuages, three tofts, six acres of land, and forty shillings of rents, with the appurtenances, in Bermyngeham and Egebaston, to have and to hold to the said Master and Wardens, and their successors, Masters and Wardens of the said Gild and brotherhood, to enable them to find two chaplains to celebrate divine service in the church aforesaid, and to find other works of charity for ever, according to the ordering and will aforesaid; such lands, tenements, and rents, not to be any that are held of us in chief. Now we wish to know whether or not we can fulfil this prayer without harm or dauger to us or to others; and, if it be to the harm or danger of us or others, to what harm and what danger, and to whose harm or danger, and how and whence ; and further, of whom the said messuages, tofts, lands, and rents, are held, and by what service, and what kind and manner of service ; and how much the said messuages. tofts, and lands. are yearly worth, according to the true value of the same; and who and how many are the middle lords of those messuages, &c., between us and the aforesaid John Coleshulle, John Goldsmythe, and William atte Slowe; and what lands and tenements will remain to the said John Colleshulle, John Goldsmythe, and William atte Slowe, after the proposed gift ; and where and of whom these are held, and by what service, and what kind and manner of service, and how much they are yearly worth : And whether the lands and tenements remaining to the said John, John, and William, after the proposed gift, will be enough to fulfil the customs and services which are bound to be rendered, as well in respect of the messuages, tofts, lands, and rents proposed to be given, as in respect of the other lands and tenements which will be kept by the givers; and also to meet all other burdens which it belongs to the holders thereof to bear, -such as suits, views of frank-pledge, aids, tallages, watches, fines, redemptions, amerciaments, contributions, and all other charges whatsoever incident thereto: And whether the aforesaid John, John, and William will still be liable to be put on assizes, juries, and all other recognisances whatsoever, the same as their ancestors have heretofore been : - So that. so that the neighthrough the proposed gift, and in default of the givers, the not become more neighbourhood may not become charged or burdened more than before. than has been wont.* We therefore command you that, upon the oath of good and law-worth men of your bailiwick, by Letajury be whom the truth of the matter may be able to be the better make inquisition known, you do forthwith make Inquisition + touching all that things. is aforesaid; and that, without delay, you do send the same, clearly and openly taken, into our Chancery, with the seals put thereto of yourself and of those by whom it shall be made : and therewith send this writ. Witness myself at Nottingham, on the 10th day of July in the 16th year of our reign.

BIRMINGHAM

[The jury having made the inquisition on the Saturday next The inquisition is after the feast of St. Peter ad vincula (1st August) in the same vear, ± say that the establishment of the gild will not bring harm or danger to any one; and that neither will the proposed License of Mortmain bring harm or danger to any one. They say through what middle lords the lands, &c., proposed to be given, are held. A statement is added of the other property in Birmingham belonging to the givers ; and the jury say that this property will be enough, after the proposed gifts have been made, to meet all charges, customs, and services, due both from the lands, &c., proposed to be given, and from what the givers will still hold ; that the givers will still be liable to be put on juries, &c.; and that thus the neighbourhood will not, by reason of the proposed gift, become more heavily charged or burdened than has been wont. Thereupon, the following License of Mortmain was granted :---]

* The original words of this most significant clause are,--"Ita quod patria, per donacionem et assignacionem predictas, in ipsorum Johannis, Johannis, et Willelmi defectum, magis solito non oneretur seu gravetur." Every owner of land holds it, under the English constitution, subject to several obligations; and he cannot be allowed to be sentimentally generous, if the so doing will throw more obligations on his neighbours. "Patria," in such cases as this, must be translated as "neighbourhood."

+ The word "inquisition" here means, not only the fact of an inquiry clearly and openly made, but the further fact of putting the result of this inquiry into writing.

‡ The original is fastened to the Writ. See before, p. 240.

243

heavily charged as to all these duly made.

(2) LETTERS PATENT AND LICENSE OF MORTMAIN, UPON THE FOUNDATION OF THE GILD OF THE HOLY CROSS.*

License given to found the gild, and to hold lands in mortmain, on 7th August, A.D. 1392.

is cancelled.

found the gild,

with Master and Wardens, &c.;

and to do works

of charity :

The King to all, &c., Greeting. Know ye, that whereas on the 25th October in the sixth year of our reign, by our letters patent, we granted license to Thomas Sheldone, now dead, John Coleshulle, John Goldsmythe, and William atte Slowe, Burgesses of Bermyngeham, enabling them to give and assign certain lands, tenements, and rents, with their appurtenances, in Bermyngeham and Egebaston, not held of us in chief, and worth xx. marks a year, to two chaplains, for the celebration of divine service in the church of St. Martin of Bermyngeham, to the honour of God, the blessed Mary his mother, the Holy Cross, St. Thomas the Martyr, and St. Katherine; to be held by the said chaplains and their successors for ever; as in those letters patent is more fully set forth :- Now, in consideration of our said letters patent, which have never, as is said, taken effect, and which the Bailiffs and Commonalty [of Bermyngeham] have sent back into our Chancery to be cancelled, and upon the prayer of the The former license Bailiffs and Commonalty themselves, and for fifty pounds which they have paid to us, we do, for us and our heirs, so far as in us lies, grant and give license to the said Bailiffs and Commonalty, that they may make and found, in honour of the License is given to Holy Cross, a Gild and brotherhood of bretheren and sisteren among themselves in that town, to which shall belong as well the men and women of the town of Bermyngeham as men and women well disposed in other towns and in the neighbourhood; and that they may make and ordain a Master and Wardens of the Gild and brotherhood, who shall have rule and governance over the same ; and may make and found a chantry, for the celebration by chaplains of divine service in the church of St. Martin of Bermyngeham; and may do and find other works of charity, for our welfare and that of the Queen, and for the bretheren and sisteren of the said Gild and brotherhood, and for all good-doers to them, and for their souls' sake and those of all Christians, according as the ordering and will of the said Bailiffs and Commonalty shall appoint in that behalf. And further, we grant and give license, for us and and to hold lands n mortmain. our heirs, to the said John Coleshulle, John Goldsmythe, and William atte Slowe, that they may give and assign to the said Master and Wardens eighteen messuages, three tofts, six acres of land, and forty shillings of rent, with the appurtenances, in the said towns of Bermyngeham and Egebaston, which are not held of us, to have and to hold to them and their successors, Masters and Wardens of the said Gild and brotherhood, to enable them to find there for ever chaplains to celebrate divine service, and to do other works of charity for ever, as aforesaid, according to their ordering and will. And we grant our special license to the same Master and Wardens that they may take the messuages, land, and rents aforesaid, with the appurtenances, from the aforenamed John, John, and William, and hold them, to themselves and their successors, finding thereout chaplains to celebrate divine service in the church aforesaid, and doing other works of charity, for ever, according to their own ordering and will as is before said; the statute against putting lands in mortmain notwithstanding;* desiring that neither the aforesaid John, John, and William, nor their heirs, nor the said Master and Wardens nor their successors, shall, by reason of that statute, be charged, troubled, or in any way made to suffer, either by us or our heirs, or by any Justices, Escheators, Sheriffs, or other Baillifs or Ministers whomsoever, of us or our heirs : Saving however, to the chief lords of the fee, the services due and accustomed. Witness, &c. Given at Molton, on the 7th day of [August+].

* Patent Rolls, 16 Richard II. p. 1, m. 15.

BIRMINGHAM.

* The Statute of Mortmain (see before, p. 195, note) enabled any middle lord, or, in his default, the Crown, to enter on lands given in Mortmain, and to treat them as forfeited. It followed, that the direct consent of every middle lord, as well as of the Crown, became necessary in every such case. But, this consent being given, after full local inquiry as above seen, the Crown and the middle lords were all alike estopped from claining their right to enter on the lands as forfeited. See before, p. 226, note.

+ In the copy of this license entered on the Roll, the word is written

[The gild thus well begun, soon showed its active life. The ordinances made by it are not known to exist in any written shape; but other means remain of getting some knowledge of the work it did. Some leases granted by it are still extant; from which we learn that, whatever authority was sisteren was necesentrusted to the Master and Wardens, the "assent and consent" of the bretheren and sisteren of the gild were necessary to all business transactions of any importance.* And by the same means we know that this gild had a common seal, which bore the following legend :---

Common seal of the gild.

The assent of bretheren and &c.

sary to all leases,

Sigill': comune : gglde : sancte : crucis : de : bermỹçehom that is,-"The Common Seal of the Gild of the Holy Cross of Birmingham."†

Records touching the Gild.

Besides these direct remains of the gild itself, there are, in the Public Record Office, many original documents which enable us to know the details of the property, and not a little of the useful activity, of this gild, as well as the special fact that it built a public hall for the use of the town, which was called indifferently "the Town-hall" and "the Gild-hall." Enough of these documents shall be now set forth to give a general view of the character of the gild :--]

July, but is plainly a mistake of the scribe. See before, p. 243. Most of the letters patent copied on the same membrane as this, and on the membranes that come before and after it on the Ro'l, bear the date of August.

* This was probably so in the case of most gilds possessing estates. The terms used in these leases are as follows (for example) :-- "Willielmus Rydware, magister Gilde sancte Crucis de Bermyngeham, ffraties et sorores eiusdem Gilde, de vnanimi assensu et concensu, tradiderint," &c. The lease from which this is taken is in my own possession, and bears the date of A.D. 1426. Another lease, bearing the date of A.D. 1437, has lately been found by Mr. Joseph Hill, managing clerk to Messrs. Best and Horton, well-known solicitors in Birmingham, which those gentlemen have been good enough to place in my hands, and in which I find the same terms of assent and consent. To this lease is also attached an impression of the seal of the gild, which is in better condition than any other which I know of. The woodcut of the gild-seal which will be found at the end of the extracts here given as to this gild, is taken from this impression (see p. 250).

+ Birmingham is one of the not very numerous places in England that still keeps a name identical in sound, and almost identical in spelling, with what is found written in Domesday Book. There is little doubt that the old first syllable "Berm" is more correct than the modern "Birm."

247

(3) REPORT OF THE COMMISSIONERS OF 37 HENRY VIII.*

Gilda sancte crucis de Birmyngh^am.

[The yearly income, from rents, &c., is set down in detail; and amounts to]} xxxj.li	. ij.s. x.d.	Income of the Gild.
[The yearly outgoes are also set down in detail; and amount to] Et remanet clare per annum xlj.s. j

The seyd Gylde was founded by Thomas Sheldone and other, Mis-statement as o the foundation in the xvjth yere of Kyng Edwarde the seconde, t to ffynd of the gild. certayne prestes to syng dyvyne seruyce in the par[i]she Churche aforseyde for euer; And to praye ffor the soules of the same founders.[‡] And in the same towne of Byrmyngh^am there be 2000 houseling people in Bir. M.M. houselyng peaple. And, at Ester tyme, all the prestes of mugham. Great resort to the same Gilde, wt dyuers other, be not sufficient to mynyster church at Easter. the sacramentes and sacramentalles vnto the seyde peaple. Also, there be dyuers pore peaple founde, avded, and suckared, Works of charity of the seyde Gylde, as in money, Breade, Drynke, Coles; and, in finding money, bread, drink, and whene any of them dye, thay be buryed very honestlye at the coals. costes and charges of the same Gilde, wt dyrge and messe, acordyng to the constitucyons of the same Gilde. And there hathe bene no landes nor tenementes solde sythene the tyme

* Certificates of Colleges, Warwick, No. 31.

+ It has been already shown (before, p. 107, note) how worthless are any historical facts alleged in these certificates. The reader has, in this case, the demonstration before him, the original license of mortmain of 16 Richard II. having already been set out. Yet this certificate alleges the foundation as having been in 16 Edward II.; while, to carry the absurdity further, the next certificate alleges it to have been in 16 Henry II. Such is the reliance to be placed, in old times as in modern, upon " offic al reports."

[‡] There is nothing in any of the documents touching the foundation of this gild as to praying for the souls of the founders. The divine service to be celebrated is stated, in this Report itself, a few lines lower down, to have consisted in "ministering the sacraments and sacramentals." It is indeed true, as is proved by this and the next following Report, that "works of charity" were considered to be helpful to the souls of the founders. (See before, pp. 241, 245.) The endowment of William Lenche has the same words. See after, p. 253.

before lymyted. And the Inventory of the goodes and ornamentes to the same belonging, here-after dothe appere. [But no such inventory does appear.]

(4) REPORT OF THE COMMISSIONERS OF I EDWARD VI.*

Sheldon and other, in the xvjth yere of king Henrye the

The Guilde of Brimincham was founded by one Thomas

Further misstatement as to the foundation of the gild.

gild.

Seconde ;† and incorporate, by the name of Mr and Brethern of the guilde of tholye Crosse in brymyncham, for the maintenaunce of certein priestes; whereunto belonge landes and possessions to the yerelye value of xxxij.li. xij.s. v.d. prima Income of the facie : wch are nowe, and have bene of longe tyme, conuerted as well to dedes of charyte and to the commen-welth there, as hereafter shall appere xxxij.li. xij.s. v.d. Whereof,-

In Rentes Resolute, as well to therle of Warrwick as to Outgoes of the gild. divers other, going owte of the premisses, $lv.s. x.d.ob. q^r$; In stipendes of priestes and other ministers of the churche, xx.li. vj.s. viij.d.; In ffees and annuytes, lx.s.; ffor bread and wyne ffor the churche, xx.s.; ffor keping the Clocke and the Chyme, xiij.s. iiij.d.; And in allowance ffor Reparacions of the same possessions, consisting moste parte in tenementes, communibus annis, iiij.a. In all xxxj.li. xv.s. x.d. ob. q^r.

xvi.s. vi.d.q". So Remains Plate and Jewells to the same guilde Plate and jewels. belonging; viz., three chalices of xxviij. oz. silver, waying xxiiij.oz., and a nutte wth a cover, waying iiij.oz.; in a'l Whereof, ij. chalices, waying xvj.oz., are left for Adminis 1 11 15

Household stuff.	Goodes, Ornamentes, and howsholld xlj.s. viij.d.
	stuffe, are praysed at $\ldots \ldots $
Works of charity,	Theare be relieved and mainteigned uppon the same possessions of the same guilde, and the good provision of the Mr in help of the and bretherne thereof, xij. poore persones, who have their howses Rent free, and alle other kinde of sustenaunce, as welle ffoode and apparelle as alle other necessaryes.*

* Certificates of Colleges, Warwick, No. 53. + See the note + on the foregoing page.

Allso theare be mainteigned, wt parte of the premisses, and and in the repair of bridges and kept in good Reparaciouns, two greate stone bridges, and diuers highways. ffoule and daungerous high wayes; the charge whereof the towne of hitsellfe ys not hable to mainteign; So that that¹ the Lacke thereof wilbe a greate noysaunce to the kinges maties Subjectes passing to and ffrom the marches of wales, and an vtter Ruyne Staying the good works of the gild to the same towne, - being one of the fayrest and moste will be runnous to this fair town. proffittuble towne[s] to the kinges highnesse in all the Shyre.

The said Towne of Brymyncham ys a verey mete place, and A free school should be erected yt is verey mete and necessarye that theare be a ffree Schoole in the town. erect theare, to bring vppe the youthe, being boathe in the same towne and nigh thereaboute.⁺

Howselinge people in the same Paroche of Brimyncham...m. DCCC. Houseling people.

[From details given in the foregoing and other documents in Fees paid to the Public Record Office, I find that fees were every year paid the gild. by the gild to an organist, to a gild-clerk, to the keeper of the house and gardens of the gild, and to the Wardens of the gild : while houses belonging to the gild were allowed to be occupied, rent free (in return, no doubt, for services habitually done to the gild), by a woman described as "the commen midewyffe," and by a man described as "le Belman." ±

* In another of the Certificates of Colleges (Warwick, No. 57), I find the following, as to the alms-houses in possession of this gild ;---

"The poore. Md., there are floure Tenementes, Called the Almes-houses, allowed To diuers poore men and women, late of the sayd guilde, Rent fre. And allso divers other Tenementes, which are not above charged, amounting to the yerelye Rent of xliiij.s. iiij d., are lykewyse allowed to diuers other poore people in the same towne."

[†] The circumstances attending the foundation of the Free School in Birmingham will be found stated in the Introduction, in illustration of the course taken after the legislative plunder of English gilds.

‡ It must be understood that what has been cited is by no means all that remains as to this gild. But, it having been shown that the gild was begun by the body of the townsmen, in their corporate capacity and by their cor249

1 (sic.)

arious officers of

It is important to a thorough understanding of the position of true Town Gilds, such as was the Gild of the Holy Cross of Hall" one and the same thing in Birmingham.

The "Gild Hall"

and the "Town

Description of this building in old records.

Neither this identification with the town, nor the works of charity done, saved the gild.

Birmingham, to have it remembered that their action was, in every sense, identified with the whole town. In many cities and towns in England (including the City of London), the "Gild Hall" and the "Town Hall" are still one and the same thing. It was so in Birmingham before the iniquitous plunder of the gilds which took place in the time of Edward VI. The formal description of the building, in many documents in the Public Record Office, is, "le Towne Hall, alias dict' le Guilde Hall." But this fact, and all the "works of charity" done by the gild, availed nothing to stay the ruthless rapacity of hungry courtiers. A remarkable, and, so far as I know, a unique instance of survival, notwithstanding this rapacity, is found in the fact that a body which was called into existence to do the same sort of "works of charity" as were done by this gild, escaped the hand of the spoiler at this time, through (as it seems) the saving of the life-interest of the founder's wife ; and it has come down to our own times, still doing, in Birmingham, the "works of charity" which the old Gild of the Holy Cross was accustomed to do more than four hundred years ago, "according to the ordering and will of the Bailiffs and Commonalty" of the town. The curious facts as to the thus happily saved relic of the old gilds of England, will be found next following.]

porate name, and it having been further shown, upon the admission of those who were set to make out a case against the gilds, that this gild fulfilled important public works, it is unnecessary to extend the citations.

(b) GILD COMMONLY CALLED "LENCHE'S TRUST."

This Gild is a direct off-shoot of the Gild of the Holy Cross. Special endowment for works of An endowment was put into the hands of feoffees, who were, charity. after the death of the founder's wife, to do the same sorts of "works of charity" as the Gild of the Holy Cross was established to do, "according as the ordering and will of the Bailiffs and Commonalty shall appoint." Had this endowment been merged in the gild, it would have been lost to the town.*

Many instances have already been given of the foundation, as Such endowments well as the endowment, of gilds by one or more persons. In common, several cases it has been seen that, though the property was used towards the purposes of the gild, it remained still in the hands of persons generally called "feoffees," and was subject, in fact, to their disposition; and that, sometimes, no license of mortmain was, through whatever cause, obtained for many years, perhaps never.[†] The present is another case, though happily a more lasting one, of this kind.

One William Lenche, living in Birmingham at the end of the The facts of this fifteenth and beginning of the sixteenth centuries, and the owner of lands there and in the neighbourhood, wished, being

* No doubt the feoffees of William Lenche carefully avoided using the name of "Gild," after the legislative plunder which had befallen the bodies so called. But for this, the "Trust" would assuredly have soon been called a "Gild." There is, in the British Museum, among the Harleian MSS., a curious instance of a body of feoffees formed, as far as can be made out from wills and ordinances, under circumstances very much like those of Lenche's Trust. But these feoffees having unfortunately been in too great a hurry to call themselves a "gild," they fell, with the others, on the hapless day of the massacre of the gilds and the plunder of their property. This case happened in Bury St. Edmund's.

+ Two marked instances of this will be found in the cases of the Gild of SS. Fabian and Sebastian, Aldersgate, London (before, pp. 12, 13), and of the Gild Merchant of Coventry (before, pp. 226 note, 231). In each case the independence of the feoffees is expressly admitted on the face of the Return. Numerous other illustrations of the same thing could be given. In such cases, if no license of mortmain was got, as well from the Crown as from all the middle lords, before the year 1547, the feoffees may, by skilful tact, have saved their trust from the general plunder. But I do not know of any other case in which this happened than that of " Lenche's Trust."

of gilds were very childless, to follow the example of the first endowers of the Gild of the Holy Cross. But he wished, at the same time, to assure to his wife, while she lived, the income from his estate. So, instead of getting licenses in mortmain to enable him to vest his lands in the Gild of the Holy Cross, he made a deed of feoffment, vesting them in persons therein named; but requiring these feoffees to pay the income to his wife while she lived, and afterwards to apply it to identically the same "works of charity" as it has been seen that the Gild of the Holy Cross charged itself with fulfilling.*

GILD CALLED "LENCHE'S TRUST,"

Inquisition and decree in A.D. 1628.

The original deed of feoffment still exists, together with the declaration by William Lenche of his intentions. In 1628, an Inquisition was made under the Statute of 43 Elizabeth, cap. 4. This inquisition was made on the spot, by a jury of the indwellers of Birmingham, to learn what had been done in the matter of Lenche's endowment. The inquisition was duly made and recorded, in the same manner as the inquisition had been made and recorded before the founding of the Gild of the Holy Cross itself. A Decree followed upon that inquisition, which reaffirmed the purposes of the original endowment. From these documents and records, the purposes and ordinances of this relic of the old English gilds become plainly learned.]

(I) DECLARATION OF THE INTENT OF THE FEOFFMENT OF LENCHE'S LANDS.[†]

Original declaration, by William Lenche, of the intent of his endowment ; dated 11th March, A.D. 1528.

Md., the xith day of marche, in the xvij^{tc} vere and rayne of oure soueraynge lorde kynge henry be viijth, that this ys the laste wylle and Entent of Wylliam lenche, of Byrmyngham, vppon hys dede of feoffement, Datyd the day of the makynge of this present wrytynge, made vnto John shyltone, of byrmyngham aforeseide, Rycharde Swyft of the same, Roger redhylle, and other moo, as more playnly dothe apeyre in the same dede, of, in, and Appon, all his landis and tenementis lyinge and beynge win the lordshippis of byrmyngham, Bordysley, Aston, Dudston, Saltelev. Nechellis, and lyttyll bromwyche, w^tin the Cowntye of Warwyke. ffyrst, I the seyd Wylliam lenche wyll, that the seid feoffes shall stande Seasyde of, in, and Appon, alle my landys afore-seide, wt ther appurtenauncis, to the vse of me the seid Wylliam lenche, and Agnes my wyffe, dewrynge oure lyvys, and the lenger lyuer of vs : And, after the decesse of me the seid After death of wylliam lenche and Agnes my wyffe, I Wylle bt my seide feoffes the feoffees to hold shalle stande seasyd in ffee of the premyssis, to ther vse and works of charity, health of Lenche profettis of the same, to dystrybute in Warkis of Charyte, for the heylthe of the forseid wylliam lenche sowlle and Agnes his wyffe.*

NOTE .- It will strikingly illustrate some points closely connected with the history of English gilds, as touched on in the Introduction, if William Lenche's separate disposition of his personalty, by will, is here added. It is as follows :-

"IN THE NAME OF GOD, AMEN. In the xxiiij. daie of the Will of William monethe of Marche, In the yere of our Lorde god m.v.xxv., I, Lenche, dated 24th March, A.D. William Lenche, being of hool mynde, make my testament, in maner 152 8. folowing: ffirst, I bequethe my soule to allmyghty god, our blessid lady seynt mary, and all the holy company of heven; my body to be buried win the chirche of seynt marteyn of Byrmyncham. Also, I bequethe to the Raperacoun of the saide chirche, for my sepulture, vi.s. viij.d. Also, I bequethe to every preste present at the daie of my burying, vi.d.; And other Clerkis and mynestris after the vse. Also, I bequethe to seynt mary house of Coventre, xij.d. Also, I bequethe to seynt Chad of Lichefeld, xij.d. Also, I bequethe to the highe Aulter of Byrmyncham, for my tithis forgoton, ij.s. Also, I

* The deed of feoffment, to which the above is fastened, has, since 1628, undergone a strange mutilation, the object of which it is impossible to understand. The names of two of the original feoffees, as written in the deed, and which remained there until after 1628 (for they are stated in the inquisition taken in that year), have been scratched out. As several feoffments had then already taken place since the date of this deed, this mutilation was a mere act of wanton mischief. It could in no way affect the title.

Lenche and wife.

the lands, to do for the souls'

and wife.

^{*} That this was so, is made certain by the deed of re-feoffment of 1540; which expressed, in terms, the precise intentions of the endower, after the wife's death. (See after, pp. 255, 256.)

⁺ From the original in the possession of Mr. Charles Best, as Solicitor to "Lenche's Trust." I am indebted to that gentleman and to Mr. Arthur Ryland (lately Bailiff of the Trust) for the opportunity, with consent of the feoffees, of making use of these original documents.

254

will that my obite be observed every monethe in the yere following after my decease: for every obite, to prestis and clerkis, iiij.s. Also, I bequethe to the Reparacion of the pa[ve]mentis of Egbaston streete, iij.s. iiij.d. Also, I bequethe to every of my god-childern, iiij.d. Also, I bequethe to John Shiltone, vj.s. viij.d. Also, I bequethe to Richard Swyft, vj.s. viij.d. Also, I bequethe to William Symondis, vi.s. viij.d. Also, I bequethe to Roger Redhill, vi.s. viij.d. Also, I bequethe to John Hipkis, vj.s. viij.d. Also, I bequethe to euery of my ffeoffees, xij.d. Also, I bequethe to William Payntone, my seruaunt, xx.s. Also, I bequethe to Roger Hawkys, my seruant, xx.s. Also, I bequethe to William Egynton, vj.s. viij.d. Also, I bequethe to John Bownell, vj.s. viij.d. Also, I bequethe to Agnes Swapston, iijs. iiij.d. Also, I bequethe to Margret Varnam, iij.s. iiij.d. The Residue of all my goodis, my dettis paid and this my testament fulfillid, I give and bequethe to Agnes Lenche, my wife; Whom I ordeigne, constitute, and make, my soole Executrice. And I make my supervisors, Humfray Symondis, gentilman; Thomas Norres, preste; William Segwyke; and Roger ffoxall. And I bequethe to Humfray Symondis, for his labor, xx.s. Also, I bequethe to Sir Thomas Norres, for his labor, xiij.s. iiij.d. Also, I bequethe to William Segwyke, for his labor, vj.s. viijd. And to Roger ffoxall, for his labor, vj.s. viij.d. Theis witnesith :- Sir Thomas Norres, Curat off Byrmyncham; Sir Thomas Commerbache, Chapleyn; George Gullson; And other."

This Will shows that the endowment put by William Lenche into the hands of feoffees, for doing "warkis of charyte" in the town, was no piece of vanity, nor in neglect of social duties. In this Will he bears in mind, not only the offices of the Church, but all his friends and connections, and even the feoffees themselves, while he leaves a sum (not a trifle in those days) for the doing, immediately, in one street, what the endowment was intended more largely to help in doing, after his wife's death, throughout the town.

Probate of this Will was granted, on 27th June, A.D. 1526, in the joint names of Cardinal Wolsey and Archbishop Warham.*

The Works of Charity to be done under this endowment, were of the same kind as those done by the gild of the Holv Cross.

[The words "warkis of charyte," used in the above declaration as to Lenche's lands, are the same as what are used in the writ for the inquisition ad quod damnum, and in the license of mortmain, touching the foundation and endowment of the Gild

* Cardinal Wolsey is thus described :--- "Thomas, miseracione diuina, tituli sancte Cecilie sacrosancte Romane ecclesie presbiter Cardinalis. Eboraci Archiepiscopus, Anglie Primas et Cancellarius, Apostoliceque sedis eciam de latere Legatus."

of the Holy Cross.* It has been seen that, as matters of fact admitted even in the Certificates of Colleges themselves, the "works of charity" done by that gild were in the shape of (1) repairing bridges and highways, and (2) maintaining almshouses and giving other help to the poor.[†] William Lenche. while assuring an income to his wife so long as she survived him, sought the same objects. His wife surviving him for some years. the first formal statement of the practical application of this foundation towards "works of charity" in the town, was made on the 29th March, 1540; which was made, it cannot be doubted, in express fulfilment of his known intentions. The master of the Gild of the Holy Cross was, at the same time, named one of the feoffees. It will be seen that the following ordinances, which still remain the laws binding upon this "last of the gilds," are identical in character and spirit with many of those older ones which are included in the Returns made in 1389:-]

(2) THE ORDINANCES OF THE GILD.[‡]

[It was found, upon the Inquisition, that, in the deed of Ordinances in the feoffment of 29th March, 1540, it is stated that the purposes of March, A.D. 1540. the endowment, and the duties of the feoffees, were, to] apply and distribute all the issues and proffitts ariseing or growing out of the premisses, in manner and forme following : vizt., That Two feoffees shall two of the ffeoffees aforesaid, with the consent of the rest of the by the rest, to be yearly chosen

[‡] The whole of what follows is taken from the Inquisition and the Decree of 1628, both of which are in the Public Record Office. The former of these traces the history of "Lenche's Trust" from its beginning till 1628. The latter confirms and re-states the objects of the endowment and the manner of working it. The course of the feoffees is indeed stated in the latter with more fulness than is done in the deed of 1540; but there can be no doubt that it is so stated in accordance with the long-established practice. The Inquisition is in Latin; the Decree is in English. The feoffees have an old translation of the inquisition, which I have used for so much as is taken from that record, save where, as sometimes happens, there is a flagrant mistranslation. The great length of these documents prevents my giving more than the extracts that follow.

^{* &}quot;Opera caritatis" are the words used in the original of each.

[†] See before, pp. 247-249.

ffeoffees or the major part of them, by their common nominacioun and appointment, should receive yearely the rents and pro-flitts of the premisses, and the same distribute for the uses receive the rents, and to distribute the same :

(1) In the repair of ways and bridges :

(2) or otherwise to help the needy poor;

(3) or to other pious uses.

The two chosen feoffees shall yearly give to the rest an account of the distribution :

and shall deliver over all unspent moneys.

When only seven feoffees remain living, a re-enfeoffment, to fourteen, shall be made : and so the feoffment be renewed for ever.

following: vizt., ffor the repairing the ruinous waies and bridges in and about the same Towne of Birmingham, where it shall want; And, for default of such uses, should bestowe the rents and proffitts of the premisses to the poor liveing within the Towne aforesaid, where there shall be most need, according to the appointment and disposicioun of the said ffeoffees for the time being, or the major part of them; or to other pious uses, according to the discrecioun and appointment of them the ffeoffees, or the major part of them. And that those two of the ffeoffees aforesaid who have been elected and nominated by the rest of the fleoffees to gather in the rents and proffitts of the premisses, and to distribute them in manner and forme aforesaid, should yearely, in the end of the yeare in which they were elected, in St. Katherine's Chapel, in the parish church of Birmingham aforesaid, before the rest of the ffeoffees for the time being, or the major part of them, render a reasonable accompt of the distribucioun and non-distribucioun thereof, when they shall be thereunto required; and the rents and proffitts of the premisses not distributed, shall there deliver or cause to be delivered to the rest of the ffeoffees or the major part of them. And alsoe, that as often as it shall happen that seaven of the said ffeoffees dye, those seaven who shall be then liveing shall enfieoffe of the premisses certain other honest men of the Towne of Birmingham : Who, soe being seised, shall reenffeoffe the said seaven who shall survive and other seaven honest men within the Towne of Birmingham aforesaid; soe, that is to say, that the said ffeoffment shall be renewed for ever in the same manner as is abovemenciouned.

Ordinances in the Decree of A.D. 1628.

ment shall be

[The Decree made upon this Inquisition, and which has, to this day, the force of law, under the Statute 43 Eliz. c. 4, confirms the purpose of Lenche's endowment, and the manner of working it. Thus, the rents and profits] shall for ever here-The same employmade of the funds, after be imployed to the same uses as are stated in the deed of

BIRMINGHAM.

20th March, 1540]; that is to say, to repaire the waies and as was ordained bridges ruinose or in decay, or hereafter to be ruinose or in 1540. in the Deed of decay; [and, in default of this use, to the poor of the town]; or unto other godly uses, according to the order and discrecoun of the said ffeoffees.

And that the said two ffeoffees shall, vppon the Tuesday in The yearly account shall be Easter weeke, make their just accompts, before the rest of the said made on Easter Tuesday, before ffeoffees, and other the enhabitaunts of the said Towne of Birthe feoffees and other townsmen. mingham, of all their Receipts and disbursements during the tyme they have exercised that office ; And that, if any money Moneys in hand shall remayne in their hands, that the same shall be paid to the to two officers, rest of the said ffeoffees, to be deliuered over to such other two as shalbe chosen into the said office for the year following. And that, vppon Tuesday in Easter week, yearely, in the afternoone, vppon the tolling of a bell, such meeting, for the purpose aforesaid, shalbe had, and the like accompte shalbe made and taken, and two new officers chosen for the purposes aforesaid.

shall be paid over who shall be yearly chosen.

The meeting for this purpose shall be held on the tolling of a bell.

[Long leases are prohibited ;* and leases are only to be made Long leases are for twenty-one years in possession. Rents may be abated] for the releafe or ease of a poore tenaunte.

[The feoffees must be renewed from time to time, as stated in The feoffees must be renewed from the deed of 29th March, 1540; and all so appointed shall be time to time. of the most honest and sufficient enhabitantes within the Towne of Birmingham.

[All deeds, writings, &c.] shall be kept in a chest to be pro- All deeds and vided for that purpose : the said chest to be kept in the parish Church of Birmingham aforesaid, or in some other convenient place, as to the said ffeoffees or the greater parte of them shall be thought fitt. Ye sd chest to be locked with three scuerall lockes at the least, wch shalbe kept by three of the said ffeoffees. And such and so many of the said ffeoffees as will, shall and may Every feoffee may take notes or take notes or copies of all or any such deeds, writings, and copies of any deed or writing. evidences.

* Several leases had been granted for 99 years; others for 21 years after the end of a lease then in being. All such leases are declared to be void in law.

writings shall be kert in a chest. having three locks thereto.

257

Deritend bridge, being in decay, shall forthwith be repaired.

Timber may be sold, enough

being left for needful repairs of buildings

under lease.

And for that we are credibly given to understand that the bridge called Dirriden Bridge is in great decay, we do judge, order, and decree, that the said Bridge shall, with all convenient speed, be repaired and amended by and out of the Rentes and profittes of the said premisses, as the same may be had and raised. And that the s^d ffeoffees, or the greater parte of them, shall and may sell wood and timber from of [f] the said premisses, thereby to raise money to-wardes the repaire of the said Bridge, allowinge reasonable tymber for the present repaire of the Buildings uppon the premisses, to be provided or reserved vppon the said Leases.

[The "Warkis of Charyte" ordained by William Lenche, A.D. 1525, to be done in Birmingham, still continue to be done there by his feoffees, in the spirit, and as near as can be to the letter, of these old ordinances.*]

(c) GILD OF ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST OF DERITEND.

Birmingham and Deritend one borough.

An old Gild in Deritend.

Chapel built in Deritend, A.D.

1375:

[The old formal description of Birmingham was, "The Borough of Birmingham and Deritend;" the hamlet of Deritend, though in a different, but adjoining, parish, being a very ancient, and by no means the least important, part of the borough and lordship. A separate gild existed in the hamlet of Deritend. This is proved by a long series of charters, forming part of muniments of title in my own possession. Not only is this gild continually named in these, but it is named on account of houses that belonged to it. There was also founded in Deritend, in 1375, a chapel, which was liberally endowed by the inhabitants; but as to which it is remarkable that, neither in the agreement made as to services therein, nor in the declaration of the purposes of endowment contained in

* The annual income was, in 1868, over £2500 a-year, and will soon be much greater. Other gifts were, later, added to the original endowment of William Lenche; but they were made for the same purposes, and are vested in the same feoffees. The "Trust" therefore rightly keeps to the name of the first and largest endower.

IN BIRMINGHAM.

the License of Mortmain, is there any provision whatever made for any chantry, or for any services for the souls of the dead. So entirely unprincipled, however, were the proceedings that were taken to grasp as much as it was possible to bring within that scheme of legislative plunder under which the English gilds were annihilated in the time of Edward VI., that the property of the old gild of Deritend, and that of the chapel endowment, were mixed up together, and were both described in the place! To illustrate these facts, necessary to a true knowledge of the story of English gilds, but which would otherwise be deemed incredible, I now quote some of what is said, in the Certificates of Colleges, about the pretended chantry of Deritend, but which really mixes up together the endowment of the gild and of the chapel.*]

(I) REPORT OF THE COMMISSIONERS OF 37 HENRY VIII. †

Cantaria de Derettende in parochia de Astone, ac infra Dominium de Byrmyngh^{*}m, in Comitatu predicto.

[The yearly income, from rents, &c., is set down, in one sum]	Income of the gild.
[The yearly outgoes are set down in detail; and amount to]	Outgoes of the gild.
Et sic in superplus iij.s. vij.d.

There ys no foundacyon of any suche Chaunntry, but a

* It is interesting to catch unprincipled people tripping. Though the Commissioners and their followers were careful to speak only of a "chauntry" of Deritend, yet in one document, still in the Public Record Office, I find an interlineation of the words "sive Gilda." Thus the truth got blurted out upon the face of the record, in a moment of inadvertence or of conscience-smiting. The facts as to the Gild of St. John the Baptist of Deritend will be found stated in the first part of my "Memorials of Old Birmingham," (published in 1863); while facsimiles and translations of the Agreement and License of Mortmain touching Deritend Chapel are given in the second part of the same work ("Men and Names:" published in 1864). This agreement is what is called, in the following Reports, a "composicyon or ordynaunce."

+ Certificates of Colleges, Warwick, No. 31.

Official confusion between chantry, chapel, and gild. certayne composicyon or ordynaunce made betwene the prior and munkes of the late Monasterye of Tykfforde, whiche ware persons of Aston and Deretende, on that one partye, and Sr John Byrmyngham, Knyght, and the inhabitans of the same hamlet cauled Deretende, on that other partye, by thassent and consent of one Robert, Byshhoppe of Coventrye and Lycheffelde; That the sevd inhabitans of Deretende myght haue one Chapeleyne to celebrate Dyvyne seruyce win a Chappelle there of Saynt John, newleve erected and mayde, and also to mynyster vnto them all Sacramentes and Sacramentalls, Beryinges except ; by-cause they be ij. myles dystaunt firom there parisshe churche, so that, in wynter season, the seyde parisshyoners coulde not go to there parisshe churche w^tout greate daunger of perysshyng. And there be aboue cc. houselyng peaple wythe-in the seyde ij. hamletts.* And at thys present tyme there be ij. prestes; where-of the one seruyng the cure, and the other teaching a grammer schole. There hathe bene no other landes belongyng to the same Chappelle syns the time before lymyted, more then ys before expressed; and the Inventory there-of hereafter dothe appere. [But no such inventory does appear.]

Two hundred houseling people.

A grammar school m Derstend.

(2) REPORT OF THE COMMISSIONERS OF I EDWARD VI. †

Official confusion between chantry, chapel, and gild, repeated. Y^o Chauntre of Deriatende hath no ffoundacion, But a certaine Composicioun or Ordenaunce betwene the Prior and monks of the late Monasterye of Tykforde, being patrones of the paroche of Aston nere Brymynch^am and Deriatend, on thone partye. and S^r John Brymynch^am, Knight, and thinhabitauntes of Deriatend, on thother partye, w^t thassent of one Robert Byshopp of Coventre and Lichefeld; That the inhabitauntes of the said Hamlett of Deryatend shollde haue a priest to celebrate divine seruice in [a] Chappelle theare newlye therefore erecte, and to minister alle maner off Sacramentes and Sacra-

IN BIRMINGHAM.

In rent resolute due to divers persons, going owte of the premisses, lxxij.s. viij.d.; To two priestes mynystryng theare, ^{Outgoes of the} gild. that ys to saye, S^r Edmunde Kaye (c.s.), and S^r John Mote (c.s.),=x.li.; amounting in alle to xiij.li. xij.s. viij.d.

Et rem. nil, ffor the s^rplusage ysxj.s. j.d.

Mđ. Plate and jewells thereunto belonging, lvj.oz. Whereof one crosse, wayinge l.oz., ys remayninge in the hands of S^r Fulke Gryvelle, Knyght, in gage for iiij.li.; and chalice in thandes of the Incumbentes, vj.oz.

Goods and ornamentes there unto belonging are praysed at x.s. Goods of the gild. [In the margin of this record is written as follows:—]

Ther is a chapelle at ease for the same towne of Deriatend, Alleged chapel of beinge devided ffrom their paroche churche wth a greate Ryver.*

* This statement must have arisen out of the confusion caused by the mis-statement as to a chantry, made in both this and the foregoing Reports. There never was any "chapel at ease," any more than there ever was any "chantry," in Deritend. Deritend Chapel (see before, 258) was, and still is, wholly independent of the parish church of Aston. This chapel is mentioned in Kennett's "Parochial Antiquities" (el. 1695, p. 595), under the name of "Devetan." But the facts are as incorrectly stated there as is the name. See the note before, 259.

261

Plate and jewells, partly in pledge.

^{*} The "two hamlets" were Deritend and Bordesley; both of which are named in the "composicyon or ordynaunce," though it is not so said above. + Certificates of Colleges, Warwick, No. 53.

nances is as follows :---- of the seven founders of the gild. The substance of these ordi- The ordinances.

gild. An alderman,

De Officiariis. There shall be one head of the Gild, who The officers of the shall be styled "Alderman." There shall also be two Stewards, two stewards, and who shall gather in and deal with the goods and chattels of the Gild, and shall trade with the same; and they shall give an account thereof, and of all gains thence arising, to the Alderman and bretheren, and deliver them up as is hereinafter said. They shall take an oath of office, and moreover find two sureties. There shall also be a Dean of the Gild, who shall enter the names of new-comers; * give warning to the bretheren of all the times when they must meet, and make record of the warning; write down moneys received and fines that are due, and levy the latter; give out to needy bretheren their allowances, as is below said; carefully see that all is rightly done on the burial of any brother or his wife; † and range the bretheren in becoming manner when they meet.

De Capellano celebraturo. If the means of the Gild enable it, There shall be a chaplain if the and the Vicar of the Church of Holy Trinity consents, a Chap- gild can afford it. lain shall be appointed. And there shall be a candle-bearer, enriched with a carving of the Holy Trinity; on the top of which three candles shall be burnt, on Sundays and Feast-days, so long as the means of the Gild allow it.

The term "medius" is used in this document of 1381, as it is in the writ ad quod damnun (before, p. 242), to express any person or authority, having any interest in the subject-matter, between that of the highest and the lowest of those that are being spoken of. As to the date, 1384, given in the present Return, see the note to the last clause of the ordinances (after, p. 268).

* The original words are :-- "Ad cujus spectabit officium, nomina fratrum ingredientium immatriculare."

+ In the case of this gild, it seems that no sisteren were members of it, but that nevertheless the wives of bretheren had the advantages of it. I find the same thing in other Cambridge gilds; but there are some to which women were admitted as direct members.

[‡] There is something startling in the cold and contingent way in which

XIV.

CAMBRIDGE.

(a) GILD OF HOLY TRINITY.*

The Return is addressed to the Lord Chancellor, and sets forth a decree of the Consistory of Ely.

This Return is unique among those sent up in 1389, both in T the manner and the matter of it. Beginning with some lines addressed to the Lord Chancellor by the bretheren of the gild who make the Return, it then, instead of giving a copy of the ordinances, sets forth at full length a decree of the Consistory of Ely. That decree begins by stating that the ordinances were shown to the "Official of Ely and Commissary of the Bishop of Ely,"t on 1st May 1384, " according to the course and computation of the Anglican Church." The ordinances are then set out at length in the decree, beginning with the names

* CCCIX. 54. Condition, fair, where not damaged by three holes that have been pierced through all the leaves. Latin. This very interesting Return is made up in the form of a book. Other examples of the same thing have been given of Part I. (see before, pp. 37, 40). The present book contains eleven leaves, each $7\frac{1}{2}$ in. long, by 5 in. wide. All the twentytwo pages are covered with writing, except the first, on which are only written the words "Gilda Canteln'" by way of title to the Return. The ordinances themselves fill ten pages. All the rest is taken up by the preamble, the decree, the notarial attestation, and the Bishop of Ely's Indulgences.

+ Called hereafter for the sake of shortness, the "Commissary."

± It would save much contention and mistake, if it were better known than it is, that the Church of England was distinguished, long before the "Reformation," as the Anglican Church, and the Church of Rome as the Roman Church. The words of the original in this case are "secundum cursum et computacionem ecclesie Anglicane." In a document within three years of the same date, to which the Bishop of Coventry and Lichfield and several other ecclesiastics were parties, in 1381, a certain monastery is described as "ad Romanam ecclesiam, nullo medio, pertinens." (See the second part of "Memorials of Old Birmingham : Men and Names," p. 54.) Services shall be attended on the eve and the feast of the Holy Trinity.

De progressu in festo Sancte Trinitatis. On the eve of the feast of Holy Trinity, or some day near it, at the stroke of first even-song, the Alderman, Stewards, and Dean, with the bretheren of the Gild who are in Cambridge or within ten miles round, shall meet at a place agreed on, and thence go, two and two, clad in livery (if they have any), to the church of Holy Trinity in Cambridge, to hear first even-song; and, even-song ended, they shall go back in the same way. And, on the morrow, they shall go in like manner to matins, day-service,* mass, and second even-song; and the Alderman and bretheren shall make offerings. And whoever is absent, either at this time or whensoever he is summoned, unless through sickness or for other good reason (as to which he shall be put upon his oath), shall pay two pounds of wax.

No priest shall have anything to do with the affairs of the gild.

De presbyteris non sumendis ad officia. If any ecclesiastic, especially one in holy orders, comes into the Gild, he shall not be put into any office of the Gild; nor shall any of its goods be put under his charge; nor shall he be let meddle in any way with such things; but lay brothers of the Gild shall undertake them, who are best able to deal with such things, and to bear the burthen of such offices. For it is neither becoming nor these Cambridge folks, so emphatically approved by the Commissary and the Bishop, propose to have a chaplain and a few lights at services. The original words of this ordinance are as follows :--- "Item statuimus et ordinamus, interveniente consensu domini Thome Wygenhole, perpetui vicarii dicte ecclesie Sancte Trinitatis Cantebrigie, quod, arridente nobis uberiori fortuna, inveniatur in dicta ecclesia, sumptibus dicte Gilde, unus capellanus, celebraturus ad altare in ala eiusdem ecclesie, juxta ymaginem beate Marie Magdalene, hora competenti, absque prejudicio ipsius ecclesie; et unum candelabrum, decenter ornatum cum ymagine sancte Trinitatis; in cuius candelabri summitate, tres candele, singulis diebus dominicis et festivis, dum aguntur solempnia, ardeant in honore summe et individue Trinitatis, quamdiu fucultates dicte Gilde seu fraternitatis ad hoc se optulerint, favente domino duraturas." Other Cambridge gilds among these Returns also show that the services of a chaplain were deemed quite secondary to the other purposes of the gilds.

* "Horas canonicas" in the original. See Canon Rock's "Church of our Fathers," vol. iii. part ii. pp. 16-20.

lawful that a parson should in any way mix himself up with secular business; nor does it befit the good name or come within the calling of such men, that they should take on themselves offices and things of this sort.*

CAMBRIDGE.

De quatuor tractatibus in anno. All the bretheren, being There shall be summoned, shall come together before the Alderman, Stewards, every year, about the affairs of the and Dean, four times a-year; namely, on "Hokeday," the gild. Nativity of St. John Baptist, Michaelmas, and Christmas, or within eight days next following, to consider and do whatever the welfare of the Gild needs; and every brother shall pay, on each of those days, or within eight days afterwards, sixpence to the Gild-stock. Whoever, having been warned, and having no good excuse, does not come to any such meeting, shall pay a pound of wax. And the Dean shall pay a penny for every brother whom he ought to have warned, but has not.

De compoto officiariorum; et eorum eleccione. On a day and The stewards in a place appointed by the Alderman, within fourteen days give an account,

* The original of this remarkable ordinance must be given :--- "Item statuimus et ordinamus quod si contingat aliquem virum ecclesiasticum, presertim in sacris ordinibus constitutum, ad dictam fraternitatem assumi, quod non preficiatur in aliquam officiarium dicte Gilde, nec aliqua bona habeat ministranda ; neque de iis se aliquatenus intromittat ; sed alii laici dicte Gilde confratres, qui cum bonis hujusmodi negociari et onera officiis suis incumbentia, commode poterunt supportare maxime : cum non deceat, nec liceat, clericus negociis secularibus se aliquatenus immisceri; nec eorum congruit honestati, aut dignitati convenit, circa onera ad hujusmodi officiariorum curam et sollicitudinem spectantia de quibus supra fit mentio intendere seu vacare." Long before the Returns were known to me in which this ordinance is found, I showed, by exhaustive demonstration, in the "Parish" (second edition, pp. 288-330), that the modern assumption of the right of Incumbents to take the chair at 1 arish vestry-meetings, not only does not rest on any lawful foundation, but is directly contrary to the whole spirit and express letter of both Common Law and Canon Law, and that it is a mere usurpation, unsupported by any authority whatever. The above ordinance, which had the strongly expressed sanction of the Ecclesiastical Court and lawyers, as well as that of the bishop, is a striking practical illustration, almost in the same words, of what was shown by me. in 1857, to be the true law of England on this subject.

shall every year and bring up the stock in hand.

after Trinity Sunday,* the Alderman, Stewards, Dean, and such bretheren as can be found, shall meet; and the Stewards shall give a faithful account of the money in their hands, and of how they have dealt with it, and of what has been spent. Whatever remains in their hands, whether of the principal money or of gains thence arising, shall be brought and put before the Alderman and bretheren. If either of them fails to do this, he shall pay ten shillings to the Gild; and the Alderman shall take means to recover from him and his sureties the payment of what is owing to the Gild, as well as this ten shillings .- Afterwards, on the same day, the Alderman shall call up seven of the Seven bretheren shall be called on bretheren ; and they shall be sworn to choose, in good faith, out to choose officers for the next year. of bretheren dwelling in Cambridge or Barnwell, trusty and true men to be Alderman, Stewards. and Dean, for the coming year. Those thus chosen by the seven, or by the greater part The new officers shall be charged of them, shall be charged, by the outgoing Alderman, faithfully by the alderman. to fulfil what belongs to their offices. After this, the Alderman An indenture of shall deliver all the goods and chattels of the Gild to the new gild-stock shall be Stewards, by an indenture, to be made between them of the one and this shall be given by the o'd part, and the Alderman of the other part. Forthwith that Alderman shall cease to hold office, and shall give the indenture to the new Alderman; so that it may be known, at the next account day, what goods the Stewards have received. If the If the seven fail in choice of officers. seven, or the greater part of them, cannot agree in their choice, the old officers. with others, shall then the old Alderman, with the Stewards, Dean, and such choose the officers for the next year others as he likes, shall appoint the Alderman, Stewards, and Dean for the new year. Whoever, being chosen Alderman, will Whoever, being chosen, will not not serve the office, shall pay ten shillings : Stewards and the Dean, six shillings and eightpence. Whoever, having been warned, does not come to this account and election, shall pay two pounds of wax, unless he has good excuse.

Services for the dead.

serve, shall be fined.

transfer of the made :

to the new alderman

> De Officio circa corpora defunctorum. All becoming services shall be done on the death of any brother, or of the wife of any brother, whether within or without the town. And the Aldermen, Stewards, Dean, and bretheren shall be present at those services.*

> * "Aliquo die infra quindenam Sancte Trinitatis, per Aldermannum qui pro tempore fuerit assignato."

De pauperibus relevandis. Regula. If any brother, or brother's Help shall be wife, comes to want through mishap, without any self-guilt, he bretheren. shall have, at the cost of the Gild, sevenpence every week of his life while the need lasts, and a gown and hood every year; and he shall be freed from all Gild payments. His wife shall be The wife of a brother shall have treated in the same way after his death, so long as she does the like help. rightly and is not re-married.

De fratibus admittendis, et eorum juramento. Before the New-comers must have the consent in-coming of any new brother, the consent of the greater part of of the gild to their n-coming the Gild shall be given; and then the Alderman, with eight others of the Gild, may admit him. But, before he is admitted, they shall tell him, openly, what it is that he undertakes in They shall be coming into the Gild. If he still seeks the Gild-ship, he shall duties, and sworn swear to keep and uphold the ordinances of the Gild; not to ordinances. bewray its affairs ; and to pay all fines. This done, the Alderman, Stewards, and Dean, with the eight others, shall admit the new brother. And he shall pay, on admission, thirteen shillings Payments by newand fourpence to the Gild; sixpence to the Alderman; and threepence to the Dean.-The Dean shall also have, for all the Salaryof the dean, duties fulfilled by him, two shillings a-year from the Gild, and shall be freed from the four quarterly payments made by others. † If any brother wishes to leave the Gild, not through ill-will or A member may, wantonness, but for some good reason, he shall come before the shown, leave the Alderman and bretheren, and shall say why he wishes to leave it. He shall then be allowed to leave : but so that, when the reason given ceases, he may rejoin the Gild.

to keep the

comers.

on good cause gild for a time.

* This ordinance is very long, and goes into much and curious detail. It is remarkable that it recalls and provides for the contingency of the gild having no chaplain of its own. See before, under "De Capellano celebraturo," and the note thereto

+ See before, "De quatuor tractatibus in anno."

bretheren shall give due respect to the Alderman at all meetings of the Gild; and there shall be no angry nor idle talk. If the Alderman is aware of any quarrel between bretheren of the Gild, De fratrum obedientia, et eorum honestate. Regula. All the

All the bretheren shall pay respect to the alderman.

The alderman shall appease quarrels. Froward bretheren shall be punished; and, if need be, shall be put out of the gild, and dealt with as perjurers.

The alderman may appoint a locum tenens. he shall do his best to bring them to peace. If any brother is so boldly froward as to disobey these ordinances or the lawful commands of the Alderman, or shall do anything hurtful to the Gild's good name, he shall be punished as the Alderman thinks fit. And if he will not submit to a reasonable punishment, he shall be put out of the Gild for ever; and, besides this, he may, on the presentment of the Alderman and two bretheren of the Gild, be dealt with by the Bishop of Ely, or his Commissary, as a perjurer and faith-breaker.

Should the Alderman be, at any time, so busy that he cannot himself come to a meeting, he may name one of the bretheren to take his place; who shall have the same authority for the time being as the Alderman.

The ordinances may be amended.

The power of amending these ordinances is specially reserved to the founders and their successors.*

Sealed on 14th March, 1377. And because the Gild has not yet any common seal, the seals of the founders are set hereto. Given at Cambridge, on the 14th day of March, 1377.[†]

The Commissary is asked to read the ordinances, and to say if they are lawful.

He reads them, and sets many learned lawyers to read them also. After thus setting forth these ordinances, the decree goes on to say, that the Alderman and bretheren asked the Commissary to read the ordinances with care, and, if found right and reasonable, judicially to declare the same in the form of a decrec. Whereupon the Commissary himself read the ordinances with great care, and also caused them to be most diligently examined

* This is done less broadly than in the case of the Gild of the Lord's Prayer of York. (See before, p. 139.)

+ It will be seen, by this date, that the decree of the Commissary was not sought at the time of the foundation of the gild; while the date of that decree (1384) shows that it had nothing to do with the Return made in 1389. Something that arose between these dates, must have led to the asking for the decree. It will further be seen, by what follows, that one of the bishop's Indulgences was given several years before the decree was made. by all the advocates of the Consistory of Ely, and by other men most skilled in both branches of the law.* Having found, by All agree that they are good these means, and by what sworn witnesses have also said, that and lawful ; so the Commissary the ordinances are good and lawful, the Commissary, in open makes a judicial decree, declaring Court, declares them to be so, and decrees, authorizes, confirms, them to be so. and approves them, so far as he has authority; and he orders that the decree shall be made patent, under the official seal of Ely, and the attestation of the Public Notary there. Given and Given, under the official seal of the done on the 21st day of May, in the year aforesaid, in the pre-Consistory of Ely, 21st May, 1384. sence of nine learned lawyers, whose names are given.

Then comes the attestation of the Notary.

Two remarkable documents, following this decree, complete this unique Return. In one of these, dated 27th July, 1384, the Bishop of Ely himself declares his approval of the ordinances, The and grants an Indulgence of forty days to all who help the gild. order In the other, which, though written out last in the Return, is and earlier in date, it is stated that the gild was founded at much gild. cost to the founders; and an Indulgence of forty days is granted to all who join it. The date of this Indulgence is 26th June, 1378.

[No less than seven Returns, besides that from the Gild of the Holy Trinity, still remain, of those sent up from Cambridge in January, 1389. No two of these are alike, and all are full and interesting. A few extracts from some of them are all that can be here given :---]

(b) GILD OF THE BLESSED VIRGIN MARY (ST. BOTULPH'S).†

If any brother comes to want by mishap or sickness, so that Poor bretheren, not guilty of harlotry or other

* "Sapientes et prudentes utriusque juris peritos." This will mean the Canon Law and the Civil Law. The Consistory could not deal with the Common Law as such. No doubt this decree was asked for because some illnatured person—perhaps some displaced chaplain—had charged the gild with some breach of the rights of the Church, or with not maintaining a chaplain.

+ CCCIX. 77. Condition, fair. Latin.

268

Attested by the Notary.

The Bishop of Ely also approves the ordinances, and grants two Indulgences in favour of the GILD OF THE ANNUNCIATION, CAMBRIDGE.

had way of life. shall have allow ances of money and clothing.

The poor shall be buried at the cost of the gild ; and all, whether rich or poor, shall be kept in memory.

way of life, and he has not the means of living, he shall have sevenpence a week, during life, from the Gild, and a new gown every year. If two bretheren are at the same time in want, not through plunder by harlots or any other bad way of life, each shall have, during life, fourpence a week, and a new gown every year. The funeral of every Gild-brother shall be attended ; and poor bretheren shall be buried at the cost of the Gild. And whether the dead brother has been rich or poor, the Master and bretheren shall yearly keep in mind his death-day.* Every in-

The kiss of brother- comer shall give to all the rest the kiss of brotherhood.t hood

(c) GILD OF THE ANNUNCIATION.[‡] gives twelve names of founders, and states that a register is kept of all the members. The Gild was begun in order that,

The Return

This Gild was founded on 26th March, 1379.

The gild was begun A.D. 1379. A register is kept of the members.

It was begun to cherish kundliness. Yearly payments shall be made. John Cornwall excepted.

There shall be four great torches: and also a chest. with two locks and two keys.

Quarrels shall be put to arbitration

among us and our successors, kindliness should be cherished more and more, and discord be driven out. Payments are to be yearly made by every brother; but from these John Cornewaill is, by common assent, to be free, on account of the trouble he took in founding the Gild.|| Four torches, of forty pounds weight, are to be made ; and also a chest wherein to keep the money and goods of the Gild : which chest is to have two locks and two keys. The Master shall keep the torches and the chest : two bretheren shall keep, each, one of the two keys of the chest. In case of quarrel between any bretheren or sisteren, the matter shall be put to the arbitration of the Master and two others of the Gild : and whoever is found in the wrong, shall make amends. No parson, nor baker, nor wife, shall be admitted into No parson nor the Gild, unless when the husband of such wife is already a into the gild; nor member.* All moneys of the Gild shall be applied as is said in husband is not a these ordinances (including help to needy bretheren), and to no other uses. None shall be wasted in lawsuits or such like,† unless by the express consent of the Master and bretheren.

± CCCIX. 78. Condition, fair. Latin.

§ "Ut inter nos et successores nostros magis et magis caritas habundet, discordia procul pellatur."

|| See before, p. 85, note.

aker shall come any wife whose member.

No money shall be wasted over lawsuits.

(d) GILD OF THE BLESSED VIRGIN MARY (JUXTA FFORUM).

Annual payments shall be made; but the clerk and beadle The clerk and shall not pay while serving their offices. Poor bretheren shall be helped. There shall be a chaplain : but it is to be clearly understood that, if the funds of the Gild fall below ten marks, the finding of a chaplain shall stop; and the goods of the Gild shall be then bestowed in the maintenance of a light and of the poor bretheren. When the Gild gets richer, a chaplain shall be refound. The money and goods of the Gild shall be kept in a There shall be a chest having two locks and two keys; of which keys one shall money and goods be kept by each of two Aldermen of the Gild. But neither the Master, nor the Alderman, nor any other, shall lend, lay out, and no money nor bargain for, put elsewhere, or give away, any of the money or goods of the Gild, unless it is done in accordance with the will of all the bretheren of the Gild.§

beadle shall be excused from the annual payments. There shall be a chaplain when they can afford it ; but help to the poor bretheren omes before this chest to keep roods shall be applied without the consent of all the gild.

* "Nullus capellanus, pistor, aut uxor, in dicta Gilda recipiatur, nisi vir uxoris ante eam in eadem gilda fuerit recentus."

+ "Non in placitis nec in aliis negociis destruatur."

CCCIX. 119. Condition, fair. Latin. The ordinances of this gild were, like those of the Gild of Holy Trinity, declared good and lawful by a decree of the Consistory of Ely, and probably for the same reason. The decree is dated 1st February, 1385. This gild was not, however, like the Gild of Holy Trinity, favoured with the bishop's personal approval, nor with any grant of Indulgences. But the ordinances are highly interesting, and I regret that space forbids me to quote them more fully.

§ "Nec ipsi magister, seu Aldermanni, nec quisquam alius de dicta fraternitate, aliquam pecuniam seu quevis alia bona ad dictam gildam spectantia, aliis accomodent, locent, conducent, alibi deponant, seu alienent, nisi de omnium et singulorum confratrum dicte gilde processerit voluntate."

^{* &}quot;Et sive dives fuerit sive pauper talis confrater defunctus, dicti magister et confratres dicte fraternitatis, vel eorum successores qui pro tempore fuerunt, tenebunt annuatim diem anniversarii sui, sumptibus dicte fraternitatis, imperpetuum."

⁺ See before, pp. 6, 9.

GILD OF ST. CLEMENT, AND TWO OTHERS, CAMBRIDGE.

NOTE .- It is remarkable that, while so many and such very interesting Returns from Cambridge gilds remain among what were sent up in 1389, only three remain from Oxford gilds; and the ordinances contained in the latter, though not without points of interest, are, all of them, much less full and less exact than those of the Cambridge gilds. Yet Oxford had an ancient "Gild Merchant," although the Return sent up from it in 1389 is lost. A curious Return, unhappily in very had condition, is still extant among the others, which gives copies of many very old charters as to Burford, in Oxfordshire. In this Return, the customs of the Gild-Merchant of Oxford are again and again put forth as the great exemplar for Burford, just as those of York are put forth as the exemplar for Beverley.*

Gild Merchant of Oxford.

This contrast between the gilds of Cambridge and Oxford is made the more striking by the fact, that a copy has been sent to me of a MS. of gild ordinances found in the Bodleian Library, and naturally supposed therefore to be the ordinances of an Oxford gild. So soon as I read it. I was satisfied that its true home was nearer East Anglia. This opinion has been wholly confirmed by copies of three sets of gild ordinances which I have since received from Cambridge. One of these is taken from a MS, in the Library of Trinity College : the other two are taken from the Baker MSS. in the University Library. The particulars of the gilds of which these are the ordinances, will be found next following. They put it beyond even the possibility of doubt that the MS. in the Bodleian Library does not contain the ordinances of an Oxford gild, but that, however strange it may seem, it contains those of a Cambridge gild. (See also the Appendix to this volume.)

(e) GILD OF ST. CLEMENT, AND TWO OTHERS.

Old ordinances copied by later gilds.

The fulness and originality of the ordinances of the many gilds in Cambridge, up till the end of the fourteenth century, has been seen in the foregoing pages. Not less striking is the entire change in this respect which took place in the fifteenth century. Nowhere else in all England have I yet found one gild after another copying the ordinances of an older gild. In the fifteenth century this happened in Cambridge; and with such seemingly blind helplessness, that ordinances, professing to be those of distinct gilds, and which had more than forty years' difference between them in the dates of their foundation, are more identical in shape and words, so far as these could be used by separate bodies, than are the different versions of what are avowedly copies of the same Bye-laws of Tettenhall-regis.*

* See before, pp. 151 153.

In the Library of Trinity College, Cambridge, are the ordi- MSS. in Trin. nances of the Gild of St. Clement, made in the year 1431. Among the MS. collections, now in the University Library, in the Bodleian, made by that industrious Cambridge antiquary, Thomas Baker, is a copy of the ordinances of the Gild of Saints Peter and Paul of Cambridge, bearing the date of 1448. In the Bodleian Library at Oxford are the ordinances of the Gild of All Saints, with no place named, but bearing the date of 1473. Among the before-named MS. collections of Thomas Baker, there is a copy of the same ordinances; and, though it is not so stated, either this copy must have been made from the MS. now in the Bodleian, or both were made from the same original; for the same loss of one ordinance is found and noted in each. Copies of all these three sets of ordinances have reached me from the three different libraries wherein all have long rested in peace. The presumption was, that, though all in English, they would be found, as in the case of other gilds, different from each other. On comparing them critically, however, I found that, with only altered names and dates, and a few small details, they are all in the same words. And all must have been taken from the same original, inasmuch as any addition to or alteration from the earliest of them is seen on the face of the later MSS. I now give the ordinances of the oldest of these three gilds.[†] The variations found in the later ordinances are shown, some in the margin and others in foot-notes. ±

* See the last article in Part III. of this volume.

+ From the Gale MSS. (0. 7. 15), Trinity College Library. This must be the original set of the ordinances used by the gild, for the later entries are made in different hands. (See after, p. 281.) It is made up bookwise, as in the instance before, p. 262, and the other examples there named.

1 Mere differences of spelling, not showing any dialectic change, are not noticed, nor are the occasional but obvious errors of the scribe.

For the copy of the ordinances of 1431 I am indebted to the kindness, indeed to the hand, of Mr. Aldis Wright, Librarian of Trinity College, Cambridge. The ordinances of 1473 were found, in consequence of searches made for the purpose of this work, by Mr. Coxe, Librarian of the Bodleian. Mr. Dalton, of Cambridge, has been good enough to make the extract

Col. and University Libraries, Cambridge ; and Dxford.

Each set of ordinances is prefaced by some Latin quotations, and by a prayer for the bretheren and sisteren. The latter is the same in all three. The former are adapted to the patron saint of each gild.]

GILD OF ST. CLEMENT,

Incipiunt hic statuta edita in honore Sci. Clementis, pape et martyris, de communi consensu omnium fratrum eiusdem gilde, Anno dni. Millo. cccco. xxxio. Et quilibet frater, in admissione sua, debet iurare huiusmodi statuta observare.*

Every brother must swear to keep them.

(i.) The chief day of yearly meeting, Statutum primum. De primo die generali et principali, et quomodo omnes fratres tenentur in illo die interesse.

[Blessedfull, in B; blyssydfule, in C.1

shall be held on the Sunday after

Low-Sunday.

In ye worchippe and reuerence of ye blysful¹ trinite, fadir and sone and holy goste, and of ye glorious pope and martyr seynt Clement, And of all ye holy companye yt is in heuene. These ben ye ordynauncis and statutys of ye Gylde of ye saide seynt Clement, which is holden in ye chirche of ye same seynt Clement in Cambrigge, made be ye comoun assent of all ye bretheren of ye forseyd gylde, in ye zere of oure lorde ihesu Millo. cccco. and xxxj. First, we have ordeyned for to have oon general and principal day; ye which + schal be holden euery zere on ye sonday from the Baker MSS. To all these gentlemen my cordial acknowledgments, and those of the Early English Text Society, are due. The fact of the identity of the ordinances is, in itself, a discovery that is highly instructive, and which could not have been made without my having had all the copies thus furnished. The different MSS, are distinguished in the margin and notes of what now follows, by the letters "B," "C (1)," and "C (2)." "B" means the ordinances of 1448; "C(1)" means the Bodleian MS. of the ordinances of 1473, "C(2)" means the Baker MS. copy of the same. When reference is made to "B and C," it means that C (1) and C (2) are both of them like B. I may add, that the fidelity of the copies found in the Baker MSS. is strikingly shown by the comparison of "C(I)" and "C (2)." It may be useful to searchers to know that a list of the many volumes of the Baker MSS., which are partly in the British Museum and partly in the University Library, Cambridge, will be found in the second edition of the "Biographia Britannica" vol. i. pp. 521-525.

* All the headings here printed in italics, are in rubric in the original. Figures, &c., here put in italics, are underlined with red.

+ "Which," "what," and the other like forms, are generally spelled, throughout C (1) and C (2), "qwych" or "quich," "qwhat," "qwho," next aftyr low-sonday. At which day all ye bretheren and yo All the bretheren sustris of this gylde schul come to-gyder vn-to a certeyn place meet, and go to even-song, and, assigned ther-to, as thei schul ben warnyd be ye deen, for to gon next day, to mass. to ye forseyd chirche of seynt Clement on ye satirday vn-to ye euen songe, and on ye sonday to ye messe. And what brothir or sustir yat is within ye town, and is somownede be ye deen, and comyth not on ye satyrday to ye euensonge, he schall payen i. lib. wax to ye amendment of ye lightes. And who so comyth not on ye day¹ to ye messe, in his best clothynge, in ye worchippe [1 Sondaye, in B and C.] of gode and of seynt Clement, he schal payen ij. lib. wax. All shall come in their best clothing. (ii.) There shall, every year, be two days of meeting about the affairs of the gild; Also we have ordeyned, for to have ij. morwespechis in the zere. The first for to ben holden vpon the same sonday beformeseyd, and ye secounde on ye sonday next aftyr ye fest of seynt Michael ye Archangell. And at ech of these ij. morowe spechis, at each of which payments shall be euery brothir and sustir schall payen to ye costage, for his pen-made. svon, ij. denar. And who-so be somende to any of these morwespechis, if he be in towne and comyth not, nor askith no licence of ye aldirman, he schal payen j. lib. wax. And if ye deen faile The dean shall be in hys somownyng, he schal payen j. denar. for euery brothir and sustir yat is not somouned. And who-so comyth aftir prime Late comers shall be smette, he schal payne ij. denar. And ye oure prime is clepyd "Prime" is two the seconde oure aftyr noone, alsowel in somertyme as in wynter.

Secundum statutum. De le morowspech, et de pena non veniencium.*

fined for every brother not summoned. be fined. o'clock P.M.

"qwhan," "qwhoso," "qwharwyth," &c. These examples will be enough, without noting every word as it comes. In B, these words are spelled as in the oldest, which is also the modern, form.

* The whole of this ordinance is wauting in both C(1) and C(2), though the place of it is noted, and the first words of the heading are given. In each case, however, as well as in B, it is written "Statutum secundum." instead of "Secundum statutum."

(iii) The manner of choosing the alderman, masters, clerk, and dean.	Statutum tercium. De eleccione Aldermanni et aliorum offici- ariorum. Et de pena huiusmodi officia refutancium.
[1 We have, C (1) and C (2).]	Also it is ¹ ordeyned, that on oure generall and principall day, an Eleccioun on this maner schal ben made. First, y ^e Aldirman schal clepene vpe ij. men be name. And the compenye* schalle clepen vpe othir ij. men. And these iiij. men schul chesen to [2 Schall be, in B and C.] [3 Befor, in B and C.] [4 Wych, in C (1) and C (2).] [5 Thame thynke, in C (1) and C (2).] [5 Thame thynke, in C (1) and C (2).] [6 Thar, in C (1) and C (2).] 	hem othir ij. men. And thanne these vj. men schul ben ² chargid, be the othe yat yei haue made to the Gylde be- forne ³ tym ² , yat yei schul gon and chesen an Aldirman, ij. Maystirs, a clerk, and a Deen, which ⁴ hem thynkith, ⁶ be heyr ⁶ gud conscience, that ben most able for to gouerne y ^e companye in y ^e 3ere folowyng, to the worchippe of gode and of the holy martir seynt Clement, and to the most profyte and avayle of the Officers chosen,	companye. And who-so be chosen in Office of aldirman, and for-

Officers chosen. and not serving. shall be fined.

[7 So in all the MSS.j

he be clene oute of the dette of the forsayde gylde, and also [8 Added in B sworne therto.⁸] and C.1

Statutum quartum. De recepcione cattallorum, et de securitate (iv.) Suret es shall be given for the goods of the gild. eorum per obligacionem facienda.

[⁹ Tham, in C (1) and C (2), and so throughout.] [¹⁰ Syngyll, in C (1) and C (2).] [¹¹ Added in B and C.]

Also it is ordeyned, that whan the Maystirs schal receyuen the catelle of the gylde in-to heir handys, ech of hem⁹ schal fynde ij. sufficient plegges, bowndyn wt hem, in a symple¹⁰ obligacion, for to make a trewe delyueraunce [ageyne¹¹] of swiche goodys as thei sakith his office, he schal payen, to the encrese of the Gylde, iij.s.

and iiij.d.; Euery maystir, ij.s.; and euery pety mayster, xx.d.; †

The Clerke, xii.d.: And the Deen, xij.d. And ther schal no man be chosen into noone of these forsayde officers⁷ vn-to the tyme

* In C (1) this word has been erased, and the words "Masters of the Gyld" inserted in its place by a later hand. The same is found in Baker's transcript C (2).

+ The "pety master" is not named in either B or C. The words are indeed an after-insertion in the Trinity College MS. itself.

[‡] Mr. Baker's transcript, C (2), has left out the dean.

AND TWO OTHERS, CAMBRIDGE.

receyue,* at the next Generall day followynge, beforne the alderman and all the bretheren and yo sustres of the forsayd gylde.

And also the alderman schal haue, at every generall day, to Allowances of ale, &c., to the alderhis drynk and for his geestys, j. Galone of ale, and every Maystir man and other a potell, and the clerk a potell, an[d] ve deen a quart of ale. Also the clerk schal have for his labour, every zere, xx. denar. And the deen for his labour, every zere, xx. denar.+

Statutum quintum. De introitu et admissione fratrum, et de (v.) New comers into the gild, and iuramento eorum ibidem faciendo. their oath.

Also it is ordeyned, y^t whan every brothir and sustir schal entre in-to this gylde, he schal, at the first begynnyng, be sworne vn-to these statutes and ordynaunces, hem to maynten and susteyne vn-to his power and kunnyng. And aftyr, he schal fynde ij. sufficient plegges, for to payen to the sustynaunce and to the fortheraunce of the forsayde gylde, xl. denar., and to ve clerk, j. denar., and to ye deen, j. denar. And this schal be payed be ye next Generall day folowyng at ye fairest; Or ellys ye same day, if he wyll of his howne gud wylle, to the more avayle and fortheraunce of the gylde and to his more meede, be the grace of oure lorde 1 gode. [Amen 2 . 1]

[1 Oure lorde, not in either B or C.] ² Added in B and C.]

Statutum sextum. De xxx^{ta} missis pro fratribus³ defunctis.⁴ (vi.) Services for the dead Et⁵ de pena non offerencium pro eis in principali missa et 13 Et sororibus, added in C (1) non veniencium ad exequias. and C (2)] [4 Celebrandis,

Also when any brothir or sustir of this companye is passid added in B and C.] oute of yis world, the maystirs of the same gyld schal do syng for [5 Etiam, added in B and C.] his sowle⁶ xxx. messys, of the costys of the gylde, and that wythine [6 For his sowle, not in C (1) nor x. days aftyr thei haue knowlege of his deeth. And also als C (2).]

* "With the encrese comyng therof," is inserted here (though with varying spellings) in B and C.

+ In B, the clerk has xx.d and the dean xvjd. In C, the clerk has xvj.d. and the dean viij.d.

‡ In the Bodleian MS. C (1) the following lines are inserted, in a later hand :--- "And ye wyffe of an broder of ye gilde so comynge on, shall pay a j. h. of wex." This is not copied in the Baker MS. C (2).

277

sone as the alderman hath knowyng ther-of, he schal [do¹]

[¹Added in B and C.] [2 For, not in C (1) or C (2).]

[⁴ Come, in B; cum, in C.]

[⁵ j denar, in B;

1.d., at end of the sentence, in C (1) and C (2.)]

[6 Paryshe precst,

[⁷ A certeyn, in B and C.]

Payments to the

in B.]

priests.

chargen the deen for² to gon warne all the bretheren and sustris of thys gylde, for to been redye at a certeyn oure assigned, and [³ Goo and go in B to come to the place wher the deede body is, for to gon³ ther-and C.] with to ye chirche honestly and with the lyghtys* of this compeny, and for to offren for ye sowl, at the messe don therfore, a farthyng. And who-so be withyn the towne, and hath knowyng therof and comvth⁴ not, schal payen, at the next morowespeche folowyng, j.li. wax⁵ be-cause of his absence. Also it is ordeyned, be all oure comoun assent, that every zere the vicarye⁶ of the forsayde chirche of seynt Clement schal haue iiij.s. and iiij.d. for his certeyntee⁷ of messes,[†] for to preyen for all the companye, bothe for hem that ben lyuynge, and also for hem yt ben deede, if he be a brothir of this forseyd gylde.

(vii) Help to bretheren and sisteren fallen into old age or poverty.

[8Also, in B and C.]

Statutum septimum. De ffratribus ad paupertatem deuenientibus; et quomodo succurratur eisdem de bonis eiusdem gilde.

Also it is ordeyned, be all the comon assent, that if any brothir or sustir of this forseyd companye falle in to olde age or in-to grete pouerte, nor have not wherwith to be foundene nor to help hymselfe, he schal haue, euery woke, iiij. denar. of the goodys of the gylde, also-longe as the catell thereof is worthe xl.s. or more. And⁸ if it so be-falle yat ther ben moo swich pouer men

* In the Bodleian MS. C (1), there are here written in the margin, in a later hand, the following words :-- "yat ys, iiij. Torchys. Here ylepe to the laste leffe, and than cum heder agen." The ordinance on the "laste leffe" which is thus to be "vleped to," will be found after, p. 281. Baker copied the ordinance, but not this marginal note.

have in mynde, booth the qwyke and the dede, every fryday [sonday, in C] in the zere, and also for to prey every Sonday, at the bedys tyme, for all the compeny, both for hem [thame in C (1), theme in C (2)] that ben lyvyng and also for hem that ben passyd oute of this worlde." In B there is also added, in a later hand (says Mr. Baker), a list of names of eleven persons who are to be specially prayed for.

than oon, than it is ordeynede, be the comon assent, that the forsayd iiij.d. schal ben departyde euery woke a monge hem all.

AND TWO OTHERS, CAMBRIDGE.

Statutum octauum. De silencio et obediencia fratrum in presencia aldermanni; et de pena obiurgancium cum¹ aldermanno vel cum alijs officiarijs eiusdem gilde.

(viii.) Obedience to the alderman, and peace at all meetings of the gild. [1 Eo, added in B

Also it is ordeyned, that at every moreowe-speche, and $[also^2]$ at $\begin{bmatrix} 2 & Added & in B \\ and & C. \end{bmatrix}$ all [oure³] comynges to-gyder, euery man to ben obedient vnto [⁸ Added in B and C.] the alderman in alle leefull comaundementis, and that every man [and woman⁴] holde silence and make no grett noyse; and what [⁴ Added in B and C ; and "silence" is spelled "cylence" man wile not ben in pees at the byddyng of the Aldirman, [then⁵] the deen schal delyueren hym the zerde; and [if⁶] he wile not $\frac{in C}{C} C(2)$ and recevuen it, he schal payne ij. li. wax. And who so despyse his⁷ [⁵ Added in B and C.] Alderman in tyme of sittyng for alderman, or zeue hym any [6 Added in B and C.1 reprouable wordys, in disturblyng and noyaunce of the compenye, [7 The, in B and C.1 he schal payne for his trespas $ij. li. wax.^*$ And if he do it ageyn any of the maystyrs, he schal payne j. li. wax. And a-geyn the clerke, half a pound wax. And [also⁸] a-geyn the deen, half a [⁸ Added in B and C; and pound wax. omitted in C (1) and C (2).]

Statutum nonum. De fratribus litigantibus et placitantibus cum fratribus⁹ suis, absque licencia aldermanni: et de pena taliter 10 litigancium.

(ix.) None shall go to law, until the quarrel has been laid before the alderman. [9 Confratribus, in B and C.] ^{[10} Similiter in C (1) and C (2).] ¹¹ Added in B

Also' if any man be at heuvnesse with any of his brethervne for any maner $\lceil of^{11} \rceil$ trespas, he schal not pursewen him in no maner of courte : but he schal come firste to the alderman, and and C.] schewen to hym his greuance. And than the alderman schal sende aftyr that odyr man, and knowen his offence. And than

* The foregoing sentence reads thus in both B and C, with no other difference than the transposition, in C, of the second and third clauses of the sentence as here given from B :-- "And who[so, C] despyse the Alderman, in tyme that he syttis for Alderman, or els gyf hym ony reproveable wordys, in disturbelling and noyaunce of the company, he schall pay for his trespas, to ye lighthys of the gylde befor-seyd, ij.li. wax."

+ A line comes here, in B and C, as follows :--- "Also [Fyrste, in C] it is ordevned be alle the compeny, that."

GILD OF ST. CLEMENT,

he schal make eyther of hem for to chesen a brothir of the forsavde companye, or ellys ij. bretheren, for to acorde hem and sett hem at rest and pees. And if these men so chosen, with [the¹] [1 Added in B and C.] good mediacion of the alderman, mowe not brynge hem at acorde and at reste, thane may the alderman zeuen hem licence for to gone to the comown lawe [yf thei wyll.²] And who-so goth to [2 Added in B and C.] the comown lawe for any playnt or trespas, vn-to the tyme he hath ben at the alderman and don as it is sayde befor, he schal payen [to the encres of the gylde³] xl. d., withoute any grace.

[3 Added in B and

(x.) On feast days, none shall stay after the alderman has gone. [4 The last three words are omitted in B and C.]

Statutum decimum. De fratribus ut non remaneant in aula, uel in domo officij, post recessum aldermanni; et de pena faciencium contra istud statutum⁴.

Also it is ordeyned, be all the comowne assent, that whane any comown drynkyng is made a-mong vs, ther schal no man abiden in the halle, nor in no⁵ hows of offyce, no lenger than the alderman aryseth [up⁶], but if it be men of office fore the tyme; in peyne of ij. lib. wax. And what man,⁷ brothir or sustyr, but if he be any officere, entrith in to the Chambyr ther the ale is in, wythowt lycence of the officers that occupye therin, he schal payen j. lib. wax.

[⁵ None, in B.] [6 Added in B and C.] [7 Man, not in B or C.]

(xi.) None shall bewray the affairs of the gild. [8 Confratres, in B and C.] [9 Taliter, in B and C.] [10 Posita, in C (1) and C (2).] 11 That, not in C (1) or C (2).] [¹² Hyndrid, or, not in B or C.] [13 Added in B and C.]

Statutum vndecimum. De ffratribus statuentibus ut fratres⁸ non reuelent extraneis consilium fraternitatis et ordinacionis, et de pena sic⁹ reuelancium imposita¹⁰.

Also it is ordeyned, y^t what brothir or sustir that¹¹ bewreyeth the counsel of this forsayde gylde, or of these ordynaunce, to any othir straunge man or woman, so that the companye be sclaundride or hyndrid, or 12 haue any othir wyllanye ther-by, he schal payne [then¹³], to the ffortheraunce of the forsayde gylde, xl. d., Or ellys he schal lesen the fraternyte for euyr-more.*

* In the margin of this Statute is written, in a later hand, in C (1):-"Commissum discrecioni Aldermannorum et Magistrorum gilde."

AND TWO OTHERS, CAMBRIDGE,

(xii.) The year-day of good-doers to the gild shall be kept.

Also we have ordeyned, be all oure comone assent, and be oure othe made, for to kepe the zereday of Jon lyster of Cambryge zerely, on mydelenton sonday, in sent Clementys chirche, also longe as the gylde endurys, be-cause he gafe vs iiij. Marc. in the begynnyng and to the fortheraunce of our gylde

And also the vj. men that chesen the alderman and the Officers, Two gild brothers shall have charge schul¹ chesen othir ij. sufficient men, for to kepen the same iiij. of the gift. [1 Thei, in B.] Marc., to bring it in [with the encrese 2] zerely vndyr the same (2 Stands in B ; forme that the maystyrs doo. And the same ij. men schal mak but erased, in Trin, Coll MS.] ordynaunce for the zereday, and for the costys yerof, and make a trwe rekenyng at the next generall day, be the othe that thei haue made to the gylde.³

[3 A Latin prayer follows in Trin. Coll. MS. Not so in B.]

[Several other ordinances, written by later hands, follow in the Trinity College MS. ; all of which are however the same as the last above, save that they are made in favour of those who, in later times, gave their gifts "to the worchyp and fortherauns of our gylde," and are not followed by the Latin prayer. In B., the ordinance is followed by a list of names, with the days on which obits are to be said for each. C(1) and C(2) have an additional and later ordinance, † written in another hand. This is as follows :---]

Thys statute is made by the comyne assent of all the bretherne and sisterne of alhallowe yelde, the yere of oure lorde M¹.ccccc⁰. IIIJ⁰. These are the names of them y^t made this statute by all be comyn assent :-- Fyrst begynnyng, Johan Manfelde, Richart Alwey, Wylliam Askam, Thomas Kelsey, Johan Elys, and Wylliam Wyllys. Thes forsaid men wyll bat euery brober schall haue at his departyng v. prestis;⁴ and every prest to have iiij. d. of the cost of be gylde: and the whiche prestis to cum to the place

[In the margin of C (1), but not copied in C (2 are the following entries written in another band :—] " And the Mastere of the same gylde and alle se yat euery broder schal haue v. prystes and iiii forchis. to bryng hem to the chirche." 4 sic.)

* This Statute is found in B, with necessary variances of name, gift, date of year-day, &c.; but it is not found in C (1) or C (2). + See the note on p. 278.

and systere to offyre ffor the sowle at the messe

a fardynge, or els to say the thurde parte of oure lady Savtere."

282

GILD OF ST. CLEMENT, ETC., CAMBRIDGE.

wher the said bodi ys, and to bryng him to chirche, and to syng dirige and masse for his soule. And if so be pat be said broker be abyll to kepe a dirige and a masse of hys owne proper cost, we wyll bat thys dirige and masse be deferryd tyll be next day after, and to be sayd in the same chirche wher be body is byryed. Also we wyll, bat who-so-euer be person, vycary, or parasche prest, for to be oone of the v. prestys; and be clerke and be sextene to haue of be same chirche, iiij. d. If so be ther be no sexten, the clerke to have iiij. d. And vj. d. for to be gyvyne in brede to pore peple of the same parasche : if ther be any pore brothyr or suster, to have part theroff. Also we wyll, bat every syster schall haue at hyr departyng too prestys; and they to haue viij.d. of be cost of be yelde; and the said prestys for to cum to be place of the dede body, and to brynge hyr to chyrche, and to syng or say Dyryge for hyr soule.

XV.

BRISTOL.

(a) GILD OF THE FULLERS.*

Tohn Barstaple, Mayor of the town of Bristol, and the Com- The Masters of the monalty of the same town, to all to whom these presents lay some new shall come, Greeting in the Lord. Know ye, that We, with the the mayor, &c., of assent of the whole Council of the aforesaid town, have seen certain ordinances, made in the present year, ordained by the Masters and good men of the craft of fullers of the same town, ordinances before the city.

* Mr. Samuel Lucas, writing of Bristol in 1862, found himself obliged to say that "the present officers of the corporation there, conceive it to be their duty to withhold the corporate records from the scrutiny of historical students." (Secularia, p. 102.) What Mr. Lucas thus found in 1862, I have found in 1868. But I wish to be just in fixing the blame. It is not the Officers, but the Corporation itself, that must be held up to reprobation. The officers would not be narrow-minded if they did not know the narrow-mindedness of those whom they serve. Happily, Bristol stands alone in this respect. From English cities of oldest renown-Winchester, Worcester, Exeter, Coventry-I have met with the most courteous, cordial, and generous help, in my endeavour-with a labour of love not light-to put forth, in this volume, a picture of the spirit of selfhelp that lived in our middle-age England. And the librarians of Oxford and Cambridge have, with equal courtesy, opened their stores, as well as private manorial owners, and the living representatives of ancient feoffees. Nothing is more pleasant than the acknowledgment of such courtes. It was reserved for Bristol, alone, among the Bodies and Persons to whom I have applied, to fill in the artistic touch which contrast gives. The Corporation of Bristol has yet to learn that historical documents are the inheritance of the nation, and are not to be hugged as the private possession of a few persons who, happening to be in power, take the Dog in the Manger as their exemplar of conduct. In this case, the conduct of Bristol becomes supremely ridiculous, because it is as practically futile as it is historically criminal. So soon as this work was

To the honourable and discreet sirs, the Mayor, sheriff, and all the other honourable burgesses of the Common Council of the same town, humbly pray the Masters of the craft of Fullers of the said town: Whereas the said craft has, of old time, had divers ordinances enrolled before you of record in the Gihald of and sealed with the seal of the mayoralty of the aforesaid town, as appears by their petition hereafter following, and which is enrolled on the red paper of the Court of Gihald¹, as a record for ever, in these words :---

The craft has, of old time, had ordinances en. rolled on the city records, in order to check frauds and bad work.

1 (sic.)

They now ask the confirmation of old and unrepealed ordinances authority to appoint four officers,

Bristol, in order to put out and do away with all kinds of bad work and deceits which divers people, not knowing the craft, from time to time do, as well in fulling cloths as in "pleityng" and "rekkyng," and many other defects in the said cloths; by which defects the town and craft are fallen into bad repute in many places where the said cloths are put to sale, to the great reproach and hindrance of the said craft. Wherefore, may it please your very wise discretions and honourable wisdom, to grant to the said suppliants that all their good ordinances of old time entered of record, and not repealed, be firmly held and kept and duly put in execution ; and that four good men of the said craft be chosen by them every year, and sworn before the Mayor loyally to present all manner of defects which hereafter shall be found touching the said craft, with power, twice a week, with large powers; to oversee such defects, and likewise to keep watch over the servants and workmen of the same craft, within the franchise of Bristol, so that the said servants and workmen should not take more wages than of old time is accustomed and ordained. And > announced, Mr. Charles Innes Pocock, a gentleman personally unknown to me, was good enough to offer to place at my disposal a folio volume of MS. extracts from the old records of Bristol. I gladly accepted his offer, and simply wished to collate what I found in this volume with the originals Every obstruction has been thrown in my way. The volume thus sent to me by Mr. Pocock is, however, written in so unusually clear a hand that the reader, indebted as he is to Mr. Pocock's courtesy, will lose nothing but the possible mistake of a letter here and there, the exactness of which I am unable to test through the narrow-mindedness of the Corporation of Bristol, which will, when too late, be repented of.

besides, discreet sirs, may it please you to grant to the said and the confirmasuppliants the new additions and points below-written, to the ordinances. profit and amendment of the said craft, and to the honour of the said town.

First, it is ordained and agreed that, each year, four men of The new ordithe craft shall be chosen as Masters, to search every house of the (1) Four searchers said craft, twice a-week, and oversee all defects in the said cloths, if any such there be; and to present them before you at the court ; so that whosoever does such bad work shall pay for the same the full price of the cloth : one half to go to the town, and the other half to the craft, without any pardon or release : and this, over and above all reasonable amends made to the buyer of the cloths.

tion of some new

nances are .-shall be chosen.

egulated

Also, the Masters of the craft shall not give more to the men (2) Wages shall be of the said craft than fourpence a-day, beginning from the first Monday in Lent till the feast of St. Michael then next ensuing; and, from the said feast of St. Michael till the same Monday in Lent, threepence a-day. And if any of the masters pays more to the workmen than is above ordained, he shall be fined, each time, ij.s.; that is to say, xij.d. to the commonalty, and xij.d. to the craft. And if the men take more from the masters, they shall pay, each time, xij.d.; that is to say, vj.d. to the commonalty, and vj.d. to the craft. And if the men are rebels or contrarious, and will not work, then the four masters shall have power to take them before the Mayor and Court of Gihald of the town, to be there dealt with according to law and reason. And moreover, the said servants shall work and rest in their craft, as well by night as by day, all the year, as has of old time been accustomed.

Also, whereas certain merchants of Bristol have been used (3) Clothes fulled aforetime to have some of their cloths fulled in divers parts of the shall not be country round about; which merchants, after the said cloths are thus fulled, seeing well that they cannot be set to sale by reason of their defects, without great amendment and work by the Fullers of Bristol; it is ordained and agreed that henceforth no man of the craft shall full or amend any manner of cloth which utside the town touched up by Bristol fullers has been thus fulled out of the town, under penalty of vj.s. viij.d.; that is to say, xl.d. to the commonalty, and xl.d. to the craft. Saving always that the masters will always be ready to amend cloths which shall be bought between merchant and merchant.

BRISTOL.

(4) Penalty on the searchers, if they fail in their duties

Also, it is ordained and agreed that, if the said four Masters do not well and lovally fulfil their office and duty as before said, they shall pay six shillings and eight pence sterling, to be paid to the bailiffs of the town of Bristol, to the use and profit of the commonalty of the said town, without any pardon or gainsaying.

Saving of the power to make further ordinances.

Which ordinances we affirm, ratify, and confirm, for ever; saving always to us, the Mayor and the Council of the town, that if any ordinance, point, or addition, touching the said craft, may be profitable, as well to the town as to the craft, then, by the advise of us and the masters of the said craft, amendment thereof shall be made, these ordinances notwithstanding. In witness whereof, at the special prayer of the said Masters, to guard and maintain their ordinances aforesaid, we have set to these presents the seal of the Mayoralty of the town of Bristol. Done in the Gihald of Bristol, the 14th day of February, in the 7th year of the reign of King Henry, the fourth since the Conquest.

Dated the 14th February, 1406.

The Mayor, &c., approve the ordi nances, and put thereto the Com mon Seal of the City, in September, 1403.

And we, approving these ordinances, do hereby, for us and our successors, as much as in us lies, confirm them. In witness whereof, at the special request of the said masters and good men of the craft aforesaid, we have hereto put our common seal. Given in the Gihald of Bristol. on the Monday next after the feast of the Nativity of the Blessed Virgin Mary, in the seventh year of the reign of King Henry, the fourth after the Conquest.*

* The first and last paragraphs of the original are in Latin, while the Petition of the Fullers, and their ordinances, are in old Norman French. The whole is valuable, as showing much the same sort of relations to have existed in Bristol, between the Gilds and the Body Corporate, as will presently be seen to have existed in Exeter. Further illustrations of the relations between the Bristol Gilds and the Body Corporate, will be found in "The Office of the Mayor of Bristol," printed in Part III. of this

(b) GILD OF THE KALENDERS.

For the consideration of the rites and liberties of the Clergy and lay-Kalenders, of the fraternitie of the church of All Saincts in this Gild; their Bristow, who were a brotherhood consisting of clergy and laymen, and kept the ancient recordes and mynaments, not onely of the towne, but also of other societies in other remote places of the kingdome. In consideration whereof, there was Inquiry ordered a commission sent from Walter, bishop of Worcester, unto Robert Harell, rector of Dirham and Deane of Bristow, dated the 18th day of the kalends of June, anno 1318, to warne all persons that had any charters, writings, or privilidges, or mynuments, concerning the liberties or privilidges of the church of All Saincts and fraternities of the Kalenders, to bring them in, and also to enquire the truth of the same, in respect that most of the charters, writings, and recordes were lost and many records embezeled away, by reason of fire that happened in the place or burnt. or library that was in the said church of All Sainctes. To the execution of which commission were called and cyted the Abbott By whom the and Covent of St. Augustine of Bristow, and divers burgisses in the name of the Mayor and Cominaltie of the same towne, and also all Rectors and Vickers of the same deanery, who appeared some in person and others by their procurators. These certified the said bishop that, in times past, the said fraternitie was called Facts proved efore them. the Guild or brotherhood of the cominaltie, cleargy, and people of Bristow, and that the place of the congregation of the brethren Antiquity of the and sisters of the same was used in the church of the Holy Trinitie of Bristow, in the time of Aylworde Meane and Bristericke his sonne, who were Lordes of Bristow before the last conquest of England. The beginning of which fraternitie did Begun before the then exceed the memory of man; and did continue successively, after the conquest, the place of meeting of the said fraternitie, men helonged to duty being, to keep old records of Bristol and elsewhere.

by the Bishop of Worcester A.D. 1318, having been lost

nquiry was made.

time of William I.

volume. These ordinances of the Fullers, as well as the account of the Kalenders and the ordinances of the Ringers which follow, are printed from Mr. Pocock's MS. volume. See before, p. 283, note.

during the time of William the Conqueror, William Rufus, and King Henry the first, and also of Robert Fitzhaymon, Consull of Gloucester and Lorde of Bristowe, and subsequently in the time of King Steeven, who tooke this towne by warre from Robert earle of Gloucester, that was founder of the priory of St. James. And after decease of the said Steeven, and reigne of King Henry the second, who was sonne of Maud the empresse and daughter to King Henry the first, one Robert Fitzharding, a burgis of Bristow, by consent of the said Henry the second and Robert earle of Gloucester, and others that were interessed therein, the said Guild or brotherhood, from the said church of Holy Trinitie unto the church of All Sainctes did translate and bring; and did found a schoole for Jewes and other strangers, to be brought up and instructed in Christianitie under the said fraternitie, and protection of the Mayor of Bristow and monastery of St. Augustine in Bristoll for the time being; which house or schoole is now called the Checker Hall in Wine Street.

The gild was then set to keep a school for Jews

In the time of church.

King Henry II. the gild removed from Holy Trinity to All-Saints

The Tolsey court built A.D. 1549.

The library of the Kalenders was burned in the roodloft of All-

Saints church.

Note here, that the place of Justice called the Tolsey of Bristoll and counsaile house of the same, was builded in the third yeare of king Edward VI., and in the years of our Lord 1549; which was many yeares after all these matters above written were mentioned. And the place wherein the said kalenders and library were burned, is the roode loft or chamber next unto the streat, being on the north side of All Sainctes church, over the pictured tombe of queene Elizabeth.

(c) GILD OF THE RINGERS.

These articles must be kept by all the ringers

What men shall belong to the mld

It is agreed and determined, that every one that is or shall be of the Company or Society of Saint Stephen's Ringers, shall keep all Articles and Decrees that are or shall be specified in this Ordinary concerning the good government and peaceable society of the said Company; and that none shall be of the said Society but those that shall be of honest, peaceable, and good conversation, and such that shall be at all time and times ready to defend whatsoever shall be alledged against the said Company, as well in regard of any challenge as of any other wrong or injury that shall be offered and done by any one, of what estate or condition soever he be; so that we may not only stop the mouths of those that would or shall exasperate themselves against us, but also gain credit and reputation by our Musical exercise ; that others May the sound of of our rich neighbours, hearing these loud Cymbals with their open the pursestrings of the ears, may, by the sweet harmony thereof, be enlarged in their hearers. hearts to pull one string to make it more sweet. And for these and other like causes, We have procured this Ordinary, and do confine and oblige ourselves to these articles following :----

I. Imprimis. For the choosing of every Master, you shall Choice of a Master. put three honest men into the Election ; and he that hath most voices to pass on his side, shall be Master of the Company of Ringers for the year ensuing.

2. Item. For the choosing of Wardens, you shall put four Choice of Waidens honest men into the Election ; and that those two of the four that have most voices shall be Wardens of the said Company for the year ensuing.

3. Item. You shall have four quarter days every year : (that Four days of meeting in every is to say), the 1st, Saint Stephen the Martyr; the 2nd, the year. Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary; the 3rd, Saint John the Baptist; and the 4th, Saint Michael the Archangel.

4. Item. Upon every one of the said quarter days, every one Quarterage shall that is a Freeman of the said Company shall pay to the Master of those days. for the time being, for his quarteridge, one penny. And if he doth or shall deny or neglect to pay the same, he shall pay, for such his offence, three pence : one penny thereof to the Sexton, and the other two pence to the Company.

render an account paid on each

5. Item. Every Master for the time being shall give up The Master shall his account upon the seventeenth day of November, of all quar- once a year. teridges and fines as he shall receive in his year. And if he shall deny or neglect, he shall pay, for his offence, the sum of twenty shillings to the Company, of his own proper money.

6. Item. Every Master shall be chosen on Michaelmas day, The Master shall between five and eight of the clock in the morning. If the Michaelmas day, Master shall neglect to send the Wardens to warn the Company,

19

Incomers shall give a breakfast, or pay a fine.

Penalty for neglect to issue summons.

290 offence the sum of six shillings to the Company. 7. Item. There shall be none made free of the said Company, so that by that means the day be deferred, he shall pay for his

GILD OF THE RINGERS,

unless he give the Company a breakfast, or pay the sum of three shillings and four pence in money.

Penalty on those who, being warned, do not come.

Penalty on the Master, if he fails to warn the rest.

8. Item. If the Master for the time being shall send to the Wardens to warn the Company, and if they neglect the same, they shall pay for their offence four pence a piece; one penny thereof to the Sexton, and the other three pence to the Company.

o. Item. If the Master for the time being shall neglect or forget to warn the Company, once within every fourteen days, for to ring a bisett sett peale, he shall pay for his offence one shilling, to be divided among the Company.

10. Item. If the Master for the time being shall send to the Sexton concerning a peale that shall be rung, either at night or Penalty on the Sexton for neglect, on notice given of ringing a peal.

in the morning, or at any other time that the Master shall please to ring, if he shall deny or neglect to come at the very hour that the Master doth appoint him, he shall pay for his offence two pence, to be divided among the Company. 11. Item. Every one that is made free of the said Company,

Fees to the Sexton.

penalty.

shall pay to the Sexton four pence for his fee. 12. Item. If any one of the said Company, after the time Whoever swears, or makes disturb that he shall come into the Church to ring, shall curse or swear, ance, shall pay a or make any noise or disturbance, either in scoffing or unseemly jesting, that the party so offending shall pay for his offence three pence, to be divided as aforesaid.

Whoever tries to ring out of place, shall pay a penalty.

13. Item. If any one of the said Company, after the time that he shall come into the Church to ring, shall be so saucy as to take the rope to ring, before the Master for the time being and the eldest of the said Company who have been Masters shall be settled where they please to ring, the party so offending shall pay, for such his offence, two pence; one penny thereof to the Sexton, and the other penny to the Company.

Blundering ringers shall pay a penalty.

14. Item. If any one of the said Company shall miss to strike his Bell at the second sway, in the rising of a peale, he shall, for his offence, pay one penny to the Company.

15. Item. If any of the said Company shall speak, or make There must be no any manner of noise, when the Bells do ring, so that the ringers while the bells are ringing. or any of them by that means may make a fault, the party so offending shall pay for his offence three pence, to be divided among the Company.

16. Item. If any of the said Company shall take a rope out None shall take the rope out of of his fellow's hand, when the Bells [are] doing well, and do make another's hand. a fault, to fly off or come too near, he shall pay for his offence one penny to the Company.

17. Item. If any of the said Company do or shall, after they Quarrelsome nembers shall are come together, quarrel or misuse any of the said Company, pay a penalty. before they do depart the party so offending shall pay for his offence six pence, to the use of the said Company.

18. Item. It is agreed that every one that shall be chosen The Master and others shall pay Master of the said Company, shall spend, of his own proper for a breakfast. money, the sum of two shillings towards a breakfast; and the rest of the Company to pay the rest of the reckoning.

19. Item. It is agreed that the persons that shall be chosen Each Warden shall give the Master a Wardens shall give unto the Master for the time being a pint put of wine. of Wine a piece.

20. Item. If any one of the said Company shall be chosen Master, and he shall refuse the same, contrary to our Ordinary, and will not he shall pay unto the Company three shillings and four pence.

Whoever is chosen Master, serve, shall pay a penalty;

21. Item. If any one of the said Company shall be chosen a and so with the Wardens. Warden, and shall refuse the same, he shall pay unto the Company one shilling and six pence.

Every one must 22. Item. If any one of the said Company shall be so rude kneel and pray. as to run into the Belfry before he do kneel down and pray, as before going into the belfry. every christian ought to do, he shall pay, for the first offence, six pence, and for the second he shall be cast out of the Company.

23. Item. If any of the said Company shall deny to pay any fine or fines that shall be imposed on him by the Master or Company, and shall peremptorily stand and contend in the same, he shall, for his offence, pay the sum of two shillings, or else be utterly excluded for ever, without bail or mainprize.

Whoever does not pay fines due. shall pay apenalty, or be expelled.

A peal shall be rung every year, in memory of a gooddoer to the gild.

24. Item. It is agreed that, yearly, there shall be a peale rung, upon the eighth day of October, in remembrance of Mr. William Eyton, deceased; who gave a legacy of four pounds unto the said Company. And if any shall refuse to assist to ring the same peale, warning being given by the Master, he shall pay four pence. And if the Master and Wardens for the time being shall fail to give warning, they shall, for their neglect, pay one shilling a piece to the said Company.*

GILD OF THE RINGERS,

The same for another gooddoer. 25. Item. It is agreed that, yearly, there shall be a peale rung, upon the three and twentieth day of November, in remembrance of Mr. George Witherly, deceased ; who gave a legacy of five pounds unto the said Company. And if any one shall refuse to assist in ringing the same peale, warning being given by the Master for the time being, he shall pay four pence. And if the Master and Wardens for the time being shall neglect to give such warning, they shall, for such their neglect, forfeit and pay one shilling a piece to the said Company.

The same for another gooddoer.

The same for another gooddoer.

The same for another gooddoer. 26. Item. It is agreed that, yearly, there shall be a peale rung, upon the four and twentieth day of October, in remembrance of Mr. William Nicholls, deceased (being the day of his death); who gave a legacy of five pounds unto the said Company. And if any shall refuse to assist in ringing the same peale, warning being given by the said Master for the time being, he shall pay four pence. And if the Master and Wardens for the time being shall neglect to give such warning, they shall, for such their neglect, forfeit and pay one shilling a piece to the said Company.

27. And likewise for Mr. Isaac Elton, deceased, who left five pounds, on the twenty second day of November, under the like penalty.

28. And likewise for Mr. Samuel Wyatt, deceased, who left five pounds, on the eighth day of June, under the like penalty. BRISTOL.

29. And likewise for Mr. George Escott, who has given five The same for pounds, on the twenty fifth day of April, yearly, under the like doer.

30. And likewise for Mr. John Maddick, who has given four The same for another good. pounds, on the twenty fifth day of February, yearly, under the doer. like penalty.

Note.-The true date of these Ordinances cannot be known. In Mr. Pocock's MS. volume, a number of dates are given, as those of copies made one after the other, and through which this copy has come lineally down. The earliest of the copies thus named is of the year 1620. The internal evidence carries the true date of the original ordinances to a much earlier time, though each copy has, of course, adapted the spelling to its own time. These ordinances bear every characteristic of those of gilds that can be identified as flourishing in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries. Even the amount of the fines, as well as other internal marks, carry back the date to the same time. In the Bristol Mirror of 7th December, 1822, there appeared an account of a meeting of this gild, with the addition of what professed to be some of the ordinances. But the editor must have been made the victim of a hoax. What were thus printed have some likeness to some of those now printed; but they are very incomplete and inaccurate, and are, moreover, disfigured by a fantastic spelling which the writer no doubt thought gave them an air of antiquity, but which, in fact, at once stamps them as spurious. Probably some member of the gild who had seen the original ordinances, quoted those fragments of them from memory, and dressed them up in this fashion under the much mistaken notion that an indefinite multiplying of consonants and misplacing of vowels would make them pass for "early English."

Mr. Pocock's MS. gives many further particulars as to this gild, including the names of the Masters and Wardens up till A.D. 1834, and many fresh memoranda made and ordinances passed, from time to time, since 1620. Of these, two may be quoted; the one of which shows that the gild admitted others than the usual class of mere Ringers; while the other shows that this gild, like all the old gilds of any importance, was accustomed to have its annual feast day, with the obligation on all the bretheren, save such as were specially excused, to be present at the feast. They are as follows:—" Nov. 18, 1700. Admitted Mr. James Hollidge, late sherriffe, who paid his fine, 3.s. 8.d.; and David Kinlock, Rector of St Stephen Parish, who paid for his admittance 3.s. 4.d., as allso 4.d. to the Sextone. Paid y^e Sextone Woman her dews, 2.s. Received by y^e Company 1.1."—" 17th November, 1701. This day agreed, y^t whereas a Bean-feast is annually

^{*} At the end of this ordinance is written, between brackets, as follows: "who deceased in the year one thousand six hundred and fifty six." The dates of the other deaths are not expressly given; but there can be no doubt that the day appointed, in each case, for ringing the peal, was the anniversary of the death.

held for y^e society of Ringers, y^t every person of the society, being personally warned, and not giving a sufficient excuse to be allowed off by y^e s^d society for his not appearing att y^e s^d feast, shall pay for such default one shilling, to be applyd towards y^e discharge of y^e said feast."

The fondness of the English people, through long ages, for music, is well known to all students of our history, though there is a vulgar error afloat to the contrary.* The ordinances of several gilds given in this volume have shown how the bretheren and sisteren delighted to go in procession, "with much music" + [multa melodia]. But, besides this, there were gilds formed for the express purpose of practising music. Warton gives an interesting account of one of these in his "History of English Poetry." Bishop Percy mentions another in the Essay prefixed to the first volume of his "Reliques."§ Among the Returns made in January, 1389, there is one from the "Gild of the Minstrels and Players" of Lincoln. It has already been seen, in the ordinances of the Gild of St. Katherine of Stamford, how that most charming of all the forms of melody-the ringing of bells in pealwas established, at least as early as 1494, as one mark of honour to the memory of good-doers to the gild.|| This Bristol Gild of Ringers illustrates the same thing in a very striking manner. Where older gilds appointed placebo and dirige to be said, with, sometimes, as in the case of Stamford, a peal of bells, this gild kept the anniversary of the death of good-doers by the ringing of a special peal.

The importance attached to church Bell-ringing, as a science, can be carried back, by the help of our English records, to an early date. In Stowe's "Survey of London" is the following passage:—"The same year [1244] the king [Henry III.] commanded the keepers of his works at Westminster, that they should provide for the Abbot of Westminster one strong and good beam, to support the Bells of the king's gift; and deliver the said beam to the sacristan. And in the 30th of the said king, he gave 100 shillings, by payment each half t Vol. ii. p. 536, ed. 1840. § Ed. 1812, p. xlv.

* More than three hundred years ago, Erasmus remarked the love of music as a special characteristic, distinguishing Englishmen from other European nations. "Jam vero video, naturam, ut singulis mortalibus suam, ita singulis nationibus ac pœne civitatibus, communem quandam insevisse Philautiam. Atque hinc fieri, ut Britanni, præter alia, formam, mu-icam, et lautas mensas, proprie sibi vendicent." Moriæ Encomium, ed. 1633. p. 115 ; the prefaratory letter to which work, addressed to Sir Thomas More, bears the date of A D. 1508.

|| See before, p. 190.

year, to the bretheren of the Guild at Westminster, and their successors, who were assigned to ring the great Bells there, to be paid out of his Exchequer, till the king can provide them the value of 100 shillings Land or Rent." *

Several records are to be found in the Public Record Office as to these Westminster and other Bells. One, of 34 Henry III., desires Edward Odson to make a bigger bell than those he had made the year before; and if he has not metal enough, he must buy it: He must not break up any of the old bells to get the metal: And the new Bell must be ready by the feast of Edward the Confessor.† Next year, Edward of Westminster (no doubt the same man who was, in the last year, called the son of Odo) is desired to make another Bell, to chime in harmony with the Great Bell of Westminster, though not so big.[‡] Within a month of the last date, the same Edward of Westminster is desired to buy two little Bells, and to deliver them to the Constable of the Tower of London, to be hung in the Chapel there.§ Four years later, letters patent, still extant in the Public Record Office, were issued (A.D. 1256), granting, to the Gild of Ringers of Westminster, the (for that time) large yearly payment of a hundred shillings out of the treasury, until rents to that amount were settled upon the Gild. It is added, that these bretheren shall have all the liberties and free customs which they have had, from the time of the blessed Edward, King and Confessor, until now. The antiquity of the

* Stow's Survey, Book vi. p. 8, ed. 1720.

[‡] Close Rolls, 35 Hen. III. m. 19 This entry is so curious that I give the whole of it :—" De magna campana opud Westm., et aliis fač.' Mandatum est Edwardo de Westm, sicut Rex alias mandauit, quod fieri faciat vnam campanam que respondeat mangne campane Westm., et que non sit eiusdem magnitudinis, dum tamen conuenienter ei per consilium magistri in sono respondeat. Mangnam eciam crucem collocari faciat in Naui ecclesie Westm., et emat duos angelos, in modum Cherubyn, ex utraque parte illius crucis collocandos."

§ Close Rolls, 35 Hen. III. m. 16.

|| The original words are :---" Concessimus pro nobis et heredibus nostris, ffratribus de Gilda Westañ. qui assignati sunt ad pulsand. magnas campanas," &c. This is the grant mentioned by Stow, as quoted above.

 The original words are :--- "Et quod fratres ipsi, et eorum successores inperpetuum, habeant omnes libertates et liberas consuetudines quas habuerunt a tempore beati Edwardi Regis et Confessoris usque ad tempus confectionis presencium." Patent Rolls, 39 Hen. III. m. 12.

The Rev. H. T. Ellacombe, rector of Clyst St. George, Devonshire, has in the press, while this is being written, a work on Bell-Ringing; and, as he and I have exchanged communications on the subject, some of the ⁺ See, for examples, before, pp 148, 149.

[†] Close Rolls, 34 Hen. III. m. 8.

Gild of Westminster Ringers is thus put beyond the reach of doubt. And "Big Ben" of Westminster proves to be only the young offspring of a very ancient race.

Other examples might be given. Thus, Birmingham has long been famous for its peals of bells. The Gild of the Holy Cross paid "for keping the clocke and the chyme."* In 1552, it was formally recorded that there were, in the old church of St. Martin's of Birmingham, "iiij Belles, with a clock and a chyme." + And a piece of land was, some centuries ago, given to "Lenche's Trust," ‡ which has ever since been called "Bell-rope-croft," and the purpose of which was, and still is, that the income shall "be employed and disposed of for buying of Bell-Ropes for the said Church, and keeping the same in order from time to time."

same facts will probably appear there as here. But Mr. Ellacombe's book will be a full and valuable account of a subject of great interest, at which I here only incidentally glance.

+ See "Memorials of Old Birmingham" (second part, Men and Names), p. 91.

‡ See before, p. 251.

XVI.

READING.

THE GILD OF READING.

[Among the Harleian MSS. in the British Museum, is a Some hints as to Chartulary of Reading Abbey. In this Chartulary are some found in old entries as to what appears to have been a Gild Merchant in Reading. A complete copy of the ordinances is not given; only what seem to be short heads or memoranda : and these are written in an unusually barbarous kind of Norman-French. A literal translation would be unintelligible. The case is historically valuable, as showing another source whence information as to the old English gilds may be got. It has already been The Clergy of seen how the Archbishops of York, one after another, did what gave generous they could to help on the spirit of local self-reliance. And it has been seen how the Bishop of Ely avowed his approval of ordinances that denounced, in the strongest terms, the intermeddling of the clergy in secular affairs. It is well known that many others, not only of the higher ecclesiastics, but of the monastic writers of the chronicles of our history, were among the most earnest asserters of free English institutions. But there were of course some who were overbearing, and who cared nothing for lawful right. Such seems to have been but in Reading the Abbot of Reading in whose day these entries were made otherwise. in the Chartulary of Reading Abbey. The following letter will show the bearing which this Abbot took towards the Gild of Reading :---]

Gilds may be chartularies.

York and Elv help:

much the contrary

^{*} See before, p. 248.

LETTER OF KING HENRY VI. TO THE WARDEN OF THE GILD OF READING.

King Henry VI tells the Warden of Reading Gild that he must bear no mace if it offends the Abbot of Reading

Gild is only the humble servant of the Abbot of Reading, and must not presume to have any mark of authority save two tipped staves borne by the Abbot's baihff bailiff are supreme world.

So, Mr. Warden, do not carry a mace, or let any one else cari vit Be content with the two tippedstaves of the A bbot.

Littere Regis Henrici sexti, directe Custodi Gilde de Redyng. Welbeloved, we grete you wel. And how-be-hit that we calle to oure remembraunce how that, at our last beyng at the Towne of Redyng, we licenced you to bere oonly the mase byfore us, so that it be not prejudiciall unto oure Churche and Monasterie of Redyng; yet, nathelesse, ye vse it other-wise than was or is accordyng to oure entent. In-so-much that, as we sithens have clerly perceyved, by scheweng of evidences and credible report made vnto vs of the antique vsage and custume had in the The Warden of the same towne, that hit is contrarie to the ffraunchise and libertees of oure said Church and Monasterie, by oure noble auncesteres grauntid and by vs confermed, you to be called or bere, other in name or in signe, other-wise than as keper of the Gilde of Reding, admitted by the Abbot of oure said Monasterie, and not by vs, for to have any mase or eny other signe of officere or office to be born by you, or any other man, with in the said town and firanchise of Redyng, sauyng oonly twoo tipped stafis, to be born by the baylif of thabbottes of our said monasterie, The Abbot and his graunted and yeuen to thabbot and conuent of the same oure in that part of the monasterie at the first ffundacion therof, oute of Court of Marchalsie, eldest of Recorde, with al maner Courtes, plees of dette, of trespasse, and other, and also execucion of the same to be doon by his baylif and by noon other; as in theire charters of graunte and confirmacion more evidently hit appereth. We therfor wolle and charge you straitly, that ye ne vse nor bere any mase nor other signe, nor do to be born by non other personne, with-in the said Towne and ffranchise therof, wherby the interesse and right of our said monasterie might in any wyse be interrupted or hurted; wiche we ne wolde nor never entended, sauyng oonly the two tipped stafes in maner and fourme as is aboue rehersed, as ye desire to please vs, and wol eschew the contrary. Yeuen vnder oure signet, at Eltham, the xxx, day of Juitt.

XVII.

EXETER.

(a) GILD OF THE TAILORS.

The records of this gild give an instructive example of the character, working, and usefulness, of a middle age Craft-Gild in England, and also of the disagreements that sometimes arose between an influential gild and the governing body of the borough There is an apparent anomaly on the face of these records; inasmuch as, while a charter was granted to the gild in the sixth year of Edward IV, everything contained in this charter was repealed, by Act of Parliament, on petition of the Mayor and Corporation of Exeter, in the twenty-second year of the same reign: and yet we find the gild afterwards going on, and prospering, and exercising all the powers named in the charter, just the same as if no such Act had passed. And, what seems even stranger, no trace can be found, on the records of the gild, either of the petition of the mayor, or of anything that befel the gild, or was done by the gild, in consequence of that petition and the enactment that followed it.

The only explanation seems to be that, a quarrel having arisen between the corporation and the gild, the former went to extremes, but that, after the prayer of their petition had (perhaps unexpectedly) been granted, the parties came to terms, settled their differences, and mutually agreed to treat the Act of Parliament as a nullity. Certain it is, that the gild and the corporation thenceforth both flourished, side by side, and on the best mutual terms, just as if there had never been any quarrel or act of suppression, and that the authority of the gild was never practically questioned. The charter of Edward IV, was, indeed, again and again recognised and confirmed by later kings ; and fresh ordinances and bye-laws were again and again made by the gild in later times, and sanctioned by the judges in due form of law.

It will be most convenient to give here, first, an outline of the original charter; second, some particulars of the quarrel that arose between the Gild and the Corporation, and of the transactions that took place thereon, including the Petition of the Mayor and Corporation against the Gild, with the enactment founded thereon ; and, afterwards, the Ordinances of the gild, with some illustrations of their practical working. For, though the greater part of those Ordinances were made and in use before the date of the Petition, the original ordinances, with the additions made to them from time to time, endured for centuries after the Petition and the enactment founded on it had been forgotten.]

(1) CHARTER OF EDWARD IV.*

By these Letters Patent, the King, for himself, his heirs and successors, so far as he has power, enables his leiges of the

* I here use, unwillingly, the word "Charter," in conformity with custom. It would be more accurate to speak of all such documents as "Letters Patent." A "Charter" is, properly, the dealing with some property that a man has of his own, and which, by the Charter, he gives over to some one else. The grant of Jurisdiction is quite a different thing.

I give only an outline of these Letters Patent, as the most important parts of them are fully set forth in the King's Award and in the Petition which follow, though other parts are there ingeniously suppressed.

The original Charter (Latin) is in the archives of the Corporation of Exeter. In 1863, I wrote to the Town-Clerk of Exeter, asking if there were, in the archives of the Corporation, any traces of this gild-the Petition and Enactment as to it being then well known to me. He replied that there were none. But the Corporation of Exeter, wiser than many others, bethought themselves, thereupon, that it would be well to know what really was contained in their archives. They were happy enough to engage the services of Mr. Stuart Moore, a gentleman not only of great experience in such matters, but who takes a lively and intelligent interest in them. Under his skilfully applied wand it is that, knowing what I have been seeking, the discovery has been made of all the records here given as to this gild, except that which I had already found on the Rolls of Parliament. But I must acknowledge the ready allowance, by the Corporation of Eveter, of the making of any extracts that I wished to use for the present work.

Craft of Tailors in the city of Exeter, to establish a gild of the A Gild of Tailors shall be founded men of the said craft, and others; to maintain and encrease it; m Eveter; and to choose a Master and four Wardens. They may wear who shall choose officers, wear a a livery, and hold meetings, and have feasts, and make such livery, hold feasts, make ordinances. porate, and have a common seal.

ordinances as they think best. The gild shall be a Body be a body cor-Corporate, and have a Common Seal, and may plead and be impleaded by the name of the Body Corporate. The Master and Wardens shall control the gild, and amend the misdoings of any of its members or their servants. No one shall have a board or shop of that craft, unless free of the city; nor shall any one be let join the gild unless known to be good and faithful. The Master and Wardens shall have a general con- The Master and troul over the craft of tailors, and over others joining the gild, have control over and their crafts; and may, with the consent of the Mayor of the city for the time being, amend all defaults found. None else shall have such controul, except the said Master and Wardens, or the Mayor and his deputies. Given at Westminster, on 17th Dated 17 November. 1466. November, 6 E. IV. (A.D. 1466).

Wardens shall tailors and others of the gild.

[Below is written] :- By writ of privy seal, and by authority of Parliament, on the date aforesaid ;* and for forty shillings paid into the hanaper.

[A fragment of the Great Seal still remains attached to the original charter. This charter is recited at full length in, and confirmed by, "inspeximus" charters of Henry VIII., Edward VI., Philip and Mary, and Elizabeth.]

* No authority of Parliament is, in fact, named in the Charter. The "authority of Parliament" thus invoked, seems to be what is implied in the Act of Resumption of 4 Ed. IV.; in which Act all Letters Patent granted to "the Wardeyn or Muistres of any Craft or Craftes," and also the "Graunte of Licence by the Kyng to founde or make any Fraternite, Gylde," &c., are recognised and declared to be good; a recognition which is repeated in the Act of Resumption of 7 Ed. IV. See further as to these Acts in the Introduction

(2) QUARREL BETWEEN THE GILD AND THE CORPORATION.

[The quarrel between the Tailors' Gild and the Corporation seems to have begun within a short time after the grant of the foregoing Charter, and to have been carried on with great heat. In a large folio volume, compiled by John Vowell, alias Hoker,* Chamberlain of Exeter in the time of Elizabeth, and which still remains in MS. among the records of the Corporation, is found the following passage, under date of 15 Edward IV. :---]

A great quarrel between the City and the Gild. Md: that, this yere, there was a greate controversye betwene the Mayor and Citesens of the one partie, and the companye of the Taylors of the other partie, for and concernynge a new incorporacion w^{ch} the saide company of Taylors had procured from the kinge; whereof ensued greate trobles, longe and chardgeble suetes. But, after too yeres, the kinge ended the same, and delyvered his determynation, under his privie seale, unto M^r. Peter Courteneye, then Deane of the Cathedrall Churche of St. Peters in this Citie; and he delyvered the same to bothe parties. And, albeit this was a fynall order of all suetes yn lawe, yet the malyce and greeff w^{ch} was conceved hereof could not, yn longe tyme, be satisfied nor appeased.

but much soreness was long left.

It was ended by the King's Award;

> [The truth of this "Memorandum" is fully borne out by numerous entries found in the Corporation records. In an old paper book, of contemporary date, mention is made, in 16 E. IV., of the disfranchisement of several tailors by name; and the command is issued that "non inhabitant shall, from hensforth, make no garneamentes wt ony taylor underneth writen and disfranchised, ne wyth no noder of there opinion, uppon payne, for the fyrste gylte, xl.d. : and for the second gylte, vi.s. viij.d.; and the iij. gylte, to lese his franches." Some tailors who were on the city council were even refused the usual gifts, of wine and canon bread, made at Christmas to the members of that body ; while some men are found to have been of souls so mean that, to keep the city franchise, they "renunced the chartor purchased by the taylo^Tys contrary to the liberties of the cite, and euery poynte of the same, and the use of h^t, by ther oth made vppon the crucifyxe and the holy Euangelistes."* But, on September 22, 17 E. IV. (that is, after the King's Award), we find that, "in opyn Court, the Mayer and baylleffes, by the assent of the xxiiij^{ti}, at instans and contemplacyon of owre soverayne lord the kyng, according to certyn instrucyons bynethe wretin,[†] toke, reputed, and declared the said persones nott discomened nor disfraunchesid for any matter or cause touchyng the variances bytwext the sayd Mayer, baileffes, and Communalte, on the tone party, and the Maister and Wardens of the craft of Taylours, yn the other party, passid before this tyme."

> * Hoker's Memorials were largely used in Izacke's "Antiquities of Exeter."

On the other hand, it seems that the Tailors' gild tried to carry their charter into active effect with a very high hand. Doubtless the facts were highly coloured by the corporation officers; but on the Rolls of the Mayor's Court of Exeter, during the 15th, 16th, and 17th years of E. IV., there are found many presentments, which set forth how divers of the gild have tried to enforce the payment, by tailors in the town, of their fees to the gild; and we are told, in the extraordinary Latin of the day, how, "modo guerrino arraiati, vi et armis, videlicet jackis, doblettis of defence, swerdis, bokelers, gleyves and stavys, in domo" of the offender they went, and beat and threatened certain men who held out. Sometimes their weapons are described as "arcubus, glayvis, baculis, et daggariis," or as "gladiis et daggariis;" but the object is always the same. In one instance the offence is aggravated by one of the wrong-doers being further presented as playing dice and cards within the city.

All these things were going on during the 15th, 16th, and 17th years of E. IV. Meantime, the corporation was sparing no expense to get up a case against the gild. Entries are found in the Receivers' Accounts, and elsewhere, of moneys paid, again and again, to those going to London "pro materia Cissorum ;" for large expenses incurred in the same matter from time to time: for horse-hire in riding to Taunton to get some evidence. and getting it written out under the common seal of Taunton : and for taking that evidence up to London, &c. &c.

^{*} It must have been cases of this kind which roused the indignant action of the gild, of which an example will be found after, p. 323.

⁺ These are what are given on the next page, under the head of The King's Award.

At length the matter was brought before the king in council ; and the following is the curious record of the award made :---]

(3) THE KING'S AWARD.

[The original bears the marginal notes that follow :---] " A greate controversive betweene the Citie and the Taylors."

Memorand: that, concerning this corporacion, greate trobles grewe betweene the Mayer and Comminalte of thone partie, and the company of the saide Taylors of thother partie; Thone supposinge the new graunted Charter to be prejudiciall, and agaynst the lyberties of the Citie, and thother parte, beinge men of good welthe and countenance, and sundrie of theyme then of the common counsell of the Citie, standinge upon theire reputation, and myndynge not to take the foyle, stande to meaneteane and defende theyre cause. Whereupon fell and folowed greate trobles and enemitie: for some were disfraunchised, some imprysoned, some theire shop windows shutt downe ; and soche of theym as were of the common counsell were excluded. And by that meanes the matter was brought yn question before the kinge ; who, takinge the hiringe and determynation thereof yn to his owne handes, dyd decyde and ende the controversie, and by decree did sett downe his fynall order and determynation, wch is as folowethe: -

"The controversie is compromytted to the kynge.'

> The Decree and order of kinge Edwarde the fourthe, for the endinge and appeasinge of the controversies and variaunces betweene the Mayer, bayliffes, and communalte of the citie of Excester, of thone partie, and the company of the Taylors of the same, of the other partie.

" The kynge, by thadvise of his counsell and consent of the parties,

Oure sovereigne lorde, willinge allwyse to sett a fynall ende and concorde betwexte the Mayor, bayliffes, and communalte, of the citie of Exceter, yn that one partie, and the crafte of Taylors makethe a vnall ende and Wardens of the occupation."

of the saide Citie, yn that other partie, yn appeasinge the determynation." varyaunces of the saide parties; by the advise of the lordes spirituall and temporall of his greate counseyll, yn his palleys of Westmynster, the xxij. of ffeverer, the xvj. yere of his reigne, vn presence of Richerd Wagot and John Sayer, proctors and Both parties having appeared atturneys of the saide Mayer, bayliffes, and communes, and by their attorneys.] Richerd Tournour and William Sengill, proctors and atturneys of the Master and Wardens of the sayde crafte of Taylours, askinge instantly a fynall decree and judgement to be given and made yn this behalffe : It was consydered, advised, and finally decreed, judged, and determyned, yn manner and forme as folowethe :--- ffyrst, that the Master and Wardons of the fraternitie and crafte of Taylors and successors, shall use theire saide letters patentes after the manor of the same unto this clause :---"Ac eligere, habere, et facere possint, unum magistrum et quatuor custodes de se ipsis, quotiens eis placuerit vel opus fuerit, pro gubernatione, custodia, et regimine, fraternitatis predicte imperpetuum:" -wch clause the saide Master, Wardens, and companye, and theire successors, shall use yn this wyse; that is to save, as often as any election shalbe made of the master and wardens of the saide crafte, suche master and wardens shalbe chosen of "The Master and men of the same crafte onely and none other. Taylors shalbe onelye chosen [of]

Item, where it is conteigned yn another clause of the saide men of the same letters patentes yn these words :---" Ibidem facere ordinationes inter seipsos, prout sibi viderint magis necessarios et oportunos, pro meliori gubernatione fraternitatis predicte : "- The saide "The Mr and Wardens shall Master, Wardens, and theire successors, shall make no suche make no order prejudiesall to ordynaunces, by force of the saide wordes, that shalbe prejuthe lyberties of the byshop and diciall or derogatyve to the lyberties, ffranchasies, right and his churche, or to the Mayer and laufull customes, of the bisshop, Deane and chapter, Mayer, Citie,* bayliffs, and communalte, nor to any of their successors.

Item, where it is conteyned yn the seide letters patentes :----"Quod fraternitatem predictam sive misterium, infra civitatem et in suburbis ejusdem, ordinare et regulare, et defectus 20 305 eorundem ac servientium suorum, per visum proborum hominum et magis sufficientium de mistera illa, corrigere et emen-

"The Mr and Wardens shall governe the mysterye wthin the jurisdition of the Citie onelye, and to reforme the defaultes of that mystery onelye," admitted to the freedome of the citie in that crafte

oneles it be furst

Mr and Wardens

honest and a meete man."

" If the Mr and Wardens do refuse to present a man honest and mete for the lyberties of the Citie unto the Mayer, then the Mayer by the advise of the xxiiij. to take unto the Mayer that he is an testified by the

dare, possint:"-Thoughe the saide wordes be generall, the saide master, wardens, and theire successors, shall ordeigne and rule the saide fraternitie and mysterie wthin the jurisdition of the said Citie onelye; and the defaultes of theym that be of the saide crafte, and theire servauntes, yn suche thinges as to theire saide crafte of Taylors onely belongethe, wthin the saide jurisdiction of the saide Citie, and yn none other place, shall onely correcte and amende ; the franchasies, liberties, righte, and lauffull customes of the saide Mayer bayliffes and communalte allwayes saved.

Item, where it is conteigned yn a-nother clause yn the saide letters patentes :--- "Quod nullus, infra libertatem illam civitatis predicte, mensam vel shopam de mistera illa teneat, nisi sit de libertate civitatis predicte; nec aliquis ad libertatem illam pro mistera illa admittatur, nisi per predictos magistrum et custodes et successores suos testificetur quod bonus, fidelis, et idoneus sit pro eisdem :"-The saide Mr, Wardens, and "No person to be theire successors, if they testifie to the saide Mayre and bayliffes for the tyme beinge that any person be good, trew, and hable for the same crafte, other then have benne prentyse or ought to be free there by theire birthe, And thereupon desire the saide Mayor and bayliffes to make him a freeman of the saide citie yn the same crafte; Then he so presented to be by theym admitted. But if it be so that the saide Mayor and bayliffes understaunde him that sholde be made free be not of good disposition, nor good conversation, in wch case the saide Mayor and bayliffes shall mowe, by theire discression, refuse to make him a firee man of the saide citie yn the saide crafte. And if so be that there be any person of the same crafte, that is good, trewe, and hable to be made a freeman of the saide Citie yn the saide crafte, wch the saide Master and Wardens refuse to testifie hable to the saide Mayor and bayliffes of the saide Citie ; Then the saide Mayer and bayliffes for the time beinge do call before theym the saide Mr and Wardens, to shew if they have any cause resonable why the saide person sholde not be made ffree man of the same crafte. And thereupon the same Mayer and bayliffes, callinge unto theym the xxiiijor of the commun counsell, or the more parte of theym, and delyberation had upon the cause so to be shewed, shall mowe refuse, or admytt, the saide person to be a ffreeman of the saide craftes after theire descretion.

Item, where yn another clause conteigned yn the saide letters natentes it is conteigned :-- "Quod predicti Magister et custodes, et successores sui, Magistri et custodes fraternitatis predicte pro tempore existentes, imperpetuum habeant et faciant plenum scrutinium in et de mistera predicta, ac omnibus aliis personis oui cum scissoribus infra dictam civitatem nostram et suburbia ejusdem privilegiati existant seu existent : et de talibus misteris quibus ipsi seu eorum aliquis utuntur seu utitur, vel ante hec tempora usi fuerunt vel usus fuit : ac omnes defectus inter eos inventos, secundum descretiones suas, per supervisum majoris dicte civitatis nostre pro tempore existentis, corrigere et reformare valeant :"-The saide Mr Wardens and successors shall have and make full serche of and yn the foresayde crafte, onelye wthin the jurisdition of the citie, and no where ells : and the defaultes founden there touchinge the saide crafte of Taylors, onely, after theire descretion to amende and reforme; The lyberties, franchases, right and lauffull costomes of the mayer bayliffes and communalte and theire successors allwayes saved.

Item, that the saide Mr and Wardens, and theire successors. shall use theire letters patentes yn all thinges not repugnant to the premisses, nor any of theyme, wthout interruption of the saide Bisshop, Deane and Chapter, Mayer, bayliffes, and communalte, and theire successors : the lyberties, firanchasies, right liberties, and lauffull customes of the saide Mayer, bayliffes, and communalte, alwayes saved : Provided allwaye, that if any difficultie or ambiguitie yn understandinge or usinge of the premisses, or any of theyme, be had or moved between the sayde parties, that then the interpretation and determynacion thereof be refferred unto or sovereigne lorde the kinge and his counsell.

"The Mr and Wardens shall make serche onelye wthin the juris. dition of the citie and touchinge the saide crafte onelve."

"The Mr and Wardens wthout interruption shall use theire letters patentes, beinge not repugnant to this order."

"All doubtes tobe refferred to the kinge and the counsell."

NOTE.-Since these pages as to the gilds of Exeter were put in type, some facts have been found, which somewhat modify what is said before, p. 299; and which show with great clearness how doggedly the Corporation harassed this gild, through its earlier years. Having urged upon Mr. Moore (see before, p. 300, note) that there must be some traces among the records of the Corporation, giving fuller details as to the facts, and the costs, of the proceedings taken, he at length found several entries, in the old account books of the Receiver of Exeter, which throw much light upon the whole matter.

The following is the substance of some of these (the originals being in Latin) :---

Proceedings in London against the Gild of Tailors,

The Town Council

send a man to the Gild.

to it,

Taunton to pick up proofs against

He writes out a proof, and gets the Common Seal of Taunton put

The proof is sent

The Mayor, Town Clerk (?), and Council hold a wine-party, to celebrate their triumph in the King's Award.

to London.

14-15 Ed. IV. My [John Att Wyll's] expenses in London. against the Tailors, xxvj.s. viij.d. Also paid to Master Thomas Elyot going to London in the same matter, xl.s.

16-17 Ed. IV. Paid to John Lang, by order of the xxiiijor, to ride to Taunton and elsewhere, to gather proofs (pro litteris testimonialibus) against the Tailors, vj.s. viij.d.

And for writing out one proof at Taunton, x.d. And for getting the Common Seal of that town put thereto, xl.d. And for the hire of a horse for John Lang to ride to Taunton in two stages, for eight days, ij.s. viij.d. And to John Bysshop for the carriage of the same proof to London, among other despatches (et aliis literis), viij.d.

And for wine, in the house of Mathew Jubbe, for the Mayor, John Denys, and the xxiiij, after communication had, in the church of St. Peter, with John Fortescue and John Courtenay, the King's Commissioners, viij.d.

This wine was thus jovially quaffed when the making of the King's Award was made known to the officials. But the matter did not end there. See the extract given before, p. 302.

Heavy costs incurred in the matter of the Private Bill for annulling the Charter of the Gild of Tailors.

22 Ed. IV. Added at the end of the accounts of 20-21 Ed. IV., is the following remarkable entry:-But afterwards, namely on the 10th January in the 22nd year of Ed. IV., John Kelly paid to John Atwyll and Mathew Jubbe, for annulling the charter of the Tailors (pro adnullacione carte Sissorum), by assent of the xxiiijor, xxxij.i.; together with viij.i., in discharge of Roger Werth, for moneys paid to the King. And viij.s. and ij.d., the balance, was given, by the grace of the city, to the Gild of Corpus Christi, to lighten their charges this year. And so all are quits.

The foregoing paragraph seems to show that a sum of money,-a very large one for those days,-had been voted by the xxiiij (i.e. the Town Council), in order to procure the final abasement of the Gild of Tailors; and that this statement of account was taken to be a final halance-sheet upon the whole affair, finished off with a gracious gift of the small balance left. The following entry shows that this belief was as vain a one as was the hope that the Tailors' Gild had, by this costly expenditure, been crushed.

22-23 Ed. IV. For the expenses of the Receiver, about the Further heavy business of the city, in London, lvj.s. viij.d. And for the expenses of John Attwyll about the business of the city, during Parliament, touching the annulling of the charter of the Tailors and others, Private Bill. lxxix.s. vin.d. And for work done (pro laboribus) by the same Receiver and John, iiij.li.

costs found to have been incurred in the matter of this

While the first two entries above given seem to refer to the fight which was, at the time, thought to be ended by the King's Award, the last two unquestionably refer wholly to the management of the Petition which next follows. I think I may safely say that they give us the earliest account of the costs of soliciting a Private Bill in Parliament that is known to exist.

(4) PETITION TO PARLIAMENT, AND ENACTMENT THEREON, IN THE TWENTY-SECOND YEAR OF EDWARD IV.*

Item, quedam alia Peticio exhibita fuit prefato Domino Regi, Per majore, Balin presenti parliamento, per Majorem, Ballivos, et Communi- tate, Cinitatis tatem Civitatis Exon' in Com' Deuon', in hec verba :----

To the kyng oure Sourreign Lord ; In most humble wise The mayor, shewith unto youre Highnes and good grace, your true and monalty of feithfull Subjettes, the Mayer, Baillifes, and Comynalte of youre Cite of Exeter in the Countie of Deuon'; that where the seide Exeter has been Cite is, and of tyme that no mynde ys hath bene, an olde Cite time out of mind, corporate, of Maier, Baillifs, and Comynaltee, And the Mayer therof for the tyme beyng, by all the seid tyme, hath had and used to have the entier rule, ouersight, and gouvernaunce, of all Marchaunts, Mercers, Drapers, Grocers, Taillours, and all and the mayor other artificers, inhabitaunts within the same, and the cor- governance there. reccion and punysshement of all offences within the seid Cite, by theym or any of theym, or any other persone, there commytted, ayenst youre lawes, the commune wele, politike rule, and goode gidyng of the same Cite, under the proteccioun and grace of youre Highnes and of youre noble progenitours. Which liuis, et Communi Evon.

* From the original Roll of Parliament in the Public Record Office.

bailiffs, and com-Eveter petition.

a city corporate has had undivided

the tailors

Cite, by the said tyme, hath ben well and quietly gidid, in goode tranquillite, peas, and quiete of the same; unto nowe got a charter, sixteen years ago,

All went well till enabling them to tound a gild, and to choose a master and wardens, who shall have large powers.

late, that the men of the Crafte of Taillours within the same Cite, by supplicacoun made unto youre Highnes, opteyned youre Letters Patentes, beryng date the xvijth day of Nouembere the vjth yere of youre most noble reign, that they, in the same Cite, a Gilde or ffraternyte, in the honor of seint John Baptist, of the men of the seid Crafte and other, myght make, vnye, founde, create, erecte, and stablissh; And that Gilde or ffraternite, so vnyed, founded, create, erecte, and stablisshed, to haue, holde and enyoie, to theym and to ther successours for ever; And that they the same Gilde or fraternyte myght augumente and enlarge, as ofte and when it shuld seme to theym necessarie and behoufull; And that the men of that Gilde or fraternyte, in the honor of seint John Baptist, euery yere myght haue, holde, and encrease the seid Gilde or fraternyte of the seid Taillours, and other persones, that they shuld receyue in-to the seid fraternyte, and chese, haue, and make, a Maister and iiij. Wardyns of theym-self, as oft as it shall please theym, or nede shuld be, for the gouernaunce of the kepyng and rule of the same fraternyte for ever, as best shuld please theym ; And to make Ordenaunces among theym-self, as to theym myght be-seme most necessarie and behouefull for the seid fraternyte; And ouer that, that the same Master and Wardeyns, and their successours, shuld be perpetuall and haue capacite; And over that, that they the seid fraternite or Maister, within youre seid Cite, and in the Subburbis of the same, myght ordeign and rule, and the defautes of theym and of there seruauntes, by the sight of men of the same Misterie, correcte and amende, as shall by theym seme best to be doon; And that no man within the liberte of the seid Cite, any borde or shoppe of the seid Misterie shuld holde, but if he were of the Libertie of the seid Cite; nor any man to the libertie or fredome of the same Cite, for the seid Mistere, shulde be admytted, but by the seid Maister and Wardeyns, or their successours, it be witnessed that he were goode, true, and behouefull for theym ; And that the seid Maister and Wardeyns, and their successours, Maisters and Wardeyns of the saide fraternyte for the tyme beyng, for euer, haue and make playne serche, in and of the seid Misterie, of all persouns that with Taillours within the seid Cite and subburbis theref were or shuld be preuyleged, and of suche Misterie that they or any of theym use or before had used. By force of which letters patentes, the seid men of the seid Craft The tailors have haue made a Gylde and fraternyte of seynt John Baptist within the same Cite, and of theym-self a Maister and iiij. Wardeyns, and their gild has and haue taken into ther seid Gilde, and daily doon, many inhabitauntes of the same Cite, and dyvers craftes other than of theym self, and dyvers other not inhabitauntes within the same Cite; by the which they be in such grete number, and many of the same Gilde and fraternyte been of such evill disposicoun and unpesible, that the Maier of the seid Cite may not gyde and and so the mayor rule the people youre Subgettes of the same, nor correcte suche inger with un-divided sway. defautes as ought by hym to be correcte, for the wele of youre peas, and goode gydyng of the seid Cite, accordyng to his oth, dutie, and charge. And over this, they oft-tymes have made And the gild-folks and caused to be made dyuers Conuenticles, commocions, and grete division amonges youre people there, contrarie to youre All this is very alarming. lawes and peas, in eugli example, and likly to growe to the submercion¹ and distruccion of the same Cite, and of the goode, sadde, and polityk rule of the same, withoute due remedy be had by youre goode grace in this behalf.

Please it youre Highnes, of youre most benyng grace, consideryng the premisses, by thadwys of youre lordes spirituell and temporell, and the communes, in this present Parlement So we pray that assembled, and by auctorite of the same, to ordeyn, stablissh, and enacte, that the seid letters patentes, and every thyng con- sild also. teigned in the same, And the seid Gilde and fraternyte, and all thyng perteynyng to the same Gilde and fraternyte, be irrite, cassed, adnulled, voide, and of noo force nor effect : Any Acte, Ordynaunce, or Provision, by parliament or otherwise made or had, in any wise notwithstondyng.

Qua quidem Peticione in parliamento predicto lecta, audita, one it,

greatly flourished :

hold conventicles.

1 (sic.)

Parliament will quash the Letters atent and the

The lords spiritual and temporal and the commons et plenius intellecta, de auisamento Dominorum spiritualium et temporalium, ac assensu communitatis regni Anglie, in dicto parliamento conuocatorum, et auctoritate ejusdem, respondebatur eidem in forma sequenti :-- grant the prayer of the petition.

Soit fait come il est desire.*

(5) ORDINANCES OF THE GILD.⁺

These are the ordinances of the gild, established by consent of the craft.

To the worship of God, and of oure Lady Sevnte Marve, and of Sevnt John the Baptyste, and of alle Halowys, thes beth the Ordenaunce made and astabled of the ffraternyte of crafte of Taylorys, of the Cyte of Exceter, by asente and consente of the firaternyte of crafte afforesavd y-gedered there to-gedere, ffor ever more to yndewre.

The master and wardens shall meet regularly. in the common hall, to deal with the affairs of the gild.

ffyrste, hyt ys ordened, by wertu of the charters i-graunted by oure souerayn Lorde the Kinge Edwarde the iiij.to, the vi. vere of his rayne, t that the M. of the fforsavde crafte ffor the tyme beynge, every pursday, § to be at the common halle, or els a debet

* The above Petition and Answer form what is now called a "Private Act." All Private Acts, as well as the Bills on which they are founded, are, even at this day, formally begun by a Petition to the Crown. It will be seen that the Petition is here expressly declared (p. 300) to have been "exhibita Domino Regi, in presenti parliamento." See note, p. 308.

+ From the original in the archives of the Corporation of Exeter. Mr. Stuart Moore has found three volumes, containing the record of the affairs of this Gild from its beginning until its end, which latter befell no longer ago than the second quarter of the present century; whereupon the Gild Records were given to the Corporation. The first two volumes appear to have been very blunderingly bound, vol. ii. being put before vol. i., and many leaves of vol. i. being transposed.

The first eight of the ordinances that follow, are written in a different hand from the remainder of this group; but all of this group, as well as the oaths, seem to have been written in the time of Ed. IV. Later ordinances will be found further on.

I have put the extracts, as far as I am able, into chronological order, without regard to the accident of the manner in which they are bound up together.

t "Edward the iiii.te" has been altered, by a later hand, to "Harry viii.te, the ii, vere." This proves that these ordinances were kept in use during all the time between.

§ The words "every bursday" have been crossed out by a later hand.

for hym, [to alle tymes wen nede schall requer *], apoun payne of ij.li. of wex. And every Wardon that ys absent wt-oute cause resnabyll, schall pay a li. of wex to the usse and profyt of the forsayde firaternyte. And the fforsayde M. and Wardonys that the be there every bursday asyned, † at ix, at clocke, and there to ordenne and rewle that may be for the welle of the firaternyte and crafte a fforsayde, and non to do w' owte voder.

Also hyt ys i-ordenvd, by the M. and Wardonys vand the common counsell afforesayd, that every person bt ys preuelage Every full craftswt the crafte aforesavde, that vs of the waylore of $xx_i h$, of goodes. and aboffe, schalbe of M. ys ffeleschipe and clobynge. And every person that ys of the feleshippe and the forsayde crafte, schalle pay, every yere, for hys ffeste, at Myssomere, xij.d. and hys offrynge; and for hys clobynge, as hyt comyth to wtyn monyth a-poun Myssomere day; a-poun payne to be putte owte of the He shall also give forsayde firsternyte and crafte for euer more. And euery person weighing an that is so admytted schall pave a spone of sylver, weyn; an vnce, in the fashion. and the ffasshone.

man, worth 20%, shall belong to the gild. and shall pay 12d. a year for the feast; and also nav for his livery within a month after Midsummer.

a silver snoon ounce, and made

Also hyt ys ordenyd, that euery yowte Brodere that ys nott preuelage of the forsayde firaternyte and Gylde, schalle pay, euery yere, vj.d. at Myssomere. And yf he refusse to pay thys Craftsmen outside the livery. wtyn a monyth apoun Mysomere, to be thysmyste from the men, shall pay 6d. a year. forsayde fraternyte and gylde for euer more.

Also hyt vs ordened, that alle the ffeleshyppe of the Bachelerys There shall be a schall hollen ther ffeste at Synte John-ys day in harwaste. And enery person that vs a schoppe holder of the forsayd ffeleshyppe towards it, and and crafte, schall pay, to the forsayde ffeste, viij.d. and hys offrynge. And euery seruaunt that ffangyth wagys, schalle pay vi.d. to the forsayde ffeste. And every yowte Broder that ys of Other bretheren the forsayde ffeleshipe, schallen pay, euery yere, iiij.d. And yf veny of the ffeleshipe and crafte a-forsayde reffuse to pay thys, that then the namys of them be sertefyed to the M. and War-feast on St. John's day: every shopholder paying 8d. every servant at wages paying 6d.

shall pay 4d.

* The words between brackets have been added in a later hand, clearly in substitution for the "every pursday" crossed out just before.

+ "burs" has been crossed out, and "asyned" added. See the two foregoing notes.

donys, that the may do correccion theryn, as longyth to them to doo, acordynge to chartere grawnted by the Soveryne Lord the Kinge Edward the iiij., the vj. yere of his rayn,* by asent and consente of the Mayre, Bayleffys, and commons of the Cyte of Excetere, ffor euer to yn-dewre.

Also hyt ys ordened, by the fforsayd M. and Wardonys and Payments shall be made by free sewers, [i e. stitchers.]

Whoever is employed for 15 days. shall be made a free sewer : and his master shall pay his 20d., or find surety.

Bonds shall be forfeited on non-payment of dues ;

but those fallen into poverty shall be released, and shall be helped.

ffeleshyppe of the ffraternyte and crafte afforsayde, that every seruant that ys of the forsayd crafte, that takyt wagys to the waylor of xx.s. and a-boffe, schall pay xx.d. to be a fire sawere to us and profyth [of the] aforsayd fraternyte ; that no man of the forsayde crafte set no new sawer a-warcke a-bofe the spasse of xv. days, and then to brynge hym to-fore the M. and Wardonys, and ther to pay hys xx.d. to be made fire sawere, or elys to ffynde a surte ; † or elles the same schopholder, so kepyng any seruaunt, beyng no free sower, other then aforeseyd, to forfett to the sevd felyschypp xx.d.

Also ‡ hyt es ordened, by the M. and Wardonys affore-savd, that yf any person of the fforsayde crafte that ys ibounde to pay any dewte ouer to the forsayd M. and Wardonys, and brecke hys day by the spasse of halffe a yere, shallen fforfett hes holle bonde. Prowyded all-way, that yf any person or personys afforesayd that fallyth yn pofferte, and he will testefy so by hes oyth, shall be dyscharged of hes bonde and dewte, and to have a sustenans by the florsayd crafte as cane be thofte, by ther dyscrescyon, convenyent and resounabyll.§

* Altered to "Harry the viij., the ij. yere." See notes on last page.

+ The passage from "or" to "xx.d." has been added in a hand that seems temp. Elizabeth.

‡ An ordinance was originally written between this and the foregoing, but has been carefully scratched through with a pen. All that can be made out (and the sense shows that parts of the last two lines are doubtful) is as follows :---

"Also hyt ys ordened, by the M. and Wardonys afforesayde, yf ther be yeny man of the fforsayde crafte, utter yeny ware of the ffaylor of xx.s., schall have iiij.d. and x.s. ij.d. and v.s. j.d. And this man of thys crafte to by howte of thys yf he so do."

§ A hand of about Charles the First's time has written here :-- "A note worthie of remembraunce."

Also hyt ys ordened, by the fforsayd M. and Wardonys, that Penalties upon those using bad yf any Brother of the fforsayd ffraternyte and crafte dysspysse words. anoder, callenge hym knaffe, or horson, or deffe, or any voder mysname, he schall pay, at the ffyrste deffaute, xij.d.; at secoun deffawte, xx.d.; and, at the byrde the-ffaute, to be put youte of the ffraternyte and crafte ffor euer more.

Also hyt es ordened, by the fforsayd M. and Wardonys and Penalty for irregular trading the holle ffeleshipe, that yf any Broder of the forsayd crafte tacke out of the city. any clothyng of any Lorde, knyzthe, or jantylman, [howte of the sete*], wtyoute any leffe of the M. and Wardonys, att the ffyrste deffawte, xl.s.; and, at the secoun defawte, to be put youte of the ffraternyte and crafte ffor euer more.

Also hit ys ordeyned, by the fforsayde M. and Wardons, that There shall be four days of ther shall be iiij. quarter dayys that every Brother of this crafte regular meetings of the gild :shall assemble at oure comen hall. And every shopeholder shall spend ij.d. to a brekefaste, or send his mony by a debyte. And att that dayys, the othe † and the Ordynawnse-ys and Constytusyons shall be radde. The fferste day shall be the nexte Thoris- all being held on the "day of day after xijth daye; and the second daye shall be the second Thor." Thoresday after Ester; and the iij. day shalbe the seconde Thoresday after the feste of Synt John-is day the Baptyste ; and the iiijth day shall be the next Thoresday after Synt Michell-ys day. And att euerech of thes forsayde dayys, after dener, ther shall come all ffre sowerys, and take the relef of the mete and drynke that the fforsayde M. and shopholderis levyth; and euery of them shall spend j.d. to the well-ffare of the fforsayde fraternyte and Gyld.

After the master and shopholders have dined, the sewers shall have the fragments of the feast.

Also ht ys ordeyned, by the M. and Wardons, that at every Every member shall spend somecoste of ale that ys geven into the forsayde ffraternyte and Gyld, thing. euery shopholder shall spend ther-to, j.d., and every fresower, ob.; and he that cometh nott shall send his mony by the Bedell, a-poun payne of j.li. of wex.

Also hyt ys ordeyned, by the M. and Wardons and all the No craftsman hole crafte, that fro hense-forthe no man of the sayd crafte shall hold but iij. seruauntes, and oo pryntes at be most, wt-owte apprentice, unless shall have more than three servants and one he have license.

+ See the oaths further on, pp. 316-319.

^{*} These words have been added in a later hand.

lesanse of the M. and Wardonsse for be tyme beyng, apon payne of $xl^{ti}.s.$; and he b^t prayethe for hym b^t dothe ayenste bis ordynance schal forfet xxⁱⁱ.s.

The indenture of every apprentice shall be enrolled,

Also hit is ordeyned, by the M. and Wardons and all the hole crafte, that every persone of the sayd crafte bt takethe aprentys, shall brynge hym before the M. and Wardons, and there to haue his Indenture in-rolled, and the M. to paye xij.d. forpe in-rolment; and by to be done win twelmoth and a day, or elsse to lose his fredom of be crafte for euer more.

Also it ys ordeyned, by the M. and werdons and the craft forsayd, bt every prentes of the sayd craft that is inrolled and trewly seruethe his cownand, shall pay a spone of selver, wayyng a nonsse, and the fassion, and shall elde' a brekefast to the forsayde M. and Wardons, a-fore \flat^e day \flat^t he be abull to be made within a year and a day.

Every apprentice shall pay a silver spoon to the gild, and shall give a break'ast, when he becomes a freemau. (1) Altered to "eve."

Every one made free of the craft by redemption, shall pay 20s., and give a breakfast, when made free of the city.

fre-man of be Cite forsayd; [and yf he pay not a spoun worth iiij.s., or els iiij.s. yn money for be sam.*] Also it is ordeyned, bi the M. and Wardons and the hoole ffeloship, that every person that shalbe made ffree of the craft bi Redempcion, shall paye xx.s. to his ffyne, wtout any pardon; and, whan he is abelled, to give a brekefast to the Maister and Wardons, or he bee admytted ffree man of the Citee. And euery person so abelled froo hens-forth shall have, the first yeere, butt if he be able. And he that doith agayn this ordenance, shall fforfeyte, att the first defawte, xx.s.; att the secund defawte, xl.s.; at the iijde defawte, to be putt oute of the firaternyte and [6] THE OATHS TO BE TAKEN.

z[z

Here foloyth b^e wothe of b^e crafte of talors.

ដ្ឋា

ę2

How many servants newly made oon seruaunt; the secund yeere, ij.; the iijde, iij., and a prentise freemen shall have.

ų, craift for euermore.

¢,

The Oath of the Craftsman.

Swear to be true to the fraternity,

Ye shall swere, that ye shall be gode and trew to be firsternyte of Synt John the Baptyste of Taylors within the Cyte of Exceter.

* The words between brackets have been added in a slightly later hand; but the sentence seems incomplete.

Ye shall not wtstond nor disobaey be somnes of be Master and and to obey the Wardens for he tyme beyng, but there-to be obedyent at al tymys, dens; w^t owt resonabell excusacion. Ye shal not dyscouer t^e counsell of b^e bretherynhod or of b^e crafte, b^t ye have knowlych of, b^t not to disclose the shold be sekret wtyn ouer-selfe. Ye shall not suffer nor counsell any forynar to dwell wtyn be franschys of this craft; but, as not to encourage aftyntymes as ye wet hyt, ye schall warne the Maister and Wardens perof, and han ynforme wher pei be, as fer forth as ye schall have knolych, bt thaey maey do corryction ther, as longyth bem too. Ye schall couer no foren strenger yn no wys under yo^r franches, to use thys craft ne none other okewpacion wtyn bis sytti to his awne proper avaeyle. And when ye take any printes, at the to show the indenbegenyn of his tarme ye shall shew hys yndenters mad be twene yo^u and hym; and at the ynd of his tarme ye schall bryng hym to be M. and Wardens, bt he may take be charge of be craft, leke as ye do now. Ye schall hyer no man of this craft owt of his not to hire or enhowse, too yor use and in hyndryn of him. Ye schall not wt draw no mans apprintes, ne no man ys servant, tyll bt resonabell departyng be made be-twyxt be M. and his servant. Ye schall not to take a shop take no howse to okepaev shapyng, unto be tyme ve be amyttyd, by be M. and Wardons, gode and abell to okewpy shapyn, or else by seche as yei woll asyne you. Also, ye schall not steure, pro- not to entice away cure, ne excite, by yorselfe ne by no nother menes, to wt-draw from yor M., ne from no brother of be craft, any of ther costomers, wother bei wolen be served by you by ther awne volontary wyll. Ye shal not refuse ne forsake the felashyp of be fraternyte of taeylers for none other; that ys to siey, in clothing it according to your in-goyng; but to be same felaschyp be obedyant and contributory, to what estat bt god increse yow yn tyme comyn. Alle pis thynges, and all other gode rewlys and ordynans of pis crafte that ye schall have knolyche of, ye shall kep well and trewly, so God you help and all sentes. Also, when-so-mever hit shall and, when you die, hapyn you to dye, ye schall geve yn part of yor godes to be mantaeynyn of bis brotheryndon. Also, you schall sew no man of thys craft wt-ywt lysyens of the Master for the tyme beyn.

master and war-affairs of the craft :

strangers :

tures of your apprentices, and bring them into the craft at the end of their terms :

tice away any worker or apprentice :

till admitted as a freeman;

customers :

not to leave the gild, but to uphold estate:

to leave it a legacy.

Moreover, sue no brother of the ciaft without license from the master.

pis ys to be rade the iiij. quarter daeys.

Put up a prayer for the gild, and for the km₃, queen, princes, &c.; for the king's council; and for sundry good-doers to the gild.

Ye shall pray for all b^e Brothers and systers of b^{is} fraternyte, and alle Benyfactors of b^e same; and yn specyally for ow^r soverayne lord the kyng Edward b^e iiijth, furst fonder of b^{iq} gyld and fraternyte, and for b^e quene, and for b^e prynces, and for all b^e kynges progeny; and for all b^e lordys of ow^r soverayne lord b^e kynges gret counsell; and for b^e sole of dame Elysabeth Corteny, and for all her progeny; and for b^e sole of Rychard Orenge, feuste M. of b^{is} fraternyte and craft; and for b^e sole of Rychard Geffery; and for b^e sole of John Hamlyn; and for b^e sole of Water Genys; and for b^e sole of Thomas Rowse.

The Othe of the Master of the Occupacion.

You shall well fulfil your office of master;

attend regularly;

and show no favor to any man.

Ye schall swere that ye schall well and truelly byhaue you yn your offyes, as bylongyth to you as master, a-cordyng to the Ordynance that ys made by the viij. men; and to geve gode a-tendens as oftyn as nede schall requere; and that ye awe noe fawer more to one than to a nother; as god you helpp and holydom, as by thes boke.

Here followith the Woth of the firee Brotherys.

Ye shall swere that ye shall be gode and trew lovyng brother

Swear to be true to the fraternity ;

to sue no brother of the craft without leave of the master and war dens, but to lay your case before them :

not to make away with your livery improperly, to pay for your clothing, alms, and meat:

to the firaternyte of Synt John Baptiste of Taillourys in Exceter. Item, ye shall emplete no brother ne no man of this crafte at comon lawe, wtoute leve of the Master and Wardens; but that it leke you to shew youre grevaunce and matere before them, and ther to have remedy as fer forth as they maye, and els to take youre auauntage. Item, ye shall not delyuere youre liuere of the firaternyte to no brother that hath florfeted ayens the firaternyte, that ye have knowlech of, ne to none other person whatsome-euer he be, before the yend of vj. yere. Item, ye shall paye for youre clothyng, almese, and mete; that ys to saye, for youre almys, xij.d. a yere; and for youre mete, viij.d. on Midsomer daye, or the next day after; and for youre clothyng, as moche as ye take, wtyn a moneth after. Item, ye shall be helpyng and cownsellyng w^t all youre power, yf ye know eny to help any brother of this ffraternyte, that hath don hys dewteys well and trewly to the ffraternite, come or fall to pouerte by the visitacion of god, or by casuell auenture, and hath not wher-of to leve, that he maye haue, every weke, of the almys of the sayde ffraternyte, x.d.; and, yf he haue be Master, to have xiiij.d. a weke. Item ye shall geve, in youre testament, to the almys of Synt John Baptyste, more or lesse after yowre estate and deuocyon that ye haue therto, in supportacion of the preste and pore men of the same, as god yow help and holydom.

Here follow^t the othe of the ablyng of any person \flat^t shall be amytted.

Ye shall swere that ye shall well and trewly behave yorselfe, in abellyng of this person in alle soche connyng as longith to the crafte* of Tayloris that comethe to yor mende,[†] and in all soche konnyng as ye fynde hym[‡] able to show on-to the Master and Wardons; and that ye schall not lett, for loue, favor, frendsheppe, nor ony other hatered, nother malesse of no§ person: so God yow helpe and holydom, and by this boke.

The othe of the Bedyll.

Ye shall swere that ye shall well and truly serue the Master and Company of this craft of Taillo^rs in the office of Bedell for the tyme that ye shall enjoye that office; and well and truly ye shall summon such persons as ye shalbe commaunded; and attendaunce ye shall giue to the Master; and such counceile as shalbe disclosed before you ye shall kepe in secrete, and not disclose it to any man; and yn euery thyng that shall concerne you . . . and generally do and generally do your duty.

```
"Longith to the crafte" has been altered, by a later hand, to
"belongeth to the occupation." + Altered to "knowledge."
The word "not" was written after "hym," but has been crossed
```

§ "No" has been altered to "anye."

|| From "holydom" to "boke" has been altered to "holy contentes of this boke."

out.

Here folow^t the names of them that hath geue godes to the ffraternyte for per comen Halle

Goods given to the Gild by different persons.

Item, the Executores of Water Genys, a hertes hed, iij. pavys, a cofer, a mete cloth, a blac spere, and raylis for the halle.

Item, Water Genys hathe geven a medew, price the yerexiij.s. iiij.d.

Item, Jenet Hamlyn, a tabell bord, and xl.s. of mony.

Item, Deonyse Spyne, a chayre.

Item, Ysabell Rowse, a party gowne y-furred, and a tabell bord.

John Stoddon, a chayre.

John Tayler, hosier, a chayre and a planke.

Richard Berchere, a Benche and a payr of trestelles.

Water Kent, a payre of tabelles, and a penner, and a inke-horne, and ij. keyys for be wekett, aperipenseris.¹

[(1) Written, apipēbis. ?=a pair of pincers]

William Honte, of Coleford, for a met cloth of v. yardes long. James Harebotell, a fforme.

John Rowter, a copell of torches.

Cristoffer Gressch, halfe be cloth over be hye bench, paynted. John Ffollett gave in a salt-seller.

Item, Sr Bartolome Thomas, a masse-boke and ij. krewettes of sylver.

Annes Evelyng, a brasen krocke of ij. galons and more, a pache clowted in the brem wt laten.*

Item, a towell, by the gefte of Margery Chester.

Item a Bockesken colerd blacke, for kovery owre masse boke, by the gefte of Bawden Maynard.

Item a chayne for chayne a boke, by be gefte of Mawte Kent.

* By an odd coincidence, I find another of the Evelyn family recorded in connexion with a brass pot, or "crock" as it is here called. In the parish records of Kingston-on-Thames, under the year 1597, is the following entry :---- ' For bringing the town pot from Mr. Evelyn's, and scouring the same." See this quoted in "The Parish" (second edition), p. 518.

(8) EXAMPLES OF CONTROL BY THE GILD OVER MASTERS AND WORKMEN.

[1] M^d, that John Brendon the yonger werned stresse to Penalty for not the Master and Wardons, the euen of Synt John in harueste, theren on St. for he come nott to derge that same euen; ffor the wheche ffense he summytted him to the Master and Wardons, and made fyne of iij.li. of wex, the xvth day of October aº. E. iiijti, xixº.

meeting the bre-John's eve.

[2] M^d, that John Rowter rec^d iiij. yerdes of brod cloth, A customer complained that some blew, to make Master Robert Rydon a gowne; apoun the of the cloth given to a craftsman to wheche, the sayde Master Robert complayned of lackyng of his work up, was found wanting. clothe. And ther the gowne wasse sene before the sayde crafte; and ther wasse founde no cloth wasted, but ther wasse dewly The gild found proved iij. quarteris of brod clothe convayed in peces, as hit apereth by patrons of blacke paper in our Comen Kofer of patterns, in paper, record, at any tyme redy to shew, etc. ffor the sayde defense, the sayde John Rowter summetted hym to the Master and Wardons and to the felascheppe, the xxiiijth daye of October, anno regni E. iiijti, xixo.

that there had been no waste, as was proved by the which had been kept.

[3] M^d, that John Kartor rec^d iij. yerdes of brod clothe, russet, to make a longe gowne to Sr John Walkyngton; apoun the whiche the sayde Sr John complayned to the Master and Wardons of lackyng of hys clothe. And ther the gowne wasse ing. send for; and ther wasse found of bt cloth not stolen, but ther The master and wasse fowden cloth wasted a quarter of brod cloth for lacke of konnyng. And so ht ys juged, by be Master and Wardons, that the sayde John Kartor shall paye for the cloth to Sr John through the crafts Walkyngton, xi.s., and the gowne shall remayne w^t the sayde Kartor. And for the deffense, he hath summyttyd hym-selfe to be Master and Wardons and to the ffelaschepe, the iiijth daye keep the gown. of Janever, anno regni E. iiijti, xix.

A customer com. plained that some of the cloth given to a craftsman to make into a gown. was found want-wardens found that no cloth had been stolen, but that some had been wasted man's lack of skill

So he must pay for the cloth, and [4] Md, That John Walsche, aliis Kent, received of Edmond A customer com-Colchet vj. yerdes of blew used to make hym a gowne; and so gown was spoiled the sayde Edmond complayned of spoyllyng of hys gowne and plained that his and some of his cloth wanting.

21

It was found that no cloth was stolen, though the cloth was wasted and the gown marred. But the customer must take his remedy at law, as this are fteman was never a brother of this gild.

lackyng of his cloth. And so ther wasse fownd no cloth stolen. but ther wasse found wasted the valor of a verd, and the gowne marred : ffor the whech fense. the M. and Wardons juged b^{t} the savde Edmond shold take hvs avountage agavnese be savde John at the common law, ffor be sayde John wasse neuer amytted for a fre sower, and his M. disavoed hym b^t he wasse not his foreman.

Complaint by one tailor against another, for keeping a pewter pot. and for sewing a kirtle without sleeves, &c.

The master and wardens award that the latter must nav the so be released.

former 16d., and [5] M^d, that John Skeche. setsavne and tavlor, of the Cyte of Exceter, come before M. and Wardons, the xvi. day of Marche, aº regni Regis E. iiij^{ti}, xx^{ti}; and ther complayned vppon Willam Spicer, tayler, for wholding of a potell pot of pewter, paysing iiij^{ti}; Item, for sowvng of a kertell wtoute slevis, and for the stuffe of a coler, and settyng on. For the which fense aforesayde, the M. and Wardons hath awarded bt the sayde Willam shall pay on-to the savde John Skeche, in fvll content of all thyng, fro the begenyng of the world in-to this daye, xvj.d. And the sayd John Skeche shall relesse hym of all sewtes that be sayde Skeche hath a-yens the sayde Willam for all soche materis a-fore-wreten.

A master chastises his servant. Award made thereon, 21 Ed. IV.

The master and wardens of the gild adjudge, that the master shall pay the doctor's bill, the servant's board and heavy amends: as well as a fine to the gild. day of Jule, the yeere of the Reigne of Kyng Edward the iiijth, the xxjth, bitwene William Peeke and John Lynch his seruaunt; for that the said William un-lawfulli chasted hym, in brusyng of his arme and broke his hedd. And for that it was chuged, bi the said maister and wardons, that the said William Peeke shuld pay, for his leche-craifte, v.s.; and for his table, for a moneth, iiis, iiii.d.; and for amendis, xv.s.; and to the craift, xx.d., for a fyne for his mysbehaueng aynst the craift.

[6] Mª, of a-warde y-made bi the Maister and Wardons the xvith

Brendon and Matthu submitted matters in difference between them, to the judgment of the master and war dens.

[7] M^d, that won John Brendon the yonger was at Taylior halle, for a conlicacion be-twext John Matthu and the sayde John Breinldon the yonger, the xth day of October, the reign of Kyng E. the iiijth, the xxjti: and ther they were bond, in a requensaunce of xxti.li., to abyde the awarde and the termenacion of the Master and Wardenys in all suche matteris and variance as was betwene the sayde parties. That, not-wt-standyng, the But Brendon, notwithstanding sayde John Brende went to on Matthu Chub. and dis-klandered libelled Matthu. the sayde John Matthu, for sertavne langage that shull be sayde in counsavell in the Tavlior hall. Where-apon the savde John Matthu cleared Mathu as-kused hymsell, afore the Mavre of Exceter in the hellous charge. Yeld hall, wt ii. men sworvn apon a boke. Where-apon, the Brendon is held guilty of perjury. sayde John Brendon stode in a content avenst the sayde Master and Wardonys, to be prevyd perjored, and also to make amendes and is required to make amends to to the savde John Matthu after the distresse of the Master and Matthu. Wardonys forsavde.

[8] Md, of won John Tregaso, wiche was swone to the Master Tregaso was sworn and Wardonis of the fraternite of Tayloris of Sent John Battyst in the Cite of Exceter. That, not-wt-standyng, the sayde John Herenounced his come before on John at Well, that tyme beyng Mayre, and mayor. renonsed the sayde wothe, and was for sworyn on a crucefex. Where-a-poun, the sayde Master and Wardonis suyd the same The master and John a-poun a purgery : and so, be the mene of gentyl-men and money, they were made acorde, and new swaryn to the Master and Wardonys. And so the sayde John was send for, dyverse tymes, to com to durgeis, massis, and other dutyis, acordyng to But Tregaso did his othe; the wiche he absent hym-self wtowte cause resenable. Where-apon, the Master and Wardonys fett hym owte of his whereupon the howse, and brost hym to Tayleor Hall, and there put hym in a pere of stockys; and the keped hym by the space of a day and a nygte. Apon the wiche, John Mattheu and Thomas At last, two Penhale ware bownde to the Master and Wardonys in xx^{ti}.li. that the sayd John Tregaso shuld be of god beryng contynually fro this day forward, the xvijth day of October, the reign of Kyng E. the iiijth, the xxj^{ti}.

to the gild.

oath before the wardens charged him with perjury; but the matter was hushed up, and he again swore to the gild.

not fulfil his duties to the gild ; master and wardens put him in the stocks and kept him there for a day and night. sureties became bound for his better lehaviour in time to come. (9) FURTHER ORDINANCES, MADE 19 E. IV.

Here followith the Ordynons made by the Master and Wardons and the viij. men of the comon Cownsell, to the ffyndyng of a prest, the xxvj. day of September, ao regni E. iiijti. xixno.*

And over that, hit ys ordayned, by the Master and Wardons and the ffelascheppe forsayde, that every man that ys of the

A priest shall be maintained.

Every livery-man (not otherwise contributing) shall pay 12d. a year, for seven years.

Master-ys ffelascheppe shall paye, euery yere, to the ffyndyng of a preste, vij. yere folwyng, xij.d. excepte tho that hath geve of there awne ffrewill. And alle tho that beth Shoppeholders of the yemen fela-

Every shopholder shall pay 8d. a year, for seven years.

Every free sewer shall pay 4d. a year, for seven vears.

shall have his pay 6s. 8d. a year for seven vears.

priest.

scheppe, shall paye, euery yere in vij. yere, to the fyndyng of a prest, viij.d. And every fire sower shall paye, every yere vij. yere volwyng, to the flyndyng of a prest, iiij.d. And ouer that, hit ys ordeyned, by the Master and Wardons and the ffelascheppe fforsayde, that yf any persone a-foresayde hathe promysed any mony to the ffyndyng of a preste, and happe If any contributor become master, he that he be chosen Master, then he shall have his mony ayen, money back ; but and ffynde the preste vs tabell, or els paye euery yere, in vij. he shall find board for the priest, or vere volwyng, vij.s. viij.d. Here followith the names of them that hath y-promysed to List of voluntary contributors to the ffyndyng of a preste vij. yere volwyng :--the finding of the Jenet Hamlyn, by the yere,	vj.s. viij.d.

Ric. Ronwill, by the yere,	vj.s. viij.d.

* These ordinances bring out more clearly than is elsewhere done (though the same thing is implied in many places), that this Gild reckoned three classes; namely, (1) the Master and Wardens; and, it may be assumed, all who had passed those offices. The terms of the charter of 6 Ed. IV. seem to show that these only wore the Gild livery. Hence I call them "livery-men," - a distinction well known in the London Companies. Then there were (2) the shop-holders, or master-tailors, not yet advanced to the high places of the Gild. And, finally, there were the "free-sewers," or journeymen serving masters, and not yet become shopholders.

vj.s. viij.d.
vj.s. viij.d.
iiij. s .
iij.s. iiij d.
iij.s. iiij d.
iij.s. iiij.d.
iij.s. iiij.d.
iij.s. iiij.d.
iij.s. iiij.d.

(10) AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE PRIOR OF ST. NICHOLAS AND THE GILD OF TAILORS.*

To all trew Cristen men to whom this present writyng in- The condition dented shall come, John, Pryor of the Priory of Seynt Nicholas in the citee of Exceter, and of the same place the Covent, sendith grettyng, in the savoure of all thingis. As-where the maister and wardons of the fraternite of Taillors of Seint John de baptist in the Citee of Exceter, and theere successours, bi there writyng obligatory, are hoold and bond in xxti.li. of laifull money of Englond to us the foresaid Prioure and Covent, and oure successours. to be payed att the fest and place in the said wryting obligatory content, as in the same more playnli apperith, of the whiche the date is the xvii. day of August, the veere of the Reign of kinge upon which a Bond had been given by the gild.

The gild has given to the Prior and Convent of St. Nicholas a Bond for 201.

* This "writing indented" is, in fact, the Condition underwritten to a Bond. It differs somewhat in form from the usual underwritten Conditions to Bonds, which were even more common at that time than now. A Bond was then usually given, with the Charter of a grant of land, as an additional assurance to the title. The Bond itself is not recorded in this case; but it, and this underwritten Condition, were plainly parts of a transaction in which John Hamelyn and Joan his wife had given to the Gild a close of land in Tadyford, in consideration that the Gild would take care that prayers were said for the souls of the givers,-trusting, as again we see, rather to the Gild than to an ecclesiastical corporation. Compare before, p. 143. It is not the only instance of the kind recorded in these volumes of the Gild of Tailors of Exeter. Instances of this kind are of great importance, as enabling us to know thoroughly the true character of the English Gilds.

But if, after the death of John Hamelyn's wife, the gild cause services to be held, every year, for the souls of John and Joan.

and pay certain moneys to the prior and his monks.

lights, and for offerings and for ringing bells.

then the Bond shall be nought:

otherwise it shall be in full force.

Witness the seal of the gild, and the seal of the convent.

Edward the iiijth, the xxijti. Wee nerthelas, the forsaid Pryour and Covent, for us and oure successors, woll, and bi this present graunt, That if the said Maister and Wardons and here successors, after decesse of the said Johan Hamelyn, late the wyfe of John Hamelyn, Taillor, and sumtyme Mayre of the said citee, hoold or make to be hoold the obett of the said John Hamelyn and Johan his wyfe, in the cherch of Seynt Nicholas aforesaid, verely for evermore, ons a yeere, that is to weete, the xxvj. daye of Januarie ; To a diryggis bi the said Prioure and v. monkes of the place there to be sayed; And in the morowe masse of Requiem to be halowed : also, abowte the same obett, the said Maister and Wardouns, and there successors, euery yeere for euermore to dure, shall distribuett or make to be distribuett, of the rentes and profetts comvng of the said cloose of land in Tadyford, which the said Maister and Wardons late hadd of the gyfft and feffement of the foresaid Johan and others, for the same cause and entent.-That is to wete, To pave the Pryor of the same Priorve which for the tyme shalbe, vi.d.; and to euerych of the v. monkes which for the tyme shalbe, iiij.d., if thei bee thereatt; and if any of them fro thens then absent hym, nothyng shalbe geven to hym for that tyme, but it be of the commaundement of the Pryor there, in any speciall for the commodite and profitt of the said Priory lafulli y-occupyed : and others for wax- and also iij.d. for ij. prykettes of wax barnyng to the same obett ; and i.d of sylver in offering to the masse of Requiem aforesaid; and iiij.d. to them that shall rvng the bellis then there :---Iff forsoth the said maister, wardons, and theere successours, the premissis, as of there parti expressed and declared, hoold and trewly fulfill, and wtout any delaye perfourme, That then the said writyng obligatorie of xx^{ti}.li. shalbe hadd for nought. And if the said maister and wardons, and their successours, the premissis of ther parti nott fulfyll, then the said writyng obligatorye of xx^{ti}.li. shall abyde in his strength and vertu. In wittenysse wherof, aswell the commune seall of the said maister and wardons of the ffraternyte aforesaid, as oure Covent seale, to this presents alternatli beth putt. Yeven att Exceter, the xvijth daye of August, the yeere of the Dated, 17th August, 1482 reign of king Edward the iiijth, the xxijth.

(11) A NEW ORDINANCE MADE, 16 H. VII.

NEW ORDINANCES.

Md, that there was an acte made, by the Master and Wardyns An ordinance of and the viii. men of the occupacion, upon them that be men-ys journeymen shall seruaunts, and take wages by the yere, by the weke, or by the quarter, towards garnement, to paye, every quarter, a j.d., to help mayntayne the pryste and the wex att Myghelmas; the yere raynyng of [See before, p. 324] kyng Harry the vijth, the xvjo yere.

A p 1500 that pay a penny a maintaining the priest and the Michaelmaslights.

(12) GOODS IN THE GILD-HALL, 20 H. VII.

Here folwyth the ymplementes of the Taylor-ys halle, beyng wtyn the place yn the yere beyng Master of the occupacion Richard Chubb, aº regni Hi spti xxº, of Exceter.

Goods in the gild-hall in the year when Richard Chubb was master, A.D. 1504.

M^d, that ther remaynyth, fyrst yn the halle, a payntyed cloth In the hall, a at hye Desse; ij. lytell bynches by euery syde, on by the chymney, on navled to the walle; a planke tabell, wt ij. trestelles, att hye desse; a tabell yn the syde of the halle, and a furme; a bynch yn the yn-syde of the tabell : also, yn the in the parlour, a parler, a beddestede : also, yn the spence, a tabell planke, and ii. sylwes: also, yn the chamber next to halle, a longe coffer wtoute lockes or keyes, and a beddeste : also, yn the utter chamber, a bedde stede : also a brasse pott, [a plater of pewter, iiii. quarters of a wyolet gowne for a woman, a broche wt a fote, ii. new torches but lytell burde*], and iiij. yndes of torches; a streymer and a baner, a boxe wt iiij. ewydence, wt iij. other wretynges : and a seyalle of sylver of the brotherredyis.

painted cloth on the dais: two benches, a table with trestles. another table and a form, and an-other bench ; bedstead ; in the spence [buttery], a table and shelves; in the chamber next the hall, a coffer and a bed stead : in the outer chamber, a bedstead, a brass pot, a pewter platter, some women's gear, torches and torchends, a streamer and a banner. a box of deeds and writings, and the silver seal of the gild

(13) NEW ORDINANCES MADE, 8 H. VIII.

In the worschypp of god and owre lady, and Seynt John of Ordinancesof A.D. 1516.

* The words between brackets have been scratched through with a pen.

eild shall admit no shopholder to the oild, save in the presence of the wardens, or two of them at the least,

The master of the

and also of eight, or at least five, gild; and not without the assent of these wardens and past masters.

And if it be proved that any master has done against this ordinance, the admittance shall be void, and the master shall pay, out of his own goods, all costs and charges of whoever has been so wrongfully admitted.

All past masters shall be on the council of the gild, and have the same authority as the wardens

GILD OF THE TAILORS, EXETER.

Baptist, and for the more expedyant welth and prosperyte of the fraternyte and gyld and occupacyon and brotheredon of the tayllers in Excetere, and by the atoryty of dyvers letters patentes or charturs grauntid and confermyd by dyvers kynges of Ynglond. Be hit ordeynyd and stablyd, by be M. and Wardens, and be sent of be occupacyon and crafte of taillers, in be yere of owre lord god a M¹, v^c, xvJ., and in b^e viij^{the} vere of b^e Reayne of o^r most souerayne lord kyng Harry the viijth, for euer more to indure : after thys day, bt be master of the crafte of taillers, fro hensforth, schall neuer abell no man, noper amytt hym to be a schopholder of b^e same occupacyon or crafte a-bove-said, excepte he have w^t hym present, the same tyme whan he schall amytt hym or them bt schall so be amyttid or abeld fro hensforth for a schopholder, except he have present wh hym be wardens, or ij of be wardens, to be present, and to asentt wt hym, att be lest; and viij. of past masters of the them bt have byn masters of be crafte, or vij. or vj. or v. of them to be present, besydes be M. of the craft; and they v. to a-sentt w^t the M, and Wardens to b^e same ablyng, att b^e lest, as ys a-fore rehersyd. And yf be M. for the tyme beyng doo amytt or abell ony man, other-wyse than thys ordynans spesyfyth, so dewly > \flat^e M. and Wardens and the nomber of them \flat^t have be masters of be crafte, as ys by-fore rehersyd, and so doth asent ther-to, be same amyttyng to be voyd and in none affecte; and the same M. of the crafte b^t so amyttyth ony man, schall make hym restytusyon, of hys owne proper goodes, of all such costys and chargys as he hath be att bt so ys amyttyd contrary to thys ordynans as ys above said. And also b^t all they b^t have be M. of be crafte, or schal be M. of be crafte, after they have ons be M. of the crafte, they be and schalbe amytted for the cownsell of the crafte; and every man of them to be in lyke powre and attoryty, whan hyt schall plese be M. of be crafte for be tyme beyng to call them to hym; and they to stond and be in full attoryty and powre for be viij. men, and bey to make ordynances and good rullys to be kept and so forth :---So that the M. have wh hym viijth of them bt so have be > prouvd by the most part of the honyst men of the craft, byfore masters of be craft, or vij. or vj. or v. of them bt have be The master, and masters, as ys a-fore rehersyd, besydes hym-selfe, to asent wt at the least, and hym att the lest pt ys M. of the crafte, and pe wardens for pe tyme beyng, to be nomber and in lyke maner as ys afore admittance to the rehersyd, to be ablyng and amyttyng of a schopholder. And they schall stond and be in full powre and streynght to reforme And these may and redrese and stablysch and corecke and ponysch all such misbehaviour, mysbyhauvors and fauttes as haue be, or be nowe, or schalbe;

so bt the mysbyhauyor or fauttes byfore them be dewly after inquiry and examynyd and prouvd; so bt hytt may be for be more expedyantt welth and prosperyty of the fraternyte, gyld, and occapacyon, and brotheredon, as ys abowe said. And here volowyth be namys off them bt dvd a-sentt to thys ordynans before and in be xxiijd day of June, in the yere above said. In primis, John Brygeman, M. of be crafte, and stuard of the cety, be same yere; and M. Thomas Androw, latte Maire of be cety; M. Geffray Lewys, recever of be cety be same vere ; Master John Bradmore, late recever of be cety; M. Wyllam Peke, on of be xxiiijti of be cety; M. Wyllam Mathew, on of be xxiiijti of be cety: Gervys Buschant, some tyme stuard of be cete; [and many others whose names are recorded *].

(14) A NEW ORDINANCE MADE 23 H. VIII.

Orden^ance.

Be it enacted, the fest of Saynt Marke, the xxiijth yere of the Ordinance of A.D. raigne of King Henry the viijth, Thom's Hunt then beyng Every widow may Master, that every mannys wief, after the deth of hur husbond, beyng a taillor, shall kepe as many servaunts as they wille, to werke wt hur to hur use duryng hur widowhode, so she bere her lot; scotte and lotte, yeve and yeld, wt the occupacion. † And if 1 be 1531 employ as many workers as she will. while she keeps up the trade and pays her rates and bears

1 (sic.)

* The offices held by those whose names thus head the long list of assenters to these very clumsily worded ordinances, show the intimate relations that existed between the Gild and the Corporation of the City.

+ It has been seen that all shopkeepers were limited in the number of servants whom they might employ (before, pp. 315, 316.) So this was a valuable relaxation in favour of their widows.

five past masters wo at least of the wardens, mus assent to every deal with every proof as to such misbehaviour.

Assenters to these rdinances.

but if this is made a cover for irregular trading, then the widow and the workers shall all pay penalties. 1 (sic.)

proved that the same seruauntes do werke not to the only vse of his said Mastresse, but to his or their owne use, or any other mannys vse, beth the Mastresse and the seruauntes every of theym for euery¹—iij.s. iiij.d.

NOTE .- The three volumes, from the first of which the foregoing extracts have been made, contain an immense mass of entries, from the Sunday before Twelfth-day 17 E. IV. (A.D. 1477), up to the second quarter of the present nineteenth century. There are bodies of "Byelaws, Acts, and Ordinances," made so late as A.D. 1713 and 1716, bearing the signatures, in approval of them, of the Justices of Assize in those years. (See before, p. 210.) One of James the Second's unlucky Charters (17 October, 3 Jac. II.) was also granted to this Gild. But, while it is well to mention these facts in proof of the vitality of the Gild, the giving copies of those later documents would be beyond the scope of this work.

The extracts, of an earlier date, which I have received from the records of Exeter touching this Gild, beyond what I have here printed, are numerous; but, highly interesting and instructive as the story of this Gild is, it would have unduly swelled the treatment of it here to have given fuller details. The character of many of these extracts will be understood by what is stated before, pp. 302, 303.

(b) GILD OF THE CORDWAINERS.*

To all men that this presentez schall here or see, gretyng in oure lorde euerlastyng. Where as the Maister of the crafte of The Cordwainers cordynerez, of the fraternyte of the blyssed Trinyte, in the Cyte of Exceter, hath diverse tymez, in vmble wise, sued to the ances. honorable Mayor, bayliffs, and commune counsayle of the saide citee, for certayne ordinauncez and ruelles to be vsed win the jurisdiccion of the saide cite, concernyng the said crafte, vnder the favoure of the saide Maior, baylifs, and commune counsayle, in reformyng diuerse inconveniencez that ben down before this tyme, and here-after myght ensue, and for the conservacion of the politik gouernaunce of the same, to the lawde and honor of the saide fraternite of the blessyd Trynyte, and the wele of the kyng oure souerayg lordez people. Wherefore, Mayor bayllifs The Corporation and commune counsayle, consyderyng there desirez, wille and graunte that the Mayster and Wardenez of the sayde crafte schall envoye and vse suche ordinauncez and ruellez wythin the jurisdiccion of the saide cite as folowith.

grant the request.

ffirste, that the saide Maister and Wardenz, and their suc- The gild shall cessors, wt iij. othere men of the saide crafte convenient, schall all goods badly make due serche, att alle tymys, of euery thyng necessary perteynyng to there saide crafte, as by sufferaunce they have vsed make search for

* From the Rolls of the Mayor's Court of Exeter : Roll xix. of the year 21 and 22 E. IV. These interesting Rolls exist from 48 Henry III., A.D. 1264, to the beginning of last century. The present Ordinances show what a tight hand the Corporation of Exeter sought to keep upon the Gilds in that city. They enable us, therefore, the better to understand the anger and long-continued feud against so independent a body as the Tailors' Gild. The Cordwainers' Gild was, from the first, content to put itself under the condescending patronage of the Corporation. Izacke says that "the cordwainers and curriers were first incorporated by grant under the common seal of the city 21 R. II. (1387); which was confirmed 21 E. IV. (1481); and lastly 3 Marie, 1555." (Antiquities of Exeter, ed. 1724, p. 62.) The above extract is therefore the confirmation of 1481.

win the jurisdiccion of the saide cite ;* that is to wete, of all wete lethere and drye botez, botwez, schoez, pyncouz, galegez, and all other ware perteynyng to the saide crafte, made and unmade, whiche is desceyteously wrought, as in tannyng, coryyng, cuttyng, or sowyng, or in any other wyse made, where-thurgh the kynges lege peopell scholde be disceuyd; Bad goods shall be that then suche ware, so founde defectyf, to be by the saide Maister and Wardenz forfet and seased ; and that to be preysed

GILD OF THE CORDWAINERS,

forfeited :

and the produce shall go, half to the city and half to the gild.

Whoever is chosen master, and the gild.

will not serve, shall pay a fine half to go to the city, and half to lawfully in the Yeldehall of the saide cite ;- half of the same to be to the behough of the saide cite, and the other halfe to the behough of the saide fraternyte.

Also, where as they have a leccion a mongez the saide crafte, of a Mayster and Wardynz for the convenyent gouernaunce of the same; That he that is so by the saide fraternyte electe to be a Maister, and he wolde refuse to take the gouernaunce vppon hym, wherby a inordynatt ruell schulde ensue, that then he so electe, for his refusell, to paye xx.s.; wherof the half to be to the behough of the saide cite, and the other half to the behough of the saide fraternyte, as ofte as they so do offende.

Those chosen as shop-holders' wardens, and those as journeymen's wardens, shall, if they do not serve, pay fines; half to go to the city, and half to the gild.

Also, where as the saide ffraternite haue, by sufferaunce, to electe Wardynez of the saide crafte, for the yere folowyng, whereof ij. of theyme schalbe schoppeholders, and ij. other jorneymen, win the saide Cite; that if he so electe for the Wardyn of the schopholders, refuse to take vppon hym, to forfette xiij.s. iiij.d.; halfe thereof to the behough of the saide cite, and the other half to the behough of the saide firaternite, as ofte as hit schall so happen to offende. And if any of the Jornaymen of the saide crafte be electe Warden, refuse to take the office of Wardynschippe, that then they forfet vis. viii.d.; the one halfe to be to the behough of the saide cite, and the othere half to the behough of the saide firaternyte, as ofte as hit schall happen.

Also, if any person of the saide crafte, what degre or con-

* See what is said by Izacke, in the note on the foregoing page, as to the earlier grant of 1387.

dicion he be of, be warned, in resonable tyme, to come before whoever is summoned. and does the saide Maister and Wardynz, att there place acustumed, and not come, shall he so warned absent hym, and no resonable excuse hadd, that going to the city and half to the pay a fine, half then, for every defaute so donn, that thay schall pave for the gild. saide dissobedience iij.s. iiij.d.; the sayde cite to have the oone halfe, and the saide fraternyte the othere half.

Also, that no maner of man, what condicion he be of, of the No craftsman shall keep a shop, saide crafte, holde no open schoppe w^tin the jurisdiccion of the unless free of the city, under penalty saide cite, butte he be a firaunchised man, accordyng to the togo half and half as before. olde custumez conteyned in the blake rolle of the saide cite, uppon payne of vj.s. viij.d.; half to the behough of the saide cite, and the othere half to the behough of the saide fraternyte.

Also, that no maner of man of the saide crafte, dwellyng win No craftsman the jurisdiccion of the saide cite, as well in the suburbis as in livery of any lord or other gentlethe cite, were none lordes levery ne other gentilman-is, uppon man, under payne of vi.s. viijd.; the half thereof to the behough of the saide divided as before. cite, and the other half to the saide fraternyte.

be paid to the gild-wax for every fresh workman taken on by a eraftsman.

shall take on shall wear the penalty, to be

Also, that if any schopholder of the saide crafte within the Four pence shall saide cite, set any man aworke by the space of a monyth, and then the straunger to pave iiii.d. to the wax of the saide fraternyte; and that he that so settyth hym aworke schall awnswere the saide iiij.d.

Also, that no man of the sayde crafte in the saide cite, sette No craftsman no man a-worke that is retevignde in any man-ys service, on the another man's servant, under tyme that he be had, in examinacion before the saide Maister, penalty, to be divided as before. Wardyns, and felisshipp, to understond the departure of hym; and if any do the contry, he to forfette vi.s. viii.d.; the halfe thereof to the behough of the saide Cite, and the othere half to the behough of the saide fraternyte.

And also, if any man of the said mystere, of what degree or Penalty on every condicion he be of, that suche summys of mony as he or thave his share towards bene sett for to paye, for the sustentacion of the Prest and of chapel. there chapell, after ons warned, and refuse to paye hys duty, he to lose, for every defauut, xl.d.; and that every Maister answere Heshall beanswerfor his servauntz to the same, vppon the same payne : the vants also.

man not paying the priest and the able for his ser-

Half the penalty to the city, and half to the gild.

All the powers of the gild shall be surrendered, every year, to the Corporation; and a fine shall be paid for the renewal of them.

forfett whereoff, the one half to grow to the Cyte, the other half to the saide ffraternyte.

Provided alleway, that the saide Maister and Wardons of the said Mistere, shall come, euery yere, on-to the Yeldhall of the said cite, the nexte Moneday vppon the Eleccion of the new Maier, Baillifs, and other offycerres of the saide Cite ; and ther, by the payment of iiii.d., to surrendre all there sayde power on-to the saide Maier Bailifs and communalte ; and then and there to take and resume hit, by the new Maier-ys graunte, of the saide cite, accordyng to the saide enrollement vnder his seale of office, without any fees there-for to be payed; provyded all-so, that the liberteis of the saide cyte, francheis, and old vsuages, allwaye be savyd, and yn no wyse interrupte by the saide graunte.*

These ordinances are enrolled among the records of the city.

And that this saide ordynauncez and constitucionz, wt othere convenyent rewlis as accordyth wt reason, schall be ferme and stable, we the saide Maior bailifs and commune counsayle haue lette enroll hit in a roll, beryng date the Munday next after the ffeste of the Purificacion of oure lady, yn the xxj^{ti} yere of the reynyng of the kyng our souerayg lord, kyng Edward the iiijth, amongez the recordez of the saide cite.

(c) GILD OF THE BAKERS.[†]

To alle men that this presentez schall here or see, gretyng in oure lorde euerlastyng. Where-as the Maister and Wardons of The Bakers ask the Corporation to

> * The intense jealousy cherished by this Corporation towards all Gilds, could not be more strongly shown than by this extraordinary requisition. that a yearly surrender should be made of all this power and authority of the Gild. And for this yearly humiliation, the Gild had to pay to the corporation a fine, besides the half of all payments received by it! It was thus without any really independent existence whatever. The Tailors' Gild never submitted to anything of the sort, but took up "swerdis and daggariis" rather, in maintenance of their independence. See before, p. 303. Terms so hard as these were not imposed even on the Bakers. See the Gild next following.

> + From the Rolls of the Mayor's Court of Exeter : Roll xix. of the year 22 Ed. IV. to 1 Richard III.

the crafte of Bakers, of the fraternite of oure blissed Lady and let them have Seynt Clement, in the Cite of Exceter, hath diuerse tymez, in vmble wise, sued to the honorable Maior, Baillyffs, and Commune counsayle of the said Cite, for certayne ordinauncez and ruellez to be vsed withyn the Jurisdiccion of the said cite, concernyng the said crafte, vnder the ffavoure of the said Maior, Bailyffs, and commune counsayle, in reformyng diuerse inconvenientez that bene down before this tyme, and here after myght ensue, and for the conservacion of the politick gouernance of the same, to the lawde and honor of the said firaternite of oure blissed lady and seynt Clement, and the wele of the kyng our soueraygn lordez people. Wherefor, the Maier, Bailyffs, and The Corporation grant the request. Comen counsayle, consyderyng ther desyrez, wille and graunte that the Maister and Wardenez of the said crafte shall enjoye and vse suche ordinauncez and ruellez withyn the jurisdiccion of ffirste, that the said crafte and Mistere shall, euery yere, hold An annual feast shall be kept. and kepe ther ffest of theyre solempnite of theyre Brotherhede, in the Monastery and Churche of Seynt Nicholas withyn the said cite, other in any other convenient churche withyn the same, yn the ffeste of the Nativite of oure blessid Lady, for the welfare and gode prosperite of all the Brothern, Susterne, gode helpers, welwyllers, Maitenors, and socorourris, of the said fraternite, yerely to be continued.

EXETER.

the said cite as folowith.

And also, for a gode and an ordinate reule to be kept and A master and two vardens shall be continued amongis them, that they schalle, ons yn the yere, that chosen every year. is to wete yn the said fest of oure Lady, or the morne vppon, chese theym iij. of the said crafte, of the most abilist persons, on to be Maister, and the ij. other to be Wardens of the said crafte, for the yere folwyng, for the polletik reule and gouernaunce to be kept among theym, yn the leve of ther mony, and all other thyngis belongyng to the said firaternite; and the said A yearly account Wardons for to accompe yerely of all the reuenowis of the same.

all be rendered.

And moreouer, that all Dowers of the Cite, and suburbis of All corn shall be ground at the city the same, grynd att the Cite-is myllis, and noo where els, as mills, so long as those using flour can get enough thence.

Twelve pence shall be paid for every fresh workman taken on by a craftsman ; half to the city, and half to the gild; unless the man have been an apprentice to the craft. No craftsman shall entice away any man's apprentice or servant, or keep one who has left his master; under penalty; half to go to the city, half to the gild.

long as they mey have sufficiaunt grist, vppon such paynys as of old be ordned and provided yn that be-halffe.*

And also whoo-so-euer of the said crafte set ony servaunt yn occupacyon of the said crafte ouer iiij. wekys and o day, to forfete xij.d. as ofte as ony so doth ; halfe to the said Cite, and the oder halfe to the sustentacion of the said ffraternite; yn-lesse then he hafe be aprentise of the said crafte.

And that none of the said crafte slocke ony man-is prentise or verely seruaunt of the said crafte, or socoure or maynteyne ony suche, any aprentise, or yerely seruaunt, goyng or brekynge away fro his Maisterres covenaunt, vppon payne of xl.d. as ofte as ony of the said crafte schall hapon to be founde yn suche a defauute ; halfe of the said payne to be enployed to the vse of the said cite, and the oder halfe to the sustentacion of the said firaternite.

Whoever, being summoned, does not come to the several meetings named, shall pay a fine; half to go to the city, half to the gild.

And also, yf ony man of the said crafte and firaternite, vppon iij. dayes warnying, make defaute or lacke to come to the said ffeste, eliccion of theire said Maister and Wardenes, to theyre generall obete, masse, and dirigesse, to be hold ons yn the yere for the sawles of brederyn and susteryn passed oute of this world, and also to the audite to be made and hold ons yn the vere, to pay, as ofte as he so maketh defaute, xij.d.; halfe to be enployed to the vse of the said Cite, and the oder halfe to the sustentacion of the said firaternite.

The wardens, with a city officer, shall make search for all breaches of the law.

be made to the Mayor's Court every Monday.

with the goods forfeited; which city, half to the

gild.

And also, thath the Wardenes of the said crafte haffe fulle powere to make serche, with one of the officeris of the cite, as well vppon thoo that byeth mele contrary to the custume of the cite, as vppon gode paste to be made acordynd to the sise, as vppon all oder defavtys. And thath that ys forfetabell, to forfete hitt; and to presente the same fautys every Monday to the Presentments shall courte, with the said forfetoures; and the same forfetoures to be employed halfe to the said cite, and the oder halfe to the said shall go, halt to the ffraternite.

> * Clearly therefore, in this case, as in that of the Cordwainers, there had been earlier ordinances; and there can be little doubt that there was a Bakers' Gild in Exeter before the date of these ordinances.

EXETER.

Also, thath the Wardones of the said crafte hafe full power to search shall be make serche, with a sergent, att all hoggesters houses with-yn houses, for bread the Jurisdiccion of the said Cite, vppon alle forenes brede broght town.

to the same ; and the same forenerres brede ther so founde to forfete hit; and the same forfetes to presente hit, immediatly, on-to the Maier and Bailyffs; takyng halfe to the vse of the mayor and builifis; said cite, and the oder halfe to the vse of the said ffraternite.

And thath all Bakers of the said Cite, and suburbis of the same, make butt ij. horselofys to a peny, and of clene beanys,* vppon payne of xij.d. as ofte as ony doth yn contrary ; halfe to the vse of the said cite, and halfe to the vse of the said ffraternite.

Also, that no man set vp the crafte of bakyng from hens- No baker shall be forth, with-yn the said Cite, or subbarbis of the same, on-lees that he be a franchessid man, and habelyd by the said Maister and Wardones; vppon pyne of xl.s., halfe to the cite, and the oder halfe to the said ffraternite.

Provided allway, thath yf ony of the said articlis be contrary Anyarticle of these to the liberte of the said cite, or old custumes of the same, thath trary to the city hit be reformabyll and corrigabill by the Mayre, Bailiffs, and the comen counsayle of the citee. Provided also, thath this graunte This grant does hafe non effecte with-oute the jurisdiccion of the Cite, but onely the city; with [in] the liberties of the same. Provided alway, that all and no city custom theis articlis ne noone of them be noe wise deregatory, prijudi- it. ciall, ne contrary vnto the liberties and customys of the said Cite, and the comyn wele of the same.

And inseigne and tokyn of all the said articles as bene aboue The mayor's seal put to these rehersed, shall by de ferme and stable, the seale of offise of the articles, Mairalte of the Cite of Exceter here-vnto is putte. Yeuen the on 10th February, A.D. 1483 xth day yn the monyth of ffebruarii, yn the yere of the raign of oure soueraign lord kyng Edward the iiijth, xxiiti.

* Elsewhere, the horse-loaf was made of "al maner of corn." See after. as to horse-bread, Note to Usages of Winchester, p. 366. [L. T. S.]

made, at hucksters made outside the

Such bread is forfeited : and must be preand the city shall have half, and the gild half. Horse-loaves shall be made two for a penny, of clean beans : otherwise a fine. which goes, half to the city, and half to the gild.

allowed in the town, unless a freeman, and also one of the gild ; under heavy penalty; half to the city, and half to the gild.

ordinances conliberties, shall be reformed.

not reach beyond can be lessened by 22

XVIII.

BERWICK-UPON-TWEED.*

Statutes of the Gild, ordained by the pleasure of the Burgesses : so that, where many Bodies are found side by side in one place, they may become one, and have one will, and, in the dealings of one toward another, have a strong and hearty love.

* The original of these ordinances is not known to exist in Berwick. It by no means follows that it does not exist there; for neither the "Olde Vsages" of Winchester, nor the Gild Ordinances of Exeter, which are here printed from the originals (see before, p. 299, and after, p. 349), were known to exist in those old cities of renown, till I asked for search to be made in both places, my reasons being given for thinking they must exist there, together with the indications by which each might be known,-my wishes being, happily, in both cases cordially seconded by the corporate authorities of those ancient cities. Having been informed by the town clerk of Berwick that these ordinances are not in the archives of his borough, and, moreover, that they never were there (which is of course a mistake), I have not thought it necessary to pursue the search, because (1) these ordinances are not in English, and so do not give us a sample of the local tongue then spoken in Berwick; and (2) they have already been twice printed, and one of these prints, though not following as closely as I could wish the Latin original (for no Latin was written and spelled in the thirteenth century as it is there given), is sufficiently reliable for the use made of it here. This print will be found in Houard's "Traités sur les coutumes Anglo-Normandes, publies en Angleterre, depuis le onzième jusqu'au quatorzième Siècle" (Rouen, 1776), vol. ii. pp. 467-487. An imperfect copy of the ordinances, printed, moreover, with inexcusable carelessness, though avowedly taken from Houard, is given in Dr. Wilda's "Das Gildenwesen im mittelalter" (p. 376); and it is the only sample he gives of gild ordinances. But, most strangely, he leaves out, from beginning to end, the titles of the ordinances. These are always valuable, in every case where they are found, as giving the authentic substance of what, when set forth at length, is sometimes obscure. I give these titles here, and a short summary of each ordinance.

BERWICK-UPON-TWEED.

(I) Una Generalis Gilda observari debet.

All separate gilds, heretofore existing in the borough, shall be Thereshall be only brought to an end. The goods rightfully belonging to them town. one gild in the shall be handed over to this gild. No other gild shall be allowed in the borough. All shall be as members having one head, one in counsel, one body, strong and friendly.

(2) De forisfactis Gilde.

All fines of above eight shillings, saving king's taxes and Common fines what belong as of right to the provosts, shall go to the gild- stock of the gild. stock.

(3) De legatis relinquendis Gilde.

Bretheren of the gild shall, if they leave anything by Will, Bretheren shall bequeath something to the gild.

bequeath something to the gild, if they make Wills

(4) De recipiendis in Gildam post testamenta ab illis facta.

Any one, not a brother, bequeathing goods to the gild, shall Men, not being be treated as a brother, and shall have what help the gild gives to bretheren.

bretheren of the gild. making a bequest to it, shall have the benefit of the gild.

(5) De pænå confratrum delinquentium verbo contra alium.

Any brother using foul words to another while going to, at, or coming back from, a gild-meeting, shall pay forty pence to another, he shall the gild. If he does it again, not only a second and a third, but repetition, shall be a fourth time, he shall be punished and make amends as the Alderman, Ferthingmen, Dean, and other bretheren think right.

If a brother is foul-mouthed to be fined; and, on further punished.

(6) De injuriâ reali confratrum Gilde.

If one strikes another, he shall pay half a mark to the gild, Heavy fines shall and make amends also. If blood is drawn, he shall pay twenty hurt done. shillings, besides such amends as the Alderman, Ferthingmen, Dean, and the rest, think right, and this without any abatement. If any one brings a pointed weapon to the gild, he shall pay Weapons shall not twelve pence to the gild.

be paid for bodily be brought to gild meetings.

BERWICK-UPON-TWEED.

(7) De mingentibus ad parietes Gilde.

"Commit no Nuisance.'

Whoever makes any mess at the gate of the Gild-hall, or against the walls while the gild is holding meeting, shall pay four pence to the gild.

(8) De precio recipiendorum in Gildam.

None shall be taken into the gild without paying at least Payments by newforty shillings, saving the sons and daughters of gildmen. comers into the gild, not being sons or daughters of gildmen.

(9) De relevatione confratrum.

Help shall be given to poor and a ling bretheren.

Whoever shall fall into old age or poverty, or into hopeless sickness, and has no means of his own, shall have such help as the Alderman, Dean, and Bretheren of the gild think right, and such as the means of the gild enable to be given.

(10) De relevatione filiarum Gilde.

Doweries shall be given to poor maidens.

If any brother die, leaving a daughter true and worthy and of good repute, but undowered, the gild shall find her a dower, either on marriage, or on going into a religious house.*

(11) De subsidio in sepulturis.

Poor bretheren

Whoever dies without leaving means enough to pay for the cost of the gild. becoming burial rites, shall be buried at the cost of the gild.

(12) De relevamine confratrum pro crimine vexatorum.

Help shall be given to bretheren charged with wrong-doing.

If a brother is charged, on a matter of life or limb, outside the borough, two or three gildmen shall help him, at the cost of the gild, for two days : afterwards, it must be at the brother's cost. If the brother has been rightly charged, he shall be dealt with as the Alderman and Bretheren think well.

(13) De eo qui Gildam negligit.

Burgesses who disclaim the gild shall not be helped by it.

If any burgess treat the gild with disdain, no brother shall give him any help, by word or deed, either in or out of the borough, whether he be under charge touching life or limb, or whether he be in worldly trouble.*

* Compare an ordinance identical in spirit, though not in words, in the Ludlow Gild, before, p. 194.

(14) De pænâ non venientium ad Gildam.

Whensoever the Alderman, Ferthingmen, and Dean summon All bretheren shall a meeting, to deal with the affairs of the gild, every brother at the sounding of shall come, at the sounding of the trumpet, under penalty of the trumpet. twelve pence.

(15) De leprosis.

No leper shall come within the gates of the borough; and if No lepers shall one gets in by chance, the serjeant shall put him out at once. borough, a place If one wilfully forces his way in, his clothes shall be taken off kept up outside the town. him and burnt, and he shall be turned out naked. For we have already taken care that a proper place for lepers shall be kept up outside the town, and that alms shall be there given to them.

(16) De fimis reponendis.

No one shall lay upon the banks of the Tweed, within the No dung nor dustheaps shall be put marks there set up, any dung or dust-heaps, so as to be a near the banks of he Tweed. nuisance to those living near. Whoever does so, shall pay eight shillings.

(17) De taciturnitate in curia gilde.

While causes are being tried, no one shall speak, except the "Silence in the plaintiff and defendant, and their counsel, and the bailiffs who hold the court, under penalty of eight shillings.

(18) De equis confratrum gilde.

Every burgess worth forty pounds shall keep a horse worth Every well-to-do burgess must keep twenty shillings. If it dies or is sold, he must get another a horse. within forty days, or pay eight shillings sterling.

* The sense of this may be misunderstood unless I give the original words, which are as follows :-- "Si quis burgensium nostrorum hanc confraternitatem nostrorum contumaciter neglexerit, nullus confratrum nostrorum ei consilium vel auxilium, verbo vel facto, infra burgum vel extra, ministrabit, aut si super periculo vitæ et membrorum placitatus fuerit, aut in aliquo onere terreno incurrerit "

341

(10) De molendinis manualibus.

Hand-millsare not to be used.

[See Ord. 42.]

No one shall grind wheat or other grain in hand-mills, unless through urgent need. The miller must have his share,-the thirteenth part for grain, and the twenty-fourth part for malt.

(20) De emptione lance, coriorum, et pellium.

No townsmen shall trade in wool or hides unless he is free of the gild; but strangermerchants may do 80.

No one, not being a brother of the gild, shall buy wool, hides, or skins, to sell again, or shall cut cloths, save stranger-merchants in the course of trade. Such a one shall have neither Lot nor Cavil with any brother.

(21) Nullus confrater dabit pecuniam suam mercatori extraneo.

Underhand dealings in the way of trade shall be nunished.

Any brother of the gild advancing money to a stranger-merchant, and sharing profits thereon, shall be fined forty shillings the first, the second, and the third time; and, if it be done a fourth time, he shall be put out of the gild. And in the same way shall any brother be punished who takes money from a stranger-merchant for such kind of trading.

(22) De emptione mercium, que in navi advehuntur.

The market shall not be forestalled as to ship-borne goods.

This ordinance regulates, in five clauses, the sale of the common sea-borne articles of food. The substance of it is, to hinder forestalling the market, and to ensure fair sales.

(23) De mercibus vitiosis.

If any one buys goods, misled by false top samples, amends As to goods that are fa r-looking at top and bad below. must be made.

(24) De pretio mutonum.

The price of mutton through. out the year.

Mutton shall not be sold from Easter to Whitsuntide, at dearer than sixteen pence the carcase ; from Whitsuntide to the feast of St. James [July 25th] at dearer than twelve pence; thence to Michaelmas, at dearer than ten pence; thence to Easter, at dearer than eight pence. Whoever breaks this assise, shall pay a fine of eight shillings.

(25) De carnificibus mercatoribus.

No butcher, while he follows that calling, shall buy wool or Butchers shall not speculate in wool hides.* or hides.

(26) De Brasiatricibus.

No woman shall sell ale, from Easter till Michaelmas, at The price that alewives may charge. dearer than twopence a gallon; nor, from Michaelmas till Easter, at dearer than a penny. And the names of the ale-wives shall be registered.[†]

(27) De Broccariis.

Brokers shall be chosen by the commonalty of the town, and Brokers shall be chosen by the shall every year, at Michaelmas, give a cask of wine to the town. commonalty. and their names shall be registered.

(28) De Regratariis.

No huckster shall buy fish, hay, oats, cheese, butter, or any Goods for conthings sent to the borough for sale, before the stroke of the bell in the bell-tower of Berefrid. If any one does this, the goods shall be seized, and shall be given to the poor.[±] sumption shall not be bought up by hucksters before the bell rings.

(29) De Anticipatoribus fori.

Goods shall not be bought up before they reach the market. Forestalling of the Goods so bought up, shall be forfeited to the gild. be allowed.

market shall not

(30) De ementibus lanam et coria.

No married woman shall buy wool; nor shall any burgess wool and hides shall not be inhave more than one buyer of wool and hides. Whoever ungrossed by a few buvers. reasonably ingrosses such goods out of the market, shall forfeit them to the gild, and pay a fine of eight shillings.

* The original of this ordinance is curious in its terms :-- "Nullus carnifex, donec voluerit suum officium exercere, emat Lanam aut Coria, nisi velit abjurare Securim suam, et manum Bestiis non apponat."

+ Much heed was given, by the old law of England, to the price and quality of ale. Berwick seems to have made no exception to this. See Ordinance (39) on p. 345. [L. T. S.]

‡ For the fate of hucksters in Exeter, offending in the matter of bread. see before, p. 337.

(31) Nemo procuret forinsecum in placito contra vicinum.

No burgess shall get an outsider to plead for him against No burgess shall proceed against a a neighbour, under penalty of a cask of wine. neighbour by help of an outsider.

(32) De conspiratoribus contra gildam.

The gild shall be one and undivided.

alty of Berwick shall be ruled.

Whoever tries to scatter or to split up the gild, shall pay a cask of wine.

(33) De qubernatione communitatis.

The affairs of the borough shall be managed by twenty-four How the commondiscreet men of the town, chosen thereto, together with the Mayor and four Provosts. Whoever of the twenty-four, having been summoned over-night, fails to come to a meeting, shall pay two shillings.

(34) De electione majoris et prepositorum.

The Mayor and Provosts shall be chosen by the commonalty.

The Mayor and Provosts shall be chosen by the whole commonalty. If there is any doubt as to the choice, the matter shall be settled by the twenty-four burgesses whom, as abovesaid, the Commonalty have chosen.

(35) De revelatione consilii contra sacramentum.

Bewrayers of the gild shall be heavily punished.

Whoever bewrays the counsel of the gild, shall, for the first time, be punished as the Alderman and others think fit. The second time, he shall be put out of the gild for a year and a day. The third time he shall lose the gildship for ever. And be it known that, not only in this borough, but throughout the realm, he will thus become an outlaw and infamous.

(36) De chirothecariis et pellipariis.

No glover nor skinner shall cut wool during the summer months

No skinner nor glover, nor any one else, shall cut wool from any skins between Whitsuntide and Michaelmas, but all skins shall be sold as they are. Any glover or skinner doing otherwise, shall pay a cask of wine to the gild.

(37) De participatione halecum emptorum inter confratres.

Whoever buys a lot of herrings, shall share them, at cost Buyers of herrings shall share and price, with the neighbours present at the buying. Any one not share alike. present, and wanting some, shall pay to the buyer twelvepence for profit.*

(38) De cariagio vini.

This ordinance regulates the manner of carrying wine-casks The carriage of wine.casks. and the charges for such carriage.

(39) De brasiatricibus ementibus avenas.

No woman shall buy [at one time] more than a chaldron of Too much beer must not be made oats for making beer to sell.

(40) De tempore emendi animalia.

This ordinance is pointed against the forestalling of the Butchers shall not forestall the market by butchers, in the way of buying up beasts unfairly. market.

(41) De venditione corii tannati.

Tanned leathers, brought in by outsiders, must be sold in open Leathers must be sold in open market, and on market day. market.

(42) De Molis.

No one shall have more than two pair of mill-stones.

Two pair of millstones are enough for anybody.

(43) De Lot et Cavil.

No brother of the gild ought to go shares with another in Local custom as to sharing goods less than a half quarter of skins, half a dicker of hides, and two bought. stones of wool.+

* This ordinance is curiously the same in spirit, though on so different a subject-matter, with one of the Gild of Joiners and Carpenters in Worcester. See before, p. 210.

+ The original words are, "Nullus confrater nostræ debet habere Lot neque Cavil cum alio," &c. The meaning of the word "cavil" clearly appears to be part or share. See Halliwell's Archaic Dict.; and Spelman's Glossary, word " Lot," where a bye-law is quoted much like the Berwick one (20) above,-"quod nullus burgensis rure manens habet lot neque 345 sea-borne goods. 1 (sic.)

346

(44) De loco et tempore emendi mercimonia in navi delata.

Sea-borne goods must be bought "at the Bray," and must be carried away between sun-rise and sun-set, under penalty of a cask of wine.*

(45) De amerciamenta extraneorum mercatorum.

Dues from foreign merchants go to the gild-stock.

All payments by foreign merchants shall go to the gild-stock and the borough fund, save what is due to the Crown.

(46) Non licet foris-habitantibus emere vel vendere nisi in die fori.

Out-dwelling bretheren of the gild must deal in the town on market days. No burgess nor out-dwelling brother shall buy or sell in the town any goods belonging to the gild, save on market-day. And no out-dwellers shall buy up victuals coming by ship to the town, under penalty of a cask of wine.

It took up five days to treat of and to settle these ordinances. The dates of these days are given. Two of them fell in A.D. 1283: the three others in 1284.

cavil cum burgensibus inhabitantibus." The phrase is thus equivalent to the modern "part nor lot" (see Acts viii. 21).

The use of this word may throw some light upon the true meaning of the discussed phrase "scot and lot," about which my Father had no doubt whatever. The words of the oath given before, p. 189, "I shalbe redy at scott and lotte, and all my duties truly pay and doo," do but strengthen and confirm the interpretation given by him, and which was corroborated by the conviction that within this homely phrase was contained the essence of English independence. The following was printed in "The Parish" (2nd ed. p. 474): "What follows from being one of the Body of a Parish is, the liability to two distinct things. . . . These two things are, bearing lot and paying scot. That is to say ;-each inhabitant is bound to fulfil such personal duties, for and on behalf of the whole Body, as shall be allotted to him by that whole Body : he is also bound to pay his share of scot (shot) towards every general tax. The Offices [Parish offices] already named illustrate the former of these liabilities. All Parish Rates (and not any one of these in particular) illustrate the latter." I may add, that the words are employed in the same sense in "An Historical Essay on the English Constitution," published in 1771, pp. 20, 21, &c. [L. T. S.]

* This, like several of these ordinances (e.g. 22, 28-30, 40), is directed against forestalling and to ensure fair trade. See after, p. 353. [L. T. S.]

GILDS AND MUNICIPAL BODIES

PE OLDE VSAGES OF PE CITE OF WYNCHESTRE, PAT HAUE BE Y-VSED IN PE TYME OF OURE ELDERNE:

ORDINAUNCES, CONSTITUCIONS, AND ARTICLES OF THE

CYTE OF WORCESTRE;

FROM THE ORIGINAL RECORDS.

THE OFFICE OF THE MAYOR OF BRISTOL;

THE COSTOMARY OF THE MANNOR OF

TETTENHALL REGIS;

FROM AUTHENTIC COPIES OF THE ORIGINAL RECORDS.

THE documents printed in this Part throw great light upon the relations between the old Gilds and the self-governing Local Commonalties as Municipal Bodies. Already much has been seen of this, in dealing with the Gilds of Beverley, Birmingham, Bristol, Berwick, Exeter, &c. In those cases, the Gilds were the stand-point. In what follow, the Municipal Body is, in each case, the stand-point. As a general rule, the result is found to be one of harmony, and not of antagonism, between the Municipal Bodies and the Gilds.

In the first three of the very interesting documents which follow, the Gilds are expressly named, and their connection with the Municipal Body is more or less clearly seen. In the last, the Costomary of Tettenhall Regis, we have an important proof of how much of the spirit of the old Gilds lived on, notwithstanding the iniquitous plunder and subversion of them, under colour of an Act of Parliament, in the time of Edward VI. The tenants of the manor, who were a thoroughly self-governing Body, in shaping their bye-laws adopted many regulations of the same class as what are found in the more important of the old Gilds. The document is one of very special and instructive interest to those who would understand the real basis of free institutions.

I have to thank the Mayor, Council, and Town Clerk of Winchester for their liberal courtesy in placing the highly-interesting and valuable Roll of their "old usages" in my hands for the purpose of this work.

In the same manner am I indebted to the Corporation and to the Town Clerk of Worcester, for entrusting me with the four original volumes of Records from which I have here made large extracts (see before, p. 200. note).

Not to the Corporation of Bristol do I or any reader of this volume owe any thanks. We owe these, as already stated, to the liberality of a private gentleman (see before, p. 283, note).- But see after, p. 428. L. T. S.]

As to the Costomary of Tettenhall Regis, I owe a double debt of thanks: first, to Mr. T. W. Cooper, of Hall Farm, Hampton in Arden, who kindly sent to me, unasked, a very old (but not quite complete) copy of the Costomary ; and secondly, to Mr. Neve, of Wolverhampton, the Lord of the Manor of Tettenhall Regis, who, hearing that I proposed to print this document, sent to me the earliest Rolls of the Manor in his possession. together with several ancient deeds, and a complete copy of the Costomary of which Mr. Cooper had already sent me an earlier, but not quite complete copy.

[Attention must be called to the 13th century French version of the Winchester "Usages" printed in the Archaeological Journal, vol. ix. p. 69; comparison with which is valuable for the understanding of both versions. See before, p. xlvi. L.T.S.]

DESE BEN DE OLDE VSAGES OF DE CITE OF WYNCHESTRE, DAT These usages have HAUED BE Y-VSED IN DE TYME OF OURE ELDERNE, BETH AND SHOLLE BE TO bE FRAUNCHYSE SAUY AND SUSTEYNEY.

been, and will be, good for saving and sustaining the franchises of the City of Winchester.

four and-twenty bat is to wetvnge, bat ber be, in be town by-fore y-sevd, The Mayor shall be chosen every Meyre, y-chose by be comune grauntynge of be foure and year, by the fourand twenty sworn twenty y-swore and vf^1 [be] commune, principal sosteynere of men and the commonalty. be fraunchyse; weche mayre be out-put fram zere to zere. ' (sic.) And wych meyre ne vndurfonge no playnte ne no play by hym, ne pleydy of binges bat toucheb the rewle of be town.

Off be heuedes of be Cite, sholde be foure and twenty y-swore, There shall be in stede of be meste gode men and of be wyseste of be town, Sworn Men,* for a council to help for to treuleche helpe and counseyle be forsaid meyr, for to the Mayor; who shall attend him saue and susteyne be fraunchyse. Weche foure and twenty on summons. sholde, to be comenable somaunse of be forseyde meyre, come. And aif hij be bennes, by-bowte ryatful enchesoun, euerych by hym-selue be in mercy of one besaunt, to be profit of be Citee at eche tyme.

* Men having local duties were heretofore very often known as "sworn men," as in this case In "The Parish" (second ed, pp 69, 70) I have cited several instances of this, from the time of the Inquisitiones Nonarum (A.D. 1340) down to that of James I. It should be here remarked that the various officers enumerated in the first five paragraphs of these "Usages" do not include all the men of authority that were then known in the city. There was a Town Clerk, who will be found often named in these Usages. There were also Aldermen, who had important duties, as is well illustrated in the last of these Usages, whereby the "Alderman of be stret" is bound to take a view of premises in certain cases, where the owner of a house is so unhappy as to be unable either to get his rent or find goods to distrain upon.

There shall be two Bailiffs, who shall be chosen by the Commonalty, out of four named by the Mayor and 24, at the Michaelmas borough-mote.

Also four Serjeants, to do the bidding of the Mayor and Bailiffs.

And two Coroners; who are to act as well in the soke as in the city.

The Bailiffs must every year lodge the plea-rolls, for common use.

The 24 must be impartial, and be careful in speech.*

Makers of quilts and blankets† must work within the city, and pay an annual tax for the houses where quilts are made. Every worker does not become a freeman [?]. 1 (sic.)

The price of burel [coarse] Also, per sholde be twey baylyues y-swore in pe Citee, and treweleche pe pefwyke wytye, and do alle men commune rystfulnesse don. Panne pe Meyre and pe foure and twenty, at pe borghmot of seynt mychel, sholle chese fowre gode men. And pe commune, of pes foure, chese pe tweyne afore y-sayd.

Also, fowre seriauntes sholde be in he town y-swore, 3erdes berynge, for to don he hestes of he Mayre and of he baylyues by-fore y-seyd.

Also, twey coroners by-lyb bat ber be in Wynchestre, y-swore in oure lord be kynges by-halfe, ober hys Justyces, to don here Offys al-so wel in be sok as in be Citee a-fore y-seyd.

Also, be baylyues a-fore y-seyd sholde, at be zeres ende, zelde vp here rolles of play and of be Taraget, to lygge in commune ward for binges bt myztte by-falle.

Also, non of be for-seyde fowre and twenty ne shal susteyne partye in Court of be Citee, ne be tellere ne vndurnemere of wordes, in harmynge of be ffraunchyse of be town.

Also, non of \flat e Citee ne shal don werche qwyltes ne chalouns hy¹- \flat oute \flat e walles of \flat e Citee, vp-on peyne to lese \flat at good, ober \flat at worby. And dob to wetynge, \flat at euerych gret hows in wham me worke \flat be qwyltes, shal to \flat e ferme v.s. by \flat e 3ere, \flat ey he ne worche but o-lupy clop. And dob to wetynge, \flat at non ne shal makye fraunk who \flat at euere hald in hys hows, ober in ober stede; out-nome on to \flat e meyres hows, and an ober to be hospytal, and \flat e brydde to be clerkes of \flat e town.

And dop to wetynge, pat pe Tapeners ‡ pat worchep pe burelles,

* A cross is put against this usage; showing that it was held important. + As the "chalouns" are here distinguished from "quilts," and as Chaucer describes

"A bedde

"With shetes and with chalons faire y-spredde," it seems to follow that chaloun is another name for blanket. It is certain that it was some sort of bed-covering, and the language does not seem consistent with its being a counterpane, as distinguished from a quilt.

 \ddagger It is not quite sure what was the work of the "tapener;" he had to do with the chalouns as well (see pp. 351, 352). Chaucer speaks of a "tapiser," who is explained to be "a maker of tapestry." May not the word tape (A.S. tappe), be connected with the root of both ? There was ram alle halowenetyd for here work shullen take for he cloth ctoth shall be according to the xviij.d.: ffram he annunciacioun of oure lady, and of hat tyme time of the year. for to an-object tyme of al halowene, ij.s.

And dop to wetynge pat non ne shal make burelle werk, Burel cloth shall be made by freebut 3if he be of pe ffraunchyse of pe town, out-nome p^t eueriche fullere makye oon by 3ere, and euerych makyere on y-nome pe kynges ferme.

Aff opere halue, dop to wetynge p^t pe chaloun of fowre ellen Blankets of given lengths shall be made of given breadthe.[•]

Blankets of given lengths shall be anciently a mystery of "tapicers" in London. (Herbert's Livery Companies, vol. i. p. 33.) [L. T. S.]

* It seems clear, from the measurements given, that the ell named in this "Usage" was the Flemish ell, of three quarters (27 inches). With the "Usage" itself, and the one that follows, the statute 4 Ed. IV. c. I (Δ .D. I464), as to the length and breadth of broad cloths, &c., should be compared. It was not passed till more, probably, than a century later than the time of these "Usages of Winchester;" but it shows that the necessity for some regulations, to prevent fraud, had then become general, and were not confined to Winchester. It is a very remarkable statute. It begins by reciting that,—

"Whereas many years past, and now at this day, the workmanship of cloth, and things requisite to the same, is and hath been of such fiaud, deceit, and falsity, that the said cloths in other lands and countries be had in small reputation, to the great shame of this land; and by reason thereof a great quantity of cloths of other strange lands be brought into this realm, and there sold at an high and excessive price, evidently shewing the offence, default, and falsehood of the making of woollen cloths of this land; Our said lord the king, for the remedy of the premises, and to the preferment of such labours and occupations which have been used by the making of the said cloths, by the advice, assent, request, and authority aforesaid, hath ordained and established certain Statutes and Ordinances in manner and form ensuing." It is then enacted :—

"First, that every whole woollen cloth, called broad cloth, which shall be made and set to sale after the feast called St. Peter ad vincula, which shall be in the year of our Lord M.CCCC.LXV., after the full watering, racking, straining, or tenturing of the same, ready to sale, shall hold and contain in length xxiv yards, and to every yard an inch, containing the breadth of a man's thumb, to be measured by the crest of the same cloth, and in breadth ij yards, or vij quarters at the least, within the lists; and if the said cloth be longer in measure than the said xxiv yards, and the inches, then the buyer thereof shall pay to the seller for as much as doth exceed such measure of xxiv yards, according to the rate of the measure above ordained. And it is enacted and established by the authority aforesaid, That all manner of cloths called streits, to be made and put to sale to-fore be tapener in be werke; be chaloun of lengbe of fowre ellen and an halfe, shal habbe in worke pre ellen to-fore pe chaloun-makyere; be chaloun of v. ellen, shal habbe in langenesse fowre ellen in be werk to-fore be chaloun-makyere. And pat euerich chaloun ouer pre ellen of lengpe out of a-syse be forfeted. And pat be chalouns bat eldernlyche hadde y-set, so halde here a-syse. And zif opere chalouns beb y-founde bat ne habbeb belke a-syse, in was hond hij beb y-founde, be forfeted, zif hit ne so be pat hit ne be to sale.

after the same feast, after the full watering, racking, straining, or tenturing thereof, ready to sale, shall hold and contain in length xij yards and the inches, according to the measure aforesaid, and in breadth one yard within the lists. Also it is ordained and established by the authority aforesaid, That every cloth called kersey, to be made and put to sale after the said feast after the full watering, racking, straining, or tenturing of the same, ready to sale, shall hold and contain in length xviij yards and the inches as is aforesaid, and in breadth one yard and a nail, or at the least one yard, within the lists."

The Act goes on to ordain penalties against certain mixtures with the woollen cloth; that cloth shall be made of uniform workmanship, "without difference in the weaving, fulling, knotting, or burling;" and that every piece of cloth shall be sealed with a seal, showing, by its shape and make, what is the quality and quantity of the cloth (in fact, an assay-mark). Provision is then made for the appointment of Keepers of the cloth seals (who are called "Aulnegers"), their duties and rewards. It is then recited that, "Whereas before this time, in the occupations of clothmaking, the labourers thereof have been driven to take a great part of their wages in pins, girdles, and other unprofitable wares, under such price as stretcheth not to the extent of their lawful wages, and also have delivered to them wools to be wrought by very excessive weight, which hath driven, and driveth men and women into discourage of such labour;" and it is enacted, under penalties, that clothmakers shall pay their "labourers, in any part of the said trade, lawful money for all their lawful wages and payment of the same," and shall deliver wool to them according to the due weight. On the other hand the workmen, and especially the fullers, are enjoined to duly perform their duty in their occupations; likewise under penalties. Provision is made for the hearing and disposal, by the local authorities of every place, of all complaints and cases arising under these two last clauses. The whole statute is well worth careful study. Probably it did not touch the sort of woollen goods named in the above "Usages," because those Usages, kept alive under the vigilant eye of the bailiffs of Winchester, had already been found strong enough to meet the case. As to the means and the care formerly taken for the prevention of trade frauds, see further the General Note at the end of these Usages.

Also, no wollemongere, ne no man, ne may habbe no stal in No stalls to be in the High Street at be heye-stret of Wynchestre bote he do war-fore. mere will.

Also, no man ne may bygge leþer grene ne skyn grene in þe towun, but 3if he be of fraunchyse, vppeyne to nyme pat good to be ferme of be town. And bulke bat beth in fraunchyse, by whom hij hem mowe bygge, ne shulle hem nowt wip-oupe be fraunchyse lede.

Also, no ffysshyere ne no pulter ne shal bygge ffysch ne pultrye for to agen selle, er þat vndren be y-ronge.

Also, none manere vytayles bat comeb in-to towne to selle, ne victuals brought be nouzt out of be towne a-zen bore vn-sold, ne wt-outen leue of not be taken back be baylyues, by-for be tyme bat it be ones j-set to sale, to be leave. payne to lese bat good.

Also, no regratour ne go owt of towne for to engrosy be Regrators and engrossers shall be chaffare, vpon payne for to be fourty-dayes in be kynges heavily punished, prysone.

Of custome of he flysch is hus:--hat no man ne may habbe a A rent of id. to be paid to the king for every board on bord but onleche of be kynge, and ech bord shal to be kynges which fish is rente a ferbynge be day bat ber ys ffysch open ; and bat ne no shown for sale. man out nyme by no manere of fraunchyse.

Also, euerych cart pat comep in towne, oper fysh to sale, what Every one shall pay $\frac{1}{2}d$. to the fysh bat he bryngeb, of what fraunchyse bat he be, he shal to be king for every load of fish that he kynge an halpeny, as meny tyme as he cometh, for bt bord bat puts out for sale. stond by-fore hym.

Also, euerich cart, out of be fraunchyse, shal to be kynge by Every non-freecustome ij pans and an halpeny, what ffysh he bere to sale. every cart-load of And euerych horse-burdene of fresh fysh bat comeb in-to be man shall pay. for fish brought in. 21d.; and for every horse-load

* A cross is put, in the left-hand margin, against this Usage.

+ "Forestalling the market," "regrating," "engrossing," and "monopoly," are offences of the same kind; and they are all of them offences at Common Law, as interfering with fair and open sale and prices, and with the freedom of trade. "That monopolies are against the ancient and fundamental laws of the realm," says Lord Coke, "and that the monopolist was, in times past, and is much more now, punishable, for obtaining and procuring of them, we will demonstrate it by reason, and prove it by authority." (Third Institute, p. 181.) The above Usage of Winchester might have been cited by Lord Coke as an illustration of his chapter "Against Monopolists."

None but freemen may buy untanned leather or raw hides in the town : and these not to be taken out of the town.*

No fish nor poultry shall be bought for sale before undern (9 a.m.) in for sale, shall unsold without

Blankets not lengths and breadths, shall be forfeited.

made of the given of fresh fish, 11d., and of salt fish, 1d.

Every non-freeman shall pay, for every cart-load of salmon brought in, 3d.; for a horse-load, 2d.; for what a man carries, 1d.

Five out of every hundred of lampbailiffs, for their own behoof.

Herring sellers shall pay 5d, to the king, and a pitcher of wine to the bailiffs. Salt fish is not to be wetted with water.*

Every nonfreeman fleshmonger having a stall, shall nav 25d. a year to the king. Every nonfreeman having, or buying, goats, sheep, or swine, and selling them unslaughtered, shall pay 5d. a year to the king, and 1d. to the town clerk for registration, though he have but one beast, and only comes into town once a year. Every baker shall pay to the king 2s. a year, and 1d. to the town clerk. The bread to be white and well haked; and it must be of full weight, under penalties according to the lack of weight. † town to sale, and be out of fraunchyse, shal to be kynge bre halpens of custome. And of shalt fysh an halpeny.

And also, euerych cart, out of fraunchyse, comynge in-to towne wib samown, shal to be kynge of custome bre bans, bey he ne brynge but o sawmown; and han horseberdene, bey he brynge but oon, twey pans. And vp-on mannes rygge, a peny.

Also, euerych hundred of laumprons comynge in-to towne, revisibility to the shal fyue laumprons to custome to be baylyues of be town, to here owne by-of-be, and non ober custome.

Also, euerych sellere of herynge in be lente, shal to be kynge fyfe pans, and to be baylyues a pycher wyn, of what fraunchyse pat he be. And no ffysshere ne shal wete myd water salt fyche, per pat per comep fysche to selle, but 3if he do to pe baylyues werfore.

Also, be vsage of fleshemongeres ys swych, bat euerych fleshemongere, out of fraunchyse, bat haldeb stal, shal to be kynge of custom fyue and twenty pans by be zere.

Also, pulke pat bub out of fraunchyse, pat haldeb, byggeth Get, Shep, swyn, and a-zen selleb vn-shlawe, shulde to be kynge fyue pans by be zere of be custome of swyn. And to be clerke of be town, a peny for to entre here names, bey he hit ne do but o-lupy beest. ¶ And alle marchauntes of Get, Shep, oper swyn, hat beth out of fraunchyse, and haunteb be town, bey he ne come but ones in be zeer, so shulde be selue custome.

Also, euerych bakere of be town bat makeb bred to sale, shal to be kynge of custome ijs. by be zere, and to be clerke of be town a peny. And he sholde make whitbred, and wel y-bake, after be sale of corn, and vp-on be a-syse of be marchasye; bat is to wetynge, bat zif be ferbingloff is in defawte of wyzte ouer twelf pans, be bakere is in be a-mercy. ¶ And for euerych defawte by-bynne be amountaunce of bre shyllynges, as vp-on be quantyte of be trespace. ¶ And whanne be ferbyng-lof is in defawte of wyste ouer pre shyllynges, pe bakere shal bere pe juwyse of be town.

* The word "And" is written in the margin against this Usage. The meaning of such a note is not very intelligible.

Als[0], cuerych sullere of bred in be heyzestrete of Wynchestre, Every bread-seller bat is out of fraunchyse, shal to be kynge to custome, by be zere, in the High Street shall pay to the king 2s. a year, twey shullynges, and to be clerk a peny, 3if he selleb meche by and to the clerk 1d, each more or zere; and zif he sullep lasse, vp-on be quantite. ¶ And at opere less, according to how much he sells stretes, sex pans oper pre, oppon pt handworke is. And dop In other streets, from 6d, to 3d. to wetynge, bt non of hem ne sholde feeche here bred, but bere Bread not to be fetched from the be lapen stondeb, vp-on peyne of be amercy of be byggere and of baker's before noon, nor from an be sellere, to-fore be tyme of none. ¶ And bat non of hem ne unregistered baker (save at risk of the fecche no bred of non bakere whanne hij ne mowe habbe no baker must put warant; and zif hij do, bat hem self hyt waranty. ¶ And bat his seal upon every loaf, so that euerych bakere habbe hys seal y-knowe vpon hys loff, þat he ne he cannot disown it if the bread is not good.* mowe wip-segge 3if he is of take oper pan weel.

Also, eucrich brewestere of myste of towne, bt breweb to sale, Brewers being pat hij make good ale, vp-on be sale, vp-on be corn, and vp-on brew for sale, must brew good be assyse, y-zerle. And zif he oper-loker dob, be in be kynges ale, according to the assize. If they mercy, as many tyme as be baylyues hem mowe of take. do otherwise, they will be amerced. +

Also no brewestere out of fraunchyse, ne may brewe wt-ynne be power of be Citee, to sale, but sif hij do warfore to be baylyues vp-on be quantite of here dedes.

Also, no man out of fraunchyse, of what craft bat he be, No non-freeman may have a booth ne may boube halde, ne bygge, by-bynne be power of be [for sale of goods] town.

Also, euerych cart (? load of wool) y-seld in he town, to men Every load of wool out of fraunchyse, shal to be kynge of custome an halpeny. Of myddel custome is bus :--- bat oon (istone) of wolle bt comeb to towne freleche, and be out of fraunchyse, shal to le kynge of wool brought into within the town.§ sold, in town, to a non-freeman. shall nav to the king a halfpenny. For one stone of town by a non-free-buyer). And every freemen, who

Non-freemen must not brew for sale

without leave of

within the city

the bailiffs, t

* A special mark is put, in the right-hand margin, against the last clause of this Usage, as to sealing the loaves.

+ See the General Note at the end of these Usages.

‡ The word "brewester" is usually stated, in glossaries, to mean a female brewer. But it is expressly put down, in the Promptorium Parvulorum, as used for either male or female brewer.

§ In the margin of the roll, there is put against this "Usage" a mark thus Mrs, and the words "2 que?" twice repeated ; showing that the paragraph was often cited in behalf of complainants.

⁺ See the General Note at the end of these Usages.

man, there shall be paid a farthing; two, a farthing; three together, a halfpenny; four, a halfpenny; six, together, three farthing; seven, three farthings; eight, 1d; and for nme stones to one man at one time, 2d.*

Cheese, butter, grease, and smear pay the same toll as wool, half-weight counting the same as the whole. custome a ferpinge; and tweye to-gedere a ferpinge; and pre togedere an halpeny; and fowre, an halpeny; and fyue, an halpeny; and sexe to-gedere, pre ferpinges; and seuene, pre ferpinges; and ey3te, a peny; of pilke pt bep out of fraunchyse. ¶ And 3if per be nyne stones, to-gedere oper seueraleche to one man, oper at one tyme, pelke shal to pe kyng twey pans, for to y-wite of wiche fraunchyse hit be pat he hit hap y-brou3t.

Off Chese, botere, Grece, and smere, is in pilke selue manere in alle poyntes as is y-seyd by-fore of pe Custome of wolle. Chese, Botere, Grece, and Smere, pare pe kynges wy3te by-lyp, shal nyme as meche of pe halue peyse as of pe hole wy3te.

Each sort of goods which ought to be weighed shall be brought into the town. Misdoers shall be punished.†

And dop to wetynge, p^t ech manere good, pare pe wyste by-lyp, pat hit be y-lad by-pinne pe power of pe towne to selle; pe kynges by whas wyste hit be y-weye, and wych fraunchyse p^t it be, and whos good p^t hit be. ¶ And sif per is eny pryue oper straunge pat to pe wyste shal, and he hit hele ouer o nyst, he is in be kynges mercy vp-on be quantyte of pat mysdede.

Six good men shall be chosen, three by the commonalty and three by the 24, to gather in all king's dues and town rates; who shall

Also whan gaderynge shal be a-rered in pe Citee, by pe kynges heste, oper for commune nedes of pe towne, sexe godemen shulde be y-chose by pe commune grauntynge, and y-swore,—pre of pe foure and twenty, and pre of pe commune,—to gadery pilke talage

* By the Statute of 43 Edw III. (A.D. 1369) it is enacted, that "the staples of wools, woolfels, and leather, of the realm of England, shall be holden in the places under-written: that is to say, at Newcastle, Kingston-upon-Hull, Saint Botulph [Boston], Yarmouth, Queenborough, Westminster, Chichester, Winchester, Exeter, and Bristol:" freedom of trade in wools, &c., is guaranteed, "so that no wools, woolfels, nor leather shall pass out of the realm of England, Ireland, nor Wales, till they be brought to the Staples, and there weighed, cocketted, and customed; and that all the wools that shall be brought to the Staples at Westminster and Winchester, shall be, betwixt merchant and merchant, or merchants and other, lawfully weighed by the standard; and every sack and sarpler of the same wools so weighed, sealed under the seals of the Mayor of the Staple and of the constables;" &c., &c. This Statute, and more than one of the older "Usages" in the text, throw mutual light upon each other.

+ A large cross is put, in the left-hand margin, against this Usage. See the General Note at the end of these Usages.

oper by pilke selue y-zolde.

and vndurfonge, and trewleche hit spende and trewleche a-countes yield an account thereof. An aczelde. ¶ And whanne Mayre, ober baylyues, ober obere godemen, count must be given to the six, gob out of towne, for commune profyzt vp-on be commune porse, of moneys gathered by the Mayor so bey sholde, at here a-ze comynge, zelde trewe a-counte to bilke or others out of town. If any one sexe a-fore seyd, by-bowte taryzynge. ¶ And zif env good man of find goods for common use, it shall be put to his be town leib his good to be commune nede of be town, by be score, or the goods hondes of bese sexe y-swore by-fore y-seyd, be y-leued by skore, be returned.

Also, whanne me porveyde gylde chaffare, me shal, by com- When the time comes for the great mune a-sent, by be maystres of be towne, a-spyze folke bt be Gild-sale, men of good name shall couenable and of good loos, and gadere bat ryzte of chepmen. be sought, to gather the fees ¶ And bat euerych of hem habbe fowre hynen stalworthe, ober of the merchants. Four or more stalworth serving mo, and belke bt beb y-herborwed in foure houses, as hij ouzte men shall be lodged in four houses, And to be in alle tymes. ¶ And whanne me hab wel trewe y-chaffared when dealings have in be fowre howses, hij shulle hem a sembly for to y-se b^t hij four houses, there shall be a meeting, habbeb a-rered, and of ban bat hij mowe a-rere. And aif b^t eny to see what has been raised, and bing ys mysdoun, by commune assent bat hit be a-mended. what may still be raised. Each ¶ And zif eny hows is more worp ban an oper, be hit y-charched house shall be charged at its to hys worby. And pat seluer pt shal be a-rered of bilke hows worth ; and the money raised shall by-fore y-seyd, be y-take to sexe godemen by-fore y-seyd y-chose be paid to the six men aforesaid. and y-swore, for be Commune assent, and treweleche wetye, and who shall yield an account thereof trewleche spende, and treweleche a-countes zelde to godemen of twice a year, in score or in writing.* be town twyzes by be zere, by skore ober by scrvt.

* Among the numberless losses which have befallen the original returns made from the Gilds in the time of Richard II., has been that of all the returns from Winchester Gilds. But it is well known that an important "Gild of Merchants" existed in that city at the time. In "Transcripts from the Municipal Archives of Winchester," by the late Town Clerk of that city, for a copy of which I am indebted to the courtesy of his son, the present Town Clerk, this "Gild of Merchants" is often mentioned, both early and late. So late as 1705, Prince George of Denmark was made a freeman of Winchester and "one of the Gild of Merchants" of the city. The close connection between the Gilds and the Corporations has already been shewn in the Introduction to this volume. It is not therefore strange that the arrangements for the great periodical sales, or fairs, such as the above "Usage" seems to deal with, should be found in a record of the Usages of this city. In some places in England there were "hans-houses," which were probably used as the head-quarters of these great sales or fairs. just as very many parishes used to have a so-called "Church House" for Non-freemen shall pay to the bailiffs, at the town gates, for every cart load of corn coming into the town for sale, a halfpenny toll; and for every horse-load, a farthing. Every cart load of iron or steel shall pay 2d.; a horseload, 1d. A cart load of new saddles, whether pack saddles or others, shall pay 2d.; a horse-load, 1d. A cart-load of mill-stones, 4d.; a load, 2d, penny.

11.

A cart load of barrels, 1d.; a horse-load, a half-

A cart-load of tanned leather, for

A cart-load of

A cart-load of woad-waven 4d.;

madder, for sale

2d.; a horse-load,

sa'e, 2d. : a horse load. 1d.

Off Gates of be towne of Wynchestre, whanne be baylyues of be town shulle nyme of hem bat beb out of be fraunchyse and custome, shulle is bus := pat eucrych cart b^t bryngeb corn to towne to selle, an halpeny of custome as many tyme as he comeb, and be horsecharche a ferthynge.

Also, euerych cart bt bryngeb yre ober steel, twey pans; an horse-charche, a peny.

Also a cart bt bringeb newe sadeles, to carve, by strete oper by lanes, corden oper tray, shal of custome twey pans; an horsecharche a peny.

Also everych cart bt ledeb mylle-stones, fowre pans. And cart load of tin or euerych cart bt beretb tyn ober led to selle, fowre pans; and for lead, 4d.; a horsean horse-charche, twey pans.

> Also, tonnes and barelles b^t comeb in carte, sholde custome a peny; an horselode an halpeny.

Also, euerych cart b^t bereb y-tanned leber to selle, shal twey [pans]; an horse-charche, a peny.

Also, euerych a cart y-lade w^t mader, b^t comeb to selle, twey pans ; an horse charche a penv.

Also, y cart y-lade wt wodewexen to sale, fowre pans; an horsecharche, a peny.

Every cordwainer that has a shop, shall pay to the 1 (sic.)

a horse-load, 1d.*

Also, euerych soutere bt wonych in be Citee bt halt shoppe, shal to be kynge, by custome, sex pans by be zere, and bo^1 be public purposes. It seems from the above "Usage," that, in Winchester, four houses were used for these great sales. It is not clear whether they belonged to the Gild, or were hired for the time. The statement that the serving-men "ought, in all times," to be in the four houses, perhaps means that the houses belonged to the Gild, and ought never to be left empty.

* The "woad-waxen" seems to be the plant genista tinctoria, or "dyer's green-weed," which yields a yellow dye. As to what is more commonly called "woad," there is a strange contradiction between the authorities. In Macgillivray's "Withering's British Plants," it is stated to be the reseda luteola, which "affords a beautiful yellow dye, and is cultivated for that purpose;" while Loudon says that it was formerly called "glastum," and is the isatis tinctoria, which gives a blue dye. Both are English plants. Junius (Etym. Anglic.) gives a definition that agrees with Loudon, and not with British Plants : - "Wod, woad ; Sandix, isatis, glastum," &c. Dr. Ure, in his "Dictionary of Arts," agrees also with Loudon.

clerke a peny for to enrolly hys name, bey he ne come but king 6d. a year; and to the clerk 1d, for registration. ones a zer.

And al-so, vsage of be mayster dynaeres of peyntours in be The master dyers Citee, bt tweyze godmen and trewe be y-chose by commune assent, and y-swore to assaye be chaffare of straunge chapmen bt comep in to be towne to selle, and to don trewleche be assys to be sellere and to be byggere.

Also, euerych tannere pt halt bord in pe heyestret of Wynchestre, shal, for be stret bt he for-nemeb, twey shullynges by be zere; and to be clerk a peny in be name of talage.

Euerych sellere fo¹ grece and of smere and of talw3, shal, at Every seller of be feste of Estre, to be kynge a peny, in be name of smergauel.

of the painters have a custom to choose two good men, who shall assay the goods of outsiders, as between seller and buyer.

Every tanner shall pay 2s. a year for a stand in the High Street; and to the clerk 1d.

grease, smere, and tallow shall, at Easter, pay to the king 1d., as "smergavel." ¹ (sic.)

Verte.

Also, euerych sowtere bt makeb shon of newe robes leber, [In dorso.*] shal bote, at bat feste of Estre, twey pans, in name of shongable. And bese vsages beth of hem b^t beth of fraunchyse of sowter as of opere.

Also, ber is, in be Citee a-fore y-seyd, a seal commune and The city has a an autentyk, myd wham men seleb be chartres of ffeffement of be town; wheche chartres hadde y-be in be warde of be Alderman bat hadde y-maked be sesynges, a zer and a day by-bowte chalangynge of env man; to weche selynge lat crye be ban borghe be town be bridde day by-fore be selynge.

Every shoemaker using new oxleather shall pay, at Easter, 2d., as "shongavel." "Common Seal" with which the [grants] are sealed.

the charters for a and authentic, town charters An alderman keeps And be chartres bat bus were y-preserved by be Aldurman by year and a day. Three days' warning must be openly given of the sealing. Such charters. unchallenged, are made good for ever by that seal.

fore y-seyd, bat witnessede be sesynge good, and wetynge of be chartre wt-bowte chalynge y-herd, and y-saued by bat seal for euere mo.

The sealers of And dob to wetynge b^t euerych chartre b^t shal be a-seled, grants to have 6d. for wax and all.

* Three inches from the top edge of the roll, at the back, and so as to meet the eye when the roll is folded up and in its place, are written, in a large hand, the two numerals "C C." Doubtless this was the number by which the roll was known in some ancient inventory of the archives of Winchester.

358

belke bt shal a-selv shal, for be selvnge, have sex pans for wex and for al.

There shall be three copies of the seal. Two of the twenty four shall keep two, and one of the commonalty the third. All shall be kept in a coffer, set in a larger coffer having two locks; the key of one lock being kept by one of the twenty-four, and that of the other lock by one of the commonalty *

And he dob to wetynge, b^t be seal by-fore y-seyd shal be y-weted vnder bre heuedes. Warfore twey godemen of be fowre and twenty y-swore, sholle kepe be two, and a godeman of be commune be bridde. ¶ And bilke cofre wt be bre heuedes shal be y-set in a more Cofre, y-fastened wt twey lokes. Warfore bt goodman of fowre and twenty shal kepe o keyze, and on of be commune shal kepe bat oper keyze.

Rules of pleading in [the courts of] the city of Winchester.

pe ordre of pledynge bt me pledeth in be Cytee of Wynchestre ys by swych a-vys, þat euerych man of þe fraunchyse bt is empled, may habbe pre resonable somounces to-fore shewynge aif he hit habbe wele; bere bat a-tachement ne by-lyth nouzt; and for hym-selue may habbe as vele.

Three summonses to be issued.t

And he dob to wetynge, bat bulke bre somounces shulle be y-maked by bre dayes fulfullyd, but zif sollempne fest ne distourbe hit, ober bat be court ne be fram day to day y-helde, so bt be playntyf to euerych court him profry to be to somaunce procuratours.

And zif a man is a-tached per pat somynge by-lyth to be nexte court by be dystresse delyuered, and he habbe be ryatful somaunce after be vsage of be town, whanne be heste is to don, be furste somaunce on him be y-maked or he come to towne, zif hit ne be pley of lond by wryt.

Summons of outsiders.

And zif a man be-owt of fraunchyse be empleted, he ne shal habbe but one somaunce ouer o nyzt, zif he ys in towne y-founde.

And zif he is y-pleted by wryt of plee of londe, so may he habbe, zif he wele, bre folwande somaunces, as bilke bat beth in fraunchyse.

A freeman, putting in appearance And zef a man b^t is in fraunchyse, at be furste somaunce, ober

* A mark is put, in the right-hand margin, against the second clause of this Usage, as to the coffers, locks, and keys.

+ A cross is put, in the right hand margin, against this Usage.

at be secunde, hym sheweb, he ys y-holde to answerve atte be to first or second summons, must þrydde. answer.

And whanne he sheweb wib-oute dystresse, weiber he be of Time for a townsnan to plead. fraunchyse oper ne be, and be of towne; so may habbe day of towne, and ten for ten; and zif hit be assone, oper hit be shewynge ys y-pleted, al bat play eyzte dayzes for to he be a-skaped.

And 3ef a foreyne empledy be tebynge, be tebynge ne hab bote Proceedings when an outsider impre dayes to shewynge by be dayze of be towne, ne myd ober pleads the tything delayes.

And whanne be tebynge empledeb a foreyn, be foreyn hab his When the tything impleads an outdelay, of eyzte dayzes in to eyzte, by-bowte day of towne, and sider * y-preued after assoyne.

Off play of londe, be seyzte bat non wyborawe zef he ne toucheb Pleas of land. ryzt. And pat commune law hym be y-entred, be axere and be defendaunt, to shewe of ryst tellyng, and in be defendynge, and out nome mornynge vyztynge and gryeb assyse; so bt ber be enqueste y-nome by twelue godemen y-swore ry3t y-don to be remenaunt.

And dop to wetynge, bat be wryt bat me pledeth in be Citee, Writs of novel by-fore Justyces, oper by-fore baylyues of be towne, beb empne wrytes of newe dysseysyne, and of alle Justyces owt-nome zeresrente.

And wrist of ryst of dowarye, and of ristful partyse, and of Proceedings on writs of dower, rizt, and of axere, and be defendaunt may make a-torne to alle &c.† manere partyes and plays, by wryt in presence of partyze. And bt essoyne of oper men ne be a-lowed in none manere of play y-cast, for bilke b' fyndeb somaunce; and 3if he nys y-founde, be y-cast be assoyne vp-on be fyfte somaunce ober nou;t a-lowy.

And so habbe fowrty dayes; and aif he in be fourty dayes comeb in-to towne, and he wele sewy, be a-zen somened vp-on be somaunce a-fore y-seyd. And may panne, zif he wele, caste a new soyne of harme y-falle, and habbe delay eyzte dayzes, so bt, by-fore answere, ne legge non oper delay, but 3if hit be for swerynge of mo parteneres of play of londe by ry3t.

^{*} A cross is put, in the left-hand margin, against this Usage.

⁺ There is a special mark, in the left-hand margin, against this Usage.

Pleas of debt.

And of plee of dette is pus vp-on pe heued answere; $\mathbf{jif} \mathbf{p}^t$ pe axkere bryngep skore oper wryt, and aske pe berynge y-holecheche, no day of answere be y-graunted by pe court, wt-powte grauntynge of pe askere, but pe defendaund grauntep.

Whos pave y-maked by skore oper by scryt oper by sywete,

1 (sic.) so p^t he bere tayle tayle¹ oper scryt, to preue hit vp-on hure nature, and zif he lete, sende his adversaryze habbe his defens

Proceedings on death of a freeholder. vp-on on ry3t of londe. Also after be deth of euerych haldere in ffee, sholle be baylyues of be Citee seysy sympleleche be tenemens of weche he deyd y-seysed, for to y-wyte bet who-so is next eyr. And at be nexte Eyr, and at be nexte court, by be for-seyde tenemens y-3oulde, so 3if eny more next a-leggy b^t in erthe his frendes day to don hem come vp-on be dystaunce of godes.

And zef he is out of londe fowrty dayzes, and zif he at his day comep, habbe he shal p^t ylke stat p^t he shulde haue y-had, zif he hadde be present be day bat his eldere deyde. And zif at hys daye ne comep, and wenep rizt, habbe hys cleym vp-on be lawe of londe.

The usage as to a year and day's possession, whether by descent or purchase.

And of a 3cre and o daye y-vsed in þe Citee, doþ to wetynge: who-so þ^t euere lond oþer tenemens, by fallynge oþer by purchase of whom he habbe seysyne by baylyues, oþer by certeygn borw of þe comynge, a 3er and a day, by-þowte cleym and chalangynge of eny, be þe askere out-putte for euere, but 3if he were with-ynne age, oþer out of londe, oþer in prisone, oþer þat þer be ry3tful party3e.

Proceedings where rent is unpaid.

Also, vsage of 3eer and of day a fore y-seyd:— p^{t} 3if eny þo þat nymeþ rente of eny tenement in fraunchyse of þe Citee, and his rente holleche be by-hynde, oþer half oþer more, and he ne fynde for to dystreyne, and he habbe housynge and folk wony3ynge; by leue of þe baylyues of þe town, nyme þe dores and þe fenestres. ¶ And 3if myd þan ne may hys tenement ri3t, ne oþer dystresse fynde, by sewte of þe court, and þe sy3te of alderman of þe stret, and of a seriaunt, be y-set a stake on þe lok þar is þe dore, and be y-entred in be court; and sewe fram eyste dayses to eyste; and be bydde and be furbe a ser and a day y-fuld of be furste day of sewte. And sif banne non ne comeb to don be rist, lese be tenaunt by-bowte rekenerynge, wheyber he be of age oper ne be, so naust ber-fore b^t by-fore b^t saf ingement y-passed, myste eneremore grey down. Wych jugement ne be delaysed, to be harme of be askere, and to swych sewte be y-maked to londe y-sold where b^t ber nys. And b^t no man ne legge in lond ne in tenement by-fore y-seyd, be whyle be suquestre ys pare set.

Explicit.

GENERAL NOTE.

THESE "Usages" of Winchester are now printed for the first time. The original is an ancient Roll, of the fourteenth century, made up of two skins of vellum sewed together. The entire Roll is five feet and two inches and three-quarters in length, and varies in breadth from seven and a-half inches to eight inches. The greater part of the upper edge has been irregularly torn or cut away, and the same thing has happened to the left-hand margin at the bottom, for a length of eight inches. In neither case, however, has any writing been destroyed, except that the initial letters of the nine lower lines are partially gone. One small word is destroyed in the first paragraph, a hole having been eaten in the Roll.

The original writing was in a strong and fair hand; but many parts have become so worn and faint, through time and use, that they have been by no means easy to decipher. The heading is written in red ink; and the first letter of every paragraph is also put in a large capital red letter. There are also rubrications, after full stops in the middle of several of the paragraphs. A wavy red line is put between each of the first twenty paragraphs, and also between the twenty-sixth and twenty-seventh paragraphs, but not elsewhere. The Roll is written on both sides.

The greater part of the Roll is of general interest; and I have given a marginal abstract of all those parts. But the latter nineteen clauses of the "Usages" touch upon technical matters of pleading, &c.; and, though useful to the philologist, they can have no general interest. I have, therefore, only pointed out their subject.

I have added a few notes. To do full justice to such an interesting document would alone require a volume.

[As to the exact date when these Usages were made, that cannot be now ascertained. In the cases of the Bristol Ringers (before, p. 293), and of the Tettenhall Customary, we have the ancient Ordinances preserved to us through later copies taken one after another. In the case of Winchester, the record itself, though very ancient, points back to the still earlier "tyme of oure elderne," in which these now "olde" Usages were used, so that this, itself written in the fourteenth century, must be a copy of a still older document.

The curious picture of the municipal self-government of so important a city as Winchester, presented by these Usages, is of the highest interest. It not only carries us back to the early municipal and commercial life of the city, and its connexion with the Gild of Merchants (see p. 357), but shows what care our forefathers had, among themselves, ages ago, for the matters that pertain to general health and justice. As the study of the old laws on those subjects helps the understanding, both of these Usages and of the Ordinances of Worcester and of Bristol, a short summary of some of them will not be out of place here.

From a very early time the need for establishing some general rules, touching the fair supply of certain necessaries of life, has been recognized in England. As Lord Coke says, "for weights and measures, there are good laws made before the Conquest ;"* but without going back so far, it is enough to begin with the Magna Charta of John, which contains a chapter (35) declaring that there shall be uniform measures and weights throughout the kingdom. The substance of this chapter is found in the subsequent confirmatory editions of Magna Charta. In that confirmed in the 9th year of Henry III., and again in the 25th of Edward I., it stands as follows :---" One measure of wine shall be through our realm, and one measure of ale, and one measure of corn, that is to say, the quarter of London : and one breadth of dyed cloth, russets, and haberjects, that is to say, two vards within the lists. And it shall be of weights as it is of measures." As the prices of bread and of ale depend on that of corn, the importance of this law was very great. A general principle was here affirmed, other Statutes however dealt more with details, the examination of which throws much light on many of the clauses in the Winchester Usages.

* Second Institute, p. 41.

There is a group of three Statutes, usually assigned to the date 51 Hen. III. (1266), of much interest on this subject. The first of these, called "The Assise of Bread and Ale," begins by settling the weight of the farthing loaf of different qualities of bread relatively to one another, and goes on to fix a table of the relative weight of bread to the price of corn. The first sentence of this table declares that "when a guarter of wheat is sold for xviiid., then wastel bread of a farthing, white and well baked, shall weigh ivl. xs. viiid.;" as the wheat increases in price, of course the farthing loaf diminishes in weight, so that when we come to wheat at 20s. the guarter, it only weighs $6s. q_3^3d$. It is further shown what gain there will be to the baker, "as it is proved by the King's bakers." As to ale, it is declared that "when a quarter of wheat is sold for 3s. or 3s. 4d., and a quarter of barley for 20d. or 2s., and a quarter of oats for 16d.,* then brewers in cities ought and may well afford to sell two gallons of beer or ale for a penny, and out of cities to sell three gallons for a penny. And when in a town three gallons are sold for a penny, out of a town they ought and may sell four; and this Assise ought to be holden throughout all England." Punishments are added for not keeping these Assises.

The second of these Statutes, "The Judgment of the Pillory," sets forth the manner of making local inquests; + and gives detailed articles of inquiry to be made (among other things) as to weights and measures; the price of wheat, and the agreement therewith of the weight of the "wastel of a farthing" (for default in which "the baker ought to be amerced, or to undergo judgment of the pillory, according to the law and custom of the Court"); the Assise of wine and of ale, and the price of the latter. It is declared that upon every measure, weight, "and also upon every loaf, the name of the owner shall be distinctly written."

The third Statute, "Concerning Bakers, &c.," declares that "the Assise of bread shall be kept, according as it is contained in the writing of the Marshalsey § of our lord the King, delivered unto them, after the sale of wheat, that is to wit, the better, the worse, and the worst. And as well wastel bread, as other of what sort soever they be, shall be weighed, according as it is said, by the sale of the middle

* They made beer of oats in Berwick (see before, p. 345).

+ "The Boke for a Justyce" (1541) charges the jury to inquire "of Mayres, Bayliffes, Sheryffes of Towneshyppe, if they have putte and done their offyces of settynge of the assyse of breade and ale." (Book I. p. 20 b.) See this in active working in Worcester, after, p. 381.

‡ Is not this judgment the "juwyse of the town"? See p. 355.

§ The "marchasye" of the Usages, before, p. 354.

corn." "Every baker shall have a mark of his own for his bread." Bakers and brewers not keeping the Assise are to be punished.

In "The Mirrour of Justices," written in the time of Edward I., among the articles of inquiry set forth as usually made at the view of frankpledge in the Hundred-court, is the following :—" Of every breach of the Assise of bread, beer, wine, clothes, weights, measures, beams, bushels, gallons, ells and yards, and of all false scales, and of those who have used them." Like inquiries are directed to be made by the Statute known as "The View of Frankpledge" (18 Edw. II.).

The Act 23 Edw. III. c. 6 (A.D. 1349) enforces the responsibility of the mayors and bailiffs of cities, boroughs, and sea-ports, for the sale "of all manner of victual" (among which are bread and ale) at "a reasonable price." This Act is confirmed and re-enforced forty years later by the 13 Rich. II. c. 8. The Usages of Winchester illustrate the recognition of the responsibility thus declared.

The making of horse-bread was formerly a regular part of the baker's business. The Statute 13 Rich. II. Stat. i. c. 8 (1389) ordains "that no hosteller make horse bread in his hostry nor without, but bakers shall make it." The Ordinances of Worcester also affirm the same (after, pp. 376, 406). At Exeter the horse-loaf was to be made of "clene benys" (before, p. 337); but the "Assise of Bread" had it that "the lof of al maner of corn, that is to say, the horse lof, shal wey two halfpeny white lofis." (MS. Book of Orders for Bakers, by two Clerks of the Market. Date about 1468; quoted in Strype's Stow's Survey, cd. 1720, bk. v. p. 341.) In Elizabeth's time the bakers are to "sell and deliver unto innholders and victuallers in horsebread, but three loaves for a penny, and 13 pennyworth for 12d., every one of the same three horse loaves weighing the full weight of a penny white loaf, whether wheat be good, cheap, or dear." ("Book of Assise," by J. Powel, quoted in Strype, as before, p. 338.)

As to weights and measures and the care taken to maintain these just, the enactments are too numerous to specify them all here. It has been seen what Magna Charta declared on the matter. In the Statute "Concerning Bakers, &c." before mentioned, after providing for the maintenance of the imperial standard of bushels, gallons, and yards, it is enacted that "no measure shall be in any town unless it do agree with the King's measure, and be marked with the seal of the commonalty of the town. And all the measures and yards, both great and small, shall be viewed and examined twice in the year. . . . The standard of the bushel, gallon, and yard, and the seals wherewith measures are to be sealed, shall be in the custody of the Mayor and bailiffs, and of six lawful persons of the same town being sworn, before whom all measures shall be sealed." The Statute 25 Edw. III. Stat. v. c. 10 (A.D. 1351), after reciting "the Great Charter that one measure shall be throughout England, which Charter hath not been well kept and holden in this point in times past," proceeds to enact "that all the measures, that is to say, bushels, halfbushels, peck, gallon, pottle, and quart, throughout England, within franchises and without, shall be according to the King's standard." This Act was confirmed by an Act of 8 Hen. VI c. 5 (A.D. 1429), when it was further ordained that a common balance, with common weights sealed according to the Standard of the Exchequer, should be kept in every city, borough, and town. This appears to have been done in Winchester (see before, p. 356).

That these enactments were not a mere form, but were carried out in practice, is also illustrated by the following articles of inquiry to be made by the jury of every Court Leet, quoted from "The Maner of Kepynge a Courte Baron and a Lete" (published about 1541). "Also of all common bakers amonge you that make vnholsom breade for mannes body & kepe nat the assyse, ye shall do vs to wete. Also of all brewers & tapsters that brewe and kepe nat the assyse, and sel by cuppes, dysshes, and bolles, and by measures vnsealed, ye shall do vs to wete. Also if there be any amonge you that vsethe double measures, that is to say, a great measure to bye with, and a smaller to sell with, or vseth false ballaunce or weyghts or yardes in deceyte of the kynges people, do vs to wete."

It will be observed above, in speaking of the Assise of bread, and also in the clauses of the Usages of Winchester touching the sale of bread, that the weights made use of were pounds, shillings, and pence-the baker is to be punished according to the amount that his "ferthing loaf is in default of weight over twelve pence," or "over three shillings" (see before, pp. 354, 355). A Statute called "The Assise of Weights and Measures" (printed as 31 Ed. I.) is worth study in connexion with this point. It begins thus :--- " By consent of the whole realm the King's measure was made, so that an English penny, which is called the sterling, round without clipping, shall weigh 32 grains of wheat dry in the midst of the ear; 20 pence make an ounce; and 12 ounces make a pound London, to wit, twenty shillings of sterlings; and eight pounds make a gallon of wine; and eight gallons of wine make a bushel of London; which is the eighth part of a Quarter." The Act gives much curious information as to the value and worth of measures, weights, and computations then declared to be in use. Among others,--" Item, it is to be known, that the pound of pence, spices, confections, as of electuaries, consisteth in weight of twenty shillings. But the pound of all other things weigheth twentyfive shillings. But in electuaries the ounce consisteth of twenty pence, and the pound contains twelve ounces: but in other things the pound contains fifteen ounces: but the ounce in either case is in weight twenty pence."

Ill-seeming men were apt, in ancient times as well as modern, to overreach their neighbours in the way of trade if they could. Piers Ploughman gives a long string of the sins of Covetous, and makes him confess that

> "Wikkedly to weye Was my firste lesson; To Wy and to Wynchestre I wente to the feyre With many manere marchaundise. Ne hadde the grace of gyle y-go Amonges my chaffare. * ¥ * * My wif was a webbe And wollen cloth made. She spak to spynnesteres To spynnen it oute. * * * This craft my wif used. Rose the Regrater Was hire light name. She hath holden hukkerye All hire lif tyme." (Passus Quartus.)

The frauds in cloth-making which Covetous here says he used,

"Till ten yerdes or twelve Hadde tolled out thrittene," were met by many and various Statutes, of which examples have been given before, pp. 351, 356.

The Acts directed against "fore-stallers of wines, victuals, wares, and merchandises which come to the good towns within the realm by land or water," (2 R. II. Stat. i. c. 2), engrossers, and regrators,* are numerous, and were continued till comparatively recent times. The before-named Statute of Bakers, &c. (51 Hen. III.) gives a good specimen of the mode of dealing with a forestaller, who is pointed out in indignant words to be "an open oppressor of poor people and of all the commonalty, and an enemy of the whole shire and country;" it is declared that "he that is convict thereof, the first time shall be grievously amerced, and shall lose the thing so bought, and that according to the custom and ordinance of the town; he that is convict the second time shall have judgment of the pillory; at the third time he shall be imprisoned and make fine; the fourth time he shall abjure the town." And a principal object of the inquiries that used to be systematically made before the administrative officers throughout the country, was to ensure the due execution of the laws against these and other like offences against just and fair trading (see "Ye Office of Shyryffes," about 1530; "The Boke for a Justyce of Peace neuer so wel and dylygently set forthe," 1541, pp. 20 a to 21 b; Lambard's "Eirenarcha," 1614, pp. 349, 450, 607).

* See before, p. 353.

Forestalling, regrating, and engrossing seem to have been, notwithstanding, ever-living offences, for so lately as the year 1800, the "high price of provisions having manifestly been occasioned by forestalling and regrating, more than by any real scarcity," (Aris's Birmingham Gazette, Aug. 4, 1800), the inhabitants of Birmingham were obliged to appoint a Committee for their prevention in the town and neighbourhood. The Committee advertised "clear definitions" of the offences, which agree almost exactly with those given by Statute 250 years before. ("Century of Birmingham Life," vol. ii. p. 101. By J. A. Langford, who has kindly furnished several particulars.)

L. T. S.]

1 (sic.)

371

vj. . Item. that every officer accomptable make his accomptez w^tyn a quart^r and pay ther arrerages vpon ther accompts.

- vij. . . Item, that every man amerced in the aldermens courte paye his amercement, peyne of xl.d.
- viij. . . Item, that the counseille of the cite appere every quartr in the counseille house, to put in execucion alle such things as ys comprised in this article.
- ix. . Item, that the Bakers make no fyne wt the Bailliez, and that they have assie every saterday. And that they bye no corne tylle a certeyn houre, as ys lymitted vnto them.
- x. . . Item, that the Bakers resceyve no corne in ther houses on Saterdayes.
- xj. . . Item, that the comyns may be served of ale. And that the tastors of ale be citezeins.
- xij. . . Item, that the comyns have the Cowle to mete ale wt.
- xiij. . . Item, b^{\dagger} straung's by no Barly tylle the Brewers be served.
- xiiij... Item, p^t women be sole marchaunts.
- xv. . . Item, that the Bitters be redy when eny parylle of fuyre ys.
- xvj. . Item, that good ouersight be hadd vpon keywoode and collys.
- xvij. . . Item, that the wolle weight be but of ij.lb. and half, and in this article ys comprised clothemakynge and other thynges, as it more openly apperith in the same.
- xviij. . Item, that wolle comynge to the towne be solde in the yeld halle, and custume therfore to be payde. And that the corvesers by ther lether in the seid yeld halle.
- xix. . . Item, that no horsez ner marys stande in the markett.
- xx. . . Item, that every man kepe his soyle clene and his pavyment hole.
- xxj... Item, that Bawdes, scolders, and chiders, and recettors of mens children, be punysshed by the Baillies.

II.

THE ORDINANCES OF WORCESTER.*

(a) THE KALENDAR OF THE ORDINANCES.

[In the volume itself this Kalendar comes after the Ordinances. It will obviously be more convenient that it should here come first, containing as it does a summary of the contents of those Ordinances. It will be seen that while there are lxxxij. Articles, the Kalendar reaches only to lxxix. The reason of this is, that the three additional articles were made later, and written by a different hand, as will be found explained in the General Note.]

The Kalender of the articles and acts afore specified.

- j... first that the articles of the yelde aforeseid be redde and declared at the lawday, and that the chartor be putt in the Tresory.
- ij . . . Item, that the Baillies put in execution alle ordinauncez of the the¹ seid yelde and of the lawdayes.
- iij. . . Item, that the chamberleyns resceyve alle maner rentez an other profitez of the cite. And that they be swore to make dewe rekenynge, and tho that have keyes of the comyn cofre make delyveraunce of hem at the lawday.
- iiij. . . Item, that the comyns may have knowleche of hur comyn grounde and of the circuite of ther ffraunchese.
- v. . . Item, that the Baillies make accompts of the Grenewax, &c.

* From the original Record in the archives of the city of Worcester. For a description of the volume, and such explanations as seem necessary, see the General Note at the end of the Articles.

- xxij.. Item, that v. pageunts be hadd amonge the craftes, and that the stewards and the contributories ther to belongynge make accomptes as trouth requirt.
- xxiij. . Item, that good rewle and pease may be hadd by twene Gentylls of the shire and the cyte, at alle dayes.
- xxiiij. . Item, that intrailles of bestes and blode putts be clansed and caried awey by night and not by day.
- xxv. . . Item, that ther be ordeyned v. ffuyre hokez.
- xxvj. . Item, that no chimneys of tre, ner thached houses, be suffred wtyn the cyte, but that the owners make hem of bryke or stone.
- (sto.) xxvij. . Item, q^{d1} ther be but xxiiij. of the gret a-cloth. And that they have lyverey of a sute. And who so refusith, to lese vj.s. viij.d.; and yf eny of the xlviij. dissease, to chese another in his stede, &c.
 - xxviij. Item, that the worthy men graunte no yefte of the comyn gader wtout the aduise of the xlviij. comyners, &c.
 - xxix. Item, that wyndowes and dores of newe made into the yelde halle be stopped vp ageyn.
 - xxx. . . Item, that no man pley at tenys or pame w^tyn the yeld halle.
 - xxxj. . Item, yf eny of the xxiiij. or xlviij. discouer the comyn counseille that ys seid in the comyn house.
 - xxxij. . Item, that the citezeyns be redy in kepynge the kyngs pease w^t the Baylly. And that they have armo^r. And yf eny of them helpe eny straungers, &c.
 - xxxiij. Item, that no man resceyve lyverey ayeinst the statute. And that no gederyngs or assembles be hadd. And that no man go armed; and that every man obey the kyngez officers. And that no man yeve lyvereys, &c.
 - xxxiiij. Item, yf eny man make afray w^tyn the cite, or drawe his sworde or daggar, hit to be forfet. And yf he drawe bloode, to lese vj.s. viij.d., &c.
 - xxxv. Item, that no man be made citezeyn wtout he paye xiij s. iiij.d., except he be a Burgeys son or a prentise vij. 3er.

xxxvj.. Item, that no citezen be made in secrete place, but xxxvij. Item, that ther be no Burgeys made w^tyn the cite, but that he be resiaunt w^tyn the seid cite. And yf eny go out, &c.

OF WORCESTER.

openly, &c.

- xxxviij. Item, that no citezen be putte in comyn prison, but in on of the chambo^rs benethforth.
- xxxix. Item, how the seriaunts shall serue a capias &c. And that they go not vn Cristemas day for ther offerynge. And that no man be compelled to yeve them, &c.
- xl. . Item, that no citezcin rebuke the Bailly, peyne of xx.s.
 And that no man reprove the Aldermen, chamberleyns, recordor, &c.
- xlj. . Item, that no Burgeys foreyn be made but that he be sworen to dwelle w^tyn the cite. And that no citezein by or sille for another man vnder colo^r. And that no citezein straunger hyre eny house w^tyn the yelde halle, &c.
- xlij. . . Item, that every citezein and burgeys wtoutforth paye alle maner chargs as citezens do that dwelle wtynforth.
- xliij. Item, that no citezein resident havynge protection, bynge outlawed or accursed, bere eny office wtyn the seid cite, vn peyne of forfettynge of his ffraunchise.
- xliiij. Item, how the eleccyon of the citezens shalle be openly in the halle, for them that shalle go to the parliament, &c.
- xlv. . . Item, that no citezen sewe another in a foreyn courte vnto the tyme he take his accyon wtynfoith, plee of londe only except.
- xlvj. . Item, that no citezen inhabitaunt w^tyn the cite be attached by his body for eny accusement or trespas, &c.
- xlvij. . Item, that euery tensur be sett at resonable fyne. And of makynge of citezens yf he be sufficiaunt.
- xlviij. . Item, of men endited afore the Baillies, that they have affurro's. And that ij. affurr's be chosen in the pleyne courte by the alderman.

- xlix. . . Item, that alle maner laborers that wolle be hyred to werke shalle stande at the Graseroysat certein houres, &c.
- I. . . Item, that seriaunts be chosen the day of eleccion.
 And that they be citezens vij. 3er. And yf the Baillies be absent, to be chosen by them that electe the Paill3.
 And no officer be chosen but that he be of good name and fame. And that they were no mans lyverey.
 And so forth, &c.
- lj... Item, that no Sadeler, bocho^T, Baker, ne Glover, ne none other persone, caste intrelle, ne fylth of Bests donge, or doust, over Severne brugge, ne beyonde the seid Brugge.
- iij. . . Item, that no ffyssher by no ffyssh of no foreyn, commynge to vitelle the cite, tylle the comyns be serued.
 And that the straunge ffyssher selle it hem self. And that they forstalle no fysshe by the wey, and that the Aldermen take no fees, ner ther servaunte, and sic de ceteris.
- liij. . . Item, that the Brugge may be oucreseyn at alle tymes for the surete of the cite. And that the reparacion of the seide Brugge be ouerloked by the chamberleyns euery quarter, &c.
- liiij. . . Item, that the slippe and the keye, and the pavyment ther, be ouerseyn and repared. And that ther be ordeyned a water Bailly at the lawday when other officers be chosen.
- Iv. . Item, that ffrogmylle yate be sufficiently made, for grete parylle that might falle to the cite. And that the chamberleyns yeve attendaunce to the wallys of the towne, and that they be repared.
- lvj. . . Item, that no man caste donge or harlotry at the slipp, ner vpon the key. And that no man have swyne goynge at large, or els put them awey vpon certeyn warynge.
- lvij. . And that the Tylers of the towne compelle not straunge tylers to serue at their rule. And that they kepe no parliament; and that euery tyler marke his tyle.

- lviij... Item, of the Towneclerkshipe, that it be occupied by a sufficient persone and a discrete, &c.
- lix. . . Item, that the attorneys of the cite be sworen, and citezeyns, and that they vse no fals accions; and that they be not of clothynge outward otherwyse then the statute wolle.
- Ix. . Item, this article telleth how enquests shuld be taken, and the manner of pledynge. And of distringas, wt other neccessarie things therto accordynge, &c. [And also of persons acused how they may be tryed by xij. men yef they will.*]
- lxj. . . Item, how the counseille of the cite shalle assemble at the ryngyng of Seynt Andrewes Belle. And how longe the chamberleyns shalle abyde in ther office. And also of Bowebell rynggyng.
- lxij. . Item, that at every yelde fro hensforth, the actes and articles that shalle be made shulle ij. be redde afore the comyn counseille of the cite, &c.
- lxiij. . . Item, this article declareth how a citezen shalle be disfraunchised, yf he appere not in propre persone or by attorney, for his offence, &c.
- lxiiij. . Item, that the Ballies make levey, as welle of summes forfet to the comyns, as of summes forfett vnto them. And that the Ballies make fieri facias &c. And per elegit &c.
- lxv. . . Item, that alle the articles of this present yelde be affermed, &c.
- lxvj... Item, how the Ballies shullen be chosen by the Ballies and aldermen, w^t other worshipfulle beynge present.
- lxvij. . Item, that the seriaunts empanelle indifferently bitwene party and party, wtout favor, &c.
- lxviij. . Item, that no man selle ale out of his house w^tout he haue a sygne at his dore.
- lxix. . . Item, that no bochor occupie Cokes crafte.

* The words between brackets have been added in a later ink, though the hand is like.

THE ORDINANCES

- lxx. . . Item, that no citezein be attached by his body as fugityf tylle the Baillie haue warnynge.
- lxxi... Item, that ther be auditors assigned bitwene citezeins¹ to 1 (sic.) here accompts, &c.
 - Ixxii. Item, that no seriaunt be attorney ner color the meanes of attorn.
 - Ixxiij. . Item, that the citezeins of the old cheker & of the newe, ther payment at this yelde be no precedent, &c.
 - 1xxiiij. Item, how the Bysshoppes tenauntis beynge citezeins -shalbe demeaned, this article tellith.
 - lxxy. Item, that no Baker shalle bake horsbrede, kepynge ostery.
 - lxxvj. . Item, that no man kepe an hostrye wtout he haue a signe at his dore, vpon peyne of vj.s. viij d.
 - lxxvij. . Item, this article declareth of accyons of dette, trespas, and detenewe.
 - lxxviij. Item, how alle maner crafts, artificers, and ther contributories, wt ther lightes and pagents, shalle be ruled and demeaned.
 - lxxix. Item, that no officers take env fees of vittellers for the kynges borde.

(b) THE ORDINANCES.

These ordinances and articles were made Sept. 14. A.D. 1467.

Ordinaunces, Constitucions, and Articles, made by the kynges comaundement and by hole assent of the citesens inhabitantes in the Cyte of Worcester, at their yeld marchaunt, holden the Sonday in the feste of the Exaltacion of the holy crosse, the yere of the reigne of Kynge Edward the fourth after the conquest. the vite.

The articles are to be read at every law-day.

Records to be kept in the common coffer

I. ffurst it ys agrede and accorded, that alle the articles of thys present yeld be openly redde and declared at euery lawday next aftur the feste of Seynt Michell the Archangelle, yf it be desired. Also it ys ordeyned that the chartr of the seid cite, wt the ij. Socage Rollez, shullen be putt in the comyn cofor, and a copy of them to be made in a boke restynge with the Baillies.

II. Also it vs ordevned by this present veld, that the Baillies "Bailiffs to putt the Acts in evecu for the tyme beynge shulle, after hur power and duete, dayly putt cion" [original vide note, in later yn execucyon alle ordinaunces and actes made at this present hand]. yeld, and at other yeldes precedentz, which ben affermed, and at the lawdayes before hadde and yerly to be holden wtyn the seid cyte, wtout grete delay. And yf the seid Baillies do not hur devor in executynge these seid ordenauncez and Actes, when they ben proclamed aftur the custom of the seid cyte, or sone thervppon, that then the chamberlevns of the cyte, kepers of the articles of the yeld, yeve the seid Baillies, or on of hem, warnynge for more hastyer remedy and executyon to be hadd of the same, in forme aboueseid, by them and by hur auctoritie and power. And yf the seid Baill; do not hur devor according to these If they do not premisses, aftur dewe warnynge, that then the seid Baillies for due warning, to he fined. the tyme beynge shulle forfet to the comyn treso^r xiij.s. iiij.d., as ofte as he or they be founden in defaute by the comyn counselle of the chambor. And vf the chamberlevns for the tyme beynge. The chamberlains not duly warning or oon of them, yeve no knowleche to the Bailly in forme and the bailiffs, to be fined maner aforn reherced, aftur they ben duly warned or required by ij. credible persones of the seid cite, that then the seid ij. chamberleyns lese and forfett to the comvn treso^r xiij.s. iiij.d., as ofte as they or oon of hem be founde in defaute. And yf it so be that eny bailly or chamberleyn, for the tyme beynge present in the seid counselle house, when he or they ys founde in defaut, that he or they paye his peyne so forfett or they Fines to be paid departe, in the peyne of a c.s. to the comyn tresor.

at once, on pain of 100s.

III. Also that ther be ordeyned a stronge comyn cofur wt There shall be a strong box to keep vj. keyes, to kepe yn ther tresour, oon keye therof to be delyuered the treasure in, with six keys, to the high Baillye, and another to oon of the Aldermen, and the iijde to the chamberleyn chosyn by the grete clothynge. And the other iij. keyes to be delyuered, oon to the chamberleyn by the comyns chosen, and ij. other keyes to ij. thrifty comyners. trewe, sufficiant, and feithfulle men. And the vi. men to be chosen vppon the eleccion day, and the chamberleyns to ressevve hur rentes and other profitez of the cyte. And they to be sworen to make a dewe rekenynge bifore the auditors of the citee therof.

376

1 (sic)

The deeds kept m the box are to be examined.

withyn a moneth aft^r Mihelmas, or sone thervppon, or aftur the forme of an Acte folowynge; and that that¹ he ys founde in arreragis to be put in the comyn cofur. And that the Bailliez, the ij. Aldermen, and the ij. Chamberleyns, and a lerned man wt hem, makynge feith to kepe hur counseille, shullen go to the seid comyn cofur wtyn half a yere next folowynge aftur this present yeld, ther to make serche of alle maner of dedes vnder the comyn seale, graunted to cny persone or persones, of eny londes, tenements, or parcelle of grounde, in fee symple, fee tayle, terme of life, or terme of yeres; and of alle suche grauntes a titelynge to be hadde in a rolle made therof. And that to be shewed to the counselle of the seid cite, to see yf eny avayle myght growe to the seid cite, by eny suche grauntes aforne tyme made. And the seid kepers of keyes to delyuere the seid keyes and other thynges in ther warde to ther successors, on the lawedaye next folowynge the daye of the seide eleccion, in peyne of every of them, iij.s. iiij.d.

The Town property and rents to be accounted for yearly.

and enrolled.

The keys to be given up annually.

> IV. Also, that the comyns may have knowlech from yere to yere how the comyn grounde ys occupied, and by whom, and vf that it be not rented the comyns to seise it into hur handes, to that ende that they may be remembred of hur right, and to haue profit and avayle therof. Also, that the circuite of the fraunchesse may be knowe yerly, and that bothe the chamberleyns have a bille therof, that they may knowe veryly what ther rent comyth to.

Fines of green wax to be accounted for yearly.

V. Also, that every Bailly beynge for the yere, yelde accomptes of the yssues, fines, amerciaments of Grenewax, in the kynges courte forfet by eny citezen dwellynge wtyn the cyte, havynge no frank tenement wtout the cyte, to the comyn chamberleyns, he to accompte therof to the comyns, and then to putt it in the comyn cofur, yf it may be allowed in the kynges Escheker and yn his courtes or els wher. Savynge alwey duly the costes to the seid Baillies in the Escheker, vppon hur rekenynge made or done aboue¹ the same.

1 (sic.) Accounts to be audited.

VI. Also that every officer accomptable make his rekenynge afore auditors assigned by the Baillies and comyns, wtyn the quarter of the yerc aft^r that he ys out of his office, vppon the peyne of xx.s. or more, aft^r the discression of the Bailly and Aldermen of the seid cite. And that every accomptaunt to the comyn avayle of the seid cite, from hensforth vppon his accomptes aforne the auditors yeven, paye his arreragys at the seid and arrears to be paid. accomptes founden dewe. And that the auditors put in execucion alle founden in arreragis, accordynge to the statute. And also it ys ordeyned that alle that have ben accompteraunts here beforn, and have not payde the arrerages dewe of ther accomptes, paye ther arrerages at this seid yelde, or sone theroppon, vppon peyne of euerych of them of disfraunchesynge. Also it ys or- Four "judges," to sit with the deyned, that at the daye of eleccyon of the Baillies, that ther be auditors, to be chosen out of the electe and chosen by the high eleccion, ij. worshipfulle and dis- 24 and the 48. crete persones of the axiiij., and ij. sadde and discrete persones by the lowe election of the xlviij., to sitte wt the auditor in tyme of audite as Juges, and to here the audite of euery persone that ys accomptable, and that the seid auditor and iiij. persones aforeseid be sworen vppon a Boke to here the seid accomptes; and to allowe every persone alle that he ought to be allowed, and charge them that ought to be charged.

VII. Also, that alle amerciaments of eny craftes man and Amercements upon craftsmen vitellers vnder the correccion of the Aldermen, and lawfully and victuallers. founden bifore them, be arered by the Aldermens seriaunt, and payde to the chamberleyns by bille endented, they to yeve accompt to the comyns theref yerly; and that yf eny citezen, craftesman, or vitteller, refuse to pay such amercyaments uppon them lawfully affured, for suche offences that ben presented aforn the seid Aldermen, that it vppon him lawfully proved, he paye for that offence xl.d., the oon half to the Bailly and the other half to the comyn cofur.

VIII. Also, that the actes of the yelde and of other yelds Acts of the gild to precedents, shullen be enacted and engrossed in a quayer of put in a box, of parchemyn, in the same syngulerly, be¹ articles to be declared; and the same quayer to be put in a boxe called a Casket, loken, to remayne in the high Bailly Warde; of which Casket the keye shalle remayne w^t oon of the chamberleyns, to be redy yf eny be engrossed and which one of the chamberlains is to have the key.

1 [by] lawfulle desire be hadd or made for the seid boke of articles to be redde or seyn. And of alle the seid articles in the seid boke Two copies to be made of the articles, one for the low bailiff the other for the chamberlains : who shall be called "Conservators of the Articles of the Gild."

the articles comprised, a Rolle endented of the same to be engrossed, of the tenor of the seid articles, the oon partie of the seid Rolle endented to be delyuered to the vnder Baylly for the tyme beynge, for levy of summes forfet and to hym longynge by the same, and the other parte of the seid Rolle endented to be delyuered to the ij. chamberleyns of the cite beynge for the tyme. And also to be called conservitors or kepers of the articles of this seid yelde, to that entent that they make levey of summes forfett by the same, to the vse and profit of the seyd comynalte, dewly to be declared vppon ther accomptes amonge ther other receytes, and so to be delyuered to the comyn cofur. And vf ther be env restreynt, denyinge, obstinacys, or con-Proceedings as to sums forfeit under tradiccion made by eny persone or persones, that owith to paye such summe forfet, that then vppon resonable warnynge made to them, they to appere aforn the xxiiij. and xlviij. comyners of the seid cite, chosen for good rewle of the same, that for these causes and other shullen com and assemble togeder in euery quarter of the yere, ones or oftener and it nede, in the counselle house of the seid cyte. And the vnder Bailly and the forseid chamberleyns, kepers of the articles, to declare of alle such persones that han in eny wise offended the ordinaunces of this yelde. And then the parties accused to alegge hur causes, why thay wollen not paye suche summes, forfet by them to the seid chamberleyns and conseruitors of the seid articles; and for that they shullen be founden gilty, to obeye, observe, and do as such trespasors, or env of them shullen be ordeyned, by the advise and assent of the seid xxiiij. and xlviij. aboue named, and aftur the more partie of them accorded for such correccion to be made; and he or they that this ordinaunce refuseth, to be disfraunchised for euer, and in no wyse afterward to be amytted. And yf eny persone or persones of the xxiiij. or xlviij. that in that case that he or they han forfetted ayenst the articles of the seid yelde, for which hym owyth to be amerced or punysshed, that then he be put a parte, as for the tyme of comenynge, by

One of the 24 or 48 offending against the articles, to be set aside, and his tellows shall consider what to do with him.

color as his owne vppon the market day, tyll it have be in the of the common market vnto the tyme that the howre assigned for every comyner corn to bye ther be past, uppon the peyne to paye vj.s. viij.d., the oon half to be payde to the Baillies for the tyme beynge, and the other half to the comyn cofer, ther to abyde for the supportacyon of the comyn charge of the cite.

> XI. Also, that the comyns may be served alwey of ale, as it Ale to be sold ys allowed and assessed at the lawe dayes, and as malte ys solde assize set at the in the market, and not sylle it at other price, in peyne of lesynge bread to be given the remenaunt of his seid fellyship, what shalle be done or assessed for his or their correccyon that shalle be founden defectyf, and aftur that asythed and contented, to be reconsiled to the seid fellyshippe as they were aforen, apon his condicions and good aberynge.

OF WORCESIER.

IX. Also, that Bakers make no fyne with the Bailly for ther Regulation of offence of bakynge, but that they have the punysshement of every defaute accordynge to the Statute, and to the lawe. And that they bye no corne vn the market day, in somer tylle xj. of the Belle, and in Wynter tyme tylle xij. of the belle. And bt the seid Bakers bye no corne ne mele in hur houses aforn the seid owres vppon the market day. And that they regrate no No regrating corne commynge to the market, in peyne of lesynge xx.s. for every of the seid offences, to be payde, the half thereof to the Bayllies for the tyme beynge, and the other half to the comyn cofre. And that the Baillies and the chamberleyns for the tyme The assize of beynge shullen yeve warnynge to the wardeyns of the Bakers out weekly. crafte, every Saturday, the assie and wyght for the weke folowynge that they shullen bake after; yt to be kept amonge them, yppon peyne of euery Baker, as ofte as he ys founde in defaut, of xl.d., to be payde to the Baillies office for the tyme beynge, or els to correcte them according to the statute. And that the said wardeyns shullen wekely come to the seid Baillies for knowleche of the seid weght and assie, and geve warnynge to euery Maister wekely of the same, vppon peyne of euery of them xl.d., to be payde, half to the seid Baillies and half to the comynalte.

X. Also, that no Baker resseyve no corne in to his house vnder Bakers not to take unfair advantage folk in buying > according to the aw-days.

of vj.s. viij.d., half to the Baillies and half to the comyns. And Three gallons of small ale to be sold for 1d.

Two grave and wise ale-conners to be chosen.

The price of ale to be assessed at every law day.

that the Brewers brewe and sylle iij. galons of smale ale for j.d., and to make it fyne accordynge to the price of good ale, vppon the seid peyne of vj.s. viij.d., the on half to be payd to the Baillies for the tyme beynge, and the other half to the comyn cofre. And that ther be ordeyned vppon the eleccion day, ij. ale conners of sadd and discrete persones, to se that the ale be good and sete, or els the Bailly to sille it aft^r the ale, or els to be corrected and punysshed by the Baillies and aldermen ther for the tyme beynge, aftur hur discression. And that the price of ale be sessed at euery lawday by the gret enquest, or by the moste party of them. Prouided alwey bt the most partye of the grest enquest, to the half partye or more, be not of Brewers, but other citesens of the seid cyte, by the discressyon of the Bayllies.

THE ORDINANCES

The public ale measure to be kept for use.

XII. Also that comyns have vppe ayen, as hit hath ben, the Cowle to mete ale wt, at the costes of the Baillies for the tyme beynge. XIII. Also that no foreyn Burges, ne none other, Straunger and resiaunt, ben serued ; yf the seid Brewers and maltmakers in the somer season, wollen bye eny barly or malte, by xj. of the belle, and yn wynter by xij. of the belle ; on peyne of a noble lesynge, the oon half to be payde to the Bayllies, and the other half to the comyn tresor.

Outsiders not to buy barley or malt ne fforeyn, by no Barly ne malte, ne none other greyne in the till 11 o'clock in summer, and 12 in markett, tylle the comyn Brewers and malte makers, resident winter.

A woman merchant to be answerable, independently of her husband.

XIV. Also yf eny mans wyf becom dettor or plegge, or by or sylle eny chaffare or vitelle, or hyre eny house by hur lyf, she to answere to hym or hur that hath cause to sue, as a woman soole marchaunt; and that an accion of dette be mayntend avenst hur, to be conceyved aftr the custom of the seid cite, wtout nemyng hur housbond in the seid accyon.

Water to be brought in buckets on horseback, to any fire in the city.

XV. Also that the Bitters be redy wt hur horses and bittes to brynge water vnto euery citezen, when he ys required by eny man or child when eny parelle of fuyre ys wtyn the cite, in peyne of lesynge of xl.d., to the Baillies half, and the other half to the comyn tresour.

XVI. Also that better gouernaunce and rule be hadd, and Wood, coals, and better ouersight, vppon keywood, crates, and colez, and bagges to ment, to be better mete hem w^t; and to forfett them that ben forfetable by the lawe.

XVII. Also that the wolle wyght be but of the wyght of The city weights ij.lb. and an half, and that it be made after the wyght ensealed sealed. accordynge to the kynges standard, and that all other wightes wtyn the cite of the seid wyghtes be ensealed accordynge to the kynges standart, in peyne of lesynge vj.s. viij.d., to be payde to the Bailly, who so yn fawte ys founde. And that, where it ys Whereas the payvsed and accustumed grete cloth-makynge to be hadd wtyn the libourers in clothseid cite and subbarbes of the same, and so occupied by grete to their hurt; parte of the people ther dwellynge, that is to sey by spynners, websters, dyers, shermen, and other laborers or artificers apperteynynge to the same, as now late rite and practyk hath be vsed; that to these seid artificers, by maisters and makers of cloth they shuld none other wyse be contented or payde but in mercery, vitelle, or by other meanes, and not in syluer, that hath growen to grete hurte by alle the seid artificers, laborers, and of the poure comynalte :---It is ordeyned fro hensforth, by this it is not to be so present yelde, that none artificers, laborer, or eny other persone will, of the seid cite, ayenst his assent, wylle, or agreament, be not compelled or charged to resseyve nothynge in chaffare, but in gold or syluer, of eny makers, chapmen, or syllers of cloth. And he or they that presumen to doo the contrarie, as often tyme as they be founden in defaute, to paye xx.s., the oon half to the on pain of 20s. Bailly of the cite for the tyme beynge, and the other half to the comyns of the seid cyte, to be put in hur comyn cofre, ther to be kept to the profite of the seid comynalte. And that no maner Work people outcitezen, tensur, nor inhabitaunt wtyn the seid cite, by cause of this acte of comyn custom, put out eny wolle in hurting of the seid cite, or in hynderynge of the pour comynalte of the same, wher they be persones ynogh and people to the same, to dye, carde, or spynne, weve, or cloth-walke, withyn the seid cyte, to every maner person or persons forein, but it be to men or women dwellynge w'yn the seid cite or subbarbes of the same, for wool to be ment in kind of making, is greatly made against their

to be employed to the hurt of the poor commonalty in the town.

of such disposicion as vs biforn reherced, vppon peyne of forfetor of xl.s. as oftentyme as they be founden in defaut theref, to be payde, half to the Baillies, and half to the comyn aboueseid.

XVIII. Also, it ys ordeyned by this present yelde, that every citezen of the seid cite or subbarbes of the same, vsynge to bye wolle comvnge to the seid cite for makynge of cloth, that he bye his wolle, and custom for the same to be payde as reason requireth. And the seid wolle to be wayed in the yelde halle of the seid cite by the byer and the syller, and custom for every vj.s. viij.d. Whereof the oon half to be payde to the Baillies and the other half to the comyn tresor. And that no wolle be solde in the yelde halle, on the market day, tyll x. of the belle, and that then it be lawfulle for every citezen for to bye, and that no straunger ther by no wolle tylle xi. of the belle, in peyne of alle and every of them doynge the contrary, vj.s. viij.d.; the oon half therof to the Baillies and the other half to the comyn cite, but it be in the yelde halle of the same, payinge for the custom of euery dyker, j.d. And who so doth the contrarie, to paye xl.d. in forme aboueseid. Also that no corvyser by env lether comynge to the seid cite, but in the yelde halle, vppon peyne of xl.d., in forme aboueseid to be payde. Also that every straunger pave every market day, for stondynge in the velde-halle, j.d. And in the feyre tyme, ij.d. And that every citezen for every Saturday, for stondynge in the seid halle, paye ob., and Custom is to be paid on wool coming into the city 1 for every tod, 1d. todd, j.d. And yf eny man do the contrarye, that he shalle paye

At what hours wool may be sold.

tresor. Also that no maner foreyn sille no lether in the seid Strangers can sell leather only in the gild-hall.

Shoe makers may buy leather only in the gild-hall.

Tolls for stalls in the gild-hall.

Horses and mares not to stand in the market-place on market-days.

euerv fevre tyme j.d.

XIX. Also, that no horses ne marcs be stondynge in the comvn market place on the market dayes, in peyne of lesynge of every horse and mare, j.d.; the oon half to be payde to the Baillies for the tyme beynge, and the other half to the comyn tresor.

Every man must keep his path clean and his pavement in repair.

XX. Also, that every man kepe his soyle clene avenst his tenement, and his pavyment hole, in peyne of xl.d.; half to be payde to the Bayllies, and the other half to the comyn tresor.

Punishment of vicious persons. XXI. Also, yf eny Bawdes, Resseitors of seruants and of mens children, scolders, and childers, be wtyn the cite, and it duly presented and founde vppon the lawday, they to be punysshed by the Baillies of the cite aft^r hur discressyon.

XXII. Also it mught be ordered a substancialle rule, that The five crafts' v. pagentes amonge the craftes, to be holden yerly, shuld not be morestrictly kept: to seche when the [y] shuld go to do worshippe to god and to the cite, and to better and more certenly kept then they have be bifore this tyme, vppon peyn of every crafte founde in defaute of xl.s.; the oon half to be payd to the Baillies and the other half to the comvn tresor. And that the stewards of every the contribution crafte that ben contributory, shullen be called to the accompte to knowe the charge, so that the Stuards of euery crafte may have levey as for ther parte, in peyne of hym that ys founde in defaute, iii.s. iiii.d.; half to the Bailly, and half to the comyn tresor. Also that yerly, at the lawday holdyn at hokday, that the grete enquest shalle provide and ordeyn whether the pageant shuld go that vere or no. And so yerly for more surete.

and the Hock-tide lawday yearly to fix whether the pageant shall go or not.

bekept in the City,

gentlemen of the

XXIII. Also, that good disposicion, rule, and ordinaunce [be] Good order shall hadd and contynued wtyn the seid cite, and none evylle occasyon and between the yeven on the partie of the seid cite. And that pease and Reste Shire and of the City. may be hadd and contynued bitwene Gentell; of the Shyre and the Cite, at alle dayes. And that no lyvereis be yevyn ne resceyved by no man wtyn the cite, contrarye to lawe and ayenst the lawe.

XXIV. Also, that no intraille; of eny manner bestes, nor no The cleansing of blood-pits. puttes of bloode, be clansed or caryed awey on the day, but ouer night; in due tyme, and before vsyd. And that no blode putte be vnclensyd ouer a day and a night, be it wynter or somer, on peyne of xij.d., to be payde, who so may be founde in defaut, by the serche of the Bayllies or by Inquisicion of xij. men ther in defaut so founde, the oon half to the Baillies, and the other half to the comyn tresor, as often and as many tymes as they be founde in defaut.

XXV. Also, that ther be v. fuyre hokes, to drawe at every Five fire hooks to thynge wher paryle of fuyre ys in eny parte of the cite; and they to be sette in iij. parties of the cite. And grete helpe and be kept to help in case of fire.

ue from each craft to be settled and levied ;

nede be that god defende. And the same hokes to be made by the chamberleyns.

No wooden chymneys, nor thatched houses, are to be allowed in the city.

386

XXVI. Also, that no chymyneys of Tymber be suffred, ne thacched houses w'yn the Cyte, but that the owners do hem awey, and make them chymyneys of Stone or Bryke, by mydsomer day next commynge, and tyle the thacched houses by the seid day, in peyn of lesynge of a noble. And aftr that day, every half vere a noble tylle it be done, to be payde to the comvn tresor.

There shall be but 24 of the upper chamber of the common council: if any of them die. the remainder shall choose another the next lawday.

On refusal to serve to forfeit 13s. 4d.

If any of the 48 commoners die, another shall be chosen.

XXVII. Also that ther be no mo of the grete Acloth but xxiiij. And that they have lyuere of a sute every iijde yere. And which of hem refuse so to do that he shal pay, as ofte as he refuseth, vj.s. viij.d.; half to the Baillies and half to the comyn tresor. And yf eny of the seid grete Acloth dissease, that then it be lefulle to the opr lyvynge, to chese other in hur stede, sufficiant and lawfulle, to the grete Acloth, by the next lawday folowynge. And he so chosen not to refuse, vppon peyne of forfetture of xiij.s. iiij.d., the oon half to be payd to the Baillies for the tyme beynge, and the other half to the comyn cofre. And yf eny of the xlviij. lakke or dissease, that ther be then another chosen, of the moste sadde and sufficiant of the comyns wtyn the cite, bifore the next lawday aftr the seid dissease.

And yf eny so chosen refuse, that then he forfett iij.s. iiij.d., in On refusal to serve, to pay 3s. 4d.

forme aboueseid.

No grant is to be made from the common property by the 24, without the advice of the 48 commoners

If money is wanted, a Comment.

mittee of twelve of the 24 and 48 shall make an assess

XXVIII. Also that the worthy men of the seid cloth graunt no yefte of the comyns good, but of hur owne, wtout the advise of the xlviij. comyners or the more parte of them ther beynge present; and b^{t} yf the case and matere happen so, [that] ther be no comyn goodes in hande, and the necessite of the cite requirith so grete hast that good most nedely be hadd, in eschewynge of more inconvenients or grete harmes that shuld follow for suche defaut of good, That then vj. of the xxiiij. and vj. of the xlviij., by the Baillies of the seid cite for sadd and discrete persones of the same to be nemed and lymitted, shulle have power, by ther discressions, to assesse in resonable summes alle maner of persones wtyn the cyte or subbarbes of the same, that oweth and ben able to paye suche a levy or gederynge as the matere and charge shall require. And they also assessed or levd, hold them agreed and content of the demanynge of the seid seid¹ xij, persones so assigned; and what persone that refuseth to paye, at that tyme shall be bound by as he ys assessed or leyd, shal paye to the comyn cofre xl.d. the committee. And it happen to be ordeyned and assented by the assente of the Every loan to be cite, that every man that payeth to such a yefte or lone above the assessment is levied. specificied, shalle have repayment of suche a summe as he hath payde, that then he be trewly contented by the Bailly wtout any abregeament of his summe in eny wise, as sone as it may be levyed.

OF WORCESTER.

1 (sic.) the decision of repaid as soon as

XXIX. Also, yf ther be eny wyndowes, dorres, or holes of The gild-hall is to newe, made in to the yeld halle, wherthorough eny persone may se, here, or have knowlech what ys done in the seid halle, that it be so stopped by the doers or vsers therof, vppon peyne of xiii.s. iiij.d.; to be payde to the Baillies, the oon half, and the other half to the comvn tresor.

XXX. Also, that no maner persone pleye at the pame or at The games of tenys, wtyn the yeld halle of the seid cite, vppon peyne of euery must not be persone founde in defaute, xl.d.; the oon half to be payde to the Baillies of the cite for the tyme beynge, and the other half to the comyns of the seid cite, as ofte as he ys founde in defaute.

XXXI. Also it ys ordeyned by this present yelde, that yf eny What passes at the Common of the xxiiij. persones of the grete Acloth discouere any maner Council meetings is not to be made thynge that ys seid at ther comyn counselle in wey of counselle public. in the counselle chambre of the seid cite, that he shalle lese as ofte tymes as he ys founden in defaute, xiij.s. iiij.d.; wherof the Bayllies for the tyme beynge shalle have the oon half, and the comynalte the other half. Also yf eny of the xlviij. persones chosen and named for the comyn counsell of the seid cite, discouere eny maner thing that ys seid at hur comyn counselle in the seid comyn counselle chambre in wey of counselle, that he shalle lese as often tymes as he ys founden in defaut, vj.s. viij.d.; wherof the Bailly for the tyme beynge shalle have the oon half and the comynalte the other half.

XXXII. Also, that every citezen dwellynge wtyn the seid cite be kept private.

All citizens must aid in keeping the peace.

that may serve the kynge in kepynge the pease, be redy at euery grete debate, affray, discension, and stryfe made wtyn the cite, to go helpe and strenght the Baillyz for the tyme beynge. to se that the pease be kept w'vn the cite; and what citizen wtyn the cite sworn refuseth, or helpeth env partie, or veve favor but only to the seid Baillies of the seid cite, in helpynge of them, that it be enquered by xii. men. And vf it be founden, by env citezen dwellynge wtyn the cite, he to lese xx.s.; half to the Baillies and the other half to the comvn treso^r; and other straungers to make a fyne. And that every citezen or other w^tyn the cite haue defensable wepyn w^tyn hym self, for kepynge of the pease.

No livery to be worn, except the king's.

The king's peace is not to be disturbed.

Officers and ministers are to be obeyed.

None may give liveries, except according to statute;

XXXIII. Also, by the kynge it ys ordeyned and commaunded to be straytly observed and kept, commaundements made by his highnes and his discrete counselle, that no man wtyn the cite or wtout, were no lyvereys or signes of no mans yefte, of what condicion or astate that he be, but only of the kynges; and that no man go armed, to bere launcegayes, Gleyves, Speres, and other wepyn, in distorbynge of the kynges pease and people. And that no Robbers, assembles gederynges, or compeneys, be made in disturbaunce of the seid pease; ne no man to com w^{t} forse of armes aforn the kynges Justices, Baillies, or eny other ministeres in doynge ther office; vppon peyn of lesynge of hur armor and wepyn, and inprisonment of hur bodyes at the kyngez wylle, aft^r the teno^r of the Statute made for suche cases. And that alle maner of persones, of what astate, condicyon, or degre that ever he be, obeye the kynges officers and ministeres in doynge hur office, and occupacion, as welle for the kynge, as for env other persone in alle thynge lawfulle, vsages and custummz vsed and approved. And what persone doth the contrarye, to have inprisonement and other punysshement lawfulle, as the case shalle require. And that no persone of what astate, condicion, or degre he be, in euy wyse geve or take eny clothynge or lyuereys, for mayntenaunces or otherwise, but only accordynge to the Statutes in such case made and ordeyned. Ner that env craftiesman, artificer, or other, dwellynge or holdynge houshold, in Cites, Boroughez, market townes, or other and no craftsman places, vsynge his crafte in eny wise, be of clothynge wt eny hvery than his other persone, or take vppon hym to be named man or seruant for supportacyon or maynetenaunce with env persone, of what astate, degre, or condicion he be, vppon peyne of grevous and streyte inprisonement of hys body, and to make fyne and rannson at the kynges wille. Also that no man, of what astate, Misdoers must degre, or condicion he be, rescevve, cheryshe, holde vn houshold, or maynteyne pillors, Robbers, dispoylers, oppressors of people, mansleers, ffelons, Outlawes, Ravysshers of wymen, vnlawfull hunters of fforestes, Parkes, or Wareyns, opyn mysdoers, or eny openly named or famed for such offences, tylle the trouthe be welle knowen and tryed. And what citezen dwellynge wtyn the He who offends seid cite or subharbes of the same, bt offendyth in these articles will forfeit or in eny of them above specified, that ben by the kynge and his discrete counselle ordeyned and proclamed, and lawfulle prove made vppon hym that he hath so offended, that then he forfet to the kynge aft^r the seid proclamacyon and ordinaunce, and to the citezens of the seid cite, xl.s.; that ys to seve, the oon half to be arered and payde to the Baillies for the tyme beynge of the seid cite, and the other half to the comyn avayle.

XXXIV. Also it ys ordeyned by this present yelde, that yf Those making affray in the City eny maner citezen foreyn, or eny other persone, make eny afray found guilty by a wtyn the cite, vppon eny persone drawynge his dagger, his punished. sworde, his knyfe, or els w^t env other maner wepyn, that he lese to the Baillies of the cite being for the tyme, (vf such a persone may be founde defectly by xij. men lawfully sworen) at every tyme of env such trespas, xl.d., and his seid wepen, of what condicion it be, to be forfet to the profite and vse of the seid comynalte. And yf eny person by his mysrule wt eny Penalty for blood maner of wepen ayenst the kynges pease drawe eny blode of eny persone wtyn the seid cite and subbarbes of the same, that then he forfett his wepen to the vse of the comyns afornseid, as it ys aboue reherced, and to the Baillies of the seid cite for the tyme beynge, of such a blode shedd lawfully by xij. men founden. vj.s. viij.d.; and yf he be not of power to paye the summes by may wear other

not be harboured.

against those ury, shall be 388

THE ORDINANCES

But servants and apprentices may be corrected.

hym forfet, then he to have inprisonement for his correccion, after the discression of the seid Baillies. Provided alwey that it shalle be lefulle to eny inhabitaunt to correct his seruant or apprentice accordynge to the lawe.

Fees for the freedom of the City.

Apprentices'

indentures.

XXXV. Also that ther be no Burges made free, fro this day forward, wtout that he pay to the comyn cofre of the cite, xiij.s. iiij.d., except that he be a Burgeys Son dwellynge wtyn the cite, or els that he have be apprentice vij. yere in the cite ; and to the Baillies hur fees xl.d., of old tyme accustumed, and the ij. Aldermen of the seid cite, and other officers, ix.d. And that no prentice haue his fredom of Burgesshippe, but he serue out fulle vij. yere of prentishode. And that every citezen desirynge or havynge prentice wtyn the seid cite, by terme of vij. yeres, that ther be endenturs made bitwen hem for the seid terme, as the lawe requirith, and aft^r the seid endentures ben ensealed, that they brynge them aforn the Baillyz of the cite for the tyme beynge; the seid endenturs shortly to be enrolled, and therfore to paye v.d., that ys to sey to the vse of the seid comynalte, iiij.d., and to the Townclerk for the enrollynge, j.d.; vnder peyn of the maister of the apprentice, vj.s. viij.d., and also the seid endenturs of every such apprentice to stonde voyde and of none effect.

The freedom to be given openly.

and the fees for these

XXXVI. Also that no Burges be made in secrete wise, but openly, bifore sufficiaunt recorde. XXXVII. Also that ther be no cytesen made w^tyn the cite but that he be resiaunt in the seid cite. If he go out of the same cite, and other whiles resorteth ayeyn and taketh his ffredom of the Burgesshippe in the cite, that then he pay taske, tallage, knyghtenspence, wacches, and other charges wtyn the warde that he comyth furst in to the seid cite by. And that yf eny citezen dwellynge wtyn the ffraunchesse of be seid cite, or eny citezen fforeyn dwellynge wtout, or in eny cymitory or londe spirituelle, that refuseth or denyeth to pay, aftur lawfulle warnynge made to them or eny of them, alle such payments as ben leid or assessed vppon them for taske, tallage, or eny other charge aboueseid; that then, by the enacte of this present yelde, he or they that so

All citizens must be resident; and must pay the taxes and other charges, or they will lose the privileges of the city.

refusen be disfraunchised and not suffred to by and sille w^tyn the seid cite, but as a straunger paynge his custom therfore.

XXXVIII. Also the comyns desiren and also it ys ordeyned, that Citizens are not to no citezen be putt in comyn prisone, but in oon of the chambors of the halle benethforth, w'out he be commytted to prison for felony or mans deth, or an heynos trespas, or els the summe of dett of x.li.; alwey forseyn that the Baillies make seurte sufficiaunt for the summe of his inprisonement, and thervppon put hym in baylle.

XXXIX. Also that no seriaunt take of eny citezen for ser- Fees to be taken by the serjeants. vynge of a capias eny thynge but in maner folowynge; and that a seriaunt take of a fforeyn for servynge of a capias, yf the dett be vnder vjs. viij.d., but ij.d.; and yf the summe excede vj.s. viij.d., to take for a capias but iiij.d. And that no seriaunt [take] of eny citezen for servynge of a venire facias, habeas corpore, and distringas, for alle but vj.d. And of a foreyn for the same but viij.d. Also that no seriaunt take of eny citezen attached, for his fees at his delyueraunce, but iiij.d. Also that no seriaunt for the tyme beynge take eny fees of eny persone inhabitaunt wtyn the liberte of the cite, accused or endited aforn the Baillies for the tyme beynge. Also that no seriaunt take fore attachement of eny goodes, at the sute of eny persone straunger, but ij.d.; and for ther fees, when the goodes be preised, but iiij.d. And for a citezein nothynge for attachement. And a seriaunt take of no man feez, beynge present in courte, for surete of the pease asked of hym beynge in courte, ner for none other accyon beynge in prison, but only for the furst attachement or arestynge for the which he ys arested. Also yf that eny citezen or denysen take, ayenst eny person, accion of dette, detunow, or trespas, that no seriaunt take for the seruynge of a capias, yf the dette excede xx.s. or the damage in accyon of trespas or detunue xl.s., but ij.d. Also yf eny citezen or denezen, or eny other, take eny accyon personelle ayenst eny other, havynge out processe of the same, that then, yf the seid pleintif require eny seriaunt to serue the seid processe accordynge to the lawe, that the seid seriaunt shal do his devor to the executyng therof, in peyne of lesynge vj.s. viij.d. to the comyn tresour, as ofte as he or they is or ben small offences in room under the gild-hall.

390

the common prison, but in a founden in defaut, in this or in env cause aboueseid, proved

The time and the manner of taking their fees by serjeants.

392

beforn the Baillies and the counselle in the counselle chambre. Also that no seriaunts ne seriaunt go for hur offerynge vn Cristemas day, ne gedre no fees of eny denyzen nor foreyn at other sesons, but as he or they wolle agree by their fre wylle. And that no seriaunt nor seriaunts compelle, constreyn, or charge, no person ner persones to yelde, or to yeve to ther offrynge by threte, or by crafte of enpanellynge, or otherwise, eny thynge, in peyne of lesynge vj.s. viij.d. to the comyn tresour, as ofte as he or they ben or ys founden in defaute in forme aboueseid. And that they, ne nen of them, take eny fees or eny other matere or cause as ofte as it happenith of eny person, but as it hath ben vsed and accustumed, vnder the same peyn.

None may rebuke or reprove the officers of the city in the execution of their duty.

XL. Also yf eny citezen or inhabitaunt wtyn the seid cite rebuke the Baillies for the tyme beynge, or geve them eny wordes of eny occasion, or reproofe, in executynge his office lawfully, that he shalle pay as oftentyme as he is founden in defaut by the comyn counselle, xx.s.; half to be payde to the Baillies and half to the comyn cofur. And that the Baillies for the tyme beynge have auctorite and power to inprisone them vnto the tyme that the xx.s. be payde. And yf eny citezen or inhabitaunt aboueseid rebuke, or yeve eny wordes of accacyon, to the Aldermen, Chamberleyns, Recorder, or Towneclerk of the seid cite executynge ther offices proued in forme aboueseid, that they shal pay vj.s. viij.d. in forme aboueseid.

All citizens foreign to dwell within the city.

The hire of the rooms in the gild hall

XLI. Also that ther be made, fro this tyme forth, no foreyn Burgeis, but he be sworen to dwelle wtyn the cite. And who so doth be contrarye, that he be disfraunchised of his libertees. And that no citezen foreyn bye ne sille other color of eny other person not citezen, in defraudynge of the kynges custom, no maner of merchaundise, vnder peyne of disfraunchesynge; and that every citezen forein hire no house ne chambor accustumed to be hyred wtyn the yelde halle, but wekely, by the graunt of the keper of the halle and ouersight of the kepers of the articles of the yelde, as they mowe accorde, in peyne aboueseid. That be he citezen or straunger that hyreth eny chambor in that seide halle house, put no foreyn good but his owne in the same, vppon peyne aforseid. Provided alle wyse, that vf the citezens dwelling wtyn the churche yordes, or ffraunchesies ajovnynge to this, the citee, be priuyleged as citezen denesyn. Prouided also, that yf eny citezen denesyn or foreyn departe out Freedom not forfeited by absence of the seid cite, and resorte ayein wtyn a yere, that then he have of less than a year. benefice of alle libertees, and priuylages of the seid citee.

XLII. Also that every citezen and Burgeys wtoutforth shal Citizens foreign to pay the same pay at every taske, vigille, lones, yefts, and alle other charges, as taxes, &c. as citizens denisen. the citezens done that dwellyn wtynforth, on peyne of lesyng of hur libertees and ffrauncheys, except certeyn persones that for ther grete worshipe and offices of attendaunce be exemted. Whos names apperen ;---Thomas lytulton, Ser Walter Skulle, knyght, Thomas Throkmorton, Thomas Everdon, Norman Wassheborn, and Willyam Lygon.

XLIII. Also, that no citezen resident wtyn the cite and No citizen outdemenaunt, havynge env proteccyon, or beynge outlawed or shall bear office. acursed, bere none office w^tyn this cite, on peyne of forfettynge of his ffraunchesse.

XLIV. Also, that every eleccion of citezens for to come to the Members of Parliament, that they be chosen openly in the yelde halle, of city shall be such as ben dwellynge wtyn the ffraunches, and by the moste the gild-hall; voice, accordynge to the lawe and to the statutes in suche case ordeynd, and not priuyly. And he or thay that retorneth hem in other wyse, lese to the comyn tresor, c.s. And that fro hens- they must have forth, the citezens that shalbe chosen for the parliament, be of tions; and must good name and fame, not outlawed, not acombred in accyons, as nygh as men may knowe, for worshipp of the seid cite. And that he be of frehold verly, at the leste, xl.s. And that the seid persones so chosen for the parliament, that they ben att it to the ende of the parliament, and that they be served of hur wages They shall have accustumed, after hur commynge home, withyn a quarter of a three months yere next followynge. And he that refuseth to pay, after he ys assessed to the seid expensis, to lese to the comyn tresor xx.d. And the constable that doth not his devor for the lever of the same, to lese to the seid comyn tresour, vj.s. viij.d.

lawed or accursed

Parliament for the osen openly in certain qualifica stay to the end of Parliament.

their wages within

No suit to be made in a foreign court for a thing done within the city.

XLV. Also that no citezen make no sute avenst no citezens in env court wtout forth, vnto the tyme that he take his accyon wtynforth, for thynge matere or cause done wtyn the seid cite or ffraunches of the same, yn peyne of lesynge of his ffraunches. And that the party that such or propose to sue in foreyn court, for more hastyer remedye for suche matere or cause, do warne the Baillies, and do the party defendant warnynge,

Peace to be made between the parties if possible. for the most peasable wey to be taken bitwene the seid parties, yf it may be; and this to be done in payne afornseid. And yf eny citezen fforen wolle, or proposeth to, sue eny citezen denesyn for eny matere or cause done wtoutforth, that he warne the Baillies for the tyme beynge, or on of hem, in peyne of lesynge of his ffraunches; ples of lond only except.

XLVI. Also, that no citezen or inhabitaunt wtyn the cite be attached by his body for eny accusement or trespas, yf he wolle comyn and appere at the day of the venire facias retornable. And yf he make defaut at that day, then to make out a capias ayenst hym, and then no seriaunt take no fees of them. vnder peyne of hym that doth the contrarye, xiij.s. iiij.d.; half to the Baillies and half to the comyn tresor.

Tensures to be reasonably fined; and to be made citizens on residence of a year and a day.

XLVII. Also, that every Tensure be sett a resonable fyne, aft^r the discression of the Aldermen, and that every tensure that hath ben wtyn the cyte a vere or more dwellynge, and hath sufficiaunt to the valor of xl.s. or more, be warned to be made citezen, by resonable tyme to hym lymitted, and yf he refuse that, that he shalle yerly pay to the comyn cofre xl.d., ouer that summe that shalle yerly pay to the Baillies or eny other officers ; and so yerly to contynue tylle he be made citezen.

For the avoiding of a wrongful amercement for offences.

XLVIII. Also, it ys ordeyned at this present yelde, that yf eny citezen, tensure, or eny other persone, of what condicion that he be, dwellynge wtyn the cite or subarbes of the same, [be] amercied, or accused of trespas, or for eny cause semblable, aforn the Baillies, for the which the seid Baillies wold take by hur owne wylle eny grevous fyne or amerceament of them, contrary to the lawe or conscience; and wher the party dredith, or ys not of power, to travers the seid presentements or accusement for his acquitalle; That then for every such partie so accused or amercied, by right-wysnes of the courte to avoyde alle suche extortwo afferors shall cion and oppression, ij. affurers of good name and fame and also be indifferently of sad discression in the seid open court, indifferently, shullen chosen, to tax the amercements as truth requires the be assigned by ij. Aldermen, or oon of them, and there sworen to matter to be dealt with. assesse and affure alle such amerciaments vppon alle suche trespasors, as lawe and conscience requireth, wtout env favor or feyned pyte owed to env party, but as the matere of trouth requirith to be demeaned, and the seid parties so founden in defaut to abyde and obeye it. And who so refuseth and doth the contrarye of this article, to pay to the comyn tresor.

vj.s. viij.d. as often as he ys founden in defaut, of what condicion or degre he be.

XLIX. Also it ys ordeyned by this present yelde, that alle Labourers to stand maner laborers that wolle by hyred w^tyn the cyte, that they stonde dayly at the Grascroys on the werkedays wtyn the seid mer, and 6 in the cite, ther redy to alle persones such as wolle hyre hem to their certeyn labor, for resonable summes; in be somr seson at v. of the Belle in the mornynge, and in wynter seson at vj. And that proclamacion be made at iiij. places assigned, ij. tymes a quarter, by the Bedmon of the citee.

L. Also, that the seriaunts be made by the Baillies anone the The Bailiffs yearly same day of eleccyon, or they gon out of the chambre of eleccyon. serjeants. The seid seriaunts to fynde sufficiaunt surete, as touchynge the seid office, to the same Baillies so y-chosen for the yere : and that the seid seriauntz be citezens of good name and fame, and have be citezens vij. zere aforn his makynge of the seriauntshippe. And yf the Baillies be absent the same day of eleccyon, If the Bailiffs are that then it be lawfulle to the xxiiij. of the grete Acloth, that tyme beinge present, to chese ij. sufficient men to be seriaunts, as for the high Bailly fyndinge hym suerte as ys aboueseid. And the xxiiij. Comyners that cheseth the lawe Bailly, at that tyme beynge present, to chese the ij. seriaunts for the lowe Bailly, fynding hym suerte, ut supra. And by the kynges commaundement late sende, that, all instaunces, requestes, or prayer put a-parte, officers to be made of good name and fame, of for hire at the Grass-Cross. at 5 A.M in the sum winter.

to choose the absent. the 24 to choose two serjeants for the high Bailiff, and the 48 two for the low Bailiff abilite to occupie hur seid office wtyn the cite, and that none other persones vnder color of mayntenaunce, or that berith env mans leverey otherwise then the statute wolle, and that they ben of good and honest conversacion; this article to be kept by the kynges commaundement. And yf the Baillies for the tyme beynge, or oon of them, electe env seriaunt contrary to the seid Acte, enformed by env in the counselle house to the contrarie and proved, to pay to the comyn tresor c.s. And yf, in the absence of the seid Baillies, the xxiiij. aboue or xxiiij. beneth do the contrarie of this Acte, that they forfet in lyke forme.

The water must be kept clean near Severn Bridge.

LI. Also, that no Sadeler, Bochor, Baker, ne Glover, ne none other persone, caste non Intrelle ne fylth of Bestes donge, ne doust, over Severne brugge, ne beyond the seid Brugge in the streme. And also that they do not shave flesh, skynnes, or huydes, but above the Brugge, bitwene the watervnge place at Seynt Clements vate, and the seid Severne brugge. And that they wasshe none heare, but benethe the brugge, and that on the ferther syde of Severne, or els beneth the Slyppe of the lode. in peyne of lesynge of vj.s. viij.d., as ofte as it ys founde in defaute by dewe enquerry of xij. men, the oon half to the Baillies and the other half to the comyns.

LII. Also, that no flyssher citezen by no flysshe of no foreyn.

commyng to vitelle the cyte, tylle the comyns be serued, yf they

The sale of fish.

There shall be no forestalling. bribery, nor regrating.

wylle bye of yt. And that the straunge vittellers sille it them self, and none other ffyssher, in peyne of lesvnge of xx.s.; half to the Baillies, and half to the comyn profite, it proved by xij. men. And that they forstalle no ffyssh by the wey, ner none other vittelle comynge to the market of the cite, from env straunge contrey, or fro the see. And that ther be no fees veven by straungers to none Aldermen, Aldermens seriaunt, ner to none other officers, and that ther be no citezen regrator of see ffysshe, ner none other fressh fysshe, as Tenches, Pykes, and other that come to the cite, vppon peyne of xl.d.; to be payde, half to the Baillies, and half to the comyn tresor. And vf ther come eny vittelle, firessh or salt, to the key, or eny other place, to be solde, that the Aldermen for the tyme beynge take OF WORCESTER.

ii. of the ffysshmongers, to be indifferently chosen and sworn, Two over-lookers to se that alle suche vytelle be able and sete for mannys chosen to see that body, and yf it be found not able for to be solde, in peyn of xiij.s. iiij.d. of hym that so sillith the contrarye, vppon amonicion yeven. And that the Aldermen put duly the seid ordinaunce in execucyon, in peine of aboueseid. And yf eny ffysshemonger, or eny other inhabitaunt wtyn the seid cite, bye eny suche vittelle proved not able, shalle lese xx.s.; half to the Baillies and half to the comyns. And yf eny such vitelle proved able, that no vitteller bye vnto xj. of the clok, vnder the seid peyn in forme aboueseid, and that no persone wtyn the seid cite sille no ffysshe watrd at retayle, but he be contrubitory wt the ffisshemongers crafte, paynge accordynge hur rightfulle ordinaunces,-hearrynge and salt fysshe alwey except.

LIII. Also that [by] the good aduise of the Baillies and cham- Maintenance and repair of the berleyns, the Brugge may be ouerseyn at alle tymes, and disbridge. posed and purvoyd for to the vse and suerte of the cite, so that it may be remedyed and holpen when that it ys ruyn, or in dispeyre, or bifore. And reparacyon of the seid Brugge be ouersevn by the ij. Chamberleyns euery quart^r of the yere, as welle aboue as beneth, for reparacyon of the same to be made, as the cause shalle require, in eschewynge of grete myscheves, or ruyn might falle the same.

LIV. Also that the keye Slippes, and the pavyment of the The quay slips to be kept in repair, grete Slippe, be made in hast, or that it be in grete parylle of re- and a Water paracion ; and that the [ther be] a water Bailly ordeined, as it hath chosen, as of old. ben of old tyme, he to receive suche customes and profites as ben longing the seid offices, and therof to make trewe accomptes to the profite of the seid cite. And the seid watr Bailly to be chosen at the lawday ne[x]t after the feste of seynt michelle.

LV. Also that ffrogmylle yate be made sufficiently for grete The repair of parylle bt myght falle vnto the seid cite, and to the citezens dwellynge theryn. And the yate enterynge in to the castelle also, by alle halowen day next commynge, for diverse causes that myght falle. And the keyes and the kepynge of the seid yates, the porter of Sudbury Gate to the Porter of Sudbury yate therof for the tyme beynge shalle keep the keys

Frogmill Gate and Castle Gate ;

397

Penalties for choosing serjeants contrary to this act.

tions.

THE ORDINANCES

The City walls to be maintained, the stones thereof not to be carried away.

be charged therw^t; and he for to kepe it sufficiently, in peyn of lesynge of a noble; the oon half to the Baillies, and the other half to the comyn tresor. And that the chamberleyns, kepers of the articles of the yelde, y[e]ve attendaunce the wallys of the cite, that yf eny parte falle in ruyn, the stones thereof be not borne awey by eny persone. And yf they may have notyce of them that so done, notably to be punysshed and amercyed, after they shuld be founde gylty by trewe informacion. And the amerciamentes thereof to be arered to the comyn profite. And yf the seid chamberleyns may in eny wise, of ther comyn receytes, yerly to repare the defautes of the same walles as the seid goodes may streeche, for savegarde of the kynges cite. And yf env persone*

Sanatory regula. LVI. Also, that non persone cast env donge of env manere harlotre in the Slippe goynge to Severne at the lode, ner vppon the keye, vn peyn of lesynge of xl.d., as often tyme as they be founden in defaut therof. Also that no man haue non swyne goynge theron, on the peyn aboueseid, to be payde to the Baillies for the tyme beynge, wherof the oon half to the vse of the comyn tresor. Also that no maner person wtyn the seid cite, No swine may go at large. have ne suffre non swyne goynge at large, in anoysaunce or grevaunce of hur neyghburgh or env citezen of the same ; and yf he avoyde hem not, or put hem in warde, aft^r warning made vnto hym by the chamberleyns, he that ys so in defaute to paye the peyne reherced; the oon half to the vse of the comyns, and the other half to the vse of the Baillies. And yf he remove them not wtyn a moneth vppon his warnynge made vnto hym by the Baillies or kepers of the yelde, then for to forfett his swyne, half to the Baillies office, and the other half of the price to the comyn tresor.

Regulations for the tilers.

LVII. Also, that non Tylers called hillyers of the cite, nor other man wtyn the cite dwellynge, compelle ne charge ne make no tyler straunger, comynge to the cite, to serve at his rule and assignement, but that he may take by the day as he and the partie w^t whom he shalle worche may accorde, and in non other wyse. And that the Tyler of the cite sett no parliament amonge them, to make env of them to be as a maister, and alle other tylers to be as his seruant and at his commaundement, but that euery tyler be firee to come and go to worche wt euery man Every workman iler to be free to and citezen, frely, as they may accorde, in peyn of xx.s. and work with whom he likes. lesynge of his ffraunches of hym thay be found in defaut, yevynge to the Baillies and to the comyns as yt owght to be departed. And every tyller makynge and sillynge it into the cite, sett his Every tiler is to set his own mark propre marke vppon his tyle, to that ende, yf it be defectif or upon his tile. smalle, that men may have remedy of the seid partie, a[s] lawe and resonne requirith. And he that refusith to marke his tyle as it is aforn reherced, shalle lese to the comyn treso^r xx.s., as ofte tyme as it apperith to be areryd.

* A wide blank of about three lines occurs here.

OF WORCESTER.

LVIII. Also that the office of Towneclerkshippe of the cite The Town Clerk; from hensforth be neuer yeven to eny persone dwellynge out of the cite, vf ther be env wtyn able to occupie, and that at every avoydaunce ther be the seid office yeven to another of the same cite, so he be a citezen and occupie it his owne persone; in peyne of forfetting of a c.s., wtout he take licence of the Baillies for the tyme beynge, or a resonable cause of an excuse to be payde; to the Baillies ther the oon half, and the other half to the comyn profite of the seid comyns. And yf eny man of the seid cite make or labor for eny other persones then for a man of the seid cite, that then he forfett his ffraunchise. And also that his qualifications, the office of the Tounclerkshippe of the seid cite be occupyed by a sufficiant and by a discrete persone, able therto, and he to receyve and envoie the wages accustumed of the seid office, for a wages, vere or more veres as it may be founden that he truly behave hym in the same occupacyon, wt dayly attendaunce made to the and duties. same, and not by symple and insufficient deput; and that he engros in perchement all thynge longynge to the Baillies office, and in his Courts holden aforn them, wtyn a quarter of a yere aft^r mihelmas, or aft^r ther discharge ; and this to be done yerly for ther discharge, and for lavfulle remembraunce to be left to the seid comynalte, for ther comyn serche to be hadd of the same, when it shalle be necessarie to them, as welle for ther frehold as for other accyon betwene party and partie. And that the tounclerk of the seid cite for the tyme beinge, shalle yeve no jugewithout the advice ment in the Baillies name of the same cite for the tyme beynge, in or vppon eny diffuse matier biforn them, wtout the aduise of the Recordor of the same cite for the tyme beynge.

399

The attorneys of the city, their admittance and hvery.

The Town Clerk must not give judgment in difficult cases of the Recorder.

LIX. Also that alle the attorners vsynge the comyn custome at dayly courts, to plede aforn the Baillies the citezeins of the seid cite, and sworen afore the seid baillies, as longe as ben ij. attorners or more in the seid cite, and els foreyn attornes to be admitted and sworn in lyke wise, truly to execute ther office as the lawe requirith wtout mayntenaunce, or champertye, or conseilynge ther cliauntors to vse env fals accounts. And that the seid attornes be not of clothynge outward otherwise then the Statute wylle. And yf eny persone take vppon hym to be attorney in the seid cite, beynge non citezen, and contrary to the cause above seid, that the Baillies of the cite haue power and auctorite to committe hym to prison.

Inquests shall be taken by 12 jury. men of a certain qualification

LX. Also, that the Baillies from this tyme take [not] env enquest for the kynge, but by xij. trewe just and lawfulle men havynge fre hold vnto the valor of vj.s. viij.d. by yer, or goodes and catalles to the valor of x. marks, and by none other, and this enquest for the kynge be take but ones in a moneth, or els that the gretter necessitie or cause it require. And that alle suche enquest; that shalle be retorned here aftur, beforn the Baillies, bitwene party and party, as shalle happen by forme of pledynge. in every maner accion biforn them, as the case shalle require, be made of trewe, just, and lawfulle men, havynge sufficient, as the lawe wylle; and that they appere at the distringas by processe made avenst tylle the matere be fynisshed and determyned by ther verdyte. And he that is empaneled, and wolle not appere, and hath non goodes ne catell; by the which he may be distressed, lese in yssues at the first distringas, ij.d. And so from day to day tylle they appere, and alle suche issues so forfet by defaute to be written out in stretys, vppon euery jurror founden in defaut, half to the Baillies and the other half to the comyn profite. And that the seriaunts of the seid cite shalle be Duty of the sersworn vppon a Boke, that they shalle empanelle apon every ling a jury. venire facias xij, trewe and just persones, and such as ben indifferent, and vppon every venire facias they shalle retorne divers persones, so that the charge and apparaunce of the seid persones may be egalle. Item, b^t the seriaunts for the tyme beynge, yppon a distringas award in every matere bitwene citezen and Case of distringas. citezen, or citezen and foreyn, yppon the which xij. men ben empanelled, shalle distresse theym by ther goodes and catallez, yf ther be eny, and brynge it in to the court, and so contynow wekeley vnto the tyme the matere be fynisshed, in peyn of euery of the seriaunts that dothe the contrarie for to lese vi.s. viij.d.; half to the Baillies and half to the comyners. Also it ys or- Three courses deyned that yf eny persone be accused or endited biforn the Baillies for the tyme beynge, and vppon that be arested or attachid and brought biforn them, for the which they ought to make a fyne, the seid Baillies shallen declare to them the cause or hur inditynge, and ther vppon to make them to putt them in a free eleccion, Whether he or they wylle make fyne resonable wt the Baillies, or to take ij. affurrors accordynge to the Acte therfore prouided, or to trye it by xij. men aftur the lawe in suche case provided ? And vf env suche Baillies do the contrarie, to paye to the comyn tresor xx.s., as often tymes as eny ys founden in defaute.

eants empanel-shall be open to a person accused ;

to agree upon a easonable fine : to be amerced by the afferors (see before, p. 395); or to go to a jury.

26

LXI. Also, it ys ordeyned by this present yelde, that alle the The 24 and 48 to come to the and euerych of them, that ben or chosen of the noumbre of Council House, when they hear xxiiii, and xlviii, and tho that shallen be chosen herafter in to the great Bell of St. Andrew's ring. the same, shullen be redy for to come in ther propre persones to the counselle house of the seid cite, as often as they shallen here the grete belle of the parisshe of Seint Androwe to be knolled by many as divers tymes, and aft^r that rongen out for the same; and he that faylleth vppon that warnynge, wtout a resonable cause or excuse (to be admitted by the fellishippe aboue neamed) to forfett and paye, that ys to sev, every persone of the xxiiij., ijs., and every persone of the xlviij., xijd. : the

The chamberlains to keep a list of the 21 and 48.

Bow-bell to be rung at 9 of the bell, and the parish clerk to be paid for it.

Whereas at some former gild-days the commonalty have not known of the laws at those times made :

for the future the articles made at each gild-day shall be read twice at least before the common counci of the city, and, the day after, before all the citizens.

summes forfet to be payde, half to the Baillies for the tyme beynge, and the other half to the comyn cofer for the comyn profite. And a bille of the names of the seid xxiiij. and of the xlviiij., or of other in ther places, to be chosen as it shalle happen, contynuelly to remayne w^t the seid chamberleyns, kepers of the yeld. And the seid chamberleyns to endure in that office as they truly feithfully and profitable behave them, to the profite of the seid cite and comvnalte of the same. Also the Bowbelle accustumed in the seid cite to be rongen at ix. of the belle, to be contynowed verly for grete ease of the seid cite. The paryssh clerk ther to have his fees acostomed therfore.

THE ORDINANCES

LXII. Also, it ys provided by this present yelde, that for asmoche at diuers yeldes precedents it hath not be knowen to the comvnalte of the seid cite, for no good constitucions, ordinaunces and articles disposed or ordeyned, and in dew tyme of the seid veld holden, radde, and declared, for tyme folowynge, commaunded for to be vsed and obeyed, and by this grete defaut and hurte growen to the seid cite : That from hensforth at every yelde wtyn the seid cite to be holden aforne the day and fest of the seid yeld, alle manner of constitucions, ordinaunces, and articles, as welle made at yelds precedents, as shal be made and concevved at this seid yelde of newe to be holden, for the welfare of the seid cite, shullen at the laste be ij redde aforn the comyn counselle of the seid cite, for ther willes, assent, and agrement, to be hadd in the same. And aftr they have assented the iijde tyme, the ordinaunces of the seid yelde to be radde aforn alle the citezens of the seid cite that wollen appere to the same ; and that to be done the next day aft^r the first day of the seid yelde holden. And aft^r that, every Acte so redde and declared, and by the hole comyns, or most of them as it ys aboueseid, to stonde ferme and stable.

Proceedings if any citizen incur disfranchisement. 1 (sic).

LXIII. Also, it is ordered at this present yelde, that yf eny citezein of the seid cite by¹ accused by informacyon or presentment, that he shuld offende in brekynge of env of the articles aboueseid, for the which as it apperith by the same he owght to be disfraunchised, that then the persones so accused at iiij. comvn courts next folowynge, holden on diuerse mondaves aftr the seid accusement so made, shalle be called in the yeld halle of the seid cite to answere to the seid accusement; and yf h[e] appere not in propre persone, ne by attorney, at env of the seid courts, then to be disfraunchised, and thervppon his name to be sett vppon a table in the yeld halle called the disfraunchised The "disfran table, to the entent that the comyns of the seid cite may have knowlech of them that so shalbe disfraunchesid, for brekynge of env of the articles aboueseid. Also yf the persones so accused appere in propre persone, or by attorny, wtout mayntenaunce and eny vnlawfulle supportacyon at eny of the seid iiij. courts, and it be founden by his owne knowlegge, examinacyon, or by an enquest of xij. men, that he is gilty in brekynge in eny of the seid articles, for the which he owth to be disfraunchised, then he so be so disfraunchised, and the name sett vppe in forme aboueseid ; or els he to make a grevous fyne, after the discressyon of the xxiiij. of the grete a-cloth and xlviiij. of the comyns, of the most partie of them, vppon hym to be assessed and levved.

LXIV. Also, it ys ordeyned by this present yeld, that for alle The Bailiffs shall the articles penalle, ordeyned and affermed by the same, that wher env summes forfett shulde be payde by the same, as it is expressed in the seid articles, the oon parte of the seid summe to the Bayllies, and the other parte to the comyn tresor, and in some articles the hole to the seid tresor, for the ease of the seid cite ; That the Baillies of the seid cite for the tyme beynge, shal, by ther power and auctorite, do to make as hasty levy of the summez that shuld be forfett to the comyn tresor, as they shuld in eny wise do, for that ys or shalbe forfet to the Baillies,--to the entent that the kepers of the Articles of the yeld may receve it, and trewe accomptes make of the same, to the profite of the seid cite.--by severalle of fieri facias to have execucyon ayenst them by writ of fieri that have forfett in the seid summez or in eny of them, for brekynge of the seid articles, yf they have goodes and catella sufficient to the contentacyon of sommes so forfett; and yf they haue non goodes nor catelles sufficiaunt to the contentacion of the summez so forfet, then to have auctorite and power to make chised table."

evy fines forfeit to the city reasure.

levy by seueralle Elegit, to have execucion of ther londes, teneor by writ of elegit.

Or to take up the defaulters by writ ot capias ad satisfaciendam

Bailiffs to do their duty herein, on pain of 20s.

This present lawday confirms laws law days (see p. 402).

Citizens who break the laws can have no commerce with their fellow citizens.

ments, goods, and catelles, of them that have forfet the seid sommer of money for brekynge of eny of the seid articles. And vf they have non goods ner catelles, sufficiant to the contentacion of sommes so forfet, then to have auctorite and power to make severalle capias ad satisfaciendam ayenst them that have so forfet the seid sommes of money, to brynge them to the yeld halle of the seid cite, ther to abide vnto the tyme they have made full contentacyon of the summes aboueseid, accordynge to the seid articles made in this present yelde. And yf the Bailly do not ther devo^r according to this Acte, that he or they founden in defaut by the comyn counselle forfett to the comyn tresor xx.s., as ofte as he or they be founden in defaut, in forme aboueseid. LXV. Also, the comyns of this present yeld affermen and made at all former enacte alle the poyntes of this yeld, for the grete ease, pease, profitz, and tranquilite of the Cyte; and the laste yelde made, and at the yeld3 precedent3, and at every lawday precedent, for to be ferme and stable, wtyn the seid cite to abide. And yf eny citezein contrarie to the seid actes in defaut be founden, that none other citezen wtvn the seid cite demenaunt, wt hym bye ner sille chaffare, vn peyne of lesynge of his liberte and ffraunches for ever more, that y-found by inquisicion of xij. trewe men or other wise; this enacte so to endure by force of this present yelde.

Election of the Low Bailiffs.

elections.

The empanelling

of the Leet to be in due form.

LXVI. furthermore, they that shallen be in eleccion of the lawe Baillys shalbe chosen by the Baillies and Aldermen, wt other worshipfulle beynge present, and suche as shalbe electe and named, be of the most worshipfulle and most of the freehold wtyn the seid cite; and that non seriaunt name nor entremet of the seid eleccion. Ner that the seriaunt entremet wt the eleccion of the lowe ne high eleccion of Baillies, in peyn of xx.s. The serjeants must not meddle in the of env seriaunt doynge the contrarie; half to the Baillies, and half to be comyns, as ofte as he or they be founde in defaut. And in lyke wyse the seid seriaunts empanelle no man for the grand jury to be in gret inquest vn the lawe days, but it be done in forme aboueseid vnder the seid peyne and vnder the seid forme.

LXVII. Also, that the seriaunts, or oon of them, empanelle Juries to be empanelled indifnone persone bitwene party and party, but most indifferent, wt- ferently, out favor made or male ingyne. And yf eny suche panelle be otherwise retornyd, it thought by the plentife or defendaunt, that then the plentif or defendaunt or ther attorney shalle geve the Baillies in knowlegge, at the day of the venire facias retorne; and the seid Baillies then to do and see a trewe and feithfulle and the Bailiffs to e that it is done direction thereine, as conscience and trouth requireth; and yf the seid seriaunts or oon of them do the contrary, it provyd, to pay xx.s. in forme aboueseid.

LXVIII. Also, that no person sille none ale out of his place, Every ale seller must have a sign but he have a signe at his dorre, in peyn of vj.s. viij.d.; half to at his door. the Baillies, and the other half to the comyn tresor.

LXIX. Also that non Bochor, ner non other persone, to his No butcher may ply the trade of a vse, occupie cokes crafte w^tyn the liberte of the seid cite, in cook. peyn of xiij.s. iiij d.; half to the Baillies, and half to the comyns.

LXX. Also, that non citezein be attached by his body as As to citizens fugitive. ffugitif, vnto the tyme a citezen, or ij. citezens, of good name and fame, and wtout male engyne, mede, or favor, geve the Baillies knowlegge, or on of them, in dew forme therto accordynge. And yf eny suche attachement be made and done to the contrarye, to stonde as voyde and of none effect, it duly proved. And yf eny citezen fugitif be attached in forme aboueseid, the seriaunts to take ther fees onys of hym, and no more. though it so be the seid fugitif fynd suerte to answer to the accion comencyd ayenst hym, it proved that he be fugityf in forme aboueseid. And yf the seriaunts of env of them then take envices, otherwise then ys aboue specified, to le [se] vj.s. viij.d.; half to the Baillies, and half to comyns, as ofte as he or they be found in defaut.

LXXI. Also, that the citezeins that be named by the Baillies A debtors' court. to her accomptz, betwene citezein and citezen in accion of debt, aft^r the custom; of the seid cite, that they appere in the yeld halle, at the day and houre limitted by the seid Baillies, ypon monicion to them yeven by env seriaunt. yppon the pevn of xij.d.: to be payde, half to the Baillies, and half to the comvns. as ofte as env defaut may be proved in them or i. of them.

No serieant to be interested in any case, unless a stranger, out of the city, make him his attorney.

LXXII. Also, that no seriaunt be attorney, nor colour the meanes of attorne, nor appere for env party, nor to take env money under the meanes of attorne, but the persones that sewen to make and ordevne the attorne; them self, but vf so be that env straunger make env officer attorne by writynge, not fevned or colored, and that it be written and ordevnd at large out of the seid cite. And vf env do vnto the contrarie to lese vis. viii d.; half to the Baillies, and half to the comvns, as ofte as env defaut in this behalf may be founde.

LXXIII. Also, it vs ordeyned at this present yeld, how be it

Citizens of the old and new chekers to pay their accustomed fees.

euery citezein of the old cheker pay at this tyme but vij.d., and euery citezein of the newe cheker but xiij d.,-that this shalle not be take for none example, but that every citezein of the old cheker shallen pay at euery yeld, here aft^r to be holde w^tyn the seid cite, ix.d.; and every citezein of the newe cheker, xxj.d.; as of old tyme hath ben vsed and acustomed.

Tenants of the Bishop of Worcester not to be interested in actions against him, before the Bailiffs.

LXXIV. Also, it vs ordeynd at this present yeld, that every citezein and euery inhabitaunt wtyn the seid cite, or citezeins forevn, beynge tenaunt, sunt, or bondman, to the Bisshoppe of Worcet^r, take non benefice in env accoon comensed or to be commensed avenst hym, before the Baillies of Worcetr, by that though he or they be the seid Bisshoppes tenaunts, vppon peyne of disfraunchesynge.

Bakers who bake horse-bread shall not keep inns.

LXXV. Also, it vs ordevned at this present yeld, that non Baker that shalle bake env horsbrede, kepe env hostre, vppon peyne of euery tyme found in defaut, of lesynge vi.s. viii.d.: half to the Baillies, and half to the comyns, as ofte as he ys found in defaut.

Every nn-keeper must have a sign at his door.

LXXVI. Also, it vs ordevnd, that no maner persone kepe non hostries wtvn the seid cyte, but he haue a signe at his dorre. vpon peyn of vj.s. viij.d.; as often tymes as he is founden in defaut; half to the Baillies, and half to the comyn tresor.

LXXVII. Also, it vs ordevned at this present velde, that if Actions of debt env accound be take of dett avenst env persone, of the summe of xx.s. or wtvn, or env accion of detunue be taken of wtholdvnge of goods and catelles to the valu of xx.s., or wtvn. or env accion of trespas, thenkynge to the Bailly that it vs not worshippefulle ner good, by informacion or obr wise, that then the partie defendaunt shal not plede in accion of dett: ren luv doit prest deauere pur le pais. In accion of detunue : rien luv detinet prest. &c. And in accion of trespas : de ren couper prest &c.; but that the court shalle suffre them to wage ther lawe And vf the defendaunt plede env suche plee, contrary to the premisses, that then he shalbe condempned in the seid accion or accions.

LXXVIII. Also, it ys ordeynd by this present yeld, that alle The craft-gilds of maner of Craftys wtyn the seid cite, that have pageants, goynge maintain their to the worshippe of god and profite and encrese of the seid cite, and also alle the Craftis that ben contributory to the same, and to the lightz of torches and tapers amonge the seid crafts, vsyd in the seid cite, haue and envoie ther good, feithfull, and trew approved customes and vsages, in susteynynge ther pageants, lightes, and other necessaries to ther craftys, of reason and custom belongvnge or apperteyninge; the comyn weele, welfare, saving the comand prosperite of the seid cite, accordynge to the kyngs lawes, city alwey kept and forsevn. Also, that yf eny persone straunger, Strangers, entering comynge to the seid cite, beynge a craftisman of eny craft afore crafts must pay named, dwellynge wtyn the seid cite, beynge a freman, or kepynge a shoppe, happen desirynge to hold crafte as a maister both masters. wtyn the seid cite, or subarbez of the same, at his furst entree ther, he to comyn w^t the wardeyns of the same crafte that he desirith ther to occupie, and by them as reson and conscience wolle, after the custom of ther crafte to be demened, as welle for his entre as for verly payment to ther pageants and light; and in lyke wise alle jorneymen straungers comynge to the seid and journeymen. cite, aftr xiiij. nyghts of his abidynge in the same, to be spoken wt by the wardens or kepers of the craft that he canne or exercisith, and for the same to be contributorye to ther pageants the city shall accustomed pageants, monweal of the

their respective the fees ordered by the wardens:

or sums under 20s

Every pageantcraft shall yearly provide a cresset to be borne before the Bailiffs on St John's Eve ; and all the crafts shall he with the Bailiffe at the Watch on that Eve.

and lights, and other jornemen of the seid crafts verly doth pave and satisfie; and what persone that denyeth this, theref notice to be made to the Baillies, and to the kepers of the articles of the yeld, they to reforme wtout accion or redresse suche maters as the matier of reson shalle require. And that every crafte havynge the name of pageant, shullen fynde oon cresset verly brennynge, to be born biforn the l'aillies of the seid cite, in the Vigille of the nativite of Seynt John Baptiste, at the comyn Wacche of the seid cite; and the wardevns of the seid crafte.

Fees to be paid by new craftsmen.

and alle the hole crafte, shallen wayte vppon the seid Baillies in the seid Vigille, at the seid Wacche, in ther best arraye harnesid. vppon peyn of euery man so failynge, vn-lasse then he haue a sufficient depute, of xl.d., and often tymes as he be founden in defaut; the oon half to the Baillies, and the other half to the comyn tresor. And that every craftesman aforeseid that proposeth to set vppe crafte wtyn the seid cite, that he pave to the Wardeyns, Stewards, or Maister of the same, not excedynge xiij.s. iiij.d.; in peyn of theym or hym of euery stuard, warden, or maister, that doth the contrarie, xl.s.; half to the Baillies, and half to the comvns.

LXXIX Also, that no maner vitteller pay eny thynge for the occupacion of the kynges Borde, to env maner officez, for ther vytelle ther to be sold, that ys to seve w^tyn the seid cite.

No words of offence, or quarrelling to be had in the Common Council chamber LXXX.* Also, hit vs ordeyned by the seid yeld, and by the assent and concent of the xxiiij. and alviij. of the comyn counselle of the cite of Wyrcettr, beyng in the counselle chambur of the seyd cite, that none of the seyd xxiiij. nor xlviij, beyng in the seyd chambur, for the comyn wele of the seyd cite and the inhabitauntes of the same, yeue env wordes of occasion or reproofe to other wythyn the seyde chambur, wherby the kynges pes be dysturbed or be corecction br lettid, and that yn peyn to hym that so offendyth, xl.s., the sevd offence founde by the hole chambur or by the more parte of the same ; halfe to be paved to the Bayllyfes for the tyme beyng, and halfe to the comyns of the seyd cite.

* This article, and all that follow, are written in a different hand and ink.

stables are not to among the 24 or

LXXXI. Also, hit ys ordevned by the assent and concent of Serjeants and conthe sevil counselle &c., that by cause afore thys tyme hit hath be chosen from ben vsud att some seasones of wylfulnes to chose for to be $\frac{48}{48}$. seriantes of the citee and constables wtvn the sevde cite. persones of worshippe, to the dyshonor of them and the sevde cite, -that vn tyme come, none be electe nor chose to the sevd officer, that he of the numbur of xxiiii, and xlviii, and vf env be elected contrarye to this ordenaunce, that suche eleccion stonde as voyde, and the grett enquest for the tyme beyng to procede to a new eleccion, vn forme aboue rehersud.

LXXXII. Also, hit ys ordeyned by the assent and concent of The Baufifs to be the sevil counselle, &c., that none be chose yn tyme to come to 24. the office of Bayllywyke of the sevde cite, but such as be of the xxiiij^{te} for the gret clothe. Provyded that ther be xxiiij. yn numbre the day of the eleccion. And yf hit so fortune ther be nott xxiiii, yn numbre, that then he that ys to be chosen, yf he be nott of the grett clothe, that att the leste he be on of the numbre of the xlviij; and that none be chose to be of the xxiiij. but suche a persone as ys of the numbre of the alviij.; and yf eny Bayllyf be electe and chose wtyn the cite, contrarie to the forme above rehersud, that then that eleccion stonde as voyde, and be electors to go to a new eleccioun.

GENERAL NOTE.

THESE Ordinances of Worcester are now printed as a whole for the first time. A few small extracts only are in the Appendix, No. 14, to Green's History of Worcester, the body of Ordinances given by him being of a later date (Henry VII.), (see next page).

Besides the two volumes of "Orders" of the Gild of Joiners and Carpenters (see before, p. 208), the Corporation of Worcester possess two highly interesting volumes of the ancient records of their city. The first of these, whence the above Ordinances are taken, and the handwriting of which is contemporary with its contents, is a small folio volume in a plain strong modern binding, lettered at the back "Ordinances, Edward IV.," containing fifty-four leaves of parchment, for hogen from the

the most part closely written on both sides, with a broad ruled margin. The book is composed of six "quayers of parchemyn" (see before, p. 379), upon the first three of which, in a clear and regular hand, these Ordinances are written. The Articles LXXX., LXXXI., LXXXII. appear to have been added later, the style of handwriting and the spelling differ from those of the foregoing, and they are not included in the "Kalender" of the Articles which follows (see before, p. 370). On the space left on the page between the last of these and the Kalendar have been inserted six other Articles,—the first only of which is in English, the rest being in Latin,—written in a close and crabbed hand; these, relating chiefly to trade, it was not thought necessary to give here.

The volume however contains, besides the Ordinances now printed, which were made in the time of Edward IV. (1467), a body of "Ordinances, constitucions, & Articles" made by the citizens in the twelfth year of Henry VII. (1497). The old laws were evidently then "openly redde and declared" (see before, p. 376), and amendments made where found necessary; for these Articles are the same in substance with those of Edward IV., but their arrangement is different, and various additions and transpositions have been made. Though some of the Articles are fuller, there are not so many as in the earlier body, their number reaching only to thirty-eight, both actually and in the Kalendar of their contents, which, as in the first instance, follows them.

The next leaf illustrates the old mode of taxation in England; it contains tables showing the sum due from Worcester for tenths and fifteenths, and the proportions to be paid by each ward within the city, at two periods; the first being what was gathered "olim in Wigorn." the second "tempore H. sexti." Below these are some fees to city officers. This page seems to have been written out at the same time, and is signed with the same name, as the Ordinances of Henry VII. Next follow transcripts of several of the old city charters, probably some of those ordered by Article I. (see before, p. 376), beginning with that of Edgar, A.D. 964, headed by a curious short historical preface, in which the ancient scribe tells us that Worcester was founded by Wolfhere, King of Mercia, in A.D. 679. The volume is closed by a curious table of "wages and fees" to the Town-Clerk, and a minute description of the perambulation of the city (the value of which is seen in Article IV., p. 378), made, "as in tymes passid," on 12th April, 1497. This "perambulation" is printed by Green, Appendix, No. 15.

The other volume is of a much later date, and appears to be formed of two books which have been bound up together by a modern hand; it is lettered at the back "Liber Legum." As has been seen, the volume just described is the true Liber Legum,—the book of ancient laws of the city;—the second volume however possesses an independent interest of its own, for it not only brings down the history of the local bye-laws. but it shows the actual working of an important English institution, now forgotten. It contains the records of the Courts Leet, or Views of Frankpledge, held in the Gild-hall of Worcester, from 1624 to 1710, at which the laws of the city were perused, amended, and confirmed ; the grand jury-men being frequently pointed out as "The Lawmakers." The Leet itself is, in both volumes, often called the "Lawday;" while another proof of the close relations between the municipal body of the city and the Gild, is given by the fact that it is, as often, spoken of as the "yeld" or even "yeld-marchant" (see before, pp. 376, 377, 385). At the beginning of the volume, and again at the beginning of the second book, are recited and confirmed a body of laws; for, says the preamble thereto, "the particular lawes and constitucions of all Cytties and Corporacions are said to bee the very sinewes and strength of the same, and that noe persons comonly prove more vncivill and vnwise then those which doe contemne and dispise the Authorytie of them." Many of these treat of the same matters as some of the older Ordinances, but though the "Guild-hall" remains, the Gild-merchant does not seem to be found at this date. It may be that this Gild had become overshadowed by the number of other Gilds in the city, for in the preamble to a third recital of laws in this volume, made A.p. 1671, for the purpose of obtaining the Justices' signatures under the Act of 19th Henry VII. (see before, p. 210), it is stated that the citizens and inhabitants of Worcester "for the greatest part are vnited into Guilds, ffraternities, and Brotherhoods."

The intimate connection of the Gild with the Corporate body which appears by many of the Ordinances of Worcester, is found to have existed from the beginning of the Gild. In a Charter of Henry III. (A.D. 1227) confirming several privileges to the citizens, it is expressly set forth "that they shall have a Gild-merchant with a hanse and other liberties and customs pertaining to the Gild." In the table of "wages and fees" to the Town-Clerk before-named, after the fee "for entering the name of anyone when he is made a citizen, ii.d.," it is stated that "proclamations must be made in the accustomed places four times before the holding of the gild [gildam tenendam], that all who are citizens and are willing " may appear. Also "there must be written upon the door of the chamber all the officers of the gild, and the day of the holding the gild, that all who come that way may know when it is to be." The five pageants of the Craft-gilds, with their lights and their tapers, were kept up by the yearly attention given to them by the grand jury of the Leet (before, pp. 385, 407), and must have much resembled those of the show-loving men of York (before, pp. 140, 143).

These old Ordinances here given obviously were not the originals, but were, like those of Winchester and others, copied from laws still older. This is seen from some of the Articles themselves, which show that they are but those "of old tyme" renewed, or made at "yeldes precedents" (see pp. 377, 382, 397).

A volume might be written were all the topics of these highly suggestive Ordinances dwelt on. The officers of the complete municipal government, the High Bailiff and the Low Bailiff; the 24 men of the upper chamber, wearing the chief livery, the 48 men of the commoners, the lower chamber, of the Common Council (see p. 386); the aldermen, chamberlains, recorder, town-clerk, and serjeants, are all named here, with others who were appointed when it was found necessary, as the "judges," and "afferors," or assessors of fines (pp. 379, 395); while the relations of the city to the State are recognized by the Ordinances as to the choice and duties of members of Parliament, and keeping the peace (pp. 393, 385, 388, 389). As in Winchester, so in Worcester, much heed was given to those things pertaining to health and safety; some of the laws as to nuisances were frequently re-iterated, and in 1657 the grand jury-men indignantly desire that certain laws on that subject "bee without further delay putt in execucon, or else wee desire you doe never trouble anie more lawmakers, for in tyme, if [one of them be] not executed, and sicknesse comes, it is enough to poyson most parte of the Cittie." The notes to the Winchester Usages (before, pp. 351, 353, 364) apply also to many of these Ordinances which touch on food and trade.

That these Ordinances were made in the true gild spirit of mutual aid among all is strongly shown by those touching clothmakers and tilers (pp. 383, 399; also before, p. 352, note), which betoken a sense of the free rights of the working-men not always carried into practice even at the present day. And how these laws were neither made in a corner nor kept out of sight of all concerned, is very instructively taught by Articles I. and LXII. (pp. 376, 402), according with the ancient custom in England, which provided, not only for the full assent of the citizens being given to their own laws, but also, for the frequent reading and declaration of them among all the people.

[L. T. S.]

III.

THE OFFICE OF THE MAYOR OF BRISTOL.

[In Mr. Pocock's MS. volume, from which the following is printed (see before, p. 283, note), several pages of other extracts from the same book of Robert Ricart precede these articles of the "Office." They refer to various facts in the history of Bristol, but there seems to be a paragraph wanting before what follows. This is explained at once, on reference to the original volume (which I have had an opportunity of making), where a preamble, too long for insertion here, introduces the subject. For a further L. T. S.] account and remarks, see the General Note.

I. I therefore the said towne clerk, in my most herty maner, All the officers are exhorte and praye all suche worshipfulle persones as hereafter this book that they shall be callid and electid to the seide officez, at their ceasons of know their duties. levsoure to rede or do to be redde and overseen this present boke, so that by the ouersight of the same they may the better, sewrer, and more diligenter, execute, obserue, and ministre their said Officer, in assistyng and mayntenyng the fraunchiser, liberteez, and laudable custumes foresaide, to the honoure and comen wele of this worshipfull towne, and all thenhabitaunts of the may the better

same. 2. Hit is so, that there hath been alweyes Maires in this There have always been Mayors in worshipfull toune seth the Conquest, and byfore, whiche,-after this town, that the castell of Bristowe was first founded and bylde by that noble erle of Glouc', Robt Consul, son bastarde vnto king Herry Beauclerk, the yongest son of William Conquerour,-the Mavres in that tyme used yerely on Mighelmas daye to feche and take who formerly took their oath and theire othe and charge at the castell yate of Bristowe, of the charge at the Castle rate.

constable of the saide Castell. And the same vse contynued vnto the comyng of that blissed prince king Edwarde the thirdde, whiche among othir fraunchise; of his gode grace grauntid, by his honourable chartres exemptid the saide maires.

But now they take them in the Gild-hall of Bristol.

On 1st September, the Mayor is chosen by the Council of Bristol. with prayer, in due form:

after which he goes home

The new Mayor shall provide for his household.

and discontynewed theym, to feche their saide charges at the castell yate of the foresaide Constable, but ordeigned by the same fro that tyme sethens, every mayre on Mighelmas daie to be chargid, and take his othe of his next predecessour in the Guyldehall of Bristowe, before all the Cominaltee there. ffor the whiche it hathe alweyes sethen be usid yerely, that the iiij. Sergeauntes, waytyng on the mayre, shall vpon Seint Giles day, the first daie of the moneth of Septembre, warne all the worshipfull men of the Counceill of Bristow to be in theire Counseill Hous, at the Guyldehall of the same, the morowe vpon the daie of thexaltacion of the holy Crosse, at thellection of their Mayer and othir officers for the yere following; every man on peyne of x.li., as it was ordeigned in the tyme of Stephyn le Spycer, being Maire in the xviiith yere of the reygne of kyng Edward the thirde. And then in their saide Counseill hous sytting, the Maire, the Shiref, and all theire brethern, ffurst the Maire to exhort theym all and every of theym, with a pater noster and an ave, to pray the Holly Goste to be at their seid eleccion. And therevpon the Maire, first, by his reason to name and gyve his voice to som worshipfull man of the seide hows, and after hym the Shiref, and so all the house perusid in the same, euery man to gyve his voice as shall please him; which shal alle be wretyn by the towne clerk, and by the same reporte and present hym that hathe moste voises. Whiche persone so in due fourme electid to be Maire shal rise fro the place he sat in, and come sytt a dextris by the olde maires side. And after all their communications there at that tyme he shall be worshipfully accompanyed, with a certein of the seid hous, home to his place. 3. Item, after all this doon, the seide persone so electid maire shalle haue his leysour to make his purveyaunce of his worshipfull householde, and the honourable apparailling of his mansion, in as plesaunt and goodly wise as kan be devised, untill the festall day he shall go in state to the Gild. all with the Sheriff and the Council, all in their proper liveries.

daie of Seynt Mighell Tharchangell then next folowyng, whate On Michaelmas daie that evere he fall in the yere. The seide new Maire then to come to the Guyldehalle, accompanyd with the Shiref and all his brethern of the Counseill, to feche him at his hows and bring him to the saide hall, in as solempne and honourable wise as he can devise do to his oune worshippe, and to the honour, laude, and preysyng of alle this worshipfull towne. That is to say, yf that he have be maire byfore thenne, he to come in his habite, that is to seie his Skarlat cloke, furred, with his blak a lyre hode, or tepet of blak felwet, and all the that have be maire; in the same habite and lyverey, clokid. And if he haue not be maire byfore tyme, then he to come withoute eny cloke, in his skarlet goune. And all other that have be maires, the same wise, sauf their servants shulle bere their clokes after them; and in the seid Guyldehall solemply stonding at the high deise of the same, after the stynting of the common bell, ffurst the olde Maire to take his leve of his brethern and of all the comyns ther beyng, hauvng his wordes and speking under this maner of fourme :--- "Worshipfull maisters and frendes, it is not owte of your remembraunce that this daie xii. moneth, I, vnworthy, The old Mayor's was sworn to be maire of this honourable Citie for this yere that is passid. And Sirs, if that I have done of my negligens and wilfulnes, otherwise then right lawe and good conscience wolde to ony man or woman, I will pray theym come to me, and I shal be redy to make they mamendys in that I have offendid theym, yf my goodes will suffice therto, or ellys I shal aske theym forgevnes in as herty wyse as I can, trusting verilly in God they shal have no grete causes of ferther complaynts.

4. "Furthermore, Maisters and ffrendes, I am not sufficient He thanks all for ne can not thanke you of your godenes accordinge to youre due merits, for in you hath bene trewe obedience to kepe the king our alther liege lorde is lawes, and my commaundment in his name, at all tymes. ffor whiche, where as I am not able ne of power to deserve it vnto you, I pray wnto 1 almighty God rewarde 1 (These erasures you with also 1 moche joy, prosperite, and peas, as evir had hand]. comens and true Cristen people.

their obedience

He recommends the new Mayor.

5. "Furthermore, Maisters and ffrends, here is a worshipfulle man, A.B., chosen to be ourc Maire for this yere comyng, whiche of his grete wisedom, by goddes grace, shal refourme and amende alle such thinges as I of my sympilnesse haue not duely ne formably executed and fulfilled ; and, worshipfull maisters and frends, the holy Trinitee blesse you all and kepe you in prosperouse peas, and felicite, long to contynewe, and [the holie Gooste]* evir be with you, Amen."

The giving the oath to the new Mayor.

6. Item, after this done, so standing at the seide high deise of the Yeldehall, byfore all the seide Comyns, the saide olde maire to holde a boke vnto the seide new maire, and the Towne Clerk with his boke to stand vppe, and rede the Maires Othe and his charge concerning his office, vndre this maner of ffourme.

The Oath and Charge

Keep the peace.

Maintain good customs,

Serve well as Escheator.

Save the rights of the Crown.

7. "Thus here ye, A. B., my predecessoure maire, and all the goodmen of Bristow, that I., R. S., shall be good and true to King Edward the fourth, Kyng of England, oure alther liege lorde, and to his heirs and his successours, and trewly with all my power I shall saue and kepe this his Toune of Bristow, to hym and to his heires and to his successours. I shall kepe and meyntene the peas of the same toune with all my power. I shall reproue and chastice the misrewlers and mysdoers in the forsaid toune, as lawe and reason wolle, by my power. The fraunchise; and free custumes whiche beth gode in the saide toune I shall meyntene, and all euell custumes and wronges I shall put awey and anyntese, be my power. I shall kepe, meyntene, and defende, the Wydowes and Orphans of this forseide toune sauely in hir rights, be my power. I shall well and truly serue the king in the office of the Eschetour in b shire of Bristowe. And I shall do the kinges profite in all thinges that longith to me to be done, bi my konnyng and my power. And I shall trewly kepe his rightes which that longeth to the Crowne. I shall not assent to destry ner do no councelement of the kynges rightes, nor of his fraunchises. And where I may know the kynges rights of his Crowne, be it in landes, be it in rentes, or in fraunchises, or in sute; conceled or withdrawe, I shall do my trew peyn to repele and reforme it, and, yf I may not do it, I shall say it to the kyng or to them, that beth of his counseil, which I shall be in certeyn* shall sey it to the kyng. I shall trewly, and with right, trete the people of my bailly, and do Do justice to the every man right, as wel to the poer as to the riche, in that that the rich. longeth to me to do. And nouther for yhifte, nor for loue, affeccion, promesse, nor for hate, I shall do no man wronge, nor destourbe no mannes right. I shall take no thing wherthurgh the Benot bribed. kyng may lese or the kynges right may be destourbed. I shall Take inquests take myne enquestis in open places, and not in prevy place, and that by endenture after the purport of the Statute made of Eschetours. I shall do my entier payne and diligence to put Put down Lollardry. awey, cesse, and destruye, all maner heresies and errours, clepid openly lolladries, within my bailly, from tyme to tyme, with all my power. And I shall be assistent to the Ordinaryes and her Help holy church commissaries of holy chirche, and fauor them and mayntene them, atte alle tymes, in all rightfull causes, when I shall be therto required by the same Ordinaries or he her Comissaries. Also, I shall be helping, supportyng, and fauoringe, to the support the Gild Prioure and his brethern, the prestis of the hous of the Kalenders of Bristowe, in all thinges that I may lawfully and honestly do of right, as her verray patron, to the confirmacion and defence of the rentez, londez, and tenementez of the same hous; saving every mannes right. Also I shall holde, kepe, and meyntene all Keep good laudable ordinaunces, whiche hath be made and used afore this tyme be my predecessours, Maires, Aldermen, Sherifs, and the commen counseille of this toune, vnreuokid and vnrepelid; and alle that shalle be made after this tyme, be my pouer welle and trewly, vn to the tyme that they be reuokid and repelid by the Maire, Aldermen, and Sherifs, and commen counceille of this same toune which shall be for the tyme. And I shall do every man right, as well to the poer as to the riche. And all othir thinges that longith and perteyneth, as well to thoffice of the

* The words between brackets are added in the margin in the original.

* One or two of the words in this line are inserted, and others are erased.

in rightful causes.

of the Kalendars.

 $\mathbf{27}$

Maire, as of the Eschetour, trewly do, [as nyghe as God wol give me grace*]. So God me helpe atte halydome, [and by this boke *]." And so to kysse the boke. &c.

The induction of the new Mayor to his office.

Procession home in state.

8. And after this done, the olde Maire to deliuer vnto the new maire the kynges Swerde, and his hatte, and the casket with the seale of office, the seale of the Statute of the Staple, the seale of the Statute merchant, with other autentike seales encluded in the same. And then the both maires to chaunge their places, then to avoid the halle. And all the hole company to bring home the new Maire to his place, with trompetts and clareners, in as joyful, honourable, and solempne wise as can be devised; and there to leve the new Maire, and then to bring home the olde Maire. [It is ordered at Common Counsell that the new Mayor tenne the old Mayor at his owne house and goe home with the sword before him afterward.+]

The dinners of the Mayors, and the procession to church afterwards.

9. Item, it hath be usid on the seide Michelmasse day, the moste parte of the Counseill for to dyne with the both maires, that is to sey, a grete parte of theym with the new Maire, and a parte with the olde Maire ; in especial all officers to dyne with the olde maire. And after they have dyned, to assemble all the hole Counseille at the High Crosse, and fro thens the new maire and the olde maire, with alle the hole company, to walke honourably to Seint Mighels churche, and there to offre. And then to retorne to the new Maires hous, there to take cakebrede and wyne. And then, euery man taking his leeve of the Maire, and to retray home to their evensong.

Next day, the officers of the corporation are to taketheir oaths.

10. Item, it hath be usid, that on the morowe upon Michelmas day, the new Maire, the Shiref, and certeyn of their brethern, to resorte unto the Counter, and there to call afore theym the Baillyfs, Touneclerk, Styward, and all the Sergeauntz of Bristow, with all the porters of the yate; of the same Toune; and so fro the seide Counter to go to the Yeldehall, there to take their othes after the maner and forme conteyned in the rede boke, of olde tyme by the common counseill of Bristowe made,

* The words between brackets have been inserted.

+ This is added in the margin in a much later hand.

ordeigned, and to be kept for euer. And therevpon forthwith one of the Baillifs, by the maires commaundement, to go kepe the markett court.

11. Item, it hathe be vsid, on the thirde day after Michel- The Sheriff takes masse day, after alle suche othes geven to the forseid officers, that then the seide Maier to call to hym the most worshipfull of his brethern of the Counseill, to go with hym to the yeldehall, there openly to be redde the Shirefs commyssion, the dedimus potestatem, the wryt of attendaunce; and therupon the Shiref to take his othe, after the forme and effect of a Cedule sende fro our Soueraigne lorde the kyng, enclosid within the seid dedimus potestatem, if so be that it be then y-come.

12. And the same tyme, in semblable wise, there to be redde The Mayor to take the Maires Commission of the Staple, with the dedimus potestatem, and vpon the same the Maire there to take his othe, after the flourme and effect of a Cedule enclosid withyn the seide dedimus potestatem yf it be then y-come. And the ij conestable; like wise.

his oath upon the

and Sheriffs ser-e bound.

13. Item, it hath be vsid, that the Maire the same daie shall How the Mayor's kall byfore hym all his Sergeauntez, and to make theym bryng jeants yearly shall yn their suertees to be bounde with theym vnto the seide maire, every of them in their several obligacion, of x.li. or xx marcs of their good abering and trewe executing of their office; during that yere, as wele in the Staple court as othirwyse, for to make due levey, and truly pay and content almaner of ffynes, issuez, mercementer, condempnaciones, and executiones, at eny tyme had and recovered in the seide Maires Court, vnto the seide Maire and to such persone; as the seide recovrees belongeth to of right.

14. And in semblable wise, the same tyme, to kall byfore theym the Shirefs' Sergeauntz, and to be bounde in lyke wyse vnto the Baillyfes, for the yer folowyng.

15. Item, it hath be vsed, on the iiijth daie aftir Mighelmas, The chantry the seide newe Maire to let sommen all the chauntry preestis take oath to keep whos composicions are enrolled in the rede boke ; that is to seie, Everard le ffrenshe his preestis, Richard Spicer his prestis, John Spicers preest, John Stokes prest, Water fframpton is their compositions his oath upon his Commission.

prest, Edmond Blanketts preste, Thomas Halleweyes preeste, John Burtons prest, William Canynges preestes, John Shipwardes preste, and Thomas Rowley is preste, to com before the Maire to the Counter, there to take their othes, truly to observe their seide composicions; and theire seide othes to be made vnder this forme, that is to seie, euery of them to ley his lyfte hand on the boke, and his righte hande on his breste, makyng his othe per sancta euangelia and per verba sacerdotia.

The masters of the crafts of the town are to be chosen on the fourth day after Michaelmas;

and are then to take oath before the Mayor.

16. Item, it hath be vsid, the said iiijth day after Michelmas daie, and fro thens forthe, the seide Maire to let somon all the maisters of the Bakers, Bruers, Bochers, and of all other craftes of the Towne, to come byfore hym, and then to go and assemble them att their halles and places accustumed, to thelleccion of their maisters for the ver folowyng; and therupon to bryng theire seide maisters and present them before the Maire, here to take their othes in the maires presence, after the form conteyned in the Rede boke. And therupon the seide maire to commaunde, and see to be doon, that every of his Sergeauntes duly therafter bryng before hym, of every warde of Bristow, as many gode and wele disposid personer to be swore constables for the ver folowyng, as every warde will of right aske, and require, by the

17. Item, it hath be void in the seide toune, that the discrecion of the saide maire.

As many constables to be chosen as the wards of the town require.

The usual proclamations as to victuallers, &c. to be made.

The Mayor to hold his courts, and to fix and proclaim the days of assise and pleas of land.

Satirday next after the markett court done, the Maire to do to be proclaymed, all the articles of the commen proclamacions of all vitaillers, and othir thyngez, of olde tymes ordeigned, by the common counseill of Bristowe, to be proclaimed within the same toune. And therupon the seide Maire to procede to all his courtes, of almaner accions personely bifore the Maire and Shiref, or bifore the Bailyfs for the tyme beyng to be holde. And therupon to sett and proclayme the daies of Assise and pleas of land, vndre this forme, that almaner of pleyntifs and defendaunts demaundants and tenaunts, that have a do before the Maire and the Shiref of Bristowe, or the Maire and Baillyfs of Bristow, in eny assise or in eny othir plee of lande, that they keep their daie in the Guyldehall of Bristowe.

18. Item, it hath be vsid, that within a moneth aftir Mighel- The manner of holding the Lawmas-day, the Maire, Shiref, and Baillyfs of Bristowe, to holde day, or View of frankpledge. their lawe day in the Guyldehall, by the Toune clerk of the same Towne, there to call, furst the hole counseill of Dristowe, withoute eny mercementez, and after that to call all free holders and commen sewters, vpon peyne of their mercementez, and then to call the constables of every warde. And so to procede Seven or eight to his enquests. And when the seide Toune clerk hath engroced affering day [for his lawe daye, then within vij or viij daies vpon that, the seide amercements] Maire, Shiref, and Baillyfs, to holde their fferyng day, and therupon the seide Toune clerk to make vp his Stretys vnto the made up for the Baillifs, keping a Registre of the same to remayn with the bailiffs, and a register kept. Maire, as of olde tyme it hath be vsid and accustumed.

days after, the setting the to be held (see before, p. 395). The estreats to be day (1 November), council, and others

afterwards walk to make merry.

the Mayor's house

19. Item, hit hath be vsed, vpon All Halowen day the Maire Upon All Saints' and the Shiref of Bristowe, after dyner, to assemble with all the the Mayor, sheriff, hole counseill, at the Tolsey, with many othir gentils and worgo to church, and shipfull comeners, such as apperith there at that tyme, and fro all in company, to thens to go in to All Hallowen chirch, there to offre, and fro thens to walke, all in fere, vnto the Maires place, there to have their ffyres and their drynkyngs with spiced Cakebrede, and sondry wynes; the cuppes merilly seruyng aboute the hous: and then fro thens every man departing vnto his parish chirch to evensong.

20. Item, the morowe vpon All sowlen day, the Maire is vsid tries to be made on to walk to Redclyff, and the Toune clerk with him; there to sitte in Audite vpon William Canynges ij chauntryes, and the Vicorve and the Propters with them. And aftir the seide Audyte is fynesshid, the Towne clerk to entre thaccompte of the same in a boke there, callid Canynges liger, and there the Maire to receive I noble, the toune clerk xx.d., the swerdberer viij.d., and the four Sergeaunter of the Maire xvi.d.

21. And fro that day fforth, the Maire, Shiref, and othir officers The general obits o be kept. to go and kepe the generall Obites, holden in the said Toune, as wele in winter as in somer, and to receive their ffees at the seide Obytes, as is notid here folowyng in this present Boke, all the seide Obite; and the ffees and rewardes of the same.

22. Item, on Seynt Clemente; even, the Maire, Shiref, and Evensong and

The audit of Canynges' chan-

All Souls' Day

(2 November).

420 chapel.

THE OFFICE OF

mass at St. Clement's chapel (23 November).

Evensong at St. 23 Katherine's their brethern, haue vsid to walke to Seynt Clementis chapell within the Bertheus: there to hire their evensong, and on the morowe their masse, and to offre there.

23. And on Sevnt Katervns even, in semblable wyse, the saide Maire and Shiref and their brethern to walke to Seynt Katervns Chapell within Temple church, there to hire theire evensong ; and from evesong to walke vnto the Kateryn halle, theire to be worshipfully received of the wardeyns and brethern of the same ; and in the halle there to have their fires, and their drynkyngs, with Spysid Cakebrede, and sondry wynes: the cuppes merelly filled aboute the hous. And then to depart. euery man home; the Maire, Shiref, and the worshipfull men redy to recevue at their dores Seynt Kateryns players, making them to drynk at theire dores, and rewardyng theym for theire playes. And on the morowe Seynt Kateryns day the Maire. Shiref, and theire brethern, to be at the Temple churche, and fro thens to walke with the procession aboute the Towne, and retorne to the seide Temple churche, there to hire masse, and offre. And then every man retray home.

Evensong at St. Nicholas' church.

Procession and mass on St. Kathe rine's day (25

November).

St. Katherine's

players.

On St. Nicholas' day (6 December), all join m the festival of the Boy-bishop.

While waiting they play at dice, giving the clerk a penny for every raffle. 24. Item, on Seynt Nicholas Eve, yn semblable wyse, the Maire, and Shiref, and their brethern to walke to Seynt Nicholas churche, there to hire theire eve-song: and on the morowe to hire theire masse, and offre, and hire the bishop's sermon, and have his blissyng; and after dyner, the seide Maire, Shiref, and theire brethern, to assemble at the maire; counter, there waytyng the Bishoppes comming; pleyeng the meane whiles at Dyce, the towne clerke to fynde theym Dyce, and to have Id. of every Raphill; and when the Bishope is come thedir, his chapell there to synge, and the bishope to geve them his blissyng, and then he and all his chapell to be serued there with brede and wyne. And so departe the Maire, Shiref, and theire brethern, to hire the bishopes evesonge at Sevnt Nicholas chirch forseid.

The next day the ray liveries are delivered to the officers of the city. 25. Item, the morowe vpon Seynt Nicholas day hit hath be vsid the Baillifes of Bristowe to make deliuree of the Towne ray lyvereies vnto all thofficers of the same, in maner and forme followyng; that is to sey, to the Toune clerk, xlij. rayes, and as moche pleyne clothe accordyng; and to his clerk, xxxij. rayes, and the playne cloth accordyng. To the Steward, xlij. rayes, and as moche pleyne clothe accordyng; and to his clerk, xxxij. rayes, and the pleyne clothe accordyng. To the Towne Attorney, xlij. rayes, and as moche pleyne clothe accordyng. To the Swerdeberer, xlij. rayes, and asmoche pleyn clothe accordyng To euery of the Maires Sergeauntez, and of the Shirefis Sergeauntez, xxxvj. rayes, and the pleyne clothe accordyng.

26. The Paiementes by the Baillyfes of Bristowe yerly to be paide, to the Maire, Shiref, Recorder, and othir officers, ayenst Christmas. All to be paide, except the Pencions to be paide quarterly.

Inprimis to the Maire, xii. yerdes of To the Mayor. viij.li. Skarlet, price Item for his ffurre.... x. marcs. v. marcs. Item for his wyne..... xx.li. Item for his pencion Item for his mynstralles.... v. marcs. Item at Seint Georges ffest ii. torches. Summa xlj./i. vj.s. viij.d. Item to the Shiref, x. yerder Skarlat, price vj.li. xiij.s. iiij.d. To the Sheriff. Item for his furre v.li. Item at Seynt Georges fest ij. torches. Summa xi.li. xiij.s. iiij.d. To the Recorder. Item to the Recorder, x. yerdes skarlat, price vj.li. xiij.s. iiij.d. x li. Item for his pencion..... iij.li. Item for his furre..... Summa xix.li. xiij.s. iiij.d. Item to the Towne Clerke for his pencion iiij.li. To the Town Clerk. vj.s. viij.d. Item for his parchemyn, wax, and wyne . XX.8.

Summa v.li. vj.s. viij.d.

423

Item to the Stewarde for his pencion. lij.s. iiij.d. Item for his furre vj.s. viij.d. Item for his paper and parchment. vj.s. viij.d. Item for his wyne ij.s. viij.d. Summa iij.li. ix.s. iiij.d.
Item to the Towne Attorney for his pen- cioniij. li . Item for his ffurre Item to the Swerdberer for his pencion iij. li. Item for his ffurre vj.s. viij. d. Summa iij. li . vj.s. viij. d .
Item to the preest of Seint George for his pencion viij. marcs. Item for his gowne and a hode

The Mayor must overlook the Bakers, and regu late the assise of bread

27. Item, hit hath be vsid, the Maire of Bristow anon after mighelmas, to do calle byfore hym in the yelde hall, or counseill hous, all the Bakers of Bristowe, there to vndirstand whate stuff they have of whete. And after, whate sise they shall bake, and to assist and counseil theym in theire byeng and barganyng with the Bagers, such as bryngeth whete to towne, as wele in trowys, as otherwyse, by lande and by watir, in kepyng downe of the market. And that the Bakers lak no stuffe, in especiall ayenst the fest of Christmas, and at suche tymes as many straungers resortith to the towne. And the Maire, dyuers tymes to ouersee the weyeng of brede, at such seasons as he thynketh necessary and requisite, aftir his discrecion, or vpon compleynte; made vnto hym for the same. And that the Bakers enhaunce not their sises above vi.d. at ones, according to the statute, &c. And whate Baker that brekith the sise, to be punysshed, aftir the constitucion of the Towne, as apperith here followyng in this present boke.

28. Item, hit hath be vsid, in semblable wyse, the seid Maire The Mayor must gulate the price of anon aftir Mighelmas, to do calle byfore hym in the seide Brewers, and re-Counseill hous, all the Brewers of Bristowe; and yf the case mait. require that Malt be skant and dere, then to commen there with the housholders of Brewers vpon a wise prouision to be made for the reformacion of the same, and to bryng malte to a lower price, and that such price as shall be there sette by the maier vpon malte, that no brewer breke it, upon payne of xl.s., forfeitable to the chambre of the Toune. And the shyftyng daies of the woke, specially the Wensdaies and Satirdaies, the Maire hath be vsid to walke in the morenynges to the Brewers howses, to oversee theym in seruyng of their ale to the pouere commens Ale for the poor. of the toune, and that they have theire trewe mesure; and his Alekonner with hym, to taste and vndirstand that the ale be gode, able, and sety, keping their sise, or to be punysshed for the same, aftir the constitucion of the Toune, as apperith followyng in this present boke.

and true measure. The Ale conner to taste whether the ale is strong and fit for drinking.

the sale of fuel on the Back.

29. Item, it hath be vsid, the maire this quarter specially to This winter quarter the Mayor oversee the sale of wodde commyng to the bakke, and to the must look after key, and to sett price vpon the same by his wyse discrecion; and the guay and at that no wodde there be solde vntil the price be sett vpon it by the saide maire, ne none to be delivered there byfore ne aftir a certein houre by the seide Maire lymitted. And that all grete wodde, callid Berkley wodde, be dischargid at the key beyond the Towre there, and all smalwodde to be dischargid at the Bak. Prouydid alweys that the woddesillers leve not the bak all The wood merdestitute and bare of wodde, ne soffir not the halvers to hale it allow the porters all awey, but that they leve resonable stuff upon the bak fro away, so that the spryng to spryng, to serve the pouere people of penyworthes and halfpeny worthe; in the neep sesons, vpon peyn of punysshyng. as wele the seid woddesillers, as the seid halvers, by the discrecion of the seid maire.

bants must not to carry it all poor may be served.

30. Item, that all maner of colvers that bryngeth colys to towne The standard for to sille, smale or grete, that they bryng their sakkes of juste to be set up this mesure, according to the standard, for the which the maire is vsed this quarter to commaunde the standard mesurez to be sett neasures for coals uarter.

in diuers places of this Toune, as at the High Crosse, the Brigge corner, and Stallage Crosse, so that every sak be tryed and provid to be and holde a carnok; and the ij. sakkes to holde a quarter, whatsoevir the price be, vpon peyne of brennyng of the sakkes and parte of the colys, and a parte to be distributed to pore folkes of the Almes howses.

31. Item, it hath be vsid, the Maire and Shiref of Bristowe

The Mayor and Sheriff hold a court every weekday, to settle dif-

and this is the best preserver of peace that can be imagined.

ferences :

to kepe theire due residence at the Counter euery fferyall day, aswele byfore none as afternone, except the Saterdaies afternone and othir festyual evis afternone, and to be there at viij. at the clok and sitte untill xj., and atte ij. afternone, sittyng untill v., for to hyre compleyntes and varyaunces to hear causes and betwene parties and parties, and to discerne and determyn the same after their discrecion, and, by thaduvce of their brethern there beyng with them, to sett parties in rest and ease by their adverty sement, compromesse, or otherwise; ynless then it so requyre that they must remit theym to the lawe, as they can be aduysed by the Recorder if he be present, or by the Town clerk in his absence; which Audience kepyng by the Maire and Shiref in the saide Counter, is the grettyst preseruacion of peas and gode rule to be hadde within the toune and shire of Bristowe that can be ymagened, for yf it wer anywhiles discontynewid, there wolde right sone growe grete inconvenyence amongst thenhabitaunte; of the same, which God forbede.

The Mayor and Sheriff must hear their Advent sermons

32. Item, the Maire and Shiref of Bristowe shall, by vsage this quarter and ceason byfore Christmas, kepe theire Aduent sermondes; that is to sey the furst sonday of Aduent, which fallith alweies the sonday next after Seynt Lyues day the bisshop in Nouembre, at which furst sonday the seide Maire and Shiref. with theire brethern, shall walke to the ffrere Prechours, and there hyre theire Sermonde. And the next Sonday therupon. they shall hire sermonde at the ffrere menors, and the thirde Sonday at the ffrere Prechours. And the fourthe and laste Sonday of Aduent at the frere menors. And there to make an end of Aduent Sermondes.

Proclamation to

33. Item, the Maire of Bristowe shal, by vsage this quarter the next markett day byfore Christmas daie, or ellis on Christmas be made at Christeve, do make open proclamacion for gode rule and governaunce to be hadde and kept within the saide town, duryng the holy of the Lord of dayes, under this maner of fforme :---

34. "The Maire and the Shiref chargen and commanden, on Go not a mumthe kyng our souuerain lordis behalf, that no maner of personne. of whate degree or condicion that they be of, at no tyme this Christmas goo a mommyng with cloce visaged, nor go aftir curfew rong at St. Nicholas, without e lighte in theire handes, that is to sey skonce light, lantern light, candel light, or torche nor armed with light; and that they goo in no wyse with wepyn defenssibly araied, wherbye the kinges peas may in eny maner wise be broken or hurt, and that vpon peyn of prysonment, and makyng ffyne and raunson to the kyng."*

35. Item, an other proclamacion for conservacion of the Ageneral proclakynges peace,-ordeigned, stablisshed, and enacted by the commen Counseile of Bristowe, to be proclamed at all such tyme as the maire and the Shiref for the tyme beeng shall thinke it necessarie; in especial ayenst gode tydes and feestys, as Christmas,—is to be proclaimed in this wyse :—

36. "The Maire and the Shiref chargen and commaunden, on we charge you go not armed within the kyng our souverain lordes behalf, that no maner of persone the town by night or persones go nor walke within this town of Bristowe, with no Glaythes, speerys, longe swerdys, longe daggers, custils, nother Baszelardes, by nyght nor by day, whereby the kinges peace in any maner wyse may be trobbelid, broken, or offendid, but the personnes that bith officers and othir that commen ridyng into the towne, or goyng oute of the Towne; and that

* This proclamation seems to have been directed against the abuse of the popular sports which obtained during the festivities of Christmas. The Lord of Misrule, "beginning his rule at All-hallow eve, continued the same till the morrow after the Feast of the Purification, commonly called Candlemas Day, in which space there were fine and subtle disguisings, masks, and mummeries" (Strype's Stow's Survey, Bk. i. p. 252); and mumming with visors, "cloce visage l," was especially a Christmas custom; sometimes turned to evil purposes. See Brand's Pop. Antiquities, i. p. 356. [L.T.S.]

mas, for peace during the holidays and the reign Misrule.

ming with masks.

After curfew go not without lights. veanons.

mation for peace.

nor by day.

aid in keeping the peace.

vppon peyn of fforfeiture of thaire weepyns, and theire bodyes All burgesses must to prison. To the accomplyshment of the whiche premysses, the Maire, Shiref, and commen counseile of Bristowe forseid, chargen and commaunden all maner burgeyses of this Towne of Bristowe, on the kyng our soueraigne lord is behalfe, to be aydyng, helpyng, supportyng, menteyning, and ffavouryng, to the execution of the same, and that vppon pevn that may or woll befall thereuppon."

GENERAL NOTE.

BRISTOL, long only second to London in the kingdom, is, it is well known, rich in historical records and city muniments, parts of which have at times found their way into the hands of some who have appreciated their public value. She was remarkable in having among her Gilds one devoted to keeping "the ancient recordes and mynaments, not only of the towne, but also of other societies in other remote places of the kingdome;" whose history, could it be written, would be one of the most curious in England; the unhappy burning of whose library, in A.D. 1466, is recorded before, p. 287. (See also Dallaway's Antiquities of Bri-tow, p. 35, note). There seems a note-worthy fitness of things in the circumstance that Robert Ricart (or, as some call him. Ricaut), the Town Clerk who wrote this most interesting record here printed, which adds another instance of the working of the Gilds with corporate bodies in towns, should have been himself a member of the ancient brotherhood of the Kalendars of Bristol. This fact is mentioned of him by nearly all the histories, upon what authority is not stated, but the inference seems that he so speaks of himself in some of his writings. (See Pryce, p. 610; Rogers' Calendars of Al Hallowen. Brystowe, p. 165; and others.)

Since the first two Parts of this volume passed through the press, under my father's eye, I have been enabled, owing to special circumstances and the courtesy of several gentlemen in Bristol, to examine the original work from which Mr. Pocock's MS. was taken, and to make a careful collation of this print. To those gentlemen, among whom I may mention the Town Clerk of Bristol, my best thanks are due for the facilities they afforded me herein, by which means I have been able, happily, to render this portion of the work more complete than was otherwise possible.

In Mr. Pocock's MS., an extract from the beginning of Ricart's Chronicle states that "the Mayor Spencer, 18 Edw. IV. [A. D. 1479], commaunded me, Rob. Ricart, the same yere electid and admitted into the office of Town Clerk of the said worshipfull towne, for to deuise, ordaigne, and make this present boke for a remembratif evir hereaftir, to be called and named the Maire of Bristowe is Register, or ellis the Maire is Kalender." (This, in the original, continues as follows)-" In the which boke is and shalbe enregistred a grete parte of the auncient vsages and laudable custumes of the saide worshipfull towne, tyme oute of mynde vsed and exercised in the same; which boke in substance shal rest vpon vj principall matiers." The subjects of these six "principal matters" or Parts is then set forth at some length, the design of the book apparently being to give a history and descriptive account of the city. What is here printed is the fourth of these Parts, four pages only having been left out, some of which are cancelled, and seem to be in a different writing. It is stated by Barrett that besides this Register Ricart was the author of "many curious notices we have in the two red books, the book of wills, orphans, &c." (Hist. of Bristol, p. 456). See also Corry and Evans' Hist. of Bristol, vol. ii. p. 285, to the same effect. One of these "red books" is referred to in Ordinances 10, 15, and 16 (before, pp. 416, 419). The "little Red book" I have seen, and one among the many points of interest connected with it is, that an inscription on parchment, on the outside of the volume, bears the veritable signature of Ricart himself.

Sever, in his "Memoirs Historical and Topographical of Bristol," thus describes the "Maire is Kalender." "It is a thick folio, in good preservation, well written, partly on vellum, and partly on paper, ornamented with rude portraits of the kings and several other paintings of the same kind. . . . About the beginning of Henry VII.'s reign the handwriting changes, and the chronicle is continued by different persons nearly to the present time." (Pref., pp. xi. xii.) The part containing the "Office of the Mayor," is also adorned with a very curious painting on vellum representing the ceremony of installation. The paragraphs are not numbered in the original, but figures are here inserted for the sake of convenience; and for the same reason the few side-notes there occurring are here omitted.

Ricart's Kalendar, or even this portion of it, has never before been printed. Sever and Barrett quote short passages; other authors only allude to it; but Evans, in his compendious little work, under the date 1503, when he says Ricart ceased to be Town Clerk, gives the best account of any in a short abstract of the "Office" (Chronological Outline of History of Bristol, p. 127). Barrett (p. 121), followed by Mr. Lucas in his "Secularia" (p. 115), quotes a part of a speech made by the Mayor on going out of office (apparently another version of that given before on p. 415), but without giving any authority for the quotation.

There can be no doubt that Ricart, writing down these Articles or Ordinances touching the officers and government of the town "for a remembratif evir hereaftir," and exhorting his fellow-officers to study them (see before, p. 413), copied them from some older and well-known laws, as indeed is shown by several of the Ordinances themselves (10, 15), and by the phrase used at the beginning of many of them, "hit hath be usid." They form no exception in this respect to the other examples of ordinances given in this volume. It may be remarked that Ricart actually has written them down in the order of the Calendar according to the modern sense of the word, beginning with 1st September and ending at Christmas.

Incomplete as this body of Ordinances is, many of them contain provisions as to matters concerning the general welfare and good municipal government parallel to those of Berwick, Winchester, and Worcester; ordinances of which the best example hitherto published is found in the Liber Albus of London. But the most important point as regards the subject of the present volume is, that these ordinances show the amicable connection of the Craft Gilds with the corporate body of the city, the Mayor evidently having possessed a ministerial function in confirming the election of the masters of the crafts (see Ord. 16), similar to that which he exercised as to the ordinances of the Gild of Fullers (see before, p. 286). The famous Gild of Kalendars held a high and honourable place in the good graces of the city (see before, pp. 287, 417), and the relation of the officers of the corporation with other crafts appears to have been of much the same sort as it was in Worcester (Ordinances 27, 28). The crafts also appear to have attended the Mayor and other officers on vigils, as they did in Worcester (before, p. 408), and to have found it thirsty work, for Barrett (p. 125) cites from "the great White Book" that "20th May, 28 Hen. VI., it was ordained by Wm. Canynges, Mayor, and the Common Council, that the drinking at St. John's and St. Peter's nights should be wholly to persons of crafts, going the nights before the Mayor, Sheriff, and other notable persons; and that the Mayor and Sheriff on forfeiture of five marks a-piece, the one at St. John's night, the other at St. Peter's, should dispense wine to be disposed of to the said crafts at their halls: viz. to the weavers and tuckers each 10 gallons." enumerating 26 crafts, who were to have 94 gallons of wine among them. The "Canynges" here named was the celebrated William Canynges, the merchant of Bristol, four times her Mayor, and her benefactor in many ways; also the munificent restorer of Redcliff church, where he founded two chantries (see before, pp. 416, 421).

Like Worcester, Bristol also had a Gild Merchant, for according to Barrett "it appears by the great Red Book of Bristol, p. 30, that the Mayor, bailiffs, and commonalty had a free guild of merchants in the town and suburb from time beyond the memory of man, and all things belonging to a guild" (p. 179). What further discoveries this "great Red Book" has to disclose must however await a future time.

The lover of old English manners and customs will find in Ricart's quaint descriptions of ceremonies and of what we are accustomed to call "sports," but which were evidently matters of seriousness, much to gratify his curiosity and study. Much light is thrown upon Ordinances 18 to 22, and 30 to 32, by passages too long to quote here, in Strutt's "Sports and Pastimes," pp. 339, 346; and Brand's "Popular Antiquities," vol. i. pp. 308, 321-336.

[L.T.S.]

[NOTE.—On a later examination of the Bristol books I found that Barrett had made several errors in the passage quoted in the last paragraph of p. 430, which is taken from the Great Red Book, fol. xiiii. b, not from the White Book; it should run as follows :—" the drinking at St. John's and St. Peter's nights should utterly be lefte among persons of crafts, going the nights before the Mayor, Sheriff, and notable persons; and that the Mayor and Sheriff on forfeiture of five marks apiece, the one at St. John's night, the other at St. Peter's, should dispense wine to be disposed to the said crafts at their halls : viz. to the weavers and tuckers each 10 gallons, provided that the craftsmen send their own servants with their own potts for the same."

Ricart's Kalendar was printed by the Camden Society, 1872.

L.T.S. 1892.]

THE COSTOMARY OF TETTENHALL REGIS.

after the Church, or foure pens if it be bequeved² him.

4. It: whosoever sitteth on the ground of another tenant, Another custom as to heriots. veilding nothinge to the lord or the king, he yt he houldeth of shall have the beast¹ beast for an hariot, and the lord the beast¹ [¹ Best, in B.]

[² Bequeathed, in B.]

5. What stranger soever dye in the lordshipe, the lord shall Heriot shall be have his beast ¹ beast for an harriot, or horse if he have any: and stranger. if he be an knowne man, the lord shall haue nothing, if his lord aske him.

6. It: every heire, after the death of his father, shall give, The relief for land shall be as much for a releife of his land, so much as his father gaue of yearely as one year's rent. Where no rent is rent, and his rent according to the Statute, and this called a paid, the fine must be agreed dubbel the³ rent. And if it be land of new parchase, giueing upon. [3 The, not in B.] nothing to the lord, the heire shall make his fine wth the bayliffe to the best.

7. It: the [y] say, no man may bequeat his lands or tenent wch A man may not bequeath his inhe hath to inheritance: but his own new purchase he may beheritance, though he may his own purchase. queath to whom he will.

8. It: no season within the mannor is of force, unlesse it be in the full court, by the hand of the baliffe, and be given aganne the hand of the by the bayly to him y^t hath the right. Baihff.

9. Noe widdow shall pay the lord any harriot, unlesse she A widow shall not hould other lands then her dowry, or pay other rents to the dowry. lord.

10. It: every widdow shall answare to the heire the third pt A widow is accountable to the of the rent, and all other things belonging to the tenent exept heir for a third of the rent, but shute of courte. not for suit of court.

II. It: if a man purchase with-in the mannor any tenents, Tenements purchased within the the lord⁴ have nothing of him but his rent onely, and after his manoromly involve rent and a heriot. death a hariot. [4 Shall, added in Ъ.) 11.* It: any tenant may sell or give his tenemts, without any Any tenant may sell or give a part harriot giueing to the lord, as well⁵ of inheritance as of perof his tenements, without giving chase, and keepe to hime selfe a parcell, and for that parcell any heriot. Lands, added he shall agree wth the lord for his years rent, and a-peare at in B.1

IV.

THE COSTOMARY OF TETTENHALL REGIS.*

A Trew coppy of the Costomary of the mannor of Tettenhall regis, coppied out of one taken out of the Originall, the 22^d of July 1604.

The tenantschoose a Bailiff, yearly, who must be neither a parsou nor a smith.

This copy was made 22 July,

1604

I. Imprimis, the tenants do say: that A bayliffe must be Chosen by his neighbars, from yeare to yeare, of the best and Ablest men of the manner: and besid they saye, no Clarke nor Smith shall be baylyfe to searve.

A certain heriot is due to the lord upon the death of a tenant.

2. Item, they save, whosoever of the mannor dye, the lord shall have his best oxe or cowe, and all his masculen horses : of thre swine, he shall have one; and of five, one; and of tenn, twoe; and no more if he have an hundred: and so of bees and such other.

An other custom as to her ots.

[1 The church, added in B.] [2 And he, added in B.]

3. It: whosoever sitteth upon the ground of any man, and yeildeth to the lord a peny or haulf peny, or more or lesse, the lord shall have an hariot of him as of another, and¹ the second, ²meane lord the therd.

* As before stated (p. 348), two copies of the Customary were kindly placed in my father's hands. The text given here is that of the older of the two. This is written in the bad hand of the early part of the seventeenth century; in several instances the transcriber by a slip of the pen has missed out words or parts of words, thus making the sense very obscure. By means however of the later copy these omissions are able to be filled up, and doubtful readings be made clear, which I have done by inserting in the margin the added and corrected words, referring to this later copy as "B." This copy, while it is more complete, and spelled of course according to the more modern style, contains several variations from the older copy, which however consist chiefly of turns of expression not affecting the general tenour of the bye-laws. See further, Note at the end. [L. T. S.]

* In "B" this Bye-law is numbered 12, and the rest follow consecutively, so that there appear 40 Bye-laws, the right number, at the end.

court.

28

No seizin is of force, unless made in full court by pay heriot for her

TETTENHALL REGIS.

The lord's license must be had to marry a landed widow.

Every heir shall have the best brass pot, &c. [1 Of, added in B.] Widows shall have their dowries free. [2 Without any deed withstanding or, in B, instead of " withstand and."]

12. It: no strange man shall marry a widdow haueing land. to have the freedom of the mannor, without lycense of the lord or his bayliffe.

13. It: every heire, after the death of his father, shall have the beast brase pot, and¹ all other implements the best.

14. It: every widdow shall have hir dowry, of all lands and tenements weh shee and her husband [had] together, wth stand and² warrants made, but the heire shall plegge hir which hath the deeds by the sight of his neighbors and to the valeu of the land lost.

and that shee be not constryned; and then, that doone, yealding

16. It: If any man or woman of the lordshipe shall call any so called come, with twoe honest men, and prove themselves good.

17. It: if any man or woman⁶ call a wedded woman common it up excludeth the woman and hir heire for ever.

15. It: if any whoman have lands or tenemts, after the A wife's property may be sold by her husband, but desease of hir father, by inhiritance or purchase, or by gifte or it must be with by conditione, or for tearm of use³, or fee taule⁴, or by any other her will, and she must not be conmanner, hir husband, when shee is married, may sell all such strained. ³ Life, in B.] lands and tenem^{ts}, soe that the woman come into the court, and [4 Tayle, in B.] there be examined by the bayliffe whether it be hir will or no,

Evil speakers shall be fined. [5 Or thiefe, added man or woman whore⁵, pay to the lord 2s., so that he shee or they in B.]

Amends shall be made for evil words not proved. strumpitt, and can not proue it, he shall give to the lord xij.d. [6 Of the lordship, veild, and make his neighbore amends for the trespasse, so that added in B.] she come to the court as afforesayd.

If any one's beasts either injure or crops, he shall be amerced and make amends, on the sight of [a jury of] his neighbours.

[8 6s. 8d., in B.]

No one shall make gates and gaps in the common field against the common consent.

18. It: if any man or marre or eate the corne or gras of his eat his neighbour's neighbors, wth his beasts either tyed or keept, he shall give to the lord xij.d., and make his neighbors amends for the trespasse at the sight of his neighbors; and if he do againe, he shall give the lord 2s., and make amends for the trespasse; and if he do [7 II, added in B.] 7 the third time, he shall give the lord 6s. 4d.8, and allsoe 6s. 4d.8 to his neighbors for the trespasse.

> 19. It: No man shall make yates or gapes in the common feild, upon the corne or grasse of his neighbors, but by the consent of [the] commonty; and if he do, he shall give to the lord 2s., and to the commonty of the towne 2s.

20. It: no man shall pasture the stubbell while the corne is The pasturage of upon the ground, under the paine of xij.d., except it be upon his owne land.

21. No man of owre toune shall enter upon the stubble of The pasturage of stubble in other any other toune while the corne is upon the ground, exept it is towns [or parishes]. upon his owne land, and by the good will of all his neighbors, under payne of iij.s. to the lord.

22. It: no man shall be amerced but by the taxing of his Amercements shall be fairly neighbours, and according to the trespasse. made.

23. It: no man shall be merced for blood drawing, or beareing The amercements for certain offences, wepons, or for shute of court, or for exsisse¹ of ale brewing, but and for bad ale. [1 Excise, in B.] of iij.d.; and if the ale be read, and of evell savor and collour, then it must be taken into the bayliffes hand, and he shall be merced grevousely by the taxing of his neighbors.

24. All brewers in the like mannor shall charge the ale The ale-taster nust taste all ale. teaster to teast the ale before they sell it, or else they shall be amerced.

25. Every brewer shall give the ale taster a gallon of the best He shall have a gallon of the best. ale when they brewe to sell.

26. If any man finde himselfe agreved by the hedges of his Gaps in the hedges shall be presented neighbors not lawfully made, he shall take his neighbors; and so at the Court Leet. many gaps as they then finde, they present to the bayliffe at the next court; and for every gape, the lord shall have a share or iij.d., and allso make amends to him that hath the harme.

27. Every man that hath sonnes, may set them to crafts Custom as to setwithout lisence of the lord; and he [shall] give for every marriage of mariage of his dauter, with-in the mannor, xij.d., and without the mannor 2s., except he can get better favoure.

ting out sons and daughters.

28. All the kings tenants may set there houses, rents, lands, Leases for years and for life. or tenent, for the terme of xxxti years, with out lisence of the The latter must be made in full Court. lord; but if it be for terme of life, it must be in full court, with lisence of a balife.

29. If any man be lawfully seazed, in full court, of any tenement The force of lawful for wright,* one day and one night, he shall never be excluded nor expulled but by the kings writ, and tenants by the judgment of the kings tenants.

* That is, by writ of right [T. S.]

THE COSTOMARY OF

True presentments shall be made by the jury of the Court. ¹ Court, added in Ъ.]

436

30. Item: the twelve men shall present all articels which they knowe to be trew; and if the stand in doubte of any, they shall have lisence untell the next¹ day, tell they are to present y^t day allso is first.*

Certain presentments shall not be made against a child.

Presentments shall be repeated. if they are not remedied.

31. No presentation of blood drawing or bearing wepons of a childe, shall be presented before hee be twelve years of age. 32. It: [If] any presentation be not amended, it shall be presented from yeare to yeare, untell it shall be amended, and allso amends made.

Inquests by the bailiff, or by a jury of twelve, must be taken before all the tenants. [2 Office, in B.] 13 Procuration. in B.1

33. It: if any Inquisition be made by the balife of the assise² for puration,³ and the tenants be not wholy present, then the inquest must take no effect untill the tenants present answare to the doing wholy together. In like manner must be donne of twelve men. But if it bee taken by the kings writt, for lands or tenement, or by office, [and] the plantyffe and defendant be both present, and be contented to abide there sayyngs, then they must giue a virdict without any delaying.

Procedure as to writ of right.

34. It: if any man wryghttst one of his neighbors for lands or tenements, boath shall have their delayes, and no detayneing of lands or tennements shall be made, but if it be for default of shewt of partyes: and he that is cast shall give to the lord vi.s. viii.d., except he that is cast can gett better favoure.

The winter and spring fields shall not be used for mares and cows during the summer and autumn. [⁴ Yonge, in B.] [5 Commonalty, in b.]

36.1 It: if any man do tey or keep any mare with a yonger⁴ foale, in the winter feild, or lent feild, from the assention day untell the nativity of crist, he shall give to the lord xij.d., and to the commonty⁴ of the court of the towne ij.s, as often as he is taken: in the like manner of cowes and calvs.

* This unintelligible sentence stands thus in "B,"-" and if they stand in doubt of any, they shall have license untill yo next Court day, and as well they are to present that day as the first day."

+ That is, serves a writ of right. [T.S.] In "B" the phrase stands, " If any man takes a writ on his neighbour."

1 In "B" the Bye-law 35, below, comes here in its proper numeral place. There seems no reason why the transposition was made in the older copy.

37. No widdow shall put any of 1 hir dowry from the heire, for 2 The heir shall have the refusal of third sheafe, if the heire will give as much as annother man the widow's share when on sale. will.

38. If any man shall hould lands or tenements of the meane lord, and he that houldeth it be willing to sell those lands or tenements, in p^t or whole, the meane lord shall have it for his monny before any other.

39. All ould tenants shall have, severall, all the yeare, a croft old tenants shall and a medow, or a place of medow ground, or more if he will: but the new tenant may not challenge any by costome, but [only] by sufferance of the ould tenants; but that they leave to tine and keep so that his neighbor be harmelesse by the cattel; but if the [y] be hurt, he shall be greviosely amerced, and largely make amends to his neighbor for his trespasse.

35.³ Item, there is a certayne wood in brewood⁴ Kingswood, of gift of King John, sometime Kinge of England; with sayd wood⁵ he gaue to his tenants of Tettenhall, in helpeing and easeing the ould rent of his tenants. In helping and easeing the b. ould rent, every man hime selfe [gave] in xxxiij.s., as well for the sale as the waste. And they did apoynt four men of the mannor to keepe the wood, for the profitt of the tenants commodyty⁶ of the mannor, and to deliver to the sayd tenants house boot and high boot,* as well of oke as of other wood : allso they have ordayned a forster, by comon cost, to keepe the sayd wood to the profitt of the tenants. The king nor his baylife shall have nothing of the wood, but only amercements of strangers, at the complaynt of the forster: and soe they have houlden the wood [many kings dayes].

King John gave to his tenants of Tettenhall a wood to ease their rent. 3 (sic) 4 Ca'led, added in [⁵ Disforrested, added in B.] From this every man got 33s. The tenants appoint four men to keep the wood, and to deliver the house-bote and hedge-bote, oak and otherwise. [6 Commodyty, not in B.] They also appoint a forester. The king has nothing thence but amercements. and the wood has been held thus reigns.

[And† furthermore, in the time] of king Edward [the first during many

* That is, house-bote and hay-bote or hedge-bote (A. S. hege, hedge, and bot, aid, help, or advantage). These were the common rights of copyhold tenants, to take the necessary timber to repair houses and "stuff to make and amend hedges" from the land leased to them. See Coke upon Littleton, 41 b; Termes de la Ley, 195 a, 199 b. [L. T. S.]

+ In the older copy of the Customary, from the top of the page upon which this paragraph was written a large corner has been torn away on the left hand. The words within brackets fill up, in "B," the space answering to the gap thus made in the mutilated Bye-law. [L. T. S.]

437

1 Away, in B, in stead of "any of."] [2 Nor the, in B.] The middle lord shall have the refusal, on the sale of property held under him.

have separate common rights. and new ones shall have them on sufferance.

In the time of Edward I, two strangers had waste parts of the wood by leave of the tenants, who fived their tenure. [1 Three, in B.] surnamed long Shankes,] sonne of king [Henry the third, came one Oliver Leward, and, by licen]ce of the tenants, tooke ther¹ wast [places of the Wood; and because he was of a stra]nge blood, and not of the manor, [they ordained him to give to the Lord a cer]taine rent, and to be of the hould[ing as the tenants were. In like] mannor came one Hugh Wrottesley, and, by [leave of the tenants, tooke likewise three waste] places of the wood; and because he was of a [strange blood,] and not [of the mannour,] they appoynted him to give to the lord a [certai]ne rent by the yeare, [and to] be of the² houlding as the tenants ware³ altringe. And so they have ordayned and houlden, and do hould,⁴ from the time of King John untell this day.

[² Same, added in B.] [³ In all things, in B, instead of "altringe."] [⁴ The same wood, added in B.]

GENERAL NOTE.

THE original of this Customary is not known to exist. The oldest copy known is the one given above, which, as is declared on its title, is of the date of 1604. Mr. Neve's later copy, from the same original, is written on paper which bears the water-mark of 1817, and as the differences in it go so far as to show that it cannot have been taken from this earlier copy, there must have been in existence, fifty years ago, either the original Customary itself or another duplicate of it. In Mr. Neve's MS. (in which the bye-laws are followed by a "true Rent Role" of the tenants) mention is made, at the end, of four separate copies, one of which is described as "more antient, subscribed by a jury of the tenants at a Court Leet;" the others were all made in 1604.

Whatever the actual age of this Customary may be, there is no doubt that it contains the bye-laws made by the tenants of the manor at their Leet or Law-day, from time to time; and is an important illustration of the exercise of the practice of making such laws for their own guidance formerly in active use in every neighbourhood all over the country. Winchester and Worcester have afforded other instances of the same ancient practice, differing from these in details in proportion as the corporation and the manor have grown up, different institutions, developed from the same original germ. And this leads to the reasons for the introduction in this volume of a document that at first sight might seem foreign to its subject-matter. Regrets are now unavailing that the note, full of research and intimate knowledge of the laws and principles upon which English society has rested for ages, which my Father intended here, was left unwritten. It must be enough to say now, that he would have explained the methods in use from the earliest times, by which, when men met together in their different neighbourhoods -parishioners, villaners, citizens and others-they appointed some of their own number, sworn to the truth and their duty, to make the byelaws to which all present should assent, and to inquire and see that those laws were kept; methods which, anciently having as a principal end the maintaining of the peace-pledge and the rights of property, continued to be kept up not only, in the words of Lord Coke, "for conservation of the king's peace, and punishment of common nusances," but that the tenants and resiants should have justice "done unto them at their own doores without any charge or losse of time " (4th Institute, p. 263; 2nd Institute, p. 71). How the spirit which guided them, though the forms might be changed, had ruled through these and like institutions, from the days when Domesday Book was given in as a true record of the finding of the juries of all the country; to the times when the Sheriff's sent in their returns of how men, on their own showing, demeaned themselves in their social, commercial, and other gatherings in Gilds; and again, when the Courts Leet and Courts Baron of the most insignificant parish or the most important city alike were discharging their duties to themselves and their neighbours; and how it was still the same English spirit of mutual responsibility and self-reliance: all this and more would have been clearly shown and have been illustrated by quotations from record and manuscript.

In the absence of this exposition, the following passages from a letter published by my Father in the Birmingham Journal of 4th May, 1867, will not be inappropriate here, while the subsequent quotations, suggestively given, will serve to carry on further the story that is told by the Customary of Tettenhall.

"There were in Birmingham, as elsewhere, two distinct Courts and sets of Records; namely, the Court Leet, with its records,—and the Court Baron, with its records. The distinction is important and significant. Every male inhabitant, of fit age, was bound to attend the Court Leet, and was liable to be fined if absent. At the Court Baron, only those were bound to attend who held land under the custom of the manor. Both were popular assemblies; and the study of the system of local self-government, which each of them worked very effectively, is one of the most interesting and instructive studies that any lover of free institutions can take up.

"But the Court Leet was a court chiefly of criminal procedure; while the Court Baron dealt with the rights of property, and the course of inheritance, and the different obligations that existed between the lord of the manor and the owners of land. Each Court had the power of making bye-laws; and these bye-laws were of the utmost importance to the welfare of every place. No lord of any manor could impose bye-laws. These could only be made in the open Court; and it rested with the Court itself to declare what the customs of the manor were."

Tettenhall has given an instance of the embodiment of such customs into a standing "Customary." What next follow show them in use in other places, and give an instance of how they were declared.

The Court Rolls of Bushey in Hertfordshire, extending from the 15th of Henry VIII. to the 38th of Elizabeth (1523 to 1506), which fell into my Father's possession, are in a very perfect state. The records of the Court Leet and of the Court Baron are sewn up together, but though they often appear to have been held on the same day and are then recorded on the same strip of parchment, they are always kept entirely distinct. They are written in Latin, much contracted, as was usual in such documents. At the "View of Frankpledge with a Court" held on 27th July, in the 1st Edward VI. (1548), a jury of thirteen is sworn; they present upon their oaths that eleven named men owe suit to the View [that is, ought to have come to the court] and make default, each is therefore amerced. They present "that Humfrey Corston and John floxe are the common bakers of man's bread [in distinction to horse-bread, see before, p. 366] and have broken the assise;" also "that Thomas Ravensby, John Smythe, and Thomas Hamond are the common brewers of ale, and sell by unlawful measures [vasa];" also "that the common tipplers sell by measures not sealed," all which offenders are then amerced. On 16th April, in the 22nd Elizabeth (1580), we find the jury (sixteen men) ordering "that Thomas Atkines shall scour his ditch before the feast of the nativity of St. John the Baptist next, under pain of forfeiting to the lord, for every yard, iiijd; " four others are ordered to do the like : it is also ordered that "no one shall break the hedges," that two other men shall "remove their dunghills," and that "every one shall ring his swine before the said feast of Pentecost," all under penalties. At this Leet too were chosen, as usual, the officers for the year, constables, headboroughs [capitales plegii], and ale-tasters. At the Court Baron of 27th July, 1st Edward VI., the sworn men of the homage present that "Humfrey Conyngesby esquire, William Blakewell gentleman, Henry Goodyere gentleman, Robert Smythe, Dorothy Pavyor widow," and others owe suit to the court, and, making default, they are amerced. Among other presentments, the homage say that a "rent of ten shillings, arising from a certain mill called Watford Mylle," was not paid "on the death of William Davyd to the bailif of the manor ;" that "Richard Scott, holding by custom of the lord, has died since the last court, who at the time of his death held of the lord for himself and his heirs, according to the custom of the manor," certain properties, and they declare what heriot is due, and who is the right successor, who is then admitted in full court. On the 28th June, 8th Elizabeth, there was held a Court Baron, apparently the first after the succession of a new lord to the manor, when the property, and the tenure by which each was held of a long list of tenants, were declared. It is to be supposed that there was needed some reminder of the customs or byelaws of the manor at this time, for at the next court, held 7th February, oth Elizabeth (1566), after the usual business, there is entered on the Roll a document which is in fact a "Customary" of Bushey, the origin of which is thus stated :-- "Whereas at the last court the homage were ordered, upon their oaths, to present at this next court held for the said manor what the customs of the said manor may be, upon certain articles then given in writing and in order by the steward of the manor ; the homage have come, and present in writing as follows;* The Aunswere and verdytt of Walter Wythe, Robert Blackwell, [and nineteen others] custumary tenaunts of the mannor of Busshey in the countie of Hertf., to certayne artycles gyuen them in charge vpon ther othes to enquyer of by Andrewe Joyner gent., lorde of the sayde mannor, touching and concerning the customes of the seid Mannor of Busshey. Imprimis, to the fyrste artycle we save that no copy holder at the tyme of his deathe dying seased of twoe coppyholds hath payde any more then one quycke herryott, by the tyme of our remembraunce or before, to our knowledge. Item, to the seconde we save that the lorde oughte to have the seconde best for hys herryott, and the hever the beste. Item, to the thyrde we saye that no coppyholder that doeth surrender hys coppyholde oughte to paye any herryott ypon the surrender of hys coppyholde excepte yt be in extremis of deathe. Item, to the fourthe we save that the lords of this mannor haue neuer demaunded, nor any coppyholder payde, any more for ther ffyne then one yeres rente of the lande. Item, to the fyfeth we save that the wedowe after the deathe of her husbande shall have the thyrde parte of the rente of the lande. But not the thyrde parte of the lande excepte vt be surrendred to her by her husbonde." The answer to the twelfth question lets us into a reason for making a new customary, "we knowe not where the courte rolles, rentalls, or customaryes of this mannor are remayning, or in whose custodye," though that the Rolls for a period of more than forty years previously were afterwards found is proved by their present entire existence. The replies go on through a number of customs, too long to give here.

The Roll of the Court Leet of the Manor of Bromfield, Shropshire, for the 2nd October in the 4th year of James I. (1607), also in my Father's possession, after the names of the tenants and jurymen, gives the presentments and the orders made for each hamlet within the jurisdiction of the court. Among these are the following :-- " By W^m Lane and John Farlowe, present W^m Pingell for dryving cattell throw the lordship, contrary to a former order, whereby he hath forfeted the peine before this layd down for such offenders, the pein being vs. ... At this court, with thassent of the Lorde and tennants, that all thinhabitants of this lordship yoke or ring their swine sufficiently and soe kepe them from tyme to tyme, ypon peine of xijd. euery one making default. ... At this court, for avoyding of controversies betwext W^m Lane and Rich. Bevan: It is now with the Lords consent, and assent of Wm Lane. ordered, that Richard Bevan, who hath broken the lords former order betwext them, shall hensforth have and repossede two Ridges hitherto in controuersye, and so save the sayd Lane from harmes with sufficient hedge and diche of his lande adioyning. And this vnder peine of xs., a curia in curiam. . . . At this court, for avoyding a controuersye betwext John wigley and John Chepp concerning the right vse of a way at a place called the water-byde, Richard Genins and George ffaulkoner, produced in open court as witnesses for and on the behalf of John Wigley, being sworn before the stuard and homage, depose and say as foloweth. 1. Richard Genins sayth that margory Davies, sometime dwelling on Chep street, wold not remove her habitacion onles she might haue a way conveniently and quietly to passe from the kings high way to and from a pasture called Hadwell, wherevoon Charles ffoxe esquire, father of Sir Charles ffoxe knight, and nowe L. of the manor, appoynted and gave her a free way out from Hadwell to the kings high way, as well vpon the lande belonging to the tenement she had by exchange as also ypon other lande she had by gift and exchange of other landes taken by the said Charles floxe esquire of John Maunders and Roger Hill. 2. George flauconer likewise sworn, deposeth and sayth as the former deponent, that the said Margerie Davies, making an exchange of her tenement by commaundment of the said Charles floxe esquire, had a way for her appoynted and sett down, which is nowe the way where the hedge goeth by, whiche way was over the endes of John Preeces, Maunders, and Hills landes, left by Genins who plowed those landes. And so the said Margery vsed that way continually during her lief. And vpon this the way ordered accordingly. . . . At this court also, with the agreemnt of the lorde, it is ordered and concluded by the homage that John Hill shall have, yse, and occupie the Pytt and trees thereon growing, and according as his ancesters vsed the same, and as his witnesses have proved, wherunto the homage upon their oath haue geaven their verdyct."

^{*} This preamble is in Latin, the "Answer" is in English; besides being entered on the Roll at length, an indented copy of the original, signed by the homagers, is tacked on to the middle of the parchment strip.

These are but some out of numerous illustrations of the doing of "justice at their own doors" by the people themselves, once in use all over the land. [L. T. S.]

APPENDIX I.

[GILD OF ST. GEORGE, NORWICH.*]

TN the Worschepe of the Fader Sone and the Holigost, And The Gild was of oure ladi seint Mari And of the glorious martyr Seynt George And of alle goddis holy, there was begonne a fraternite the zer of oure lord a Mlijcliijxx, and v, the zere of the regne of king Richard be seconde after the conquest viij., in the

egun A.D. 1385.

* From the Rawlinson MSS. in the Bodleian Library, Misc. 1370. After the earlier set of ordinances of the same Gild, given before on p. 17, was in print, this fuller set of ordinances was found among the Rawlinson MSS., for a copy of which, and collation of the print, readers of this work are indebted to Mr. G. Parker, of Oxford. The original is in the form of a book of eight leaves of vellum, 121 by 81 inches in size, of which the edges have been cut, thereby slightly injuring the text. The first page is very indistinct, several words being nearly illegible, but with the help of the next mentioned, these were able to be made out.

A third set of ordinances, nearly but not quite identical with those printed in this Appendix, is to be found in an "Account of the Company of St. George in Norwich," taken from Mackarell's MS. History of Norwich (1737), and printed in vol. iii. of the Transactions of the Norfolk Archaological Society, a copy of which I have received through the kindness of Mr. J. L'Estiange of Norwich. The ordinances are said to have been copied from a folio MS. belonging to the Company, "Book I, marked A," and so closely resemble those here given as to show they must have been taken from the same original. In one point they differ, the date of the foundation of the Gild is put as 1324, 18 Edward II, sixty years earlier than the date given in the Rawlinson MS., which herein agrees with the Return made to Parliament (see before, p 17). This date, 1324, is probably an error of the transcriber ; the Letters Patent and License of Mortmain granted by Henry V. in 1418, cited above, speak of the Gild as "for thirty years past and more continually governed," &c., which points to 1385 as the true date. (See Madox, Firma Burgi, p. 24, ed. 1726.) The Gild of St. George grew into great power and importance, and close connection with the Corporation, as is shown by the "mediation" made by one "Judge Yelverton, betwixt the Mayre, Shreves, and Coalte of the Cite of eads of the Cathedral chirche, at the heie autere aforn the Trinite on the south side, in Norwich. Qwich Fraternite and gylde was in party deseuerd be constitucions and ordenaunces mad withinne the forseide Cite. Qwerfore that seving, diverse persones wel willid and stired to be deuccioune of be glorious martyr forseyd, sogthen and pursueden with grete* labour and besines to the king for grace to continue hir deuocion, and to have the name of Fraternite and Gilde of bretheren and susteren of Seynt George for hem and her successours euermore with-oute ende to enduren. Qwerfore gracious King Herry the Vte after the conquest, the zere of his regne the vte,-considering to the good wil and deuocion of the forseide, and for augmentacion of more deuocion of his peple to god, and to all his holy, and to the glorious martyr Seynt Georg, and to the fraternite and Gylde,hat; graunted, radefied, and be his letteres patent confermed, bat the forseid fraternite and Gylde of bretheren and susteren pat arn and schul ben, to ben a perpetuale communite fro this time forthward euerelastyng with outen ende, and to have and to bere the name of Fraternite and gylde of Seynt George in Norwich with-oute ende.

The bretheren got their constitution confirmed by Letter : patent from King Henry V., A.D. 1418.

Norwyche" and the Aldermen and bretheren of the Gild, in 1452 (printed in the same Transactions), as well as by some of their ordinances (see after, p. 452). The list of names at the end is interesting for the testimony it affords of the sort of persons who joined the Gild, -men of rank, both lay and ecclesiastical, being enrolled among them, and evidently having served in its offices,-and of the large number these reached. Blomefield, who gives a long account of the Gild, with several curious inventories, in his History of Norfolk (1745), vol. ii., mentions the names of many famous persons who belonged to it in different years, among which in 1495 is that of Sir John Paston. Many rolls of accounts and books of the Gild are still extant in the archives of the Corporation of Norwich, reaching back as far as the reigns of Henry V. and Henry VI., and the gleanings from these that have been printed show its wealth, and the rich stores of goods and jewels used in the grand and stately pageants or "riding" of the brotherhood on St. George's day. One among the relics existing when Blomefield wrote was an ancient sword of wood which had "the dragons head carved at top, sent by King Henry V.," which used to be carried before the Alderman of the Gild and the Mayor of Norwich as the ex-Alderman (vol. ii. p. 894). [L. T. S.] * This word is not clear, but stands thus in Mackarell's MS. See last note.

Also oure gracious King hat; graunted of hes speciale grace Recital of the bat the bretheren and susteren forseide and her successoures Letters patent. zerely chese on Alderman and Maistres, for to make and ordeyne honest and resonable ordinacions and constitucions, qwicheuer [hem] thinketh most best and expedient for gouernaunce of the Fraternite and Gylde.

Also to ben cladde in o sute of clothyngge. And to kepe hir fest in competent place be the alderman and maistres assigned. And also for to have a comoun seale.

Also the King of his most plenteuous grace hat; graunted and leue zeuen for him and his eires, to the Alderman bretheren and susteren and to successours of the fraternite and Gylde, that thei mown purchace and hold to hem and here successours londes rentis and seruises within the Cite forseyd to the value of xli. zerely, for the sustentacion of prestes to sing and preie zerely in the chirche forseid for the state of the king and bretheren and susteren qwil thei arn liuyng, and for the soules of the King, his progenitors, and the bretheren and susteren, and alle cristene, and for sustentacion of the fraternite and Gylde forsevd; and othere dedes and charges of pite and elmesse, be the ordenauns of the Aldirman, maistr[es], bretheren and susteren therof mad. And for as mikil as ye King hat; graunted and leue 30uen to the Fraternite and Gylde forseid to make ordenauns most leful and expedient to the Fraternite and Gylde forseid within hemsel[ue], it is ordeyned be the comoun assent of be fraternite, bat alle the The Feast of bretheren and susteren of the Fraternite schullen halwen the day be kept on that of Seynt George zerely, on qwat day so it be-falle zerely vp.

St. George shall

Also thei schul kepe her diuine seruise of bothe euensonges and messe in the cathedral chirche forseid, and othere obsaruaunces of the fraternite ordeyned.

Outaken bat the day of Seynt George falle thre dayes aforn If St. George's Esterne day, or thre dayes after; and if it so befalle bat the three days before day of Seynt George falle on ony of the seuene dayes forseid, the the officers of the Gild shall appoint aldirman and be maistres, be assent of be bretheren ordeyned for a day. the assemble of xxiiii for bat zere, schul ordeyne and prefixe a day. On qwich day alle the bretheren and susteren schul kepen dav fall within or after Easter, alle her observaunces of her deuyne servise aforn reherced, and kepe her ridyng, and hauen and weren her clothyng, and holden her feste.

Livery of the bretheren.

Also it is ordeyned bat alle the bretheren schul be cladde in swte of gownes o zere and another zere in o swte of hodes. Qwich gownes and hodes every brother schal kepe honestly, in the worschipe of Seynt George and of the cumpane, tweye zere.

Old liveries must neither be given nor sold unless the colour of the cloth is changed.

And if it like him no lengger to were it, quat brother so he be, bat he neither zeue ne selle it to no manere of persone, neither with-in the Cite ne with-oute, but if he chaunge or do chaunge be cloth of colour. And quat brother bat is founde with this defaute, he schal pay for a goune vjs. viijd., and for an hood iijs. iiijd.

Also it is ordeyned bat no brother beye ne were no manere of clothing as for the liuere of Seynt George, but of tho men qwiche arn ordeyned and mad beyeres of be clothyng be be comoun assent of the fraternite for pat zere, outake pat othere ordenauns

The liveries must be bought of the men appointed to sell them.

Livery of the sistren.

Offerings at mass.

Penalty for absence from mass.

be mad be the Alderman and maistres, pena xld. Also it is ordeyned bat every suster of the fraternite and Gilde schul ben cladde in o Swte of hodes, that is for to seve reed, pena xxd.

Also pat every brother and suster schal ben at forseyd messe fro the beginnyng vn-to the ende, and offre half-a-peny in be worschip of be Trinite and of the glorious martyr Seynt George.*

And qwat brother or suster bat absente hem in time of Messe with-oute speciale leue of the aldirman, he schal paye to be fraternite for bat defaute.*

Meeting before St George's day to choose officers, and arrange the procession and business of the day

Also it is ordeyned bat the alderman and maistres schul assigne a day for asemble, beforn be day of Seynt George, on qwiche day thoo xxiiij or the more part of hem schul chesen her George, and a man to bere his swerd and be his keruere tofore him. And a man to bere be banere of Seynt George, and tweye men to bere be wax, or do beren with honest persones, and to go

* In the MS, the pen has been struck twice across through the six lines in which these two articles are written.

with hem. And quat man denye or forsake the offys he is chose to with-oute resonable excusacoun, he schal pay pena, vjs viijd.

And at that assemble the Aldirman and maistres schul make relacion and knowyng at qwat place the bretheren schul gadre for her ridyng.

And at quat place the bretheren and sustren shul fetten her wax.

And in qwat place thei schul ete togidre, pena ...

Also it is ordeyned on the day of Seynt George, or elles Every brother is another day assigned as it is beforn reherced, bat every brother at the time and schal be in his liuere for that zere on hors-bac at certeyn place, be oure and time assigned and ordeyned be the aldirman, maistres, and be the consent of the xxiiij chosen for be semble, pena xl[d].

to be on horseback place appointed.

Also quan be ridyng is don bat every brober and sister be Wax tapers for he church. redy at place beforn assigned, at fettyng and bering of her wax and offren it vp at the heye autere of the chirche forseyd, in worschepe of the Trinite, oure lady, and of the glorious martyr Seynt George, ther to brenne, pena ...

Also bat every brother and suster schal be at Messe fro the Offerings at the beginnyng vn-to be endyng, and offre half-a-peny in be worschip of the Trinite and the glorious martyr Seynt George. And quat brother or suster bat absente him in be time of Messe withoute speciale leue of be Aldirman, he schal paye to the Fraternite ijs.

Also it is ordeyned qwan the messe is seid and ended, alle the Afterwards all are bretheren and sustren schul honestly gon to her mete, to place assigned be the aldirman and be maistres, and there for to ete togidre, euery brother and sister payng for her mete, wax, and minstrales, x[d]. And quat brother or sister absente hem fro her messe and mete, if thei be with-in xij mile in ony quarter about norwich, thei.... vp peyne ij li. wax.

o feast together.

Also if ony brother or sister be visited with sekenes or ony sick bretheren other laweful lettyng, he schal sende for his mete if he wil, and have their meat if pay as another brother doth. And if thei wil not come ne sende as is reherced, he schal his dute pay with-out ony excusacion, if he be of power.

they send for it.

Dwellers without the city must pay their duties even if they cannot come.

Also quat brother or sister dwelle with-out be Cite of Norwich xij mile or more, and may nogth come to messe and mete, he schal paye for wax and minstrales vjd. And but if he sende the forseide vid. and his dute, and for his dede dayes of bat zere, to be alderman and maistres of the feste with-in fourtene dayes after be day of Seynt George, he schal pay [xld.]

None are to be insubordinate, or to interfere on the feast day.

Prayers for the king, the fraternity, and all Christians, maistri, ne for to medle on the day of the feste, but if he be assigned be the aldirman and maistres, vp the peyne of vis. viijd. Also it is ordeyned bat every brother and suster schal on be festial day after mete ben at euesong, and preye for the helthe

Also hat no brother presume ne take vpon him to make no and good prosperite of the Kyng and bretheren and sustren of the fraternite and alle trewe cristene.

A Dirge service.

And after pat, to heren Dirige preyng for the soules of pe progenitours of the Kyng, and for the soules of the bretheren and sisteren of the Fraternite; and bat no brother ne suster absent hem fro this diuine seruise vp peyne iij li. wax.

Mass of Requiem.

Also it is ordeyned, bat on the next day after be day of Seynt George, bat every broker and suster of the fraternite forseid schal come to be chirche forseid be viij of the clok, bat is for to seve be oure ladies belle, there for to here a messe of Requiem preyng for the soules of alle the bretheren and susteren and for alle cristene. And at pat messe every brother and suster schal offre a ferthing; and quat brother or suster be absent fro this messe schal pay iij li. wax.

Choice of officers for the next year.

Also it is ordeyned qwan be messe of Requiem is seyd, er than be bretheren and sustren gon to mete, than schal be aldirman and maistres namen xij persones of be fraternite whiche haue ben maistres and bore charge and cost, for to chese and name on aldirman and tweye maistres for the zere folwyng. And bat no brother presume to take vp-on him in no manere wise for to lette, stourbe, ne geynseye, bat elleccioun so mad be be aldirman and the maistres forseyd, vp peyne of xxs.

There shall be two officers choser to make the feast and buy the liveries.

Also it is ordeyned for more ese and profyt to the fraternite, bat the aldirman and be maistres so chosen onewe, schul chesen tweye persones of the fraternite to ben felas with hem, for to make be feste and beye the clothyng.* And bat Aldirman so chosen refuse be office he is chose to, schal paye to be Fraternite xls. And a maister, xxvjs. viijd., whiche schal be rered be be Aldirman and surueours being be zer before.

Ouermore the Aldirman and the foure so chosen schul namen There shall be 24 xxiiij persones off the Fraternite qwiche schul standen for be mon council of the sembles the 3er folwyng, of whiche xxiiij vj schal be for be attendauntes to be aldirman, and the vj and xviij schal ben for be hool semble; whiche xxiiij schul ben of hem bat haue ben maistres beforn.[†]

Also the Aldirman and the foure maistres so cnosen onewe Two beadles. schul namen a bedel for bat same zeere. And the elleccioun anoper.[‡]

And quan the Aldirman sent oute his Bedel for to warne and The bretheren haue assemble of bretheren, but be more part of the xxiiij aforn the summons of reherced come at the sendyng of the Aldirman, euery brother of the bat ben absent schal pay ij li. wax. And euere othere not in be eleccioun xal pay j li. wax.¶

the Alderman.

shall have a

Also it is ordeyned pat the xxiiij, or be more part of be for- The Alderman seide, shul namen o persone of the xxiiij or ellis another of the deputy in case of Fraternite, qwich hem thenketh most able, for to be a depute to the Aldirman and to ben of conseile with him. For as mikil it falle so bat the Aldirman were visited with sekenes, ocupied, or letted be ony leful cause, than schal bat persone so named be be xxiiij forseide stonde as Aldirman. And qwan time is to send be Bedel to somoun the bretheren and susteren for ony cause pat is leful nedeful and spedeful to the fraternite, pat every brother and suster schal be obedient to him at that time, lyk as he shuld be to be aldirman if he were present, vp be peyne vjs. viijd.

Also it is ordeyned bat every Aldirman schal be redy with Annual accounts.

* The words "and beye the clothyng" are crossed through.

+ Between this article and the next occur a few Latin words, --- " nota de alderm eligend ne defamet, &c."

‡ After this occurs another Latin "nota, vt eligantur constitut' semper in die ellect, &c. pena x. . . ."

¶ Here is another Latin "nota"

29

of expenditure and goods of the Gild to be given by the Alderman.

his acomptes with inne xxj dayes after be day of Sevnt George, to zif a trewe and du rekkenyng to be newe Aldirman, maistres, and to be bretheren of be fraternite, bat is for to seve of alle resceptes and paymentes qwiche he hat; rescepted and payed in the zere aforn; and for to deliuere, be bille endented, to the newe Aldirman and maistres, alle manere of ornemens and other diverse nescesaries to the fraternite longynge, vp the peyne of xls.*

The orders of the Alderman and Masters are to be obeved.

Also bat every brother and suster be governed and reuled be the Aldirman and maistres in ridyngge, and alle othere communicacouns leful nedeful and spedeful for be Fraternite. And quat brother or suster wil nogth obeye to be Aldirmans commandement as is forseid, he schal pay vjs. viijd.

Entry of new bretheren and sisteren.

Also it is ordeyned bat be Aldirman schal not resceyue ne make no brother ne suster with-out consent of be xxiiij for be assemble, er be more part of hem, and bat euery man so resceyued, be be alderman, maistres, and be the forseide xxiiij persones, shal pay for his entre vis. viijd., and a womman iijs. iiijd., for whiche entre euery brother and suster schal fynde sufficiaunt surete to be payd in the fest of Michelmasse next folwynge.

There shall be no quarrelling on the feast day.

Also hat no brother ne suster of he Fraternite forseid mak no debate, on with another, on be day of be feste and ridyngge, ne in no time of ridyngge qwan thei falle, pena xxs.

And pat no brother ne suster in no manere wise reuile, despise, ne defame on anoper, qwerthorw pat ony sclaundre, heuines, or hindring migth falle or come to the fraternite forseid, vp peyne xxs.t

In case of quarrel the matter shall be laid before the Alderman and Masters.

Also it is ordeyned qwat brother or sister fele hem agreued in ony manere of cause on with another, bat is to seve of be Fraternite, thei schal compleyne hem to be aldirman and the maistres of her causes and greuaunces, or thei pursue. And than schal the Aldirman and the maistres bisie hem in as moche as in hem es with-in the xv dayes after bat the compleynt is mad, to here and

* The copyist at first wrote xxs., which has been crossed out, and xls. substituted.

+ Here vjs. viijd. was first written, then altered to xxs.

examine bothe parties, and to sette hem in pes and reste if thei mown be ony wise.

And if the aldirman and maistres may nogth bring hem to without whose consent the parties onehede and acord with-in be time forseyd, than be consent of may not go to law. the Aldirman and be maistres they mown sue be comoun lawe : and elles nowght.

And qwat broker or sister bat is founde rebelle and contrarious ageyn this ordenauns, he schal pay xls.

And ouermore if the Aldirman and maistres be necligent and Penalty on the bisie hem nogth for to bring hem to acord as is seyd, the Aldirin their duty man schal pay to be Fraternite xls, and the Maistres euery of herein. hem xs.

Also it is ordeyned that be Aldirman and maistres schul zif The livery cannot be purchased by no clothyng to no persone in moryng the pris of the liuere, with- offering a higher price, without the oute consent of the xxiiij chose for the assemble for pat zere, or consent of the 24. be more part of hem, pena xxs.

Also it is ordeyned qwat brother or sister of the fraternite Help to poor pretheren. falle in pouerte be the wil of crist, he schal be releued and hulpen be the bretheren and sustren of the Fraternite with viijd. in be woke.

To qwiche releayng and helpe every brother and sister schal pay a ferthing in the woke to the officeres therfore assigned.

And if more be resceyued of the bretheren and sustren of the Fraternite, it schal be disposed for be profyt of the Fraternite and Gylde forseyd.

Also it is ordeyned quan ony broper or suster deve, the aldir- Burial services for man schal send his bedel to zif warnyng to alle bretheren and sustren of be day of Sepulture, bat every brother and sister schal be at Dirige in his liuere, old or newe, and principaly with her hodes, there for to preye for the soules of alle the bretheren and sustren of be Fraternite, and alle Cristene; and qwat brother or sister be abssent and wil not come to bat Dirige, he schal pay i li. wax, with-oute resonable excusacoun to be Aldirman and his felawes.

Also bat every brother and suster schal on the morwe next Offerings for the folwyng ben at Messe, at qwiche messe euery brother and suster the dead bretheren and sisteren.

schal offren a ferthing, and j if a ferthing to elmesse and a peny for a messe, qwich messe peny and ferthing schal be resceyued be the colictour for the *j*ere chosen. And of the self siluer the dede schal haue tweye Candelis peis and viij li. wax, and iiij torches brennyng in time of Dirige and messe. And pat no brother ne suster absente hem fro this messe fro beginnyng vn-to the ende, with-oute speciale leue of the Aldirman, vp peyne j li. wax.

APPENDIX L.

Bretheren not willing to serve offices to pay a fine,

Also it is ordeyned pat every man willyng to be brother of this Fraternite and Gylde, and desiryng to be discharged of every manere of offys longgyng to be Fraternite and Gylde, he schal pay for his entre xls., or xxvjs. viijd., or at leste xxs.; and payng 3erly be deute of elmes and obites and othere costes, as another brother doth.

Members of other companies seeking entrance into this Gild must pay certain fees,

Also it [is] ordeyned þat alle men þat arn to ben resceiued in to this Fraternite and Gylde, and ben liche in time comyng to ben drawen vn-to þe estat of Meyr, schreue, er Aldirman of þe Cite of norwich,—or elles arn in othere cumpanyes and clothyngge and schul nogth vsen ne weren gownes and hodes of þe liuere of Seynt George, ne riden ne gon in þe liuere of Seynt George, as it is beforn seyd, as the more part of the bretheren vsen and don,—iche persone so resceiued schal pay for his entres xls., ij marcas, or xxs. at leste, as it may ben acorded with þe gouernours for þe tyme being. And fynde surete for his entre, or ellis nogth to ben resceiued.*

Fees to be paid by new comers into the Gild who are willing to serve offices. Also bat eche man bat schal be resceiued into be seyd Fraternite, and is lyk to bere Alle offices and charges, schal paye for his entres vjs. viijd., as other men bat haue born charges, and fynd surete for the seyd entres. And euery womman bat schal ben resceiued for a suster schal pay for hir entres xld., and fynde surete for be seyd entres.

* Between this and the next article was a paragraph in Latin of which only the following words are legible :--

Fraternitať recept feret unus termiñ v annorum &c. dicť Frať recipienď in registro fuerit recept' et ingress' suos persoluiss', &c.

Johannes, Archiepiscopus Smerniencis. Henricus, Episcopus Norwicensis. Johannes Wakeryng, Episcopus Norwicensis. Thomas Ringnan, Episcopus. Thomas Colby, Episcopus. Comes Suffolch. Monsieur Sir de Morlee. Rogerus Boys, Chiualier. Willelmus Calthorp, Chivalier. Thomas Gerbrigg, Miles. Robertus Carbonelle, Chivalier. Willelmus Phillip, Chivalier. Johannes Fastholff, Chivalier, vxor. Henricus Englose, Chivalier. Brianus de Stapiltoun, Chiualier, vxor eius. Thomas Kerdestoun, Chivalier. Simon Felbrigge, Chiualier, et vxor. Willelmus Pastoun. Willelmus Sheltoun. Rogerus Felbrigge. Johannus Roys. Magister Willelmus Bernham. Dominus Rogerus Prat, Magister Sancti Egidii in 1 Willelmus appilzerd, Maior. Thomas Wetherby, Maior, Margareta vxor eius. Ricardus purdanus, Maior. Willelmus Sedeman, Maior. Robertus Baxter, Maior. Thomas Yngham, Maior. Johannes Cambrigge, Maior. Robertus Chapeleyn, Maior. Bais a Monesle, Maior. Johannes Dominus Johannes Brown. Dominus Rogerus Wissyngcete. Dominus Henricus Wiltoun, Katerina soror eius.

Names of the bretheren and sistren of the Gild,

I (sfc.)

APPENDIX I.

Dominus Johannes Kentyng. Dominus Johannes Carmer. Dominus Thomas Sharyngtoun. Dominus Johannes Whyt. Dominus Johannes Keteryngham. Dominus Nicholas noth, Rector de tasburgh. Dominus Robertus, Rector Julianis. Dominus Thomas Bladsmyth. Dominus Willelmus Crask. Dominus Johannes Catrap. Dominus, Rector Spikesworth. Magister hospitij Sancti Egidij et Rector de Erpyngham. Thomas Prat, Rector Cloniencis., Rector de Burneham. Magister Thomas Sharyngton. Magister Johannes Thorph. Frater Willelmus Gedeneye. Frater Adam Holibesse. Frater Thomas leek. Frater Thomas Besthorpe. Thomas Danyel. Thomas Wetherby.* Johannes Aldirforde. Ricardus purdaune.* Johannes Thorneham. Robertus Randes, Alicia vxor eius. Magister Johannes Exestre, Isabella vxor eius ; sub condicione que sequitur, videlicet quod Idem Johannes Excestre nunquam debet invitus onerari cum aliquo officio dicte gilde siue fraternitatis nisi si et quatenus idem Johannes hoc consentire Putens erant in d Reginald Berle, Aldremannus. Johannes Mayor. Nicholaus Wylde. Willelmus Grey, vxor eius.

* These names are all crossed through in the MS.

Stephanus Furbour, vxor eius. Reginaldus Berle, Margareta vxor eius. Clemens Rasch. Augustinus Bangge, Emma vxor eius. Rogerus Bollowe. Johannes Erleham, Margareta vxor eius. Willelmus vice, Bladsmyth, vxor eius. Robertus Lawnde. Johannes Hawkes, vxor eius Emma. Johannes Bilagh, vxor eius Margareta. Petrus Brasiere. Edwardus Glouere, vxor eius. Galfredus Glouere, vxor eius. Johannes Pollovne. Johannes Talbot. Johannes May, vxor.† Johannes Roo. Johannes Cosseye, vxor eius. Willelmus Tauerham. Johannes Estan, vxor eius. Thomas Stiward de Swofham. Henricus Waltham, vxor eius. Robertus Heylot.* Johannes Plomere, vxor eius. Walterus Comerton. Johannes Wolflete, mater eius Ricardus Talbote. lucia.t Reginaldus Brisyngham. Jacobus patynmakere, Izabella Henricus Sileham. vxor eius.† Galfredus Candelyr, vxor. Stephanus Frengge. Willelmus Shipman, vxor eius. Thomas Snow. Rogerus Baxter, vxor eius. Thomas Diggard. Radulphus Wether, vxor eius.† Gile Sporiere. Ricardus Qwilter. Stephanus Goldsmyth, Juliana Claricia Parham. vxor eius.† Simon Sadelere, vxor eius.† Johannes Randis. Thomas Sweyn, Redere. Bartholomeus Dowe, vxor eius. Johannes Rynggere. Robertus Skeppere, vxor.† Adam Nerbourgh. Johannes Michil, vxor.† Willelmus Spence. Johannes Milome, Margareta vxor eius. Galfredus Shedere.

* These names are all crossed through in the MS.

+ In each of these cases, 'vxor" or "vxor eius," and her name. is crossed out, but not the name of the husband.

‡ "Mater eius lucia" is crossed out in the MS

D 1 . a. • .

Willelmus longzerd.	Robertus Stristreme.
Robertus Broun, Redere, vxor	Rogerus Split.
eius.	Walt erus Orlogyr.
Robertus Clerkwrigth.	Nicholaus Botild.
Robertus Rose, Cecilia vxor	Robertus lymbrenid.
eius.	Galfredus Bedweuere.
Beatrix Baxter.	Willelmus Bradle, vxor eius.
Elena Reymerstone.*	Ricardus Furbour, vxor eius.
Izabella Goldbeter.	Johannes Bennes, vxor eius.
Johanna Arych.	Johannes Baddyng.
Johannes Frost.	Johannes Marwe.
Johannes Avdrie.	Ricardus hert.
Willelmus Borelle.	Robertus at-wode, wrigth.
Johannes Snape, Agneta vxor	Thomas Woilound.
eius.	Johannes Smyth, Rafman.
Johannes Barsham.	Johannes Bolley.
Hugo Topcroft.	Johannes Wiseman.
Johannes Bokisworth e.	Willelmus Steyngate.
Johannes Kircroft.	Robertus Hardy.
Nicholaus Calwe.	Nicholaus lyngcolne.
Nicholaus Wylde.	Thomas Lardenere, Johanna
Willelmus Estan.	vxor cius.
Robertus Fader, Margareta	Robertus Heigham.
vxor eius.	Willelmus Bikeleswade, Agneta
Thomas Paryng.	vxor eius.
Willelmus Cuttyng.	Johannes Messagyr.
Petrus Hood.	Willelmus Glouere, Sara eius
Edwardus Pruet.	vxor.
Johannes Pruet.	George Brian.
Walterus Wylde.	Johannes Godyng.
Robertus Horsele.	Willelmus hony.
Ricardus Ristoun.	Simon Babourgh.*
Ricardus Quarelle.	Johannes Aleyn, fischman.
Willelmus Alblaster.	Robertus Grey, taliour.

* These names are crossed through in the MS.

Johannes Bladsmyth # Qwer-Johanne perle. Johannes qwyt, Fischman. delyn. Henricus Bangge. Gargraue.* Willelmus Randolf. Johannes Frost de heilesdon. Willelmus Waschbourne, vxor Martinus Wode de Cosseye. eius.† Clemens Newgate. Andreas Boys. Thomas potter de Walsham. Johannes Matte. Sweteale. Nicholaus Huluerwode. Rogerus Burre. Johannes Sexteyn, Cordema-Andreas lynes. Simon Corseye de vpton. kere. Ricardus stille, Isabella vxor Aleyn Benselyn. eius. Johannes Puttok et vxor. Ricardus Pottere. Walterus Colman. Thomas Ray. Johannes Kirkman, sancte fidis. Johannes Sweynesthorpe, Ma-Johannes Vlf. tilda vxor eius. Johannes Here. Ricardus Wrigth, Fischman. Ricardus Felmygham. Ricardus parkere, Wrigth. Johannes Walklate de Caustone. Johannes Storme. Johannes Fouledone. Robertus Selid. Johannes Ketone. Willelmus Seelde, vxor eius. Johannes Cattone, Bochere. Nicholaus Waterman. Johannes Stoneham. Johannes hamund de Estbra-Thomas Carre. denham. Johannes Kempe de Wymed-Johannes Bernard de Becles. ham. Willelmus Fox. Johannes at Merre.* Willelmus loue, sub condicione Johannes Colman, Taliour. quod non portabit officium. Rogerus Dousyng. Robertus Grey, peyntour, vxor Johannes Clerk de Caustone. eius. Ricardus Bret, Turnour, de Johannes Wike. Attilburgh.

* These names are crossed through in the MS.

+ "vxor eius" is crossed out in the MS.

‡ This name "Bladsmyth" appears to have been written by mistake, us it is crossed out.

Thomas Barbour de Swoffham.	Johannes Aldirforde.*	Thomas † Scarle.	Morise Botelyr.
Willelmus Arnald de Cromere.	Thomas Cleter.	Nicholaus fitzsimond.	Rogerus Taliour.
Edwardus Grene.*	Dominus Henricus Bettes.	Henricus Morgon.	Willelmus Coke, Carpentere.
Johannes Collis de Eton.	Johannes Houlote, Rector om-	Robertus Hawys.	Johannes lawne.
Thomas Collis de Benette.	nium sanctorum.	Edmundus Wichinggham.	Johannes Misseldene.
Johannes Scot.	Magister Ricardus Dogget.	Robertus Chapeleyn.*	Johannes Danyel, glouere, vxor
Rogerus Scot.	Dominus Rogerus Shreue.	Petrus Brasiere.*	eius.
Edwardus Sandewich le grene.	Robertus Heylot.	Johannes Bacon.	Robertus Smyth, Raffman.
Willelmus Malle.	Johannes Heigham.	Willelmus Billyngforthe.	Thomas Dilham.
Willelmus Benigth	Johannes Howard, vxor.	Johannes Wetherby.	Thomas May, Fresere .
Johannes Benygth Stratres.	Johannes Dekene de Salle.	Ricardus Wetherby.	Richere Stuteville.
Johannes Benigth	Johannes Arnald Senior.	Walterus Wetherby.	Rogerus Botelyr.
Simon Ropere de Takeleston.	Thomas Bokenham.	Johannes Goldbeter.	Johannes Gladman.
Bartholomeus Drury.	Thomas Vssyere.	Ricardus Davy, vxor eius.	Johannes Flye.
Ricardus appilton, vxor eius.	Nicholaus Walleys.	Edwardus Hewe.	Johannes norwich.
Johannes Nichol.	Johannes Preston.	Henricus Riche.	Willelmus Davy.
Willelmus Thirstan.	Johannes Bray.	Thomas ydessone de Cleye.	Edwardus Risyng.
Robertus Candelyr, bochere.	Johannes Gegge, et vxor eius.	Leonardus Claxtan.	Thomas Silueren.
Robertus Peye.	Robertus Crowe.	Edwardus Billyngforde.*	Willelmus Marchale.
Johannes Whityng.	Robertus Joite, Alicia vxor	Johannes Bacon.*	Willelmus Brannyng.
Willelmus Shirwyn.	eius.	Thomas Faconere.	Johannes Cartere.
Ricardus Rogere.	Johannes Cosyn.	Johannes Gedeneye, Izabella	Johannes Busch.
Willelmus poyntmaker.	Nicholaus Mannyng, Gaylere,	vxor eius.	Johannes Stratton.
Robertus Dauy.	vxor eius.	Johannes Geruoyse.	Johannes Cole de Kesewike.
Ricardus louegald.	Johannes Kirkeby, Bale de	Willelmus Mirrigoo.	Willelmus Treweloue.
Willelmus peuterere.	Carrowe.	Johannes Ferrour.	Johannes Man.
Johannes colman, wrigth.	Johannes Mercaunt.	Johannes Alleynsone, Coupere.	Johannes Vice.
Johannes Erleham, Merchaunt.	Johannes Erleham.	Bartholomeus Hemmesby.	Margeria Mayn.
Elena Smyth.	Willelmus Bigot.	Robertus Swan.	Thomas Catworthe.
Johanna de thorpe.	Bartholomeus Drury.	Ricardus Berre.	Thomas Grafton.
Beatrix Baxter.*	Johannes Blibourgh, Capel-	Johannes Sutbury.	Johannes Sipatre.
Margareta Somherde.	lanus.	Johannes Edinbourgh, vxor.	Willelmus Aschwelle.
Thomas Baldok.	Ricardus Bany.	Johannes Yutte.	Robertus Roys.*
Robertus Baxter, Merchaunt.	Johannes Arnald Junior.		1 4 - MO
Henricus Sturmere.	Bartholomeus Braun.	* These names are crossed throug + This name "Thomas" has be	the MS. een altered to "Robertus," in a later
* (11)		hand	in a loop in a loop in a loop hand.

* These names are crossed through in the MS.

GILD OF ST. GEORGE, NORWICH.

Johannes Raffman.
Henricus Heddessone, Capellanus.
Thomas Dereham.
Johannes Sextene.
Thomas Haistone.
Nicholaus Tiptote.
Rogerus Warde, vxor eius.
Willelmus Tauernere.
Thomas Bisschop.
Johannes Spendeloue.

Johannes Grene. Johannes Malthous. Willelmus Waltham. Petrus Kindylle. Petrus Frostelle. Johannes Thurton, Candelere. Johannes Tubbyng. Johannes Derby, Bladsmyth. Johannes Hardele, Fremason. Alicia Feith.

APPENDIX II.

GRAMMATICAL NOTES.

By RICHARD MORRIS.

The Language of the East-Midland Gilds.

THE verbal inflections (present tense indicative) in the Gilds of Norwich, Lynn, Stamford, Cambridge, and London, are those that clearly point to an East-Midland dialect (see Preface to Early English Allit. Poems, Genesis and Exodus, &c.).

2nd pers sing. in -est (Northern and West-Midland -es).

3rd pers. sing. in -eth (Northern and West-Midland -es).

ist, 2nd, and 3rd pers. pl. in -en (of very rare occurrence in Northern dialect).

The Gilds of Lynn are slightly more Northern than those of Norwich, &c., as is seen by the occasional use of the 3rd person singular in es (or -etz).

The employment of qw for wh or hw (as qwat for what) has already been pointed out by me as an instance of Northern usage prevailing in East- and West-Midland dialects, but which never found its way into the Southern dialects.

The London Gilds (as well as the Cambridge ones) contain no instances of qw for wh, and no participles in -end or -and. It may be stated once for all that the Gilds of London are a little more modern in form than those of Norwich, &c., and there is an absence too of those Northern peculiarities which occasionally occur in the other Midland Gilds. Chaucer's dialect, which is East-Midland, was that of the metropolis, and, as Garnett has pointed out, presents an unmistakable likeness to the older East-Midland records; Gower's English has a few more strongly marked East-Midlandisms, such as participles in -end, than Chaucer, which led Garnett to think the Confessio Amantis was a little more Northern than the best MSS. of the Canterbury Tales.

The infinitive mood in the Norwich, &c. Gilds ends in -en or -e, though there is an occasional loss of the inflexion.

The present participle terminates in -inge (pp. 14, 18, 33, 37, &c.), -end (pp. 30, 33, 37), or -and (pp. 15, 16, 22, 25). Capgrave, an East-Midland writer, employs -and.

Passive participles of strong verbs end in -en, the n being but seldom dropped.

The prefix i- or y- is of rare occurrence. Arn (aren) occurs as well as ben in Norwich and Lynn Gilds.

Schun (pp. 67, 101, 109), is probably written for schūn, i.e. schullen or schuln (see Mr. Smith's note, p. 109).

Es = is, and sal = shall (Northern forms), occur in the Wygnale and Cranborne Gilds.

Gare (Northern) is found in Cranborne Gild.

In Nouns we find a few plurals in -n (unknown to the Northern dialect), as bretheren and sisteren, but the ordinary plural ending is -es (or -is). The old genitive plural -ene is of rare occurrence; it appears under the form -yn in Halwyn, p. 14.

In ADJECTIVES the grammatical use of the final e seems to have been for the most part disregarded.

The old adjectival suffix -lic is softened down to -lich (and the -lice of adverbs to -liche). The Lynn Gilds present occasional instances of the more Northern -lyke, as well as the use of the Northern ilk, for ech, &c., each, &c. (Wygnale has kirke where the other Gilds read chirche).

The PRONOUNS are those we find in all East-Midland writers of the fourteenth century—thei = they; her, here=their; hem=them.

pam (a Northern form) occurs in Wygnale Gild.

per=their, occurs in Norwich Gild, p. 443, their, p. 444.

Hese=his (the reading of the Cambridge Chaucer MS. used by Mr. Furnivall in his Six-Text edition of Chaucer) occurs in the Cranborne Gild.

The Worcester Ordinances, which have a very modern form, present but little variation from the East-Midland dialect. In the older specimens of the dialect the Southern element was strongly marked, but in the Ordinances the Midland element predominates.

The prefix i- or y- is not lost in these Ordinances, as in the Northern dialects. (See pp. 395, 404.) No present participles in -end or -and are met with.

The pronominal forms are mixed, as ther and her (also hur, which may be compared with the old West-Midland hor), hem and them.

The Winchester Roll (pp. 349-363).

"The Old Usages of the Cite of Wynchester," though much more modern than the Avenbite of Inwyt, A. D. 1340, is somewhat more archaic than the English of the Midland and Northern districts written in the fourteenth century.

It is of course written in the Southern dialect (all the plurals of the present indicative ending always in -eth), but is not so strongly provincial as the Ayenbite. Though we have occasionally v for f, as $vy_3tyng = fighting$, we have not ; for s, as in the old Kentish speech ; e occasionally occurs, as in Kentish for i or u, as wheche for whiche, treweleche for treweliche, undurnemere for undernimere, onleche for onliche, meche for miche. belke for bilke.

The Winchester Roll has a simple vowel where the Old Kentish had a diphthong, thus chese and lese for chiese and liese, yseld for yseald, &c. Like the Ayenbite it keeps up old forms, as habbe, legge, bygge, &c., which are softened down in the Northern dialects to have, leye, beye, &c.

NOUNS.-Distinctions of the old genders and cases are not so strictly preserved as in the Ayenbite. A few plurals in -n occur, as shon = shoes, lapen = leapen = baskets ; hynen = servants.

We have a remnant of the old genitive plural -ene in halowene tyd, p. 351.

ADJECTIVES .- The distinction between the definite and indefinite form is still preserved.

The case inflections preserved by the Ayenbite are here entirely dropped.

The DEFINITE ARTICLE seems to be uninflected, as at present. Only one plural of this occurs, viz. thes.

PRONOUNS.-The first personal pronoun does not occur, but was probably ich; the dative hym seems to have altogether supplanted the accusative hine; hii - they, here = their, hem = them, as in most of the Southern dialects, but the broader forms of the Ayenbite, har = here, ham = them, do not occur in the Roll.

We have one instance of an oblique case of the relative, in pan, p. 357, a form very common in the Ayenbite.

VERBS. -- Infinitives in -y (-ye) are exceedingly common, as in all Southern dialects.

The gerundial or dative infinitive in the Ayenbite ends in -ne or -e, but in the Winchester Roll it terminates in -ynge, as in Trevisa; cf. to wetynge, p. 349. To don (p. 350) is the only gerundial infinitive in -n.

Passive particles retain the prefix y, as y-seyd, &c., but drop the n (in strong verbs) as in the Ayenbite, e.g. yswore = ysworen, &c.

Present participles end in -ynge (see comynge, p. 354), instead of -inde: folwande, on p. 360, is probably a blunder, as participles in ande are not found in any Southern dialect of the fourteenth century.

GLOSSARIAL INDEX.

alder, of all ("our alther liege Abell (1) v. act., to make able, to teach, or fit, 316, 319, 328; (2) able, fit, 317. A-berynge, bearing, behaviour, 381, 419. A-boffe, above, 314. Accompteraunts, debtors, 379. Acloth, grete = great clothing, i.e. of the highest official livery: meaning the upper council of the city, 372, 377, 386. Acombred, hindered, annoyed, 393. Acorden, to agree, reconcile, 55, 76, 101, 115, 280, 323. Aff = off, cutting off, separation, 351. Affur, to value at a certain rate, 379. (O.F. feur, price or rate, affeurer.) Affurers = afferors, officers appointed to fix the amount of amercements, &c., 373, 395. Aforn, before, 23, 30, 122. Alb, 233. Ale-conners, officers whose duty it was to taste and know that the ale was good, 382, 425. (A.S. cunnan, to know.) Alegge, A-leggy, allege, 362, 380. Alf, half, 81. Allmesse, alms, 7, 24, 31, 43, &c. Alosed, famed, reputed, 11. (See Loos.) Alowy, be allowed, 361. Also, as, 51, 278, 350. Alther, a remnant of the old genitive plural A.S. alra, O.E. alre, lord," our liege lord of all), 415, 416. A lyre, a kind of costly stuff, probably so named from Lyre, a town in Normandy, 415. "ij. peciæ de panno nigro de Lyre." -Rym. x. 391. And see Fenn's Paston Letters, ii. 257, letter lxxxii. Amendement, enriching, helping, 58, 60, 77, &c. Amendyd, enriched, 53. Amercie, Amercid, fined, 77, 83, 394. A-mercy, Mercy, amerciament, fine, 354, 355, 356. Amyce, one of the priest's vestments. 233. Amytt, admit, 328, 380. And, sometimes used for if, 44. (0. E. an = if.)Anientise, Anyntese, overcome, destroy, 6, 9, 416. (O.F. anienter, aneantir.) Anone, at once, immediately, 189. Anoyr, another, 119. A odyr, A ozere, another, 72, 79. Apaired, injured, 11. A-peripenseris, a pair of pincers or tongs, 320. Apertiliche, openly, 48. A-poun = upon, after, 313. Arraye, dress, 408. A-rered, raised, levied ("gaderynge shall be a-rered," i.e. rates shall be raised), 356, 379, 389. Arreragys, arrears, 371, 378, 379.

65.

359.)

353.

464

A-sely, to seal ("pelke pt shal	Ayent, Ayenste, against, 316, 384,
a-sely," those that shall seal),	405, 424.
360.	A-3e, A3en, again, 36, 357.
Askere. (See Axere.)	Azeins, Ageynz, against, 4, 21, 55,
As-kused, excused, 323.	81.
Askynd, ask, 51.	Azens, towards, 10.
A-spyze, look after, seek, spy out,	1130no, towards, 10.
357.	Bager = badger, a corn-factor or
Assaye, to try, 96.	bargainer, 424.
Assie = assize. (See A-syse).	Bakke = back, a waterside street
Assoyne, Assone = essoin, excuse	in Bristol, 425.
sent by the mouth of another for non-appearance when sum-	Ban, summons, 359. (A.S. ban-moned, 361.	nan, to command.)
Assyngnetz, assigneth, 36.	Bankers, coverings for benches, 233.
A-sygned, assigned, 54.	Baszelarde, a kind of dagger,
A-syse, Syse, Sise, Assie, = assize,	generally worn hung from the
of cloth, bread, or ale; a name	girdle, 427.
for the settled rules governing	Be als mekil, forasmuch, 45, 49.
the weight (or measure), quality,	Beddeste, bedstead, 327.
and price of those articles, 352,	Bedel, Beddelle, beadle, 35, 121, 145, 449. Podo marco d
354, 359, 371, 381, 424. Asythed, satisfied (aseth , satis-	Bede, prayer, 23, 36, 37, 76.
faction or amends for an injury),	Bedeman, priest whose duty it was
381.	to pray for the souls of the
Atent, intent, 74.	dead, 230.
Attachement the nutting a man'a	Beden, bid, 53.
Attachement, the putting a man's	Bederolle, list of those who are to body or goods into ward, 360,	be prayed for, 145.
373, 376, 391, 405.	Bed-mon = beadle, the man who Atte, according to, 3.	bids or summons, 395. (A.S.
Atte, at the, 80, 418.	biddan.)
Atturne, A-torne, Attourne, sub-	Begynnen, begin, 25.
stitute, proxy, 58, 62, 65, 71.	Behoufull, needful, 310.
(Mid-Lat. attornatus , one in the turn of another.)	Behough, behoof, 332, 333.
Auter Autiona alter z a a d	Beleue, belief, 23
Auter, Autiere, altar, 14, 23, 444.	Ben, Bene, Bien, Beth, Beb, is,
Avayle, profit, 378, 379, 389.	are, be, 4, 6, 20, 23, 27, 91,
Aventure, chance, hap, 20, 319.	248, 326, 331, 335, &c.
Avoyd, to drive away so as to	Beneth-forth, beneath, 373, 391.
leave a void, to leave empty,	(See Forth.)
to vacate, 398, 418.	Beryinge, burial, 26.
Avoydaunce, vacancy, emptiness,	Beryn, to bear, carry, 67, 350.
399. Awa to own on and	Beryne, to bury, 50.
Awe, to owe, 39, 318.	Beryng, behaviour, 3. (See A-Axen, Axken, to ask, 58, 84, 91,	beryng.)
94, 188.	Besaunt, a coin of uncertain value,
Axere, Axkere, Askere, = asker,	said to be worth two shillings, plaintiff, 361, 362, 363.	349.

GLOSSARIAL INDEX.

Besege, beseech, 110. "Broche wt a fote," a spike on Bet, better, 362. which to set a candle, 327. Beth. (See Ben.) Brotheredyis, brotherhoods, 327. Broyer, brother, 30, 54, 58, 62, Bewreys = bewrays, discovers, 58, &c. Biddin, pray, 37. Brugge, bridge, 374, 396. Burell, a kind of coarse or roughed Bien. (See Ben.) Bisett sett peale, an appointed up cloth, 350, 351. But, But if, unless, 5, 20, 54, peal, 290. (A. S. besettan.) Bisyness, business, affair, 76. 351, 446, &c. Bitte, a flagon, bottle, or butt, Bub, be, 354. probably in this case a leathern Byden, to abide, wait for, 31. bottle or bucket, 382. Bygge, to buy, 353, 354. Byggere, buyer, 355, 359. Bitters, bucket-carriers for fire, By-lyb, to happen, befall to, 350, 371, 382. (A. S. byt, a flagon.) Blake Monunday, Black Monday, 356, 360. (See Leip.) By-of-be, behoof, 354. or Easter Monday, 97. (See Byryid, buried, 68. Fordun's Scottiehronicon, ii. p. Bysyden, besides, 30. By-binne, within, 354, 355. Blyn, blind, 35. Borde, table, shop-board, 310, By-powyte, without, 349, 357, 359, 361, 362, 363. Borghmot, borough-mote or meeting, 350. Canne, knows, is able, 407. Borwe, Borowe, Boruh, (1) surety, Cant¹ cope = cantor cope, i.e. one (2) to borrow, 8, 11, 54, worn by a priest officiating in 59, 83, 362, &c. A Borwe is the choir at certain services, 233. the personal security, a Wed is Carnok, a measure of four bushels, or half a quarter, of corn, 426. the actual article given; "leve Cassed, quashed, 311. a wed," &c. p. 8. Borwys, Borus, sureties, 60, 63. Catel, Katel, = chattel, goods, moneys, funds, property, 20, Bot, Bote, = but, unless, 10, 26, 58, 70, 353, &c. 30, 31, 46, 53, 400, &c. Botellerie, butlery, 233. Certein of seluer, a sum of money, Botere, butter, 356. 8. 11. Botes, boots, 332. Certeyn of masses, a particular Botwes, a kind of long boot, or service of pravers, 278. (See Canon Rock's " Church of our leather covering, reaching high Fathers," vol. iii. p. 126.) up the leg, 332. Boube, booth, 355. Chaffare, chaffer, merchandise, Boxom, Buxum, obedient, lowly, 353, 357, 359, 382, 383, &c. Chaloun, a kind of blanket or meek. 10. bed-cloth, 350, 351, 352. Brandhirne, a flat iron plate for cooking, 233. Chalys, cup, 8. Brennande, Brennyng, burning, Champertye, a partnership or sharing in gains (legal), 400. 14, 17, 23, &c. Chaundeler, chandler, 18, 38. Breyeren, Breyern, bretheren, 55, Cheker, a checkered table or 58, 80, &c.

30

board upon which sums of Corporall or Corporas, cloth upon money were counted, 83. Cheker ("the old cheker and the new"), apparently a "checkroll" of the inhabitants, of which there were two, an old and a new, 406. Chepmen, Chapmen, mcrchants, traders, 357, 359. Chesen, to choose, 276, 280, 350. Chesible, 233. Chuged, judged, 322. Cladde, clothed, 31. Clene, entire, 46, 276. Cleped, called, named, 108, 275, Clepyn, Clepene, to call, summon, 62, 71, 276. Clereliche, clearly, 4. Cleym, claim, 16. Clotz, cloth, 36. Cloth-walk, to full cloth, 383. Clothe, 409. (See A-cloth.) Clobynge, clothing, livery, 313, 318, 400. (See A-cloth.) Clowted, mended, patched, 320. Coke, cook, 375, 405. Comenable somaunse, due summons, 349. Comend, coming, 53. Comenaunt, ordered, ordinance, 34, 36. Comenynge, communing, talking, 380. Commande, coming, 25. Commune, commonalty, 349, 350, 356 Comyn, Commen, to commune, to talk, 407, 425. Comyners, commoners (in this case members of the common council of the town), 372. Connyng, knowledge, skill, 319. Contekour, brawler, 4, 11. Corden, cordovan, a kind of leather, 358. $Cordynere_3 = cordwainers, shoe$ makers, 331.

which the sacred elements were placed on the altar, 233. (See Way's Promptorium, v. Corporasse.) Corsant, Corseynt, body or relic of a saint, 97, 188. Corveser, Corvyser, shoemaker, 371, 384. Couenable, fitting, 357. Counts, accounts, 35 Cowle, a kind of tub or large vessel, 371, 382. Cownand, ? = cowunand, covenant, 316. Cresset. a vessel for holding a light, 408. Cristen, Crystene, Christian, III, &c. Crouche, cross, 54, 83. Crowchemesse = cross-mass, crosstide, or roodmas, Rogation week, IIQ. Crykche, church, 93. Custil, a dagger or long knife, 427. Debet, Debyte, deputy, 312, 315. Deffe = deaf, stupid, 315. Delid, dealt, 38. Demanynge, dealing with, order, decision, 387. (See Demenaunt.) Demenaunt, trading, dealing, 393, 404. (O. F. demener, to deal with, handle, order.) Demened, Demeaned, ordered. dealt with, 395, 407. (See Demenaunt.) Dene, Den, Deen, a dean or chief officer, 48, 64, 69, 75, &c. Departyde, divided, 279. Der, Dere, dear, 58, 65, 69, &c. Deseuerd, dissevered, 444. Desse, dais, 327. Deuer, Devoir, duty, 5, 377. Deuouteliche, devoutly, 22. Deve, die; Devde, died, 362. Di. (dimidius), half, 58, 70. Diffuse, difficult, hard to be understoud, 400.

("male engyne" [legal], evil Digne, worthy, 20. Dirige, Diryggis, Dyryge, Deregy doing), 405 bis. Entervnge, burying, 31, 43. = dirge, funeral services, 4, 60, Entremet, meddle, 404. 64, 123, 145, 190, 326, &c. Disceuvel, deceived, 332. Entrit. enter, 36. Discomened, turned out of the Er, before, 353. Eschetour, 416. common council, 303 (see 304). Discouere = discover, disclose, Essoyne, essoin, 361. (See Assovne.) 387. Discuretz, discloseth, 55, 79, 98. Estat, Stat. (1) estate, property, 6. Discuse, disclose, 76. 9, 362, (2) rank, 4.52. Esterne, Estre, Easter, 35, 359. Dis-klandered, slandered, 323. Eten, Etyn, eat, 21, 31. Dispeyre, dilapidation, 397. Everich, Eueriche, Eueryche, Dispisantliche, contemptuously, angrily, despitefully, 80, 95. Eueri, Eueril, Euerilk, Euere-Dispyse, to be angry or spiteful, ilk, every, 6, 7, 26, 27, 30, 46, 87, 279, 315. 54, 56, &c. Distresse, Stresse, requirement, Exequises, burial services, 31, 74. compulsion, 321, 323, 361. Eyr, heir, 362. Don, do, to make or cause, 31, Eyr = eyre, Court of the Justices in Evre. 362. 35, 53, 55, 350. Eythere, Eyzer, each, 78, 81, 89. Doust, dust, 374, 396. Dowers = doughers (from dowe, dough), bakers, 335. Falshede on hand, 55, 81, 95. Duellen, dwell, 44. Falye, Fayle, Faylith, faileth, 30, Durre. door. 188. 54, 62, 65, &c. ffangyth, taketh, 313. Dwelle, remain, 56, 59, 81, &c. Dyhzeres, dyers, 359. Fare, journey, voyage, 56. Fastyngonge, Shrove-tide, the Dyker (of leather), a dicker=ten beginning of Lent. 69. skins, 384. ffathe, St. Faith, 75. Dystreyne, distrain, 362. Fawer, favour, 318. Fawty = faulty, wanting, 72. Egalle, equal, 401. Feeche, Feehe, fetch, 76, 355, 413, Eiver, Ever, Eythere, either, each, 59, 70, 89. 415. Fela, felawe, fellow, companion, Elde, old age, 6, 9. Elde=velde, vield, give, 316. 30, 37, 92, 448, 451. Eldernlyche, anciently, formerly, Felashyp, ffeleshipe, ffelascheppe, fellowship, 315, 317, 321, &c. 352. Elles, else, 8. Feld, field, 36. Elmesse, alms, 38, 452, &c. Felwet, velvet, 415. Empled, sued, 360. Fenestres, windows, 362. Emplete = implead, sue, 318. Ferde, ffeerde, fourth, 62, 65, 67, Enchesoun, reason, cause, excuse, 69, &c. Ferdynd, Ferzyng, farthing, 90, 7, 10, 43, 349. Encresin, Encresement, increase. 110. Fere, company, companionship, profit, 53. Engyne = engine, working, skill 31, 45, 48, 421.

Ferme, a sum of money due to the Crown from certain towns, 350, 353. (A.S. feorme, i.e. provisions, in which rents were anciently paid ; afterwards used for the sum of the rents, as well as for the messuages, &c. for which they were paid.) Ferndes, Frendis, friends, 35. Ferthere, foreign or distant, 38. Ferbingloff, farthing loaf, 354. Fervall days, the working days of the week, 426. Fervnge day = affering day, 421. (See Affurers) Fesse, ffesse, fees, allowances, 59, 66, 70. Fett, Fetten, fetch, 323, 447. Feuste, first, 318. Feyre, fair, 384. Feyth, oath, 63, 72. Firmast, first, 4. For, sometimes used as to, 62, 63. Fore, for, 34. Foreign, Forene, Forynar, stranger, not belonging to the borough, city, or gild, 317, 337, 382. For-nemeb, taketh away ("for the stret bt he for-nemeb," i.e. for the piece of street which he occupies, and thereby takes away), 359. Forsake, refuse, 71, 103, 108, &c. Forseid, Fornseid, aforesaid, 35, 45. Forsoth, truly, in truth, 326. Forstalle (see note to p. 353), 396. Forth, used to strengthen some prepositions, as, benethforth, withynforth, withoutforth, 373, 393, 394. Forwetyn = for to wetyn, to know, 62, 63. Fourtnythe, Fowrtenytz, fortnight, 35, 71. Foyle, insult, 304. "in veyn bu foilist bi flesch wib abstinens."-Wichff's Apol. (C. S.) 44. Freleche, freely, 355. 337.

Frist, Frust, first, 80. Frontel, a moveable ornament for the front of the altar, 233. Fuyre, fire, 371, 382, 385. Fynden, Fyndeen, provide, 35, 48, 70, 71, &c. Fyse, fees, 60. Gaderid, gathered, 38, 121. Galegez, pl. of galegge, galoche, or galache, a kind of under shoe or patten, 332. (See Pyncouz) Gare, go, 117. Garneamentes, garments, 302. Gederynge, gathering, 387, 388. Gedren, gather. 101. Get. goats, 354. Geyderd, gathered, 117. Gildwyt, a fine to the Gild, 185. (A.S. wite, punishment, fine.) Glevve, Glavthe, glaive, a kind of hand-dart or lance, 388, 427. Godis, Godys, goods, moneys, 38, 52, 53, &c. Gon, Gone, go, 18, 19, 21, 31, &c. Gon (the bellman), ring, 55. Good, used in the singular as a noun, 350, 353. Grenewax; certain proceedings by the Court of Exchequer, as to fines and certain profits to the king, used to be sealed with green wax, 370, 378. Gret enquest, grand jury, 382, 385, 405. Grete clothynge, 377. (See A-cloth.) Greuance, grievance, 279. Greuyd, grieved, 61, 76. Grist, corn, 336. Grucche, grumble, murmur, 91, 94, 97. Gry[d]eb, proclaimeth aloud, 361. (A.S. grædan, to cry, call, say.) Habbe, have, 352, 353, 355, &c. Habelyd = abelled, enabled, taught, Halde. Halt, hold, keep, 352, 358. Haldeb, holdeth, keepeth, 354. Hale, to draw, to take, 425. Half Thursday, Verror for Halig Thursday, or Ascension Day, 34, 35, 36. Halidom, relic, holiness, 36, 418. (See Holydom.) Hallomese, Halumesday, Hallowmass, or All Saints' day, Nov. I, 58, 60, 60. Halowenetvd, AllSaints' time, 351. Halue, half, 356. Halwen (v.), to hallow, 17. Halwes, Halwen, Halewyn, Hallowen, saints, 3, 11, 22, 29, 40, 397, &c. Halver, a drawer = to the modern porter, 425. (O.E. to hale, to draw. fetch or carry away.) Han, have, 30, 35, 37, 75, &c. Hap, event, chance, 7, 9. Harn, are, 36. Harnesid, clothed, dressed, 408. Harwaste, harvest, 313. Hastili, quickly, without delay, 35, 46. Hat, Hatz, hath, 30, 53, 450. Hauened, having, 45. Hawen, have, 119. Heare, hair, 396. Hedmesse = high mass, 144, 145. Heize, Hey, high, 8, 11. Heldyn, hold, 54. Hele, Heyle, health, 63, 78, 87, 103. Hele, conceal, cover, 356. (See Hillyer.) Hem, them, 3, 23, 71, 76, 114, 378, &c. Her, Here, Ere, Hur, Hure, their, 3, 14, 23, 27, 87, 111, 350, 351, 377, &c. Herborwed, harboured, lodged, 357. Hergdes, earth, 110. Herin, Hervn, Heren, hear, 14, 43. Hertes hed, hart's head, 320.

Herthe, earth, 35, 111. Heste, behest, command, 350, 356. Hesterne, Hesterday, Easter, 71, 78. Hethenesse, heathen lands, 36. Heuedes, heads, 349, 360, 362. Heuvnesse, Heuines = heaviness, quarrelsomeness, 279, 450. Heyle, hale, healthy, 87. Hij, Hy, they, 349, 352, 355, 357. Hillver, tiler, maker of tiles for roofs, &c. 398. (A.S. hilan, to conceal, to cover.) Hiring, hearing, 304. Hode, Hod, hood, 21, 56, 415. Hoggesters, hucksters, 337. Hokday, the Tuesday fortnight after Easter Day, 385. (Hocktide was an ancient festival kept in the second week after Easter.) Hoke, oak, 117. Hokez, hooks, 386. Holigost, Holy Ghost, 14. Holleche, Holecheche, wholly, 362. Holpyn, helped, 56. Holvdom, (1) relic, (2) holiness, 189, 319. 418. Holye, wholly, 188. Home, them, 58. Honest, decent, useful, 53, 190. Honestliche, decently, fairly, beautifully, 47, 52, 247, 278, &c. Hoo, who, 35. Hool, whole, 449. Horsbrede, 337, 376, 406. Horsecharche, horse load, 358. Hos. as. o8. Hostrye, inn, 376, 406. Hoten, (v.) (1) promise, (2) command, 14, 27, 30, 37, &c. Houereday, everyday, 122. Housling peple, communicants, 199, 204, 222, 247. (A S. husel, the sacrament.) Housynge, furniture, &c. of a house. 362. Hows, Huse, house, 86, 357.

Hure, hur, their, 377, 378, 380, &c. Hustylmentz, furniture. utensils. 233. Huydes, hides, 306. Hye desse, high dais, 327. Hynen, servants, 357. Iche, each, 51, 75, 106, 122. Iche. that. 108. Ilizt. lighted. 8. Ilke, Ilka, Illie, every, 56, 66, 97, &c. Inemed, y-named, 54. Ingyne. (See Engyne.) Inordynatt ruell, disorderly rule, 332. Intrailles, Intrelle, entrails, 385, 396. Ion, John, 47. Irrite, of no effect. 311. (Lat. irritus, vain, useless.) Is, his, 62. Janzelynge, chattering, talking, 76, 79, 84, 93, 104. Juwyse, punishment, instrument of punishment, or jurisdiction implied by the possession of such instruments, 355. Katel. (See Catel.) Kechen, kitchen, 120, Kennen, to know, 43. Kepende, keeping, 53. Keruere, carver, 446. Keywoode, wood landed at, and perhaps sold from, the quay, 383. Knaffe, knave, 315. Knave child, a boy, male child, 30. Knolled, Knelled, tolled, by single strokes (the bell is "to be knolled," as distinguished from "rongen out"), 180, 401. Knyghtenspence, a local rate, 390. Konyng, Kunning, knowledge, skill, 46, 277, 319, 321, 416.

Krewettes, cruets, 320. Kyrke, church, 87, 92, 100, 107. Kyrke-wardeyns, churchwardens, 146. Laghe, law, 115. Lammes, Lammas, Aug. 1st, 60. Langnesse, length, 352. Lapen, basket, hamper, 355. (A.S. lap, leap.) Lat, Late, let, 81, 359. Laten, a hard mixed metal, thought to be something like brass. 320. Launcegave, a kind of lance or javelin, 388. Lauedy. (See Leuedi.) Law-day, leet, meeting of the Court Leet, 370, 405, &c. Leche-craift, doctoring, 322. Led, lead, 358. Lede, y-lad, taken, carried, 353, 356. Ledep, carryeth, 358. Lefull, Leeffull, lawfull, rightful, 21, 51, 390, 449. Legge, lay, lie, 362, 363. Leib, layeth, lendeth, 357. Lengere, longer, 70. Lentone. Lent season. 106. Lese, lose, forfeit, 48, 50, 55, 56, 77, 302, 350, &c. Lessid, lessened, diminished, 55. Lestende, Lestyng, during, whilst, 31, 38. Lestenliche, enduringly, for ever, 45, 47. Lestetz, Lestyt, lasteth, 56, 63. Let, Lettyng, hindrance, hinder, delay, 23, 46, 55, 81, 447, &c. Leber, leather, 353. Leben, ? - legen, to lay, put, 94. Lettid, hindered, 408. Leuacion of godis bodi, elevation of the host, 14, 27, 113, 115, 117. Leue, leave, 54, 58. Leuedi, Lauedy, lady, 14, 29, 36, 62, &c

Leuen, to live, 23, 75. Leueth, remaineth, 18. Levn, Leve, to lay or spread, 36, or. Li (libera), a pound, 104, &c. Lie on, Lye, to belie, 80, 87, 05. Ligeaunce, allegiance, 30. Liste, like, please, 71, 76. Lizt, Lytz, Lyhtz, Lythe, Leyt, light, 7, 43, 54, 56, &c. Lode, 396. Loken, locked, 370. Lokes, locks, 360. Lolladries, "heresies and errours" of the Lollards, 417. Lone, loan, 387, 393. Longeta, longes, belongs, 72, 111. Longynge, belonging, 11, 380. Loos, reputation, 3, 357. Lotte = lot, liability to bear office, 189, 329. (See Scot.) Louerde, Lord, 89, 97, 100, &c. Lygge, to lie, 350. Lyggys, lies, 61. Lykynge, liking, pleasure, 30. Lymenour, limner, 9. Lystes, limits, 43, 44. Lyth, lieth, 59. Lythe. (See Litz.) Lythynge, lighting, 35. Lyuen, to live, 27. Lyuere, Lyverey, livery, 43, 56, 76, 372. Lyues, St.(?) = St. Linus(Nov. 26), 426. March, border, boundary, 249. (A.S. mearc.) Marchasye, Marchalsey Court, 354. Mayntenaunce = maintenance (a legal term), 39, 400, 403. 281. Maystris, masters, 27. Me. men, one (indef. pron.), 350, 357, 360. Meche, much, 48. Mede, reward, 405. Mekil, Mekul, much, great, 45, 111. (See Be.)

Menstre, church, 38. Mercy = amercy, amerciament. 355, 356. Merely, entirely, absolutely, 197. Meschief, Mescheef, distress, trouble, 5, 9, 38, 50, 64, &c. Mesomur, midsummer. 07. Mete, measure, 371, 382. Mete, meat, dinner, 36. Meytevn. maintain, 62. Micheles day, Mychelle, Mihelmesseday, Mykames, Mielmes, Michaelmas day, 10, 62, 91, 97. Mikil, much, 445, 449. Mild, gentle, 47. Mischefe. (See Meschief.) Missomer, Misomere, Mesomer, Myssomere, midsummer, 10, 27, 97, 313. Mo, more, 54, 386. Moder, mother, 3, 11, 22. Modur, Modyr, mother, 103, 110. Mommyng, mumming, 427. More, greater, 189, 277, 307, 360, &c. More, moor, 237. Mornspeche, Morwespeche, Morunspeche, meeting of the gild, held in the morning, 45, 49, 54, 60, 69, 71, 117, &c. (A "spekyng to-gedyr," pp. 52,67.) Morwe, Morwen, Morowen, morrow, morn, 7, 8, 31, &c. Moryng, enhancing, 451. Mowe, Mowen, may, might, be able, 4, 7, 20, 23, 115, 306, 307, 353, &c. Myd, with, 354, 359, 361. Mydlentoun, Midlentene, Mydelentone, mid-Lent, 91, 116, Myzt, might, 76, 355. (See Power.) Mykames day, Michaelmas, 97. Mynaments, muniments, 287. Mynstralles, minstrels, 423, 447. Mynstre, church, 30. Myntenyn, maintain, 27. Mynute, small, 222.

Mysbyhauyor, misbehaviour, 329. Mysconsel, wrong counsel, 87. Mys-ese, discomfort, 31. Mysseie = mis-say (v. act.), wrong, 89. Namelike, chiefly, especially, 83. Natheless, nevertheless, 298. Ne, not, nor, 392, &c. Nedely, of necessity, 386. Nedful, needy, 38, 448. Neep, resting, sleepy; "neep ceason," the autumn, 425. (A.S. hnæppian, to sleep, rest, lie: e.g. "neep tides.") Nemed, taken, 386; Nemyng, taking, 382. Newe (of), a-new, 372, 387. Noght, Nought, Nouht, Nowt, Nouzt, Nout, (1) nothing, (2) not, 4, 10, 21, 40, 48, 54, 55, 71, 353, &c. Non, None, Nen, no, 361, 362, 392, 404, &c. None, noon, 31, 355. No noder, none other, 302. Noust, nousthe, nothing, 7, 9. Nowse = noise, 72. Novsance = nuisance, injury, 249. Nyme, to take, 353, 358, 362. (A.S. niman. See Nemed, Outnome.) Nys, is not, 361. Nyth, Ny3t, night, 71, 75, 360. O, Oo, On, Oon, one, 29, 315, 351, 354, 360, 445. Ob. (obolus), a halfpenny, 27, &c. Obett, Obbette = obit, 198, 326. Obite, funeral service, 145, 336, 421. Oblisshed, obliged, bound, 39. Occupacion, trade, 327, 328. Occupie, use, take up, 375, 396, &c. Odynauns, ordinances, 80. Odyr, other, 279. Of take, overtaken, excepted, 355. Ofter, offer, 65, 69.

O-lupy, single, each, every, 350, 354. (A.S. celpiy, cenlipig, ænlipug, anlipig, ænlep, anlepig, anlip, anlypi.) Onehede = onehood, agreement, 451. Onleche, only, 353. Onys, once, 405. Or, before, 360, 377, 395, &c. Ordeyned, ordered. (See p. 38, line 3.) Ordinate, orderly, 335. Osed, i = [w]o[r]s[t]ed, worsted, 321. Ostery = hostry, an inn, 376. Othe, oath, 36. Other, or, 335. Oper, Oyere, Oyer, Ozere, or, other, either, 4, 9, 29, 55, 72, 84, &c. Oper-loker, otherwise, 355. Ouerseyn, overlooked, 374, 397. Out-nome, except, or unless, 350, 351, 361. Out-nyme, excepted, 353. Out-taken, unless, excepted, 35, 98, 445. Oward, award, 35. Owen, Owyn, own, private, 56. Owvthe, Owith, ought, 34, 380. Oyere, Ozere. (See Ober.) Pache, patch, 320. Palyoun, pavilion, 233. Pame (Fr. paume, palm), a kind of tennis game, in which the ball was struck with the hand. 372, 387. Pans, pence, 353, 354. Parcel-gylt, partly gilt, 199. Parcell, part, 198. Party gown = a parti-coloured gown, 320. Parylle, peril, danger, 371, 382. Pask, Easter, 10. Paste, dough, 336. Patrons, patterns, 321.

Pavys = pavise, a kind of large shield, either for the body or for walls, 320. Pax-brede = pax-borde, an ornamented tablet of wood or metal, used at mass, and kissed by the priest and others in sign of (See peace with God, 233. "Ch. of our Fathers," vol. iii. pt. ii. p. 161.) Paynys, fines, 336. Paysing, weighing, 322. Peltyers, furriers, 29. Penner, a pen-case, often hung from the girdle, sometimes joined with an ink-horn, 320. Pernele, St., Petronilla the Virgin, 47. Pes, peace, 6, 37, 71. Peyne, pain, fine, 10, 377, 381, åс. Peyse, weight, 356. Peysiblyche, peaceably, 52. Peyyn, pay, 63. Pillor, thief, 389. Plegge, pledge or surety, 277, 382. Pond, a pound, 4, 117, 121. Porveyde, provide, 357. Potel = pottle, a measure of two quarts, or half a gallon, 59, 60, 66, &c. Pouer, poor, 278. Pouerte, poverty, 70, 73. Powel, Poule, Powle, Paul, 30, 52, 189. Power of the town, jurisdiction of the town, 355, 356. Powere, of power, rich enough, able, wealth, ability, 4, 48, 75, 389. Poysand, Poysaunt, weighing, 18, 26. Predicted, aforesaid, 198. Prentise, Prentyse, Printes, Pryntes, apprentice, 3c6, 315, &c. Preyeers, prayers, 71. Prevsed, Preised, appraised, valued, 332, 391. Profeth-abil, profitable, 62.

GLOSSARIAL INDEX.

Profry, proffer, 360. Propere, own, 48, 59, 66, 70, &c. Prouen, to try, 101. Prouid, proved, 58, 69. Prykette, a candle made to fix upon a spike or prick, 326. Prvme, between six and nine o'clock a.m., also daybreak, 18, 31, 60. But see pp. 79, 275, where "ye oure prime is clepyd the secounde oure aftyr noone." Pure, poor, 144, 145. Purvoyd, provided, 397. Putts, pits, 372, 385. Pyffanye, Epiphany, 103. Pyncouz = pynsous, thought to be "high unsoled shoes of thin leather, which were commonly worn with pattens," or galaches, 332. Pyte, pity, 395. Quarter, qr., farthing, 58, 60, 65. Quarterage, Quarteridge, quarterly payments, wages or dues, 3, 8, 289 Quavers, Quayres, quires, 197, 379. Queristeres, Querysters, choristers, 108. 222. Quiche, Queche, which, 51, 52, 71, 274 note. Quile, Qwyles, while, 62, 104. Quose, whose, 69, 80. Qwan, Qwhan, when, 30, 275 note. Qwat, Qwhat, what, 72 274 note. Qwere yat, whereat, 72. Qwilk, which, 37. Qwo-so, Qwho-so, whoever, 30, 275 note. Qwyche, Queche, which, 31, 71, 274 note. Qwyt, white, 104. Qwyte, quits, 36. Qwyten, to wit, 92. Ray lyveries, gowns made with cloth in stripes of two or more different colours, 422.

Rebel, ill-behaved, unruly, 55, 79, 84. Recettors, receivers, 371. Regrate (see note to p. 353). Reknynges, reckonings, 35, 370, &c. Relef. that which is left, remainder. 315. Remenaunt, remainder, 31, 361. Repele = repeal, recall, 417. Resevuet, received, 31. Resiaunt, resident, 373, 390. Resonableche, reasonably, 43. Retevignde, retained, 333. Retray, to return, 418, 422. (O.Fr. retree, to withdraw.) Reucnowis, revenues, 335. Rite, custom, 383. Robes, cattle, oxen (A.S. hruder. hroter), 359. Ruvl. rule. 4. Rygge, back (of a man), 354. (A. S. hric, hrycg.) Rysetz, Rysythe, riseth (from table), 56, 88. Rytes, Rythis, Ryghtes, Ryztes, rights, fees, 54, 58, 60, 86, 357. 361. Rythe, right, 30. Sadde, staid, sober, grave, 311, 379, 382, &c. Sal. (See Schal.) Sauen, take care of. 81. Sauter, psalter, 26, 35, 282. Sawere, Sowere, sewer, 314, 315. Schal, Shal, Ssal, Xal, Scholene, Schul, Schulyn, Scullen, Shul-Ien, Shun, Sshullon, Shuln, shall, 11, 24, 27, 29, 35, 40, 54, 67, &c. Schyl, reason, 30. Scot, rates, taxes, 189, 329, also 346 note. (A.S. Sceat.) "Every freeholder is bound to be a partaker in lot, which is liability to hold office, and in scot, which means contribution to taxes and other charges."-Riley's Mem. of London, p. 601.

Screwevnevs, stewards, 119. (See Skevens.) Servt. writing, 357, 362. Se, sea, 48, 52. Seende, seeing, 51. Seke, sick, 66. Scleb, seal, 350. Selue, Seluel, Selfe, self, selfsame, the said. same, 14, 27, 37, 74, 75, 354, &c. Seluer, Syluer, money, 8, 36, 116. 357. Selynge, sealing, 350. Semble, assembly, 31. Semelyn, assemble, 47. Sen. Sent. saint, 54, 62, 83, 119, &c. Sent, assent, 58, 60. Seriauntes, serjeants, 362, 374, 395, &c. Sesynge, seizin, 350. Sete, Sety, fit, wholesome, 382. 397, 425. (O.E. soote, sweet.) Sete. city, 35. Seth, Sethens, (1) then, (2) since, 76, 413, 414. (See Sithyn.) Setsayne, citizen, 322. Sewrer, surer, 413. Sewte, suit, 362. Sewy, to sue, 361. Seyall, seal, 327. Seyn, seen, 380. Seyn, say, 35. Seynge, sing, 34. Seysy, seize, 362. Shapyn, shopping, a shop, 317. Shon = shoon, shoes, 359. Shongable=shoongavel.ataxupon shoes. 359. (See Smergauel.) Shul. (See Schal.) Sille, sell, 373, 392. Sise = assize, 424. (See A-syse.) Site, Syte, city, 27. Sithyn, Sithence, since, 36, 197, 222, 247, 298. (See Sythen.) Skeuaynes, Skevens, Skyueyns, (O. Fr. échevins), stewards or bailiffs (officers of the gild next in rank to the alderman), 46. 48, 54, 64, 81, &c. Skore, 357, 362. Slippe, a steep approach to the river, 374, 396, 397. Slocke, entice, 336. Smere, fat, ointment, 356, 359. Smergauel = smeregavel, a tax upon "smere" or ointment, 359. (A.S. gafol, a tax or tribute.) Smeten, Smyten, struck ("after prime be smyten"), 60, 79, 83. Socage rolls, rolls of those holding under socage tenure, i. e. within a soke. 376. (See Sok.) Socorourris, helpers, 335. Soigne, sung. 144. Sok = soc or soke, a territory or liberty within which certain privileges were possessed, 350. (See Gloss. to Thorpe's A.S. Laws : Bosworth's Dict.) Somnes, summons, 317. Somonour, summoner, beadle, 30. Sonde, sending, thing sent, 31, 35, 50. Soole = sole, single, 190. Sothly, truly, 146. Souerengly, chiefly, 45. Soutere, Sowtere, cordwainer. shoe-maker, 358, 359. Sowen, saw, 52. Soyne, essoin, 361. Spence, buttery, 327. Stabeled, stabled, established, 54, 97, 328. Stabeliche, firmly, 37. Stake, fastener, 362. Stat. State. (1) estate, property; (2) prosperity, 72. (See Estat.) Stede, place, 349, 350, 372. Steure, to stir, move, 317. (A.S. sturan, to stir.) Stresse. (See Distresse.) Stretys, estreats, 400, 421. Strevte, strict, close, 389. Stynting, ceasing, stopping, 415. Sullere, seller, 355.

GLOSSARIAL INDEX.

Sustentacion, support, 67, 336, &e. Suster. sister, 9, 190, 278, &c. Sustren, Sustris, sisters, 3, 275, &c. Suwynge, following, 43. Suvt. Sute. suit, livery, 3, 43, 446. Swervnge, swearing, 362. Swilk, such, 55. Swte. suit. 116. Swych, such, 276, 278, 360, 363. Svlwes, shelves, 327. Symple, common. 8, 11. Syngnyt, assigneth, 35. Sythen, Sythyn, (1) then; (2) also, afterwards, 46, 55, 72, 88. Sythes, times, 20. Svate, sight, 362. Takyn on, put on, 56. Tallage, tax, 356, 359, 390. Talwa, tallow, 359. Tapener, a weaver, a narrower. one who regulates the width of the cloth, 350, 352. Taraget, "court rolls, rentals, or terrages" (Smirke, Arch. Journ. ix. 69), 350. Taryzynge, delay, tarrying, 357. Taske, tax, 300, 303. Tayle, tale, account, tally, 83, 362. Tenne, to conduct, 418. Tensure, a word thought to signify some local kind of tenure, 373, 383, 394. Tenys, tennis, 372, 387. Tebing, tything, 361. Theues, thieves, 6, 9. Thofte, thought, 314. Thorow, Thorwz, Thurwz, through, 6, 9. Thridde, Thredd, third, 49, 54, 64, &c. Thries, thrice, 77. Thurghe, through, 31. Thysmyste, dismissed, 313. Danne, then. Dare, to which, 356. Dat, that pt ylke, yt iche, the same, that, 362, 106.	Tyliers, tillers, husbandmen, 23.

Peder, þider, thither, 35. Þefwyke wytye, keep his bailiwick,	Unboxhum, disobedient, 5, 92. Unskylfulleche, unreasonably, 55
350. (In O.F. "la provost	100.
garder.')	Up-on, Vp, withal, according to Peis, these. Pelke, the like, such, 352.	37, 40, 76, 355, &c.
penges, things.	Urelaucdyes day, our Lady's day 83.
per, there, where, 37.	- 5.
Perof, thereof, 3.	Vele, many, 360.
pey, though, 354.	Verrey, Verray, Very, true, 7, 10
pilke. (See Pulke.)	48, 63, 417.
pird, third.	Viage, journey, expedition, 17.
Po, those.	Vigille, watch, 393. (See Wacche.)
Þorghe, through, 359. Þorow, through, 47, 49.	Vnboxhum, Vnbuxum, disobe-
Pouz, though, 75.	dient, 5, 55, 92.
Pre, three, 360.	Vndren = undern, from 9 a.m. to 12 at noon (corresponding to the Pridde, third, 359.	canonical hours called "tierce").
Pulke, pilke, those, 353, 354, 356,	353.
357, &c.	Vudurfonge, to receive, 349, 357.
Þyrde, third, 315.	Vndurnemere, taker, surpriser,
Til, to, 55.	350.
Tine, to inclose, 437.	Vnshlawe, unslaughtered, 354.
To, sometimes used as while, 84,	Vnskilfulike, unreasonably, 93, sometimes as for, 352, 354.	100. (See Schyl.)
To, two, 30, 35, 60. To-fore, before, 352.	Vn-to, before, 280.
To-gedere, To-gyder, Tokedere, to-	Vnye, to unite, 310. Vnytee, unity, 22.
gether, 3, 34, 67, 279.	Volwyng, following, 324.
Tonne, a barrel, tun, 358.	Vppeyne, upon pain or fine, 353.
Toy, two, 113, 117.	Vre, our, 83.
Toyer, 'tother, 54.	Vsud, Vsed, communicated (taken
Trauaile, trouble, work, 8, 35, 66,	the sacrament), 14, 27.
&c.	Vsyd, used, accustomed, 51.
Tray, tre, wood, 358.	Vy3tynge, fighting, 361.
Tre, wood, 199, 372 ("chimneys of tre," chimneys of wood.)	Wacche (1) a public watch or vigil,
Trental, Trent, thirty masses, 8, 38. Trewelich, Treuleche, truly, 3,	408; (2) a tax for the main-
1 reweiten, 1 reuteche, truty, 3, 349, 350, 357.	tenance of that watch or vigil,
Trost, faithful, trusty, 46.	39°, 393. Wache, which, 34.
Trostende, trusting, 53.	Walk (cloth-) to full cloth, 383.
Trowys, boats or barges of a certain	Wane, wanting, absent, 30.
sort, 424. (A.S. treow, a tree.)	Warde, keeping, charge, 359.
Tweye, two, 39, 350.	War-fore, Wer-fore, wherefor, 353,
Twy3es, twice, 357.	35+•

sobedient, 5, 92. unreasonably, 55, thal, according to. 355, &c. ay, our Lady's day, Very, true, 7, 10, expedition, 17. 93. (See Wacche.) nbuxum, disobe-92. n, from 9 a.m. to prresponding to the rs called "tierce"). receive, 349, 357. taker, surpriser, ughtered, 354. unreasonably, 93, chyl.) 80. 310. 2. ving, 324. pain or fine, 353. municated (taken t), 14, 27. istomed, 51. ng, 361. blic watch or vigil. tax for the mainnat watch or vigil, full cloth, 383. absent. 30. charge, 359. re, wherefor, 353, 30+

Warn, to tell, give notice, 5, 7, 80, 87, 92, &c. 102. Was, whose, 352. Watrd, watered, 397. Waxshote, wax-rate, 190. Waylore, value, 313. Wed, a pledge, 8, 11, 55, 91, &c. (See Borwe.) Wederyng, weather, 23, 111. Wekett, wicket, 320. Wele (habbe wele), will, will have, 360, 361. Wele, weal, 335, 337, 408. Wende, to go, 7, 10, 20, 31, 47. Weneb, thinketh, 362. Werche, Worche, work, 350. Werned, warned, 321. Weten, Wetynge, Whet, Witen, to make known ("the alderman shall weten the dene to seve"), 35, 46, 349 ; to know, 48, 53, 54, 75, 317, 360. Wetye. (See Wytye.) 376. Weye, way, 38. Wher-borow, Whar-youghe, Wherthurgh, whereby, 46, 417. Whethir-so, whosoever, 74. Witen. (See Weten.) Wist, Wyst, known, 81, 95. Wit-owten, without, 55. Wittye, having knowledge, shrewd, 46. Wib-segge, to gainsay, 355. Wodde, wood, 425. Wode-wexen, woad-wax, a plant used by dyers, 358. Wollmongere, wool-monger, 353. Wonveb, dwelleth, 358. Wonvaynge, dwelling, 362. Worchepefulleke, honourably, 57. Worschepe, Wrchepe, Worchippe, honour, 27, 45, 58, 62, 65, &c. Wrecche, malice, vengeance, 80, 95. Wrecchedness, misdoing, 7, 9. Wygthe, Wythe, Wyght, weight, 30, 35, 383.

Wyht-al breed, wastel bread, tor. Wyke, woke, week, 9, 18, &c. Wyllanie = villany, injury, 280. Wyth-sounday, Whitsunday, 60. Wyt, with, 43. Wytye, Wetye, keep, 350, 357. Wyborawe, withdraw (?), 361. Wyste, weight, 354, 356. Xal, Xuln, shall, 54, 55. (See Schal.) Yam, them, 111. Yanne, then, 30. Yate, gate, 374, 397. Y-be, been, 359. Yche. each. 64. Yefe, if, 26. Yefte, gift, 386. Yei, Yey, they, 23. Yeld, yield, pay, 329. Yelde, gild, 237, 238, 281, 370, Yemen, protected, governed, 324. Yer, Yere, there, where, 15, 20, 43, 59, 70, &c. Yerd, rod, 87. Yerfore, therefore, 56. Yer-qwile, the while, 72. Yeuen, Yeuyn, Yeue, Yeve, Yewen, give, 26, 64, 119, 298, 329. Yeyse, Yese, these, 54, 60, 63. Y-fuld, completed, full, 363. Yhef, if, 24. Yher, year, 23. Yhifte, gift, 417. Y-lad, carried, 356. Y-leued, left, 357. Ylke, each, 362. (See pt ylke.) Y-nome, took, taken, 351. Ynows, enough, o. Yoder, the other, 313. Yowte = out, outer, 313. Yre, iron, 358. Yre, three, 58, 65, 71. Yredde, Yridde, third, 60, 78, &c. Y-swore, sworn, 349, 350, 360. Y-take, taken, 357.

Y-weted = wited, kept, taken care of, 360. (See Wetye.)	3eue, 3euen, give, given, 3, 122, 445.
Y-zerle, yearly, 355.	3eyse, these, 86.
Y-zolde, paid, yielded up, 357.	3if, 3ef, if, 4, 6, 50, 349, &c. 3iftes, gifts, 53.
3er, 3ere, 3, 27, 47, 71, &c.	3onge, young, 51, 53.
3erde, rod, 95, 350.	3ou, though.
3ereday = year-day, anniversary,	30uen, given, 53.
281.	3 ^u , you, 53.
3ernende, desiring (yearning), 51.	3yld, 3eld, yield, 3, 357.

INDEX.*

Birmingham family, curious de-Acquittance from general payments, 85 note, 270. tails as to settlement of pro-Acts. (See Ordinances.) perty in, 235–238. - antiquity of the name, 246 Ale, the name for a feast, 182, 216. note. Boy-bishop, 422. Ale and ale-conners, 343, 355, Brewers. (See Ale.) 382, 425. Anglican Church, 262. Bromfield, Court Roll of, 441. Apprentices, 183, 209, 315, 316, Bull-running in Stamford, 192. Bushey (Herts), Court Rolls of, 390. Arbitration in disputes, 21, 55, 440. 76, 96, 101, 115, 280, 322, Bye-laws like Ordinances of Gilds, 323, 426, 442, 450-1. &c., 348, 438-441. Assize of bread and ale, 354, 355, Certificates of Colleges, &c., offi-365-367, 381. Award by Edw. IV. between the cial, of Hen. VIII, and Edw. Tailors' Gild and Corporation VI., 196-199, 201-205, 221of Exeter, 304. 223, 247, 259. - how far valuable, 197 note, Baker MSS., list of, where found, 247. Chantries confused with Gilds, 274 note. Bakers and bread, 354, 365, 381, 205-207, 259. Character, good, required of new 424. Bare legs and feet, none to attend brethren, 76, 139, 141, 229, 306. the feast in, 81, 87. Charter, what it is, 300. Charters not necessary, 128 note, Barley, price of, 121, 123; pay-130 note, 226 note. ments made in, 182, 184, 185. Children of gildsmen admitted Bellman, 55, 145, 163, 190, 191, without payment, 161, 340. 249. Christmas festivities, peace during, Bells knelled, 189, 401; peals of, 190-192, 296. (See Ringers.) 427. Classes, different, in a craft gild, - at Westminster, 294; in Worcester, 395, 401, 402. 324.

* This is not an exhaustive Index, but will be useful in finding occasional points which would not so readily be found by means of the marginal abstracts and the Introduction. See also the Glossarial Index.

Cloth-making, 350-352. Cloth-workers and cloth-walkers, 180, 383. Coal, 223, 425. Codex argenteus, MS. resembling, 175 note. Commune, 201 note. Constitutional principles in England, 239. Corporate bodies, relations of Gilds to, 126, 239, 250, 283, 286 note, 299, 329 note, 331, 334, 348, 379, 411, 420. Correction of servants and apprentices, 322, 390. Craft gilds, ordinances of, 150 note, 179 note, 208. - Bakers, Exeter, 334. - Cordwainers, Exeter, 331. - Fullers, Bristol, 284. - Tailors, Exeter, 312, 324. Craft gilds, relations between, and Corporations, 286, 334, 337, 379, 385, 420, 430. Craftsmen, amercements on, 379. Crafts' pageants, 385, 407, 408; liveries, 388. Curfew, 427. Customary of Bushey, 441; of Tettenhall, 432. Dead, masses for, not provided, 181 note. Dedication, remarkable, 172 note. Defence at law, help in, 166. (See Arbitration.) Deritend chapel, 241, 258-261. Destruction of the Gilds, means taken for, 196, 203 note, 251 note. Dowry to girls, 194, 340. Elder Father, 169. Endowment on foundation, 155, 160, 162, 193, 240, 244, 251. Evil-doers, punishment of, by Gild, 158, 166, 170. Exeter, records of, 126, 300.

Farringdon Without, Ward of, 129 note. Felony, brethren guilty of, 158. Ferthingmen or stewards, 341. Figures, curious method of writing, 199. Fire in Worcester, 382, 385. Fish, sale of, 345, 353, 354, 396. Flagons, 173 note, 183. Flowered candles, 30. Foreign of Birmingham, 236. Forestalling and regrating, 345. 346, 353, 368. Four good men, 135 note. Frauds in trade, laws against, 351 note, 368. Fuel for the poor, 425. Fullers and cloth-walkers, 180. (See Cloth-making.) Ghosts and spirits, 194. "Gilde," meaning of, 122. Gild-hall, 246, 250, 387, 392. Gilds mentioned in notes :---Burford, 272. Bury St. Edmunds, 251 note. Dronfield (Derbyshire), 169 note. Grantham (Lincolnshire), 169 note, 174 note. Grimsby, 185 note. Minstrels and Players, Lincoln, 204. Ringers of Westminster, 295. Worcester, 180. Gilds merchant, 152, 168, 226, 239, 357, 411, 430. Glanvilles, the two, 191. Graceman, 172, 176, 183. Great Seal of England of Edward III., curious facts as to, 227 note. Guest at home, ale for, 185; at Gild feast, 186 note, 219. Hans House, 151, 357. Head officer, different names for, 46, 165, 170, 172, 183, 195, 219 note, 229.

Hearse, funeral, 176. Hedge-bote, 437. Help-men, 156, 160, 217. Hire of labourers, 395. Holy Cross, legend of the Invention of, 224. Homage and mutual help, 191 note. Horse bread, 337, 366, 406. House-bote, 437. Housling people, 199, 222, 247, 260. Hucksters, 337, 343. Impressed manuscript, 175 note. Incorporation of several Gilds together, 219, 338. Indulgences to helpers of a Gild, 269. Inns, 30, 406. Inquiry, regular, articles of, 158, 366, 367. Inquiry before license of mortmain, 240-243. Inspeximus charters, 153, 227, 232, 301. Inventories named and given, 168, 233, 320, 327. Jewels and plate, 140, 199, 248. Juries, 400, 405. Kalendars' Gild of Bristol, 287, 417, 428. Kind, payment of workmen in. suppressed, 352 note, 383. King's peace. (See Peace.) Law, ordinances not against, 23, 30, 39, 337; but the contrary, (See Town.) Law-day, or Leet, 411, 421, 439. Law-suits, 271. (See Arbitration.) Laws and ordinances, publication of, 376, 402, 412. (See Ordinances.) Leather, 345, 353, 358, 359, 384. Leet-Court, 411, 439; articles of inquiry at, 367.

INDEX.

Legacies, 29, 165, 170, 317, 339. Lepers, 341. Letters patent to Stratford Gild. 218. Liveries, city, 422. Liverymen in Tailors' Gild, Exeter, 324. Liverymen in Worcester, 386, 388-380. Loans to brethren, 8, 11, 156, 160, 170, 220. Lodgings for the poor, &c., 143, 231, 249. Lot. (See Scot.) Magna Charta, meaning of the frequent confirmations of, 227 note. Manuscripts used in Part III., accounts of, 363, 409-411, 428, 429, 432, 438, 443. (See Returns.) " Maser," 174 note, 231. Masters of Gilds witnesses to charter deeds, 235 note. "Medius" and middle lords, 226 note, 245 note, 263 note. Meetings, 128 note. Members of Parliament, payment of, 134, 393. Midwife, common, 249. Mortmain, license of, from whom needful to be obtained, 226-227 note, 245 note, 263 note. - illustration of proceedings taken in getting, 240-245. - in some cases none ever got, 251 note. Mortmain, statute of, mentioned, 105. Music, 148, 149, 289, 294. (See Ringers.) Names of brethren, 112, 453. Night watches, 194, 217. Oaths, specimens of, 188, 316-319.

31

Obits, general, 421.
Office, brethren acquitted from payments while holding, 36, 85
note.
Officers of municipal bodies, 349, 412.
Ordinances, making of, 11, 48, 57, 139, 192, 402.
- reading of to new brethren.
- reading of, to new brethren, 159, 161, 162.
- practice of reviewing from time to time, 181 note, 187, 293, 315. — confirmation of, by Justices,
· •
210, 330.
- confirmation of, by Bishop and Commissary, 268-9, 271.
- confirmation of, by Corporations, 286, 334, 337.
- of different Gilds, copied from one another, 272.
- of Worcester, called "Acts," how made, recorded, and made known, 376, 379, 402, 404.
_
Pageants, 140, 142 149, 385, 407, 408, 446.
Paper in ancient manuscripts, 44
note, 132, 133.
Pardons, 218.
Parliaments, two in one year, 136.
" Patria," meaning of, 243 note.
Peace, King's, must be kept, 388, 389, 427, 428.
Pilgrims and pilgrimage, 157, 177, 180, 182, 231.
Play along the streets, 137.
Poor, special entertainment of,
169.
Pravers made by brethren, 22.
36, 37, 71, 76, 110, 111, 114,
177. 184. 217. 220. 318. 448.
177, 184, 217, 229, 318, 448. Priests, want of provision for, 220
note.
Private Bill in Parliament, ancient, 309-312.
Processions, 19, 25, 30, 38, 43, 72, 141, 148, 232, 446.
1 mg = 4 + 5 + 4 + 5 + 6 + 4 + 5 + 1

Proclamations of Writs in London and country, 129, 131. Property, real, held by Gilds, 12, 171, 198, 213, 218, 233, 234. Rector, name for head officer of Gild, 193. Regraters. (See Forestalling.) Rents and rent-charges, grant of, 218. Reports made under Henry VIII. and Edward VI. (See Certificates.) Representative institutions, idea of, 134, 135 note. Resumption, Acts of, 301 note. Returns, notes as to MSS., 2, 40, 41, 44, 126, 235, 262. Ringers and ringing, 190-192, 288-296, 326. Rod, penance by holding the, 81, 87. Saint's name to Gild, 195 note, 201 note, 221. Saints, patron, 168 note. Sanatory regulations in local byelaws, 396, 398, 440, 442. Scot and Lot, 189, 329, 345 note, 474. Schools and schoolmasters, 198, 202, 205, 221, 223, 288. Seals of Gilds, 18, 168, 201, 207. 246, 250, 301, 327. Shares of brethren in goods bought, 210, 345. Sistren, not in some Gilds, 263 note. Soul candles, 178, 184. Soul pence, 181. Staple, Statute of the, 356 Mayor's Commission of, 419. Statutes of Gilds. (See Ordinances.) Stratford-upon-Avon, Mr. Fisher's work as to frescoes, &c. at, 224. Sudden death, 113. Sworn men, 349.

Tabard, 81, 87. Tankards and flagons, 173 note, 183, 184, 217, 231. Temporal affairs, part taken in by ecclesiastics, 265. Tilers in Worcester, 308. Town Hall and Gild Hall, 246, 250. Town laws respected and upheld, 163, 165, 167. Trust reposed in Gilds, exemplified, 143, 235, 325. Villans, 136 note. Wastel bread, 101, 365. Watch on St. John's Eve, 408. Waxshot, 190. Weights and measures, old laws as to, 364-367.

Widows, help to, 329. Wife, second, admission of, 159. Will of W. Lenche, 253. Woad, 358 note. Women, founders of a Gild, 155, 160. - not allowed to keep nightwatch, 194. Wool, custom on, 355, 394. Works of charity still carried out by offshoot of an old Gild, 251, 252, 254. Writ ad quod damnum, 240. Writ for levy of expenses of Members of Parliament, 134. Writs for Returns from Social and Craft Gilds, 127, 130; recital of, in the Returns, 28, 83; number remaining, 132.

482